Written Ministerial Statements

TREASURY

ECOFIN: 14-15 Septemeber 2007

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): The Informal Economic and Financial Affairs Council (ECOFIN) took place in Porto on 14 and 15 September 2007. The Informal Council discussed the modernisation of public administrations and its impact on competitiveness, the current economic and financial situation, and issues related to the IMF.

The main discussion focused on the impact of an efficient public administration on overall competitiveness. This is a stated Portuguese presidency priority; the quality of public finances is a common theme to the German, Portuguese and Slovenian presidencies.

The Informal Council also discussed the current economic situation and the volatility in global financial markets. I set out that as a global issue, this demanded a global response and made proposals to EU finance ministers that we must remain fully engaged, acting with the wider international community, in strengthening arrangements for ensuring financial stability. I will also be making proposals at the meetings of the G7 and International Monetary Fund in October. Ministers continued the long-running discussion of how to take forward EU arrangements for financial stability, and considered ongoing initiatives to improve cross-border post-trading arrangements in Europe. The Informal Council also discussed the reform of quotas and voice in the IMF.

ECOFIN: 9 October 2007

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): The Economic and Financial Affairs Council will be held on 9 October in Luxembourg. The items on the agenda are as follows:

Implementation of the Stability and Growth Pact

Ministers will discuss Commission recommendations to abrogate the Excessive Deficit Procedure of the United Kingdom and discuss new recommendations for the Czech Republic to take further action in order to bring the Excessive Deficit to an end.

Public Finances in the EMU

Ministers will be invited to agree conclusions, following their discussion in July on the Commission's annual Public Finances Report and accompanying proposals aimed at improving the effectiveness of the preventive arm of the Stability and Growth Pact by effectively applying the revised Stability and Growth Pact.

The UK Government support a prudent interpretation of the Stability and Growth Pact, taking into account the economic cycle, the long-term sustainability of the public finances, and the important role of public investment.

Quality of Public Finances

Ministers will be invited to adopt conclusions on the role that the modernisation of public administration can play in enhancing competitiveness, delivering better services, achieving better value for money and ensuring the control of government expenditure. The UK welcomes the sharing of experiences between member states on this issue.

Developments on the Economic and Financial Situation

Following on from discussions at the informal ECOFIN in September, Ministers will discuss the current economic situation and disturbances in global financial markets, including the possible policy responses to the issues raised. The UK strongly supports the proposed work of the Financial Stability Forum on these issues and is committed to pursuing an effective, considered global response to these global financial market issues.

Better Regulation

Ministers will be invited to agree on conclusions on better regulation and its role in improving EU competitiveness. The UK supports the positive efforts of the Commission and welcomes the progress made both at member states and EU level towards reducing administrative burdens in the EU.

Flexicurity

Ministers will be invited to agree conclusions on the economic aspects of flexicurity, welcoming recent work by the Commission on developing an approach towards shared principles to develop labour market flexibility alongside support by social systems. The UK believes that fiscal sustainability is critical in the face of Europe's changing demographics.

Dialogues with Third Countries

Ministers will hear an update from the Commission on its dialogues with third countries, including USA, Japan, China, India and Russia, with a focus on the economic, financial and regulatory aspects of those discussions.

Financial Services—Clearing and Settlement

Ministers will be invited to agree conclusions on Clearing and Settlement covering the ECB's proposed target 2 securities project, the implementation and functioning of the code of conduct, progress on removal of the Giovannini barriers and the ESCB/CESR standards. These initiatives are intended to address deficiencies in the European clearing and settlement landscape—an area where the Council has long been pressing for change. The UK welcomes progress in addressing these deficiencies.

Financial Services—EU Arrangements for Financial Stability

Ministers will be invited to agree conclusions on the long-running discussion of how to take forward EU arrangements for financial stability. The UK strongly supports efforts to improve financial crisis management arrangements in Europe, and improvements to the financial stability arrangements in general, including ensuring all member states have robust national crisis management arrangements, and improvements to cross border communication and co-operation in financial crises.

International Financial Market Instability

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): The House will want to discuss the events in the international financial markets this summer. To assist this debate, I am making this written statement to set out a summary of what has happened and the action taken in response. I will make an oral statement later this week.

International Financial Markets—Recent Developments

Over recent years, the world economy and global financial markets saw an unprecedented period of stability and prosperity. This has been accompanied by: lower average long-term interest rates in advanced economies than at any time over the previous three decades; low default rates on borrowing; investors seeking higher returns; and lower premiums for riskier lending.

Since late July, global financial markets have suffered disruption and turbulence, triggered initially by problems in the US sub-prime mortgage market. Uncertainty over institutional exposure to potential losses on sub-prime mortgages caused reductions in liquidity across a range of financial markets. This uncertainty has been exacerbated by the fact that assets and liabilities have increasingly been managed off-balance sheet in complex structured investment vehicles and conduits.

In these circumstances, a range of asset-backed securities could no longer be sold or traded. These problems spread to money markets and funding costs increased for banks, with inter-bank lending spreads rising by up to 100 basis points in major financial centres and terms of lending shortened significantly. Bond, equity, commodity and foreign exchange markets around the world were affected as investors lost confidence and a re-pricing of risk began that is still continuing. In this way, even institutions with no direct exposure to sub-prime mortgages have been affected.

These developments have affected economies and institutions across the world. Many banks and funds have suffered losses due to direct exposure to sub-prime mortgages and associated securities. For example, in the US a number of sub-prime mortgage lenders have had severe difficulties and funds holding large quantities of mortgage debt instruments were also affected. In Germany, two banks had to be helped after suffering from similar exposures. Banks elsewhere in Europe suspended the activities of funds after exposure to sub-prime products left them unable to value them appropriately. Funds in other countries, including Australia and Canada, have also been affected.

Impact on the Financial Sector

The UK entered the recent period of turbulence in the global financial markets in a strong position. The UK economy has seen 60 quarters of growth—the longest and most stable period of growth since records began—and is expected to continue to grow.

Moreover, the banking sector in the UK has benefited from a period of strong growth which helped it build up healthy balance sheets and capital positions. Most major UK banks reported good profit results for the 2006 financial year and continued to report increases in pre-tax profits in their interim results for the first half of 2007. Throughout this period of growth and stability, the Financial Services Authority (FSA) continued to set capital requirements for all banks above the minima required by EU law and international standards.

Direct exposures in the UK to losses from sub-prime mortgages have been less significant than in some other countries. However, because of the broader impact of the turbulence on global markets, some financial institutions have found themselves under funding pressure due to the seizing up of asset-backed commercial paper markets and the drying up of liquidity in the inter-bank markets.

Northern Rock Plc

Northern Rock Plc faced specific difficulties in these circumstances. Its recent problems were not caused by direct exposure to sub-prime mortgages in the US or the UK: indeed, it has a good quality loan book. Rather, its problems have been associated with wider conditions in the wholesale funding markets. The market for new securitisations had largely closed as investors' demand for such assets fell across the world. Furthermore, the market conditions in August and September resulted in liquidity in the wholesale money markets drying up, with a shortening of duration of funding and an increase in its cost. The combination of these factors contributed to serious liquidity problems for Northern Rock Plc.

Following advice from the Governor of the Bank of England and the chairman of the FSA that the position of Northern Rock Plc, given market conditions at that time, constituted a genuine threat to the stability of the financial system, I concluded that it was appropriate and necessary for the Bank of England to provide liquidity support to Northern Rock Plc. Northern Rock Plc issued a profit warning on 14 September. At the same time, the authorities issued a statement about the provision of a special liquidity facility to Northern Rock Plc.

On 17 September, to put the matter of security of deposits beyond doubt, I announced that, should it be necessary, the Government, with the Bank of England, would put in place arrangements that would guarantee all the existing deposits in Northern Rock Plc during the current instability in the financial markets.

Throughout this period the Treasury, the FSA and the Bank of England have worked together, and, as appropriate, with Northern Rock Plc, in line with their respective responsibilities, and continue to do so.

Reforms

Global issues demand global responses, so the Government are working closely with their partners in the EU and internationally to ensure a coordinated international approach to financial market developments over the last two months. I made proposals to EU finance ministers that we must remain fully engaged, acting with the wider international community, in strengthening arrangements for ensuring financial stability.

I will also be making proposals at the meetings of the G7 and International Monetary Fund next week on the international response.

The UK has a system of depositor protection based on the Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS). Under the previous scheme only the first £2,000 of people's savings and 90 per cent. of the next £33,000 were guaranteed. As a first step in improving the level of protection for depositors, the FSA has decided that, with effect from 1 October, the FSCS will cover 100 per cent of deposits up to £35,000.

We must learn the lessons from recent events and reinforce our systems appropriately to meet our objectives of maintaining financial stability, competitiveness and confidence. I will therefore make a statement later this week bringing forward proposals on further reforms to give consumers confidence that their savings and deposits are accessible, safe and secure, and to handle banks facing difficulties.

We will balance any need to make improvements as quickly as we reasonably can with the need to consult as fully as possible. Financial sector regulation will remain effective, proportionate and risk-based, protecting investors and consumers appropriately and ensuring market integrity whilst encouraging innovation and keeping pace with market developments.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Capital Investment in Schools, 2008-11

The Minister for Schools and Learners (Jim Knight): I am making a preliminary announcement of how £21.7 billion capital will be invested in schools between 2008 and 2011. This is investment for buildings and ICT allocated to the Department for Children, Schools and Families as part of the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007.

Good facilities where young people can learn and grow are a vital foundation for a good education. The report "Better Buildings, Better Design, Better Education" (DfES, 2007) showed that the Government's investment programme has already made a difference for pupils around the country. Since1997, over 1,100 schools have been built new or rebuilt, 27,000 classrooms built or improved, and thousands more schools have had real improvements to science laboratories, sports facilities and other building and ICT projects. In 2007-08, around 180 schools will be built new or rebuilt, including the first through "Building Schools for the Future".

The programmes for 2008-11 will drive our modernisation programme still further and faster. Investment will be £6,669 million in 2008-09, £7,024 million in 2009-10 and £8,035 million in 2010-11. Investment by 2010-11 will be seven times higher in real terms than in 1996-97. We are continuing the successful balance of programmes, established in 2004. These are: devolved programmes for every school and local authority; our long-term strategic programmes for primary and secondary education; and targeted programmes for key national investment priorities. I will make a further statement next week to set out the detailed allocations against each of these programmes.

Information and Communication Technology Funding

Most capital programmes can be used to invest in technology equipment. However, given its importance, there will be £837 million over three years specifically for ICT. Within this figure, I am introducing a new harnessing technology grant worth £603 million over three years. This grant replaces the previous disparate grants for technology. It allows schools, and local authorities on their behalf, to invest to meet local priorities in line with the objectives of the Department's e-strategy. There will be further announcements on the remaining ICT funding.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Enterprise Week 2007

The Minister for Competitiveness (Mr. Stephen Timms): This year, enterprise week runs from 12 to18 November. It is the annual focal point of the "Make Your Mark" campaign—which aims to inspire young people (aged 14-30 years) to be enterprising in the broadest sense, developing a creative, can-do attitude with the skills to spot opportunities and the confidence to pursue them. This is crucial for the future aspirations of millions of young people as well as the economic future of the UK—encouraging business start-ups, social enterprises and development of an enterprising workforce. Wednesday 14 November will be Women's Enterprise Day and Thursday 15 November will be Social Enterprise Day.

This is not simply about encouraging business start-ups and entrepreneurship. The campaign also encourages organisations across the UK to take the opportunity of Enterprise Week to celebrate and recognise the wealth of talent that is evident in every business and to encourage their employees to start thinking about ideas that have a very clear and tangible business benefit.

"Make Your Mark" is funded by the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform and is led by Enterprise Insight—a campaign coalition founded by the UK's leading business organisations (CBI, British Chambers of Commerce, Institute of Directors, and the Federation of Small Businesses) in partnership with the main enterprise development organisations and working closely with Government Departments, education bodies, Regional Development Agencies and others.

Last year, Enterprise Week generated very large community interest in entrepreneurship. 448,000 people attended the 3,184 events run by 1,410 organisations. Over 20,000 people in 3,704 teams from schools, colleges and workplaces competed simultaneously around the UK in the Make Your Mark Challenge—the week's largest single event. Over 15 per cent. of events were in colleges and universities and social enterprise had a particularly high profile, featuring in over 10 per cent. of all events and media coverage.

Enterprise Week 2007 is expected to be even bigger but it needs Members' continued support. Members are urged to look at the campaign website:

www.makeyourmark.org.uk and consider how the campaign can benefit their constituencies. Active support of Enterprise Week events taking place in constituencies and encouraging the organisations that are running them to register details of their event on the database at: www.enterpriseweek.org will help to ensure that this is the biggest Enterprise Week yet.

DEFENCE

UK Hydrographic Office

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Derek Twigg): I am today announcing the initial results of a review for the location of the UK Hydrographic Office (UKHO).

The UKHO and Met Office have carried out an analysis of the benefits and costs of co-location with the Met Office at Exeter, compared to the other option of developing a new facility in Taunton.

The conclusion of this work is that it is not cost effective to move the UKHO's 900 strong office workforce to Exeter, and in addition any such move would cause substantial disruption to both organisations.

I therefore confirm that the UKHO will remain in the Taunton area and that further work is on going to determine detailed options for the office.

Pattern of Military Low Flying Across the United Kingdom 2006-07

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Derek Twigg): The amount of low flying training carried out in the UK Low Flying System (UKLFS) during the training year April 2006 to March 2007 was the minimum required for aircrew to reach and maintain their ability to fly at low level. The number of low flying training hours booked in the UKLFS (excluding the rotary wing dedicated user areas, where different booking arrangements apply) was 37,717 hours, a decrease of 6,713 (15 per cent.) hours in comparison with the previous training year. This decrease can be mostly attributed to the high level of operational deployments and immediate training requirements for operations in the close air support role being undertaken at medium level rather than low level. Low flying hours have also reduced from aircraft retiring from service. The level of operational low flying by fixed wing aircraft reduced by some 6 per cent. when compared to the last training year.

The Ministry of Defence is committed to ensuring that low flying training across the UK is spread as widely as is practically possible across the UK so that no single area is too burdened. However, due to a variety of reasons, population distribution and geographical and climate restrictions, it is unavoidable that some areas of the country may experience more activity than others.

I have today placed in the Library of the House a report giving a detailed account of the low flying training that has taken place in the UK Low Flying System for the training year April 2006 to March 2007.

Future Army Structure

The Minister for the Armed Forces (Mr. Bob Ainsworth): I wish to announce today plans to restructure the Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers (REME) as part of the on-going implementation of the Future Army Structure.

In line with the Defence Logistics Transformation Programme, the Off Platform Repair Capability, which provides intricate repairs from a semi-permanent location, will be aggregated into two Off Platform Repair Companies. These sub-units, together with those assigned to the Logistic Brigades, will come under the command of two Territorial Army (TA) Battalions—101 and 104 Battalion REME.

The battalions will be re-titled 101 and 104 'Force Support Battalions REME' to reflect their increased role. Their present affiliations remain extant. The overall size of the TA is not affected.

While this entails integrating regular companies into battalions that were previously TA, it does not set precedents—elements of the Royal Military Police are similarly structured. Command will be exercised by a Regular Commanding Officer, although sufficient REME reserve command opportunities will still exist elsewhere.

These changes will be effective from 1 April 2008.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Update on Foot and Mouth Disease and Bluetongue

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): I would like to make a written statement on this summer's outbreak of Foot and Mouth Disease in Surrey and on Bluetongue. This gives further detail and background to my oral statement of today.

On 3 August Foot and Mouth Disease was confirmed on a cattle farm in Surrey. In line with the contingency plan, control measures including a national ban on the movement of susceptible animals were put in place immediately.

DEFRA, Animal Health, local authorities, the voluntary sector and other partners across government, alongside the farming community, have worked hard to control and eradicate the disease. Working with the leaders of the farming and food chain industries, we have been able to identify welfare pressures, and on a risk basis allowed animal movements to take place under strict biosecurity conditions.

By 4 August we were able to confirm the strain of the virus as 01-BFS-67. As this strain was not currently circulating in animals, this pointed to the Pirbright laboratory site as a potential source of the outbreak. Therefore, I commissioned the Health and Safety Executive to investigate the potential release from the site, and Professor Brian Spratt to lead a team of experts in a review of biosecurity arrangements.

On 7 September we published the investigation report from the HSE, the review report by Professor Brian Spratt, and the epidemiological report from the National Emergency Epidemiology Group in DEFRA. I have place copies of all these reports in the House Library. They all concluded that the cause of the outbreak was almost certainly the escape of live virus from the Pirbright facility. As the House will be aware there are three parties on the Pirbright site all of which are known to have been using the 01-BFS-67 strain during the period when infection was most likely to have occurred—the Institute for Animal Health, a research institute sponsored and grant aided by the Biotechnology and Biological Science Research Council which also owns the land and buildings on the site; and two private companies Merial Animal Health Limited, and Stabilitech.

It cannot be said with complete certainty how the virus escaped from the Pirbright site. However, the reports concluded that the most likely route was accidental release from the drainage system that connects the vaccine production plant to the waste inactivation facility on another part of the site. It is thought that localised flooding alongside construction work may have resulted in effluent escaping from the system coming to the surface, and being transferred on the site.

Whatever the route of escape, it should not have happened and we are determined that it does not happen again. I have accepted all of the recommendations in the reports from the HSE and Professor Spratt, and I have called for a review of the regulatory framework for animal pathogens led by Sir Bill Callaghan. In addition a safety alert has been issued jointly by DEFRA and the HSE to the Advisory Committee on Dangerous Pathogens and all animal pathogen category 3 and 4 laboratories, reminding licence holders of their responsibilities. This will be followed by a round of inspections. A rigorous improvement plan has been developed for both Merial, and IAH to be implemented before full operations with live virus can re-commence. In addition a review led by BBSRC is assessing the funding, governance and risk management at IAH. I will keep the House informed of progress with both these reviews.

Epidemiological investigations began immediately when disease was confirmed and indicated that it was highly unlikely that the virus had spread outside of the Surrey area. Under long standing international rules and European Union procedures, zone restrictions must stay in place for at least 30 days after preliminary cleansing and disinfection on the last infected premises and the completion of certain surveillance activity. We observed these procedures and carried out intensive surveillance going beyond Community rules in the area. Given that only two cases had been confirmed (on 3 and 6 August) we proceeded to lift the Surveillance Zone on the 8 September and with the unanimous support of the Commission and member states, trade restrictions were lifted.

Unfortunately, as we now know, there was undetected infection outside the surveillance zone. On 12 September following an investigation by Animal Health, Foot and Mouth Disease was confirmed in a third case in Surrey, and controls were re-imposed.

On 25 September we created two FMD areas in Great Britain, a risk area in the south-east and a lower risk area in the rest of the country where farm to farm movements were permitted under licence. We have subsequently reduced the size of the FMD risk area and will continue to do so based on veterinary risk. On 4 October markets in the low risk area were able to start operating again under stringent biosecurity measures. I visited Skipton market last Thursday and was able to see the difference this will make to the farming industry.

On 3 October the EU confirmed that the export of meat could resume from this Friday (12 October) from Scotland, Wales, and the north and south west of England. This is very welcome news for the farming and food chain industries. We will continue to work with the Commission to increase the areas from which exports can happen.

The outbreak and its continuation has been a tremendous blow to the farming industry, especially given the time of year when the majority of livestock farmers need to move their animals and generate income. The economic impact of this outbreak on the farming community has been very significant and we have listened to the views of industry to take steps to alleviate economic and welfare pressures where ever possible. Indeed, working in partnership with the farming community has been an integral part of our approach to responding to this outbreak.

I am acutely aware of the major challenges facing the livestock sector at this critical time of year. Officials are working very closely with the industry in facilitating the resumption of animal movements on a risk basis to ensure as far as possible the normal working of the industry. The measures we have taken to ease restrictions in the low risk area through farm to farm movements and opening markets have helped and the resumption of exports of meat will be of further assistance not just to those whose products are exported but to the market overall.

As if an outbreak of Foot and Mouth was not enough, on Saturday 22 September the first case of bluetongue was found in East Anglia. This disease affects mainly cattle and sheep and is the same strain which has affected much of North Europe since last summer. Intensive surveillance was carried out to determine whether this and the subsequent four cases were isolated incidents which could be controlled by culling.

On Friday 28 September the increase in cases indicated that the disease was circulating in our midge population and the Deputy Chief Veterinary Officer confirmed the presence on bluetongue in Great Britain.

Bluetongue is very different from FMD. It is spread by midges, rather than animal to animal, and we cannot stamp it out by slaughtering infected cases. However, we may be able to limit its spread. The cases we have seen so far are in a limited geographical area and seem to result from a single incursion which took place in August when FMD movement controls were in place.

Midge activity should diminish significantly next month, which may halt further spread—at least for the winter. We have therefore consulted a group of stakeholders from the sectors affected and they have agreed that for the time being we should apply the control and protection zone measures to clamp down on further spread.

A clear understanding of the spread of the disease is now crucial to help the industry, with the support of government, to plan what may happen and what the appropriate response would be. That requires farmers in the zones to be vigilant and, for the sake of their industry, to report all new cases, so that we can monitor whether spread is occurring.

Over the coming weeks, the decision on whether to continue this approach will be kept under review with stakeholders. If disease becomes more widespread, our control strategy sets out that we would consider, with the farming industry, extending the bluetongue zones to a larger area. This is a difficult balance between permitting movements across a greater distance but also potentially increasing the risk of further disease spread. I recognise the hardship these controls impose in East Anglia. Our aim is to help implement the control strategy that industry representatives themselves recommend to us. The effects of bluetongue movement controls mean that it is vital that disease control decisions are taken by the industry and not just Ministers. In the longer term, we are also urgently planning with the industry how we could implement a vaccination programme should a vaccine becomes available.

The speed, commitment and professionalism of all those who have responded to these outbreaks has been remarkable, and I am sure the House will join me in expressing thanks for their efforts. The House will also understand the very real pressures faced by the farming community and the distress that this has caused.

I will keep the House updated on progress regarding the control and eradication of both FMD and the control of bluetongue.

Agriculture and Horticulture Development Board

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Joan Ruddock): My noble Friend Lord Rooker announced on 19 September 2007 that the new levy board, which will replace the existing five agricultural and horticultural levy boards on 1 April 2008, will be called the Agriculture and Horticulture Development Board.

Lord Rooker also announced on the same date that the Agriculture and Horticulture Development Board (AHDB), and its sector companies, would be located at a new site at Stoneleigh, Warwickshire from April 2009. The decision to move to Stoneleigh was recommended to DEFRA Ministers, and to ministerial colleagues in the Devolved Administrations, by the shadow board of AHDB.

A business case demonstrating the financial benefits of locating the levy board and its subsidiary companies together at Stoneleigh has been published on the DEFRA website and copies were laid in the Library of the House on 19 September.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Burma

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (David Miliband): The whole country will have been deeply disturbed by recent events in Burma. The brutal suppression of peaceful pro-democracy demonstrations across the country, including beatings, killings and arbitrary detentions of monks and civilians, has been deplorable. The Government are committed to working with all international partners in the search for an inclusive political process to bring reform in Burma.

Historical background

The human rights situation in Burma has long been a cause for concern. The military has ruled Burma since 1962. In 1988, pro-democracy demonstrations were violently suppressed by the military. Multi-party elections in 1990 were overwhelmingly won by Daw Aung San Suu Kyi's National League for Democracy. However, the military regime refused to implement these results.

Aung San Suu Kyi has remained under house arrest since she and her supporters were attacked in May 2003. The 1991 Nobel Peace Prize winner has spent 12 out of the last 17 years under house arrest.

The military regime continues to rule by decree and controls every aspect of society. It severely restricts freedom of expression, information, assembly and movement. Members of opposition parties are subject to harassment, arbitrary arrest and detention. Before the recent demonstrations there were already some 1,100 political prisoners in Burma. Forced labour, arbitrary killings, the use of child soldiers and systematic rape, unlawful detention and displacement have all been commonplace.

The human rights situation deteriorated in 2006 with further harassment of political opposition and attacks on ethnic groups.

Recent Developments

In the middle of August popular protests began against rises in fuel prices of up to 500 per cent.—a measure that had severe implications for the already impoverished Burmese people. The protests were swiftly followed by arrests of pro-democracy activists. The UK condemned the actions of the regime and called for the immediate release of those detained. I expressed the UK's solidarity with the protesters and warned the regime that it would be judged by how it responded to this peaceful movement.

In late September the demonstrations grew rapidly in size, led by large numbers of Buddhist monks. These demonstrations were peaceful and orderly. On 20 September Professor Ibrahim Gambari, the Special Representative of the UN Secretary General, briefed the UN Security Council in informal session, a development which I welcomed publicly, while expressing concern for the peaceful demonstrators. On 22 September demonstrators were permitted to walk past the house in which Aung San Suu Kyi is being held under house arrest. As the crisis developed, the Prime Minister and I issued a number of statements and spoke to many of our international counterparts urging against repression and calling for reconciliation. After the Prime Minister had written to the UN Secretary General and the President of the EU expressing concern, the EU issued a statement on 25 September warning that it would not hesitate to impose strengthened measures against the Burmese regime if they resorted to violence; and there were further informal Security Council discussions on 26 September.

As we now know, the response of the regime—which it tried, unsuccessfully, to hide from the outside world - was one of violence and brutality. The security forces turned their guns on unarmed demonstrators. We do not know for certain how many people were killed but we fear it is many more than the regime has admitted. Monks and opposition leaders have been beaten and arrested. Many remain in detention and reports suggest that they are being held in appalling conditions. Through the indiscriminate use of force, the regime has suppressed the protests and forced people off the streets.

The crisis is continuing in Burma. There are a number of urgent questions the regime must answer. They must provide precise information on those who have been killed or injured; and on those who have been detained—their identities, whereabouts, and the conditions in which they are being held. The regime must immediately accede to the requests for urgent access for the Head of the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the UN Special Rapporteur on Human Rights in Burma, Professor Pinheiro. And they must engage with Ambassador Gambari in developing an inclusive political process for reform.

UK action since crisis began

UK action has focused on three specific areas.

First, the UK has been working actively with the international community, and with Burma's neighbours in particular, to put pressure on the regime to end the violence, release political detainees, including those arrested for peacefully expressing their views in the recent protests, ensure full respect for human rights and work towards genuine reconciliation with all the relevant political and ethnic parties in Burma. This work remains a high priority for the Prime Minister, the Foreign Secretary, other FCO Ministers and the entire diplomatic network.

Second, we have been pursuing urgent action in the United Nations. The UK pressed for the Security Council discussions that took place on 20 and 26 September and most recently, in formal session, on 5 October, and we pressed for the visit by Professor Gambari, to Burma to meet with Aung San Suu Kyi and the military leaders. We look forward to a return visit by Ambassador Gambari.

The UK also pushed hard for a Special Session of the UN Human Rights Council in Geneva, which, with strong UK involvement and support, passed a Resolution on 2 October deploring the violent repression of peaceful demonstrators and agreeing to send the Special Rapporteur on Human Rights, Professor Pinheiro, on an urgent mission to Burma to report on the human rights situation

Third, with our EU partners we have been working to strengthen sanctions against the regime. This will continue over the next week in the run up to the General Affairs Council on 15 October.

Future direction

We have three clear objectives, building on the work we have already been doing. The Prime Minister re-emphasised these objectives when he met Burma activists on Saturday 6 October—the day of global action on Burma.

First, the international spotlight must be kept firmly on Burma. We will continue to highlight the appalling recent events in Burma and use our diplomatic network to keep our international partners focussed on the need to address urgently the ongoing human rights abuses there. On 6 October the Prime Minister drew attention to a compilation of material by FCO officials, drawing together information on recent human rights violations in Burma from media, eyewitness and diplomatic sources. This can be found on the front page of the FCO Website: http://www.fco.gov.uk

Second, the regime must understand that it cannot turn the clock back to the dire situation before the recent demonstrations. We welcomed Professor Gambari's clear statement on 5 October that the status quo ante was both unacceptable and unsustainable. Recent events have demonstrated clearly that this would pose unacceptable risks to Burma's long-suffering population and to the region.

At its meeting on 5 October, members of the United Nations Security Council sent a clear signal that a process of national reconciliation leading to democracy, full respect for human rights and the rule of law is the only way forward. That process must involve Aung San Suu Kyi and leaders of the democratic opposition and ethnic groups. And it will need to have international legitimacy. We continue to support urgent and active UN engagement to pursue such a process, and are pressing for an early return visit by Professor Gambari to Burma.

Third, we will galvanise and mobilise international support to put pressure on the regime. In addition to further engagement by the UN Security Council and the UN Secretary General, we also need all those with influence on the regime to use it to press for positive change. China and other key nations such as Thailand and India can play a crucial role. We appreciate the efforts China has already made in support of Professor Gambari's recent visit to Burma and we hope China will continue to use its influence on the regime to push for genuine dialogue with the political opposition. My recent meetings with Foreign Ministers of all three countries have provided the opportunity to explain the priority we give to this issue.

We expect the European Union General Affairs and External Relations Council to announce a package of tougher measures against Burma on 15 October. We will push for these to include a ban on future investment, on top of the sanctions against individuals and their assets and measures aimed at specific commodities. These will be designed to have the greatest impact on those whose behaviour we are trying to change - the regime and those that benefit from their policies.

Support for the people of Burma

If the Burmese regime changes course and shows it is willing genuinely to work for reconciliation, democracy and poverty reduction, an economic package involving the UN, International Financial Institutions and bilateral donors could be offered. This could include the establishment of a multi-donor Trust Fund to support health, education and other key sectors; support for debt relief; financial and technical support for democratic elections; an investment conference to attract foreign direct investment; trade measures to facilitate Burma's entry into the global trading system, support for civil society including the development of a free media as well as continued humanitarian relief

Meanwhile, in response to PM's discussion with the activists he met on 6 October, the UK has announced an additional £1 million to meet the urgent humanitarian needs in Burma arising from this latest episode of gross misrule. This will help ensure that vulnerable people do not suffer because of the actions of the regime.

HEALTH

Draft Human Tissue and Embryos Bill

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Dawn Primarolo): Today we have laid before Parliament the Government response to the Joint Committee's report on the Human Tissue and Embryos (Draft) Bill (Cm 7209).

On 17 May 2007, the Government published draft legislation to revise and update the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990. This was set out in the Human Tissue and Embryos (Draft) Bill.

The Government welcomed the establishment of a joint committee of both Houses to undertake pre-legislative scrutiny. The Government are grateful for the Committee's report and have accepted several of the key recommendations. We believe that an improved Bill will result from this process.

The Command Paper sets out the Government's response to all 31 recommendations and is available in the Library.

NHS Injury Benefits

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): The scheme administrators have identified shortcomings with the administration of the NHS Injury Benefits Scheme since 1972. The review identified that:

between 1985 and 1998 in some cases the incorrect eligibility criteria has been used;

since 1972 injury benefits have been inappropriately adjusted to take account of changes in the rate of DWP benefits; and since 2002 some decisions have been made without appropriate legal authority.

The Pensions Division of the NHS Business Services Authority have instituted corrective action and all those known to be affected will be notified that their claims will be reviewed. People who have been underpaid will receive the money they are due and those who have been overpaid will not be expected to pay the money back. Once corrections have been made to known cases, an advertising campaign will be undertaken to identify individuals who may have been inappropriately advised against making claims.

The Government take very seriously the difficulties that have been identified with the administration of the NHS Injury Benefit Scheme over many years. They support the action of the scheme administrators in identifying the historic issues and in undertaking corrective action.

Recruitment to Medical Training

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): Sir John Tooke announced the results of his inquiry into Modernising Medical Careers (MMC) this morning. We would like to thank Sir John Tooke and his review group for investing so much time and expertise in providing recommendations for the future of medical training for 2009 and beyond. We will consider Sir John's findings carefully.

Recruitment to Medical Training in 2008

Following a discussion document and feedback from stakeholders, the new MMC programme board, whose members include the British Medical Association, the Academy of Royal Colleges and NHS Employers, has recommended changes to junior doctor training and recruitment for 2008. We have accepted its recommendations which are as follows:

recruitment and selection will be run by local processes that are very similar to the second round of recruitment this year and recruitment in previous years. It will be run locally by deaneries, who will advertise for their own posts and use their own application forms, shortlisting criteria and scoring systems. They will also interview, select, and make offers; a short set of national principles, similar to those used for the second round of recruitment this year, will provide a policy framework for the local processes of recruitment in 2008;

recruitment for a number of specialties will be run nationally where there are well-tested, successful national processes of recruitment. These include General Practice and Obstetrics and Gynaecology; there will be more than one entry point into speciality training each year with start dates at different points throughout the year; there will not be a national IT system for applications to training for hospital specialities in 2008. Work will continue on developing the national IT system for use in 2009. National IT systems will continue to be used for the Foundation Programme and GP recruitment; and there will be pilots of selection centres and invigilated, machine markable tests for shortlisting for entry level posts (Specialist Training Level 1).

Recruitment to Medical Training in 2007.

The previously announced employment guarantee covers the period 1 August to 31 October while doctors continue to compete for posts in round 2 of this year's recruitment. There are about 1,000 additional training posts being created for the end of round 2 as a transitional safety net for junior doctors. The transitional training posts will be filled in November and December. We have therefore decided to extend the employment guarantee to 31 December 2007, when recruitment to the transition training posts will have been completed.

MTAS Security Investigation

Following the security breach on 25 April further investigations have indicated that the personal data were accessed by a user accessing the information through the Imperial College London network. The Department understood that a continuing police investigation would result in serious invasive actions into Channel 4 and Imperial College and constitute a disproportionate response. The college has volunteered its complete co-operation in the matter. It has been supplied with the evidence and is carrying out its own investigations into the conduct of the user. The college has assured the Department that it is treating this as a serious issue and dealing with it in a proportionate and appropriate manner. Consequently, the police are taking no further action at this time.

International Medical Graduates

A consultation to help formulate policy on the place of international medical graduates (IMGs) in recruitment to specialist training for 2008 has been launched today. The consultation has been placed in the Library.

Adult Mental Health Services

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Health (Mr. Ivan Lewis): A set of principles and high level indicators for Adult Mental Health Medium Secure Services was published by the Department in August 2007 and has been placed in the Library. A summary document is available to hon. Members in the Vote Office.

This set of documents provides best practice guidance to support the process of commissioning safe and clinically appropriate adult medium secure services across the NHS and Independent Sector. The principles are supported by high level indicators which commissioners can use to describe to providers the standard of security and care they wish to commission. The documents have been developed with the assistance of specialised commissioners and are supported by the Royal College of Psychiatrists.

This documentation defines and clearly describes what a medium secure service should provide in terms of care and the appropriate security standards. Issuing a national set of principles for Medium Secure Services should substantially strengthen the commissioning function.

Modernising mental health services remains one of this Government's core national priorities. Medium secure mental health services are a key element of the forensic mental health system. For patients, these services are an important part of an integrated pathway, when they need care and treatment in a secure environment. The number of patients who will need this sort of treatment is only a small proportion of patients with mental health problems. However, it is essential for those who do need this treatment that they receive compassionate, beneficial and safe services.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Juxtaposed Control Zones, Eurostar Terminals

The Minister for Borders and Immigration (Mr. Liam Byrne): I am today announcing changes to juxtaposed control zones for the new Eurostar Terminals at St. Pancras and Ebbsfleet International. Juxtaposed controls have been highly successful in reducing the dangerous and illegal crossing of the Channel. The changes in location of the control zone from Waterloo to St. Pancras and a new zone at Ebbsfleet International will take place when Eurostar moves its operations in November. In line with the Government's strategic objective to strengthen our borders, this will allow us to continue work jointly with our French and Belgian partners to protect our borders against the threats from illegal immigration.

The Sangatte Protocol 1991 and the Additional Protocol to the Sangatte Protocol 2000, given effect by the Channel Tunnel (International Arrangements) Order 1993, provide the basis for juxtaposed controls at Eurostar terminals for trains travelling between France and the UK. A tripartite agreement between France, Belgium and the UK of 1993, a protocol to that agreement and administrative arrangements made pursuant to that instrument in 2004 provide the basis for juxtaposed controls in respect of trains travelling between Belgium and the UK (via France) via the channel tunnel. These are given effect by the Channel Tunnel (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1994. Secondary legislation is to be laid before Parliament to make the necessary provision for the new control zones at St Pancras and Ebbsfleet International and to remove the control zone at Waterloo International. Copies of the amended international agreements will be available in the House Libraries.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees

The Secretary of State for International Development (Mr. Douglas Alexander): The Office of the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) has an essential role to play in delivering protection and assistance to refugees, ensuring an effective response to the needs of people displaced from their homes by conflict, and finding and promoting durable solutions to their plight.

DFID has agreed a joint strategy with Canada and Denmark to support UNHCR over 2007 to 2009. The strategy supports UNHCR's corporate objectives and highlights five strategic priorities: emergency response and preparedness; durable solutions; Internally Displaced Persons (IDPs); age, gender and diversity; and results-based management and evaluation. This Joint Organisation Strategy (JOS) was designed in consultation with Whitehall colleagues.

DFID will provide UNHCR £19 million core funding in 2007. Progress against the JOS objectives will be monitored through review meetings supplemented by donor missions.

EU Development Ministers Informal Meeting, 21 and 22 September 2007

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for International Development (Mr. Gareth Thomas): I represented the UK at the EU Development Ministers' Informal Meeting in Madeira on 21-22 September 2007.

The UK contributed to momentum in the right direction on the humanitarian, security and trade agendas, as well as securing support for the PM's MDG Call for Action

Friday 21 September

Improving the EU response to Fragile Situations

The Portuguese Minister for Development, Joao Cravinho and Development Commissioner Louis Michel introduced this item, stressing the need to work differently in fragile contexts and to focus on prevention of violent conflict. The Minister stressed the importance of stability in helping to improve progress towards the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs). Picking up this point, I asked for support for the Prime Minister's Call for Action on the MDGs. In this context and others, the initiative was favourably received. In relation to dealing with fragility, along with some other Ministers, I stressed the importance of basing plans on the OECD Development Assistance Committee guidelines. I advocated the importance of learning lessons from experience with new instruments developed to fit fragile contexts, such as multi-donor Trust Funds.

Security and Development

The Portuguese Defence Minister (a former Development Minister), Mr Nuno Severiano Teixeira, gave a presentation on improving coherence between development and security policies. While recognising the challenges of differing time-scales and priorities, he advocated closer working, including shared management of resources and cross-departmental teams. I was able to share the positive experience of the UK with the cross-departmental Conflict Pools and Post-Conflict Reconstruction Unit. A number of Member States mentioned concerns about potential diversion of official development assistance to cover "military" expenditure. Italy is in the process of passing a new development law which should provide better protection than at present. I spoke about the UK's International Development Act in this regard. I drew attention to the importance of building capacity in the UN and the African Union for effective peace-building as well as peace-keeping. I also reminded participants of the importance of the Arms Trade Treaty.

Humanitarian Aid

Minister Cravinho introduced this item on behalf of the Presidency, which aims to have an EU Humanitarian Consensus to match the 2005 Development Consensus as a commitment to best practice. While acknowledging the value of the Consensus and the good work of ECHO, I pressed for much stronger acknowledgement of the pre-eminence of the UN in co-ordination of responses to humanitarian crises and a clearer commitment to the UN's Central Emergency Response Fund. I drew attention to the importance of the humanitarian principles of neutrality, impartiality and independence where military or armed police personnel and equipment were deployed.

International Development Architecture

The UN High Commissioner for Refugees, Antonio Gutierres, a former Prime Minister of Portugal, gave a presentation encouraging Europe to take a leading role as a "rational centre" in the global development scene, pushing for co-ordination. He acknowledged the importance of UN reform and pointed to the limitations of the International Financial Institutions. In his view three of the main challenges facing the international community were security, migration and climate change.

Saturday 22 September

Economic Partnership Agreements (EPAs):

Trade Commissioner Peter Mandelson opened the discussion of Economic Partnership Agreements amongst EU Development Ministers. He painted a mixed picture of progress. He highlighted the unprecedented generosity of the EU's offer to the African, Caribbean and Pacific partner countries, most recently with new Rules of Origin. He advised Ministers not to heed calls to extend the deadline for deals, arguing that it would be illegal under WTO rules. I acknowledged the generosity of the offer, while suggesting that even more liberal Rules of Origin could help the negotiations. A goods-only "framework" EPA offered the best prospects for breaking deadlock. Along with other Ministers, I stressed that the ACP must not be left worse off if it proved impossible to reach a deal.

JUSTICE

Review of the Use of Restraint in Juvenile Secure Settings

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Mr. David Hanson): On 12 July I announced a review of restraint in juvenile secure settings in the House and, on 26 July, I set out the broad terms of reference for the review. The Ministry of Justice and the Department for Children, Schools and Families have joint responsibility for the review. My right hon. Friend the Member for Stretford and Urmston (Beverley Hughes) is the lead Minister for DCSF.

My right hon. Friend and I are pleased to announce that we have appointed Andrew Williamson CBE and Peter Smallridge CBE as independent joint chairs of the review.

This is a very important and sensitive review and we warmly welcome the skills and experience that Mr. Williamson and Mr. Smallridge will bring to it. They have strong backgrounds in management in the public sector, having both been Directors of Social Services in large local authorities where they had responsibilities both for services for children and for secure provision. More recently they have been involved in the NHS, where they currently both chair NHS Trusts. They both have considerable experience of participating in and chairing reviews in the NHS and in Social Services. They also have a track record of working together at many levels, including joint working for the Department for International Development in developing child protection services in Eastern Europe.

The chairs will be considering whether any further issues should be brought within the broad terms of reference of the review and will decide soon the process for calling for evidence and for consulting with interested parties. We know that the chairs wish the review to be open and transparent and they are expecting to consult widely.

My right hon. Friend and I have asked the chairs to report to Ministers within six months of the date of this announcement.

Judicial Appointments

The Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor (Mr. Jack Straw): The Constitutional Reform Act 2005 makes provision for a new appointments process for Justices of the United Kingdom Supreme Court. The Act brings these provisions into effect once the Court is operational. The new arrangements aim to increase public confidence in the appointments process by creating greater transparency of appointments and improving competition for these positions. I believe that it is sensible to adopt the new process from now on. This is because those newly appointed to the Appellate Committee of the House of Lords will spend the majority of their career in the Supreme Court.

I will therefore adopt Section 8 of the Constitutional Reform Act on a voluntary basis, as any new appointments made will help to determine the character of the Court. This decision does not impact upon other provisions within the Act that will come into force when the Supreme Court opens for business in October 2009.

A selection commission will be formed when vacancies arise. This will be composed of the President and Deputy President of the Supreme Court and members of the appointment bodies for England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland. All new judges appointed to the Supreme Court after its creation will not be Members of the House of Lords; they will become Justices of the Supreme Court.

Land Registration Rules

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Mr. Michael Wills): Land Registry will today launch a formal consultation exercise to seek views on proposals to amend the Land Registration Rules 2003, (with consequent amendments to the Commonhold (Land Registration) Rules 2004) following its first comprehensive review of the existing Rules which came into force on 13 October 2003. Copies of the consultation document have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses. It is also available on the internet at http://www.consultations.landregistry.gov.uk/inovem/consult.ti/system/listConsultations?type=0

The proposals are intended to improve and simplify practice for the benefit of customers and, where possible, reduce the administrative burden on those customers. Many of the proposed amendments relate to existing Rules and practice but some are new. There are proposals aimed at helping the fight against fraud, including obtaining confirmation as to the identity of the parties to a transfer, lease or charge (mortgage).

The proposals reflect Land Registry's desire to create the best conveyancing and land registration system possible and to develop legislation, processes and practices that meet the needs of both property professionals and property owners.

Subject to the outcome of the proposals, the advice and assistance of the Rule Committee and the completion of the necessary amendments to the Rules, it is anticipated that the changes would come into force in November 2008.

Freedom of Information

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Mr. Michael Wills): On 24 September 2007, I deposited copies of "The Freedom of Information Act 2000 -Statistics on implementation in central Government. Q2 - April – June" in the Libraries of both Houses. Copies are also available in the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office.

This is the Quarterly Monitoring Statistics Report analysing the performance of central Government in the third full year of Freedom of Information.

NORTHERN IRELAND

North/South Implementation Bodies and Tourism Ireland Ltd

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Mr. Shaun Woodward): I have today placed in both Libraries of the House papers relating to decisions that have been taken during the period 25 April - 5 May 2007 which relate to the North/South Implementation Bodies and Tourism Ireland Ltd under the terms of the Exchange of Notes of 19 November 2002 (Cmnd 5708).

Criminal Injuries Compensation Appeals Panel

The Minister of State, Northern Ireland Office (Paul Goggins): I have today published the Criminal Injuries Compensation Appeals Panel combined Corporate Plan (2007-2010) and Business Plan (2007-08). The Corporate Plan sets out the long-term strategic goals for the Panel over the three-year period and the Business Plan sets out the Panel's key objectives and performance targets for the coming year.

Copies have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

TRANSPORT

European Transport Council

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Ms Rosie Winterton): I attended the transport session of the Transport, Telecommunications and Energy Council, held in Luxembourg on 2 October. The Portuguese Minister for Public Works, Transport, and Communications, Mr Mario Lino, was in the chair.

At the June Council, Transport Ministers agreed a Resolution calling on the Commission to submit proposals on ways to take forward the Galileo satellite navigation programme, following acknowledgement by that Council that the PPP process had failed. Accordingly, on 19 September the Commission issued a Communication dealing with costs, risks, procurement and governance, together with a proposal for amendment of the Galileo financing regulation and provision for funds to be transferred from the margin available under the Agriculture and Administration budget headings, to fund Galileo in the Competitiveness heading (1A).

With insufficient time for Member States to give detailed consideration to the Communication or to seek the views of national parliaments, discussion on Galileo was confined to an exchange of views. In the exchange, there was wide support for the Galileo project and for reaching an integrated decision by the end of this year. The Council Conclusions reflect these points. In the discussion I made clear the UK's strongly held view that the project should offer value for money for the Community, our opposition to a revision of the financial perspectives, and our firm view that, if the Community decides to proceed with a public procurement of Galileo, any additional funding should be found by reprioritisation within heading 1A.

Following its agreement in principle in June, the Council adopted a Resolution to establish an EU Regional Data Centre for Long Range Identification and Tracking (LRIT) of ships. This will create a single EU system for ship tracking, in line with the requirements of the International Maritime Organisation (IMO). A decision was required prior to the participation of EU Member States in the IMO's Maritime Safety Committee (MSC) meeting, starting on 3 October. I welcomed the establishment of the data centre, while noting some remaining concerns on system integration and cost-sharing. We also presented these concerns in writing. A UK proposal to set up an ad-hoc working group to address these issues was supported by the Presidency, the Commission, and a number of Member States.

The Council reached a general approach on the draft Directive on road infrastructure safety management. The text of the General Approach is acceptable to the UK.

The Council reached a General Approach on each of two proposals on rail interoperability and safety which have been negotiated together. They are a Directive on interoperability of the Community rail system, combining three previous Directives, and a directive amending the 2004 Directive on rail safety. The General Approach texts on these two proposals are acceptable to the UK and successfully deal with our original concerns on establishing a clearer approach as to how the extension to the whole of the Member States rail system will be taken forward.

The Presidency and the Commission reported on the outcome of the 36th Assembly of the International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO) in Montreal. The outcome on emissions trading had been disappointing. The Commission wished to examine possible further action, either within ICAO or at the forthcoming UN negotiations in December, and suggested that the Transport Council return to this issue at its November meeting.

The Council adopted a decision giving a mandate for the Commission to open negotiations on a comprehensive aviation agreement with Canada. The terms of the mandate are acceptable to the UK.

The Council adopted Conclusions on the Commission's Communication on "An Action plan for airport capacity, efficiency and safety in Europe". The Conclusions were acceptable to the UK.

Under AOB, the Commission presented its Green Paper on Urban Transport, entitled "Towards a new culture for urban mobility". The Commission noted the consultation deadline of 15 March 2008 and the intention to publish an Action Plan in autumn 2008.

I have written to the Chairman of the European Scrutiny Committee, House of Commons and the Chairman of the Select Committee on the European Union, House of Lords detailing the outcome of the session. Copies of these letters have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Trunk Roads

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Tom Harris): The policy of transferring to local highway authorities the responsibility for trunk roads that are considered to be non-core was first set out in the White Paper "A New Deal for Transport", published in July 1998 (Cm 3950).

Following advice from the Highways Agency, informed by discussions with the relevant authorities, I have now decided that the following routes should be removed from the announced detrunking programme and remain part of the strategic road network, maintained and operated by the Highways Agency:

M32 (Bristol to M4 Junction 19);

A36/A46 (from M4 near Bristol to M27 near Southampton); and M65 (Junctions 8 to 10).

I have written to the appropriate local highway authorities and relevant Members of Parliament, outlining the reasons for my decision. Copies of the letters to the Members of Parliament have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Planning

The Minister for Housing (Yvette Cooper): Today my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer said in his pre-Budget report that the Government intend to legislate in the forthcoming Planning Reform Bill for a new statutory planning charge to enable councils to capture greater levels of planning gain to support new infrastructure and housing. This investment will be in addition to section 106 agreements, the £1.7 billion targeted infrastructure investment to support growing areas from the Communities and Local Government comprehensive spending review, and the additional mainstream support for infrastructure investment through programmes such as Crossrail. This statement sets out further details of the new statutory planning charge.

This Government believe that everyone deserves a decent home at an affordable price. Homes are the building blocks of our communities and are essential to ensure a sustainable future for the next generation. That is why the Housing Green Paper published in July 2007 set out ambitious plans for delivering three million new homes by 2020.

For new homes and communities to be sustainable, we also need to invest in the infrastructure needed to support the people who live in them—transport, hospitals, schools and community spaces. Through the planning system local communities can secure a contribution to this infrastructure from developers, via section 106 agreements. But only a small proportion of all developments currently contribute to the costs of infrastructure in this way. The current system is also limited in the extent to which it is able to mitigate the cumulative impacts of development on infrastructure, and local authority use of these powers varies significantly. Therefore a new mechanism which properly addresses these concerns is required.

The Government also believe that it is right and fair that local communities should benefit more from the uplifts in land value arising from planning permission to finance the infrastructure needed to support housing growth. This is why, as part of our response to Kate Barker's review of Housing Supply, published in 2004, the Government accepted her recommendation in principle and consulted on proposals for a PGS. In the Housing Green Paper we also asked stakeholders to put forward alternative approaches for capturing more planning gain for consideration.

The Government welcome the constructive and focused way in which stakeholders have engaged with this challenge since the Green Paper. This has included a clear recognition on the part of the development industry that it is right that they should contribute more to the costs of infrastructure needed to support housing delivery. Many in the industry—including the British Property Federation, the Home Builders Federation, London First and the Major Developers Group have supported proposals for planning charges, building on the current section 106 approach and the tariff models developed by Milton Keynes and other areas. The Local Government Association has also supported a similar approach.

Following these representations, and others, we have concluded that the best way at this stage to increase contributions towards infrastructure alongside greater house building is to take forward the Housing Green Paper option of a statutory planning charge.

Compared with the existing system, we believe our proposals will:

- Capture more planning gain to finance additional investment in local and strategic infrastructure, while preserving incentives to develop.
- Make the planning charge-setting process simpler and more certain. By giving a clear basis on which to set a planning charge to support the delivery of planned infrastructure,
- Provide a fairer means of securing contributions from developers for infrastructure. At present, infrastructure benefits for local communities are typically secured from major developments only.
- Encourage regions and local authorities to plan positively for housing and economic growth and for the infrastructure needed to deliver it, and, in the plan context, to decide priorities and detailed charging arrangements which reflect local and regional needs and circumstances.
- The Government's approach builds on the strengths of the current system and experience from areas where a form of charging is already being applied. We therefore propose to include provisions to introduce statutory planning charges in the forthcoming Planning Reform Bill, and we will not be introducing a Planning Gain Supplement Bill in the next parliamentary session. We will keep under close review the development and operation of statutory planning charges to make sure that they achieve our aims of increasing investment in infrastructure alongside supporting new development.

These provisions will empower local authorities to apply standard planning charges for all new development in their areas to support infrastructure delivery. The main features of the planning charge will be as follows:

- Subject to low de minimis thresholds, residential and commercial development will be liable to pay the planning charge.
- Where appropriate local authorities will be able to use planning charges to supplement a negotiated agreement. Negotiated agreements will still be necessary to secure affordable housing and to address costs related to the specific development site.
- Planning charges should be based on a costed assessment of the infrastructure requirements arising specifically out of the development contemplated by the development plan for the area (which comprises the regional spatial strategy and the local development framework), taking account of land values.
- Planning charges should include contributions towards the costs of infrastructure of sub-regional and regional importance identified in development plans.
- Planning charge policies in development plans will be tested through the development plan process, in consultation with developers, stakeholders and the community to ensure they support the viability of new development and levels of new housing required.

The level of support which both the development industry and the local government community have now offered for increasing resources through a planning charge approach is very welcome and provides an important basis on which to implement the proposals successfully. We will be in touch with the development industry and local government very shortly to discuss how we can best work with them and other stakeholders as we prepare the new legislation, and put new planning charges in place.

As with other policies, once the planning charge has been introduced the Government will carry out an evaluation to ensure that its objectives—a step change in infrastructure provision to deliver more homes in more sustainable communities, funded by a fair contribution from development—have been achieved.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Iraq: Assistance to Locally Employed Staff

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (David Miliband): On 8 August the Prime Minister announced a review of the Government's assistance to our locally engaged staff in Iraq. The Defence Secretary, Home Secretary, Secretary of State for International Development, Chief Secretary to the Treasury and I have now agreed on the elements of a scheme.

Locally engaged Iraqi staff working for our armed forces and civilian missions in Iraq have made an invaluable contribution, in uniquely difficult circumstances, to the UK's efforts to support security, stability and development in the new Iraq. We are hugely grateful to them for their contribution, which continues to be essential to the delivery of our mission in Iraq.

In recognition of that, we have decided to offer those staff, on an ex gratia basis, assistance which goes above and beyond the confines of what is lawfully or contractually required. Assistance will be based on objective criteria, taking into account determinable and relevant factors. It is offered in recognition of the service by these courageous Iraqis in direct support of HMG's efforts to help the Iraqi Government and people build a peaceful, stable and prosperous Iraq.

The assistance announced by the Prime Minister yesterday will allow Iraqi staff, including but not limited to interpreters, currently working[1] for HMG in Iraq, who have attained 12 months or more continuous service, to apply for a one-off package of financial assistance of between six and 12 months salary, depending on length of service, to meet the costs of relocation for themselves and their dependants in Iraq or the region, if they are made redundant or have to resign from their job because of what we judge to be exceptional circumstances. Alternatively, these staff will be able to apply for exceptional leave to enter the UK, or to avail themselves of the opportunity for resettlement in the UK through the UK's Gateway refugee resettlement programme, provided that they meet the criteria for the programme, including that they satisfy UNHCR that they meet the criteria of the 1951 convention and need resettlement.

In addition, interpreters/translators and other Iraqi staff serving in similarly skilled or professional roles necessitating the regular use of written or spoken English, who formerly worked for HMG in Iraq, will be able to apply for assistance for themselves and their dependants provided that they satisfactorily completed a minimum of 12 months service, and they were in our employ on or after 1 January 2005. Former staff meeting those criteria will be able to apply for a one-off package of financial assistance similar to that available for serving staff, or to avail themselves of the opportunity for resettlement in the UK through the Gateway programme as set out above.

This assistance will principally apply to Iraqi nationals who meet the eligibility criteria set out above, and who work, or have worked, in Iraq in the following capacities:

as direct employees of the UK armed forces or the Ministry of Defence; on letters of appointment from the British embassy in Baghdad or the British embassy offices in Basra and the Kurdistan region;

as direct employees of DFID and the British Council.

In addition, we are considering what assistance may be provided to a limited number of contracted staff meeting the eligibility criteria who have worked in particularly close association with us as an integral part of HMG programmes, projects and operations in Iraq.

We will announce further details, including on how eligible staff may apply, before the end of the month.

[1]defined as those working for our civilian missions or armed forces on or after 8 August 2007, the date on which the review of policy was announced.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Justice and Home Affairs Informal Council 1 and 2 October

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Meg Hillier): The informal Justice and Home Affairs (JHA) Council was held in Lisbon on the 1 and 2 October 2007. The Home Secretary, the Under-Secretary of State for Justice, my hon. Friend the Member for Lewisham, East (Bridget Prentice) and I attended on behalf of the United Kingdom. The following main issues were discussed at the Council and, since it was an informal Council, no formal decisions were taken.

The first session opened with an introduction to the new counter-terrorism co-ordinator, Gilles de Kerchove. The presidency stressed that he would need to be a key link between the Commission and the Council. The Commission introduced the legislative package it was planning to present in November which would include an amended framework decision on terrorism, work on explosives, and an EU system for the exchange of passenger name records.

The UK thanked member states for their support in tackling terrorism in the UK and acknowledged that terrorism was an EU-wide problem. The UK and others highlighted the importance of data sharing and using databases to support law enforcement to strengthen the EU's security. The UK supported targeted information exchange. The presidency concluded that preventing radicalisation needed joining up of all information sources. There would be further discussion at EU level.

In a discussion on deportation with assurances, the UK emphasised that deportation was an important tool, but exposed a difficult balance: ensuring we could deport an individual deemed a risk to our security while protecting that individual's rights. The UK fully endorsed the use of technology, for example CCTV, in combating terrorism.

The presidency subsequently introduced its paper on the importance of automatic border crossing systems and the Schengen information system. The Commission expanded on this paper by stating that existing visa systems were outdated and, in the medium-term, the EU should look to implement a comprehensive entry/exit system. This was broadly welcomed.

The UK welcomed work on inter-operable systems noting that the use of screening technology had facilitated over 1,200 arrests in the UK. Iris recognition helped ease passage through airports, and gave confidence in identity. The UK advocated sharing such technology since it would enhance member state security.

Member states agreed to use new technologies in border control, with the right protections. Frontex was an essential tool for border management and there was agreement that biometric passports were needed in the EU, and around the world.

On e-justice, member states confirmed that work should continue on the basis of the Council's decision in June. While electronic means of working should be encouraged, there should not be any legislation making the use of e-justice methods compulsory. Rather, work should continue on the basis of the sharing of best practice. It was agreed that the proposed e-justice portal should include information on missing and abducted children.

Child protection was discussed on the second day of the Council. The UK highlighted the issue of monitoring sex offenders across the EU. While acknowledging offenders right to re-build their lives, liberty needed to be balanced with the risk of re-offending through proportionate monitoring measures. However some member states had their concerns. The UK supported any practical measures to track missing children, and suggested a child abduction taskforce, to look at solutions across the EU.

Member states recommended efficient co-operation and working with relevant national authorities, EU bodies and agencies allowing for joint and co-ordinated work on the prevention and fight against child abuse. Member states agreed that co-operation and exchange of information between relevant national authorities and Europol and Eurojust must be reinforced. EU Ministers accepted that promoting a legislative solution was not the only answer to the problem but that the adoption of concrete measures at EU level led to effective and immediate improvement of child protection.

Member states agreed to interconnect (already existing in some member states) national child alert systems. This could be implemented without any legislation, complementing co-operation between relevant national authorities. It was agreed that crimes committed against children via the internet should be condemned and punished; the Commission was asked to present proposals for measures designed to improve prevention and the fight against those actions. EU Ministers recommended that European and international legislative instruments to fight cybercrime committed against minors should be ratified and enforced by member states. EU Ministers strongly agreed that the promotion of children's rights and the protection of children must constitute a priority in the context of external relations, namely with the EU's neighbour countries.

The Minister for Security, Counter-Terrorism, Crime and Policing (Mr. Tony McNulty): Today I have published "Police Performance Assessments 2006-07" covering the 43 individual police forces in England and Wales. This publication has been brought together by the Home Office's police and crime standards directorate (PCSD) and Her Majesty's inspectorate of constabulary (HMIC) and this is the third year that such assessments have been published. Copies will be placed in the House Library and in the Vote Office. The publication of these assessments represents an important part of the Government's reform programme for public services. We want to see policing which is visible, accessible and responsive.

As in last year's report, tables have been used to provide an understandable summary of performance for each of the 43 police forces in key performance areas. Forces are assigned the clear judgments "excellent", "good, "fair" and "poor". The publication is complemented by comprehensive information (including data and technical definitions) available via the Home Office website at: http://police.homeoffice.gov.uk/performance.

However, this year's assessments reflect new arrangements for inspection. Her Majesty's inspectorate of constabulary (HMIC) has moved to a programme of risk-based inspection, focusing less on high volume, low risk issues and probing instead those areas which pose a major risk of harm to individuals. The results of this new inspection programme are included within the assessment, providing a rounded assessment of policing across England and Wales.

For this year, the focus of inspection has been on protecting the most vulnerable, and on ensuring the successful delivery of our programme of neighbourhood policing. Results for these inspection areas are included within the assessment for each force. Our progress towards the national roll-out of neighbourhood policing was marked when we achieved our target to recruit 16,000 police community support officers, providing valuable local resources to build relationships and address problems in local communities.

These assessments are intended to provide the public with a clear view on how well policing is being delivered in their area. In addition to these assessments, police authorities have a statutory responsibility to provide local information to every household in their communities on the policing priorities for their area, and to explain who is responsible and accountable for their delivery, as well as reporting on how effectively these policing priorities have been discharged.

This framework ensures that local police forces can be held to account for delivery of key services to local communities. It also provides a mechanism for improving performance, and has enabled forces—with the support of their police authorities—to identify strengths and weakness across their responsibilities, thereby reducing the need for external inspections, reviews or other interventions.

As we move forward—and as noted in the Home Office reform action plan—the assessments will be developed further into a broader framework for crime, drugs and policing. 2006-07 is the first transition year towards this new framework, which is planned for introduction in 2008-09. This broader framework will be the means by which we assess not just the success of the police service, but also the way in which police and other local delivery agencies work together in partnership to make communities safer.

TRANSPORT

Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Jim Fitzpatrick): I have today laid in the House the draft Renewable Transport Fuel Obligations Order 2007, together with its associated impact assessment and explanatory memorandum. Subject to the approval of both Houses, this order is due to give effect to the Government's renewable transport fuel obligation (RTFO) and to establish the Office of the Renewable Fuels Agency (RFA).

The RTFO is due to lead to a significant reduction in emissions of greenhouse gases from the transport sector by increasing the use of biofuels. The Government have sought stakeholders' views on the detailed design of the RTFO in two separate consultation exercises during the course of 2007, and has made a number of changes to the order and impact assessment to take account of the comments received.

The impact assessment which I am publishing today explains that the Government have revised downwards their estimate of the carbon savings that the RTFO is likely to deliver, and have revised upwards their estimate of the total costs of the policy. The total net carbon savings associated with the RTFO are now estimated at around 2.6 to 3 million tonnes of carbon dioxide (700,000 to 800,000 tonnes of carbon) per annum in 2010-11, as opposed to earlier forecasts which suggested that they should be in the region of 3.6 million tonnes of carbon dioxide (1 million tonnes of carbon) per annum. These changes have been made to reflect more accurately the marginal impact that biofuels may have on the fuel efficiency of vehicles, an issue that was raised by a number of stakeholders during the consultation process, as well as to reflect other methodological changes. Further details are set out in the impact assessment.

In practice, the environmental benefits that the RTFO is set to deliver will depend on a large number of assumptions, including the total amount of road transport fuel sales in any given year, the market share of different types of biofuel, and the amount of energy used to cultivate, harvest, process and transport the biofuels themselves. The costs of the RTFO will depend to a large extent on the relative difference in price between crude oil and agricultural commodities, which fluctuate widely.

The RTFO will provide the impetus for a long-term market for biofuels in the UK.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Low Pay Commission

The Minister for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs (Mr. Pat McFadden): I am pleased to announce that the Government have written to the Low Pay Commission setting out our non-economic evidence on the national minimum wage. The evidence addresses enforcement; publicity and awareness; the extension of statutory annual leave; social care; and workers, including vulnerable workers, migrant workers, volunteers and apprentices.

The Government will be submitting their economic evidence to the Commission later this year.

A copy of the non-economic evidence will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses and will be available from the BERR website at www.berr.gov.uk.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Capital Investment in Schools 2008-11

The Minister for Schools and Learners (Jim Knight): Further to my statement on 8 October, I am announcing details of how £21.9 billion capital will be invested in schools between 2008 and 2011. As I said in my statement, good facilities where young people can learn and grow are a vital foundation for a good education, and that we are continuing the successful balance of programmes, established in 2004. These are: devolved programmes for every school and local authority; our long-term strategic programmes for primary and secondary education; and targeted programmes for key national investment priorities. These programmes, which I am announcing in detail, will drive our modernisation programme still further and faster.

Devolved Programmes

First, every school, local authority and diocese in the country will continue to receive resources. I am publishing each local authority's devolved allocations for the three financial years to 2010-11. I am also publishing the 2008-09 allocations for schools of devolved formula capital, and indicative allocations for 2009-10 and 2010-11. Local people can decide how to invest these devolved resources in national and local priorities, and in support of their local children and young people plans, asset management plans and schools' own premises development plans. School and pupil security is one of the important areas that should be addressed.

Well-established programmes continue, including modernisation, new pupil places and school access. Voluntary aided schools continue to receive a fair share of these programmes. Capital investment for extended services in primary schools, which was previously paid through the General Sure Start grant, is being allocated through this route for the first time in order to promote more complementary investment.

Most capital programmes can be used to invest in technology equipment. As I announced on 8 October, given its importance, there will be £837 million over three years specifically for ICT.

Strategic Programmes

Secondly, we are driving our long-term, strategic programmes to modernise primary, secondary and special schools.

I am publishing the allocations for the new primary capital programme, including pilot projects in 23 local authorities in 2008-09 and extra resources for every local authority from 2009. In the Budget 2005, this Government pledged an initial £1,150 million extra resources for this programme. Yesterday, the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families announced that we will increase investment by £750 million across two years (£200 million of new investment announced yesterday in the comprehensive spending review, together with £550 million of headroom available within the Department's existing capital settlement), giving a total of £1,900 million in 2008-11.

This addition will allow at least one extra primary school to be modernised in every local authority. It reflects the importance that we place on the crucial primary phase of pupils' education. We will shortly be asking local authorities to prepare strategies that will set out their long-term investment plans. As part of these strategies, local authorities will forecast how many primary and special schools will benefit in the coming three years; my initial estimate is that it should be at least 675 schools over the next three years. The addition of £750 million means that we should achieve the programme's aims one year sooner, in 14 years instead of 15 years, subject to future public spending decisions.

We have already announced the projects that make up waves 1-6 of Building Schools for the Future. Planning is in hand for around 1,000 secondary schools, special schools and academies, with over 400 expected to be built by 2011. I am announcing the national budgets for Building Schools for the Future (BSF), including academies. Budgets for individual projects will be confirmed as waves 4-6 are finalised.

We welcome the Education and Skills Committee's thoughtful report on the delivery of BSF, which we have responded to formally. Despite the acknowledged delays in the early part of the programme, our delivery agency Partnerships for Schools is pressing ahead to ensure that we deliver 21st century facilities for all secondary pupils. Seventy-two local authorities are now in the programme. I am delighted that the first new school, Bristol Brunei Academy, opened last month. According to local authorities' plans, which may change, around a dozen schools will be open by the end of 2007-08, 50 more in 2008-09, 115 in 2009-10, 165 in 2010-11 and increasing to around 200 each year thereafter. This increasing rate is being driven by the professional expertise of Partnerships for Schools in supporting authorities as they develop their projects and engaging the private sector. Partnerships for Schools is working with my Department to learn lessons from the early projects to improve and streamline processes, and to ensure that educational standards as well as good design and efficient procurement are at the heart of the programme. I am grateful to Tim Byles and his staff for what they bring to this programme.

A further 39 local authorities, already announced, have one-school pathfinder projects in planning, and I am setting out the budget for these and other prior commitments. So far, 83 academies are also open (36 with new buildings), and around 50 more are projected to open by September 2008—on track towards the target of 200 open or in the pipeline by 2010 and 400 beyond that. So, we are fulfilling the commitment that every local authority not starting in Building Schools for the Future until wave 10 or after would benefit from a new school or academy.

We are reviewing the roll-out of waves 7-15 of Building Schools for the Future and will consult on this later in the year. Following the consultation, local authorities will be able to resubmit their expressions of interest, and we will publish the revised national programme for waves 7-15 later in 2008. This will give schools, planning authorities and the private sector good time to get themselves ready to deliver waves 7 and 8.

Targeted Programmes

Thirdly, I am also focusing investment through the targeted capital fund to schools that need specific help to meet national priorities.

Many schools have been badly damaged by the summer's severe floods, and the Department has worked closely with the local authorities affected. I have re-assured these authorities that we will help them plan how best to meet the additional capital needs that the floods have caused. I want again to say how grateful we are for the efforts made by authorities, headteachers and staff to have places for all children at the beginning of term.

Seventy-six local authorities yet to be involved in Building Schools for the Future will share £608 million over two years—£8 million each. This investment is for them to respond to two national priorities: putting in place diploma provision for 14 to-19-year-olds, and improving poor condition buildings for children with special educational needs and disabilities. The latter priority addresses concerns in the responses to our consultation this summer. The intention is that this investment should be spent on a small number of major projects, rather than spread thinly. Separate arrangements will be made with the City of London and Isles of Scilly, given their small size. Also, I have set aside £10 million to pilot the delivery of 14-19 diplomas in rural areas.

There will also be resources of £150 million over two years for new school kitchens to promote healthier eating. We expect most local authorities and schools to use their devolved budgets to install kitchens where needed and to improve existing kitchens and dining areas to promote healthier eating. A few local authorities, however, have so many schools without kitchens that this central investment is needed to help them with the costs.

There will be resources of £327 million over three years to encourage local authorities and schools to develop new projects that promote standards and diversity. This will contribute to Fresh Start projects, expansions of popular and successful schools, schemes to remove an authority's excess surplus places, projects to encourage new school promoters, projects involving new trusts and federations, and small works at maintained boarding facilities, music and dance scheme schools, and non-maintained special schools.

We will run the Basic Need 'safety valve' mechanism again. This allows the few local authorities with exceptional growth in pupil numbers to apply to the Department for extra support, where their devolved allocations are insufficient.

We will contribute £300 million schools capital over three years to the 16-19 capital fund, run by the Learning and Skills Council, which provides funding for new places for 16 to-19-year-olds. This fund totals £630 million. Pooling schools and further education capital in this way ensures that investment is available whatever the setting—school sixth-form, sixth form centre or further education college.

Capital resources are also available to continue the specialist school and sustainable transport programmes, for teachers TV, and to meet existing commitments, including projects from previous rounds of the targeted capital fund.

National Expectations

As our long-term strategic programmes start to roll out, I am also setting out the Government's expectations of how local authorities, dioceses, schools and others involved in capital programmes should plan to make the most of investment now and to ensure that the investment, once made, is maintained.

The Government want to encourage better long-term, strategic planning of capital investment, linked to the delivery of services to children, young people and families. Authorities involved in Building Schools for the Future have developed the 'Strategy for Change' and a version of this will be implemented for primary schools in all authorities during 2008. We also plan to pilot integrated strategies for change, covering early years, schools, 14-19 and youth investment. Schools, local authorities and dioceses must address both national and local priorities in their plans. The Department plans to work with local authorities to define and agree how to forecast outputs for capital investment and to report on these. This will provide information for the construction sector to help with planning, and will show Parliament and the public what has been achieved with taxpayers' money.

Large numbers of primary, secondary and special schools are in line to be modernised through our strategic programmes. We encourage local authorities, dioceses and schools to plan their use of the other billions of pounds of funding they receive to modernise still more schools, or parts of schools, by adding to the primary capital programme and addressing need in areas not yet in Building Schools for the Future. We wish to encourage local authorities to target at least two thirds of their allocations in this way, while recognising that some cyclical and reactive maintenance is also required.

The Government will continue to embed excellent, sustainable design in all capital works, and my Department works with many influential design bodies to improve school design. We also work to ensure efficient and sustainable procurement and construction. The budgets for Building Schools for the Future, academies and one-school pathfinders includes £110 million for carbon neutral schools, as previously announced, and we are also investigating ways of achieving 'zero carbon' new school buildings. Efficiency also means that we want all authorities to plan to remove excess surplus places.

The Government also want to work with local government, dioceses and schools to ensure that buildings, once modernised, are maintained properly. Schools themselves have an important role to play, and they must expect to use both their revenue and capital resources to maintain their buildings in good condition. We have introduced a two-tier rate of devolved formula capital grant for schools to reflect fairly the different investment needs of schools that have been rebuilt or refurbished and those that are still in unmodernised buildings. A typical unmodernised primary school of 250 pupils will receive the higher rate of £34,000 a year and a typical unmodernised secondary school of 1,000 pupils will receive £113,000 a year. Where it has been new built, rebuilt, or more than 80 per cent. refurbished, however, a similarly sized primary school will now receive a new standard rate of £17,000 a year, and a secondary school, £56,000 a year. This is a fair rate to allow good maintenance and small improvement projects. The definitions of which schools receive each rate have been simplified to take account of responses to the summer consultation.

All other proposals in the summer consultation have been implemented. The full consultation document and a summary of the responses will be placed in the House Library, together with details of the allocations to local authorities.

To conclude, this is an excellent capital settlement for schools. The Government look forward to working with schools, local government, dioceses and the private sector in the coming years to achieve sustained and lasting improvements in all our schools and so to improve the education and life chances of our children.

Budgets by Programme

The table below gives a breakdown by programme of schools capital investment for 2008 to 2011. The Department will issue shortly guidance on the programmes.

Conventional capital investment is made through capital grant, and for local authorities through a mix of capital grant, supported borrowing and private finance initiative credits. In response to representations from local government, the settlement strikes a new balance between capital grant and supported borrowing -with the amount of supported borrowing reducing by almost half, £500 million, by 2010-11.

note 1: Includes an element of transitional funding in 2008-09 in respect of changes to the allocation methodology. Figures for 2009-10 and 2010-11 are indicative. The lower 2010-11 figure reflects increasing numbers of modernised schools on the new standard rate.

note 2: Baseline budget for LA modernisation is £594 million each year, and £237 million for LCVAP. £232 million (LA modernisation) and £58 million (VA modernisation) has already been paid as an advance in 2007-08. The figures in the table take account of payback of the advance.

note 3: Schools Access increased by £ 15 million (of which £3 million in LCVAP) to compensate for changes to the devolved formula capital allocation methodology.

note 4: Strategic programmes include £1,320 million of PFI credits in each year. Most of this is for Building Schools for the Future, but some may be used for the primary capital programme, where a BSF local education partnership is used to procure the investment, and PFI financing offers best value for money.

note 5: Includes: incentive funding for expansion of successful and popular schools programme; LA schemes to remove excess surplus places; Fresh Start; trust and federation projects; new promoters projects; small works at maintained boarding facilities, Music and Dance schemes schools; and non-maintained special schools.

note 6: Schools capital contribution to the 16-19 capital fund for schools and further education institutions, which totals £210 million in each of the years 2008-09 to 2010-11. This is administered by the Learning and Skills Council.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Flood Defence

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): I am pleased to tell the House that annual Government spending on flood and coastal erosion risk management will rise to a minimum of £650 million in 2008-09, and £700 million in 2009-10, reaching £800 million by 2010-11 as I announced on 2 July. These figures compare with a forecast spend of some £600 million in 2007-08.

These figures are the minimum we propose to spend in each of the coming years but it is too early to determine whether this will be the final allocation, or whether it will be possible to go further. We will need to take account of the independent lessons learned review into this summer's floods, chaired by Sir Michael Pitt.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Higher Education Students (Loans, Grants and Fees)

The Minister for Lifelong Learning, Further and Higher Education (Bill Rammell): On 5 July 2007 my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills, announced that the minimum threshold of family income for a full maintenance grant would be increased from £17,500 to £25,000; and that the threshold for eligibility for a partial maintenance grant should rise to £60,000. This will mean that one third of eligible students entering higher education in 2008-09 will be entitled to a non-repayable grant of up to £2835; and another one third to a partial grant. Once these measures are fully implemented we estimate that 50,000 more students each year will receive full grants and over 100,000 extra students each year partial grants.

I placed a memorandum in the Library on 2 July giving details of the increased loan, grant and fee rates for the 2008-09 academic year. These are unchanged. However the detailed tables also included in the memorandum gave income thresholds for the maintenance grant and non means tested element of the student loan which have now been raised. I have now placed a revised memorandum in the Library which includes revised tables which make clear the levels of support available to new entrants in 2008-09, as well as tables of support for continuing students.

TREASURY

UK Assets Freezing Regime

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Kitty Ussher): In a written ministerial statement of 10 October 2006, the previous Economic Secretary undertook to report to Parliament on a quarterly basis on the operation of the UK's asset freezing regime. This is the fourth of these reports and covers the period July-September 2007[1].

Asset-Freezing Designations

In the quarter July-September 2007, the Treasury made eight domestic designations under the Terrorism (United Nations Measures) Order 2006.

None of these were persons already designated under earlier orders.

The Terrorism order and the Al-Qaeda and Taliban order provide, where appropriate, for designations to be made confidentially and with restricted circulation of notice. Six persons were designated on this basis in this quarter.

Four persons were designated on the basis of closed source material provided by law enforcement and intelligence agencies.

There were no financial sanctions listings at the EU or the UN in relation to terrorism or Al-Qaeda and the Taliban of persons with links to the UK.

A total of 284 separate accounts and approximately £625,000[2] of suspected terrorist funds have been frozen in the UK since 2001.

Reviews

The Treasury keeps domestic asset-freezing cases under review. A number of formal reviews have been initiated in this quarter and the review of one case was completed. In this case a decision was taken to delist the designated person.

Litigation

An application under Article 5(4) of the Terrorism (United Nations Measures) Order 2006 for an order to set aside a designation was lodged at the High Court on 21 August 2007 by a designated person. Three other applications to set aside have subsequently been received on behalf of designated persons, who have sought to join them to the first application. A directions hearing which will cover all four cases is scheduled for 12th October 2007.

Licensing Policy

In accordance with UN Security Council Resolution 1452 (2002), the Treasury operates a licensing system whereby designated persons and others are able to apply to make or receive payments under specific and, if necessary, monitored conditions. In this quarter, the following licences were issued:

11 listed persons were granted legal expenses licences.

13 listed persons were granted basic expenses licences; (2 of which were for benefits payments); and 5 listed persons were granted extraordinary expenses licences.

In addition, the households of four listed persons were granted benefits licences in accordance with the policy set out in the previous Economic Secretary's statement of 3 July 2006 to Parliament.

[1] The detail that can be provided to the House on a quarterly basis is subject to the need to avoid the identification, directly or indirectly, of personal or operationally sensitive information.

[2] This figure includes approximately $58,000 of suspected terrorist funds frozen in the UK. This has been converted using current exchange rates. Future fluctuations in the exchange rate may impact on the contribution this sum makes to future totals of suspected terrorist funds frozen.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces Compensation Scheme

The Secretary of State for Defence (Des Browne): A review of the multiple injury lump sum element of the armed forces and reserve forces compensation scheme has been undertaken over recent weeks. The purpose of the review was to ensure that the scheme's intent of focusing benefit on the most seriously injured was being delivered. We have concluded that, while the scheme overall remains fundamentally sound, the existing rule for multiple injuries received in a single incident was not intended for the type of multiple injury cases seen today, and that it is appropriate to reinforce the focus on the most seriously injured.

Subject to consultation, we are proposing to amend the rule so that those with multiple injuries who qualify for 100 per cent. of the guaranteed income payment (GIF), who are by definition the most seriously injured, will receive the full lump sum compensation award for each of their injuries sustained in a single incident, up to the maximum of £285,000. It is also proposed that additional benefits will be conferred on those who have had their cases determined under the current rule, so that they receive the same level of compensation as those determined after the rules have been changed. Those with less serious injuries, who do not qualify for 100 per cent. GIF payments, will continue to have the current rule applied to their multiple injuries.

The proposal has the full support of the service chiefs of staff. We are now consulting the members of the Central Advisory Committee, the statutory consultative body which advises on war pension and compensation issues, before finalising arrangements and making the necessary changes to the secondary legislation to put the new rule in place at the earliest opportunity.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

General Affairs and External Relations Council

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Jim Murphy): The General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) will be held on 15 October in Luxembourg.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs and I will represent the UK.

Before the Presidency opens the Council, they will update partners on the Intergovernmental Conference on the draft EU Reform Treaty. The IGC legal group concluded on 3 October and a new draft treaty text has been sent to Parliament.

The Council agenda items are as follows:

GENERAL AFFAIRS

Reinforcing the EU's Disaster Response

The Council is expected to discuss civil protection capabilities following recent forest fires in Southern Europe. The Government support the existing civil protection mechanism and believe The EU should identify the lessons learned from the recent emergencies while considering the implications for future operation of the mechanism and of community civil protection arrangements more widely.

EXTERNAL RELATIONS

EU-Russia Summit Preparations

The Council is expected to discuss the EU-Russia summit in Mafra on 26 October, which will include discussion of a wide range of international, regional and bilateral issues. The Government support the EU-Russia summit and have been actively involved in the preparations.

Chad and Central African Republic

The Council is expected to discuss Chad, including EU efforts to support stability in the wider region. The Council is likely to adopt conclusions on the deployment of a possible peacekeeping force to Chad and the Central African Republic under the European security and defence policy. The conclusions are also expected to reiterate the EU's support for Darfur's political process, in particular the peace talks in Libya starting on 27 October, rapid deployment of the UN/AU hybrid peacekeeping force, and the EU's readiness to consider further measures against any party who obstructs this process.

Burma

The Council is expected to discuss recent developments in Burma. The Government want the EU to maintain pressure on the regime, including by agreeing a package of EU measures against the regime, while supporting a UN-led reconciliation process.

The Council is expected to adopt conclusions calling on the regime to engage with the UN while leaving open the threat of further measures should the regime continue to block progress towards reconciliation.

Zimbabwe

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary will raise the deteriorating situation in Zimbabwe, including the increasing humanitarian crisis, and ways the EU can promote and support a democratic process in Zimbabwe during elections in 2008.

Western Balkans

The chief prosecutor of the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY), Carla Del Ponte, is expected to brief the Council on Serbia's cooperation with the ICTY. The June council Conclusions made clear that full cooperation by the Serb government with the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia remains a requirement for the conclusion of the Stabilisation and Association Agreement. The Government fully support this position.

The Council is also expected to discuss ways in which the EU can support the negotiations on Kosovo's final status and to adopt conclusions expressing full support for ongoing efforts by the EU/Russia/US Troika to reach agreement between Belgrade and Pristina on a status settlement. The Council is also expected to adopt conclusions on the signature of the Stabilisation and Association Agreement with Montenegro and expressing the EU's support for High Representative Miroslav Lajcak and his efforts to advance key reforms in Bosnia and Herzegovina. The Government fully support the conclusions.

Libya

External Relations Commissioner, Benita Ferrero-Waldner, is expected to update the Council on plans for an EU/Libya Framework Agreement. The Council is expected to adopt conclusions giving the Commission a mandate to take this forward. The Government believe the EU should move quickly towards a formalised relationship with Libya, which will help secure progress in areas of mutual interest, such as combating illegal migration.

Middle East

The Council is expected to discuss ways in which the EU can provide practical support to strengthen Palestinian institutions. The Government also believe the EU should urgently re-engage and expand the EU mission to support the Palestinian civilian police. The Council is expected to adopt conclusions emphasising support for the international meeting hosted by the US in November and reiterating the importance of continued humanitarian support to Gaza.

The Council is likely to discuss Lebanon in light of the political tensions surrounding the Lebanese parliamentary elections and the recent assassination of the MP Antoine Ghanem on 19 September. The Council is expected to adopt conclusions on Lebanon, which the Government support, condemning the assassination of MP Antoine Ghanem and urging agreement on a consensus presidential candidate through dialogue. The conclusions are also likely to welcome the end of fighting between the army and extremist militants in the Nahr Al-Bared Palestinian refugee camp, and support Lebanon's reconstruction efforts in the damaged camp.

Iran

The Council is expected to discuss steps the EU can take to support the agreed twin track international approach to the Iranian nuclear issue. This includes discussions between the High Representative for Common Foreign and Security Policy, Javier Solana, and Ali Larijani, Secretary of Iran's Supreme National Security Council, and incremental sanctions against Iran for continued defiance of the will of the international community, as set out in UN Security Council Resolutions 1696, 1737 and 1747. The Government support the twin track approach and believe it is important that the EU should consider appropriate measures to put pressure on Iran in parallel with the UN process.

Iraq

The Council is expected to discuss EU engagement with Iraq. The Government support work to improve EU initiatives in support of a secure and stable Iraq and welcome discussion of the EU's financial, technical and political support, including to the Iraq Neighbours process. The Council is also expected to discuss steps to support the UN's role as set out in UN Securitv Council Resolution 1723.

AOB: Economic Partnership Agreements

The Commission is expected to update the Council on discussion of the Economic Partnership Agreements at the Development Ministers Informal in Madeira on 22 September.

Correction to Written Answer

The Minister for the Middle East (Dr. Kim Howells): My noble Friend Lord Malloch-Brown has made the following written ministerial statement:

"In my reply on 23 July to the below question from my noble Friend Lord Judd, I incorrectly stated that the UK's contribution to the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) was £98 million, Official Report, column WA71. I regret the error and my corrected answer is given below:

The Lord Judd: To ask Her Majesty's Government, how many of the Iraqi refugees in Syria are thought to be the victims of torture; and what discussions they have had with the Government of Syria and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees on how best to respond. HL4895

The Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office (Lord Malloch-Brown): The UK is not in a position to assess the numbers of Iraqi refugees in Syria that have been victims of torture. We have not had any discussions on this issue with either the UNHCR or the Government of Syria.

The UK continues to support the UNHCR's leading role in providing humanitarian support to Iraq Refugees in Syria. In 2006 the UK contributed approximately US$52 million (approximately £26 million) to support the work of the UNHCR worldwide, including in Syria. In addition, officials from our Embassy in Damascus have visited the UNHCR refugee reception centre in Damascus to assess the conditions there. We are now looking at supporting a range of projects aimed at improving conditions for Iraqi refugees, specifically in the areas of education and healthcare".

HEALTH

NHS Foundation Trusts

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): The chairman of Monitor (the statutory name of which is the Independent Regulator of NHS foundation trusts) announced last week that, in accordance with section 35 of the National Health Service Act 2006, Monitor had decided to authorise the following NHS acute and mental health trusts as NHS foundation trusts from 1 October:

Milton Keynes Hospital NHS Foundation Trust;

Lincolnshire Partnership NHS Foundation Trust;

North Essex Partnership NHS Foundation Trust; and Cumbria Partnership NHS Foundation Trust.

Monitor's announcement brings the total number of NHS foundation trusts to 77. A copy of Monitor's press notice has been placed in the Library.

The Government remain committed to offering all NHS acute and mental health trusts the opportunity to apply for foundation status as soon as practicable. Monitor is now authorising trusts on a monthly basis, and further waves of NHS foundation trusts are set to follow.

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. James Plaskitt): The 95th Session of the International Labour Conference 2006 adopted a new Convention 187 and Recommendation 197 on a Promotional Framework for Occupational Safety and Health; and a Recommendation 198 - The Employment Relationship. I have today published a White Paper entitled "International Labour Conference, Proposed action on a Convention and Recommendations adopted at the 95th Session of the International Labour Conference 2006", (Cm 7217), copies of which are available in the Vote Office.

Social Housing Regulation

The Minister for Housing (Yvette Cooper): I am announcing today decisions on the location and scope of the new social housing regulator following Professor Martin Cave's review of social housing regulation in England earlier this year "Every Tenant Matters: A review of social housing regulation, Professor Martin Cave, June 2007" and our subsequent consultation "Delivering Housing and Regeneration: Communities England and the future of social housing regulation, Communities and Local Government, June 2007".

I am announcing that the regulator will be established as an independent, standalone body—called The Office for Tenants and Social Landlords. We intend to implement this through the forthcoming Housing and Regeneration Bill which was included in the Government's draft legislative programme published on 11 July 2007. I am also appointing an independently chaired advisory panel to give further advice on the technical work needed to bring local authority landlords within the Regulator's scope.

The Office for Tenants and Social Landlords will take on the regulatory functions of the Housing Corporation. The investment functions of the Housing Corporation will pass to the Homes and Communities Agency.

Unlike under the current regulatory framework, the new regulator will have the power to reduce red tape and regulation for Registered Social Landlords that are performing well, and will also have stronger and more wide ranging powers to take action where tenants are not getting a good service. The new regulator will therefore put a much greater emphasis on service to tenants, with tenants groups able to trigger inspections and interventions when problems arise.

Background

Martin Cave published his review of social housing regulation in June, recommending the establishment of a new independent regulator, responsive to tenants and applying the principles of modern, risk-based regulation. He proposed that tenants should have a central role - and should be able to trigger intervention by the Regulator when they identified systemic failings by their landlord.

Government immediately accepted the bulk of his recommendations, but consulted on two key questions—the location of the regulator, and whether local authority landlords should fall within the regulator's scope.

Regulating local authority landlords

The Cave review recommended that the regulator's responsibilities should be cover all social housing providers—Registered Social Landlords, local authorities, Arms Length Management Organisations (ALMOs) and others. Government were clear in their response to Cave that tenants should be able to expect the same minimum standards of service and have similar opportunities for empowerment, to influence delivery and to seek redress regardless of their social housing provider. However we also recognised that the funding, governance and accountability arrangements vary significantly between providers, and we were mindful of our commitments in the Local Government White Paper to implement a new, single, performance framework for outcomes secured by local authorities working alone or in partnership. We therefore invited views on this issue through consultation.

Respondents to the consultation were overwhelmingly in favour of bringing local authority landlords into the scope of the regulator in principle. But a large number of them also highlighted the importance of recognising the significantly different governance and finance arrangements between the different sectors, and making arrangements which were consistent with the single performance framework for local authorities.

I am announcing therefore that whilst we see a strong case for bringing local authorities into the regulator's scope, we need to do further detailed work with stakeholders on a range of detailed issues. I therefore propose to appoint an independently chaired advisory panel to provide support on handling these issues. It is my intention that cross-domain regulation should be in place within two years of the regulator coming into operation.

The location of the regulator

The Cave review recommended that there should be a separation of investment and regulation functions—both currently carried out by the Housing Corporation. He said that the new regulator could be established as part of the Audit Commission, but that he would prefer a new standalone regulator.

Our consultation document recognised that locating the regulatory functions in the Audit Commission would build on its existing strengths and consumer focus, and it could be implemented quickly. However we also recognised that a standalone regulator may be better at this stage at commanding the confidence of those who provide private finance for social housing. We consulted openly on this issue.

In responding to the consultation document, Registered Social Landlords, tenant representative bodies and lenders all favoured a standalone regulator because of the greater clarity of purpose of an independent regulator, and because of the importance of the regulator maintaining expertise in private finance issues. As it is vital that the new regulatory arrangements command the confidence of lenders in order to support increasing new social housing, I therefore propose to establish the new regulator as a standalone body.

HEALTH

Clostridium Difficile

The Secretary of State for Health (Alan Johnson): The Healthcare Commission (HCC) published a report on 11 October 2007 titled "Report of the investigation following outbreaks of Clostridium difficile at Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS Trust" following their investigation into Clostridium difficile.

The HCC commissioned its investigation into the trust following a request by the then Kent and Medway Strategic Health Aut ority following concerns that there had been a significant increase in the numbers of Clostridium difficile at the trust. The report has been placed in the Library.

There were two outbreaks of Clostridium difficile at Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells Hospitals NHS Trust between April 2004 and September 2006. The findings of the report show that there were 1,176 patients with Clostridium difficile at the trust between April 2004 and September 2006, of whom at least 345 died.

The report estimates that if the 50 cases that were reviewed as part of the HCC's investigation were representative of the 345 who died, and the reviewer's assessments are extrapolated to all, of the 345 deaths, Clostridium difficile was probably or definitely the main cause of death in approximately 90 patients, and definitely the cause in 21 cases.

The report calls for immediate changes to improve the care of patients and control of infection at the trust, which I fully support. The report has exposed significant failings in the duty of care at the trust, which I do not expect to see replicated elsewhere in the country. The HCC is continuing to work with the trust and NHS South East Coast to ensure an appropriate action plan is agreed and implemented.

Following the recommendation of the Health Care Commission Report, the South East Coast Strategic Health Authority have commissioned an independent review into the leadership of the trust during the period of the outbreaks. This will be carried out by an independent consultancy with experience in this area, and an interim report will be made available to the strategic health authority by November.

In addition to this, I have asked the Department to carry out a separate review into the role of the Chair of the trust and the decision-making process that led to the terms and conditions of the Chief Executive's departure. This will conclude urgently, will be shared with the Appointments Commission and will inform what action is taken with regard to the position of the Chair.

This is an alarming and distressing case and the trust and the Department has offered its sincere condolences to the patients and families who have been affected by these outbreaks

In line with national guidelines, trusts should deliver, clean, safe treatment for every patient in their care, every time. Where senior management and trust boards fail to act to deliver this expected standard they must and will be held accountable.

In addition, the NHS Chief Executive will write personally to every NHS trust appending a copy of the Healthcare Commission's report and seek reassurances from every Chief Executive in the country that the drive to improve infection control is a major priority in every organisation.

Although employment is a matter for the local NHS trust board, I have instructed the trust in this exceptional case to withhold any severance payment to the former chief executive of Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS Trust, pending legal advice.

TRANSPORT

Rail Franchise Enforcement Policy

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Tom Harris): The Department for Transport has today published a consultation paper on rail franchise enforcement policy.

The document details the Department's stepped and pragmatic approach to enforcement. It also contains a statement of policy with respect to the imposition of penalties and the determination of their amount, which the Department has a legal obligation to consult on.

The purpose of the document is to ensure that the Department's current policy is transparent and easily understood, and to ascertain from stakeholders whether further clarification on any element of the enforcement process is required.

Copies have been sent to rail industry stakeholders and it will be available on the DFT's website for the 12-week consultation period, running from 15 October 2007 to 4 January 2008. Copies have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Benefit Fraud Inspectorate

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. James Plaskitt): On behalf of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, the BFI inspection reports on the following councils were published on Blyth Valley Borough Council, Boston Borough Council, Broadland District Council and London Borough of Haringey. Copies have been placed in the Library.

The BFI reports detail a range of strengths and weaknesses in the housing benefit services provided by councils and make recommendations to improve the security and efficiency of benefit delivery.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State is considering the reports and may ask the councils for proposals in response to BFI's findings.

Fire Control

The Minister for Local Government (John Healey): I can today confirm the new London Fire Brigade Regional Control Centre will be located at Morden, in the London Borough of Merton. This new control centre will provide a modern, effective control and mobilisation system that will help to protect the public in London, support the London fire brigade to save lives and form part of the resilient FiReControl network across England.

Working in close partnership with the fire and rescue service, the FiReControl project is a key part of Communities and Local Government's investment in the Fire Resilience Programme. To be in a position to make this announcement of the location of the London Regional Control Centre is testament to the close partnership working with both LFEPA and the London fire brigade in delivering this project.

FiReControl will deliver a resilient network of nine regional control centres (RCCs) which unlike now will be able to back each other up automatically—including during particularly busy times—and to mobilise fire and rescue service resources across England, including new dimension equipment.

These purpose-built regional control centres will be supported by best available technology, including:

Caller location technology to identify the whereabouts of the caller whether from a landline or mobile phone;

Vehicle location equipment to determine which appropriate fire appliance(s) can reach an incident first;

Data transmission to mobilise the nearest appropriate appliance quickly, without relying on voice messages;

In-cab mobile data terminals providing firefighters with key information—for example, the location of the nearest hydrants and water supplies; floor plans and access details for buildings, where appropriate; and relevant standard operating procedures for the type of incident concerned—for example, how to dismantle a particular type of car or deal with a particular chemical; and

Satellite navigation technology providing the quickest route to the incident, taking into account the latest information available on traffic conditions and road closures. We have worked closely with key partners in London to ensure that the best location and developer have been chosen to provide the RCC building, meeting our stretching resilience criteria. Following the EU procurement process the new London RCC will be developed by a joint venture between Morley Fund Management and Easter Group.

The other eight regional control centres are already under development, and three have already reached practical completion. The national network is becoming operational in three phases and will be fully operational by the end of 2011.

NHS Final Audited Figures (2006-07)

The Secretary of State for Health (Alan Johnson): My Department has today published the audited figures for the NHS for the financial year 2006-07. These show that the NHS recorded a net surplus in 2006-07 of £514.6 million.

My Department's report on NHS finance and performance at quarter one of 2007-08 indicated that the NHS is on course to deliver a very healthy surplus at the end of the current financial year. This forecast surplus gives flexibility for the NHS at local level to continue to deliver the changes needed to ensure that patients see improvements in both access to, and the quality of, care.

Audited figures, by organisation for each strategic health authority, have been placed in the Library, and will be published today on the Department's website at:

http://www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/dh_079580.

TREASURY

Stamp Duty Land Tax (Zero-Carbon Homes Relief)

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Kitty Ussher): The Finance Act 2007 provides the Treasury with powers to make regulations granting relief from stamp duty land tax on the first sale of a new zero-carbon house. I am pleased to announce that I am today laying before the House of Commons draft regulations under the affirmative procedure entitled The Stamp Duty Land Tax (Zero-Carbon Homes Relief) Regulations 2007.

These draft regulations follow the announcement in the 2006 Pre-Budget Report by the Chancellor of the Exchequer that a stamp duty land tax exemption would be introduced for the vast majority of new zero-carbon homes in 2007. The relief will help kick-start the market for new highly efficient technologies in homes, both for the fabric of the building and in the use of microgeneration ahead of 2016, and it sets a gold standard for green homes.

The draft regulations provide that on the first acquisition of a new house meeting the zero-carbon standard, as set out in the regulations, costing up to £500,000 no stamp duty land tax is payable and on the first acquisition of a new zero-carbon house costing in excess of £500,000 there will be a reduction of £15,000 to the stamp duty land tax bill. The exemption will be time limited for five years until 30 September 2012 but before the end of the time limit the Government will review the effectiveness of the relief and consider the case for an extension.

Following consultation on the draft regulations the definition of the zero-carbon standard for stamp duty land tax has been closely aligned with the zero-carbon requirements set out in Department for Communities and Local Government's Code for Sustainable Homes. The rationale for this change is set out in the summary of responses to the consultation on the draft regulations and the Government's response, published today.

The tax relief will apply retrospectively from 1 October 2007. This means that anyone who completes a transaction on a new zero-carbon home between 1 October 2007 and the date on which the regulations come into force will be entitled to claim the relief.

HEALTH

NHS Annual Health Check

The Secretary of State for Health (Alan Johnson): Today the Healthcare Commission has announced publication of the 2006-07 Annual Health Check. The report has been placed in the Library and copies for hon. Members are available from the Vote Office. The report can also be found at: www.healthcarecommission.org.uk

The Annual Health Check provides an independent assessment of NHS organisations to ensure they meet high standards and deliver for their patients. These independent ratings give a clear picture about quality of services, which matters most to patients.

We welcome the results for 2006-07 showing an overall improvement in quality of services and use of resources. The NHS will continue to focus on improving services for patients and addressing poor performance, and we fully support the independent action of the Healthcare Commission to investigate poor performing trusts.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Corrections to the Official Report and Publication of NDPB Letters in Hansard

The Leader of the House of Commons (Ms Harriet Harman): The House agreed to the Second Report from the Procedure Committee Corrections to the Official Report (HC541) on 19 June 2007. The Committee, following representations from my predecessor the right hon. Member for Blackburn (Mr. Straw), proposed a new scheme involving a separate section of Hansard for printed corrections. I am today issuing guidance to Departments as to how it will work. A copy has been deposited in the Library of the House and is also available on the Leader's Office website at:

www.commonsleader.gov.uk.

The procedure will provide greater consistency and improve transparency in this area for Members of the House and the public.

Following further advice from the Procedure Committee, it has been agreed that, where the Minister takes responsibility for the reply, it is acceptable for letters from the heads of NDPBs in response to parliamentary questions to be published in Hansard, in an arrangement similar to the publication of letters from chief executives of agencies.

Both these processes will begin in November 2007.

The Government are grateful to the Committee for its work and consider the report to be a helpful contribution to promoting greater effectiveness and interest in the work of the Chamber.

The House will have the opportunity to debate the report on Thursday 25 October and I will bring forward the necessary motions to give effect to the relevant parts of the report shortly.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Community Empowerment - Building on Success

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Hazel Blears): Today the Department for Communities and Local Government is publishing an action plan in partnership with the Local Government Association setting out a substantive and exciting community empowerment agenda. I will be launching the plan at the National Council for Voluntary Organisations later this morning.

The document "An Action Plan for Community Empowerment: Building on Success" outlines proposals to create change at a very local level. The plan draws on existing good practice and brings together a range of actions to broaden and deepen empowerment activity. It forms an important strand of the Government's overall strategy for constitutional renewal, as set out in the Governance of Britain Green Paper. It will also be a building block to develop a cross-Government approach to community empowerment. It sets out activities in three key areas: widening and deepening empowerment opportunities locally; supporting and enabling people to take up those opportunities; and strengthening local representative democracy.

The document has been placed in the Libraries of both Houses and can be accessed via the Communities and Local Government website at:
http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/communities/communityempowermentactionplan

DEFENCE

Airfield Review (Tertiary Airfield Support)

The Minister for the Armed Forces (Mr. Bob Ainsworth): On 18 July 2002, Official Report, columns 460-464, my right hon. Friend, the Member for Ashfield (Mr Hoon) the then Secretary of State for Defence, announced the publication of a new chapter to the 1998 Strategic Defence Review (SDR) that was designed to ensure that our defence policies, capabilities and force structures matched the challenges that the new terrorist threats posed.

Quick Reaction Alert (QRA) comprises: armed Tornado F3 and Typhoon aircraft held at ground readiness for immediate take-off; the Air Surveillance and Control System to provide warning and command and control of the fighter aircraft; and tanker aircraft also held at high ground readiness. QRA fulfils two concurrent functions. Firstly, it meets the United Kingdom's responsibility within NATO to provide air policing of agreed member airspace. Secondly, under UK national control, QRA provides an airborne contribution to countering threats against the UK by terrorist organisations or individuals. The SDR New Chapter confirmed that airfields across the UK—RAF Marham, RAF St Mawgan and RNAS Yeovilton—would be able to support QRA aircraft when needed, in addition to the bases from which the QRA aircraft usually operate.

Following the decision to dispose of the airfield at RAF St Mawgan, we have reviewed the short term tertiary airfields that support quick reaction alert aircraft and decided that MOD Boscombe Down and RNAS Culdrose will now be enabled by Spring 2008 to cover any potential threats to the south and south-western airspaces. In the interim, RAF St Mawgan will continue to be utilised as necessary to support short term QRA aircraft. RAF Marham will continue to be maintained as a tertiary QRA airfield. This support is in addition to the bases that are already able to operate such aircraft and will give us enhanced flexibility in our air defence arrangements.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture and Fisheries Council

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): I will be representing the United Kingdom for the agricultural items at this month's Agriculture and Fisheries Council in Luxembourg. The Minister with responsibility for marine, landscape and rural affairs, my hon. Friend the Minister for Chatham and Aylesford (Jonathan Shaw), will represent the UK for the fisheries items. The Scottish Cabinet Secretary for Rural Affairs and the Environment, Richard Lochhead, will also attend.

The Council will hold a policy debate on Commission proposals for reform of the common market organisation for the wine sector.

The Presidency will seek political agreement on a proposal amending a regulation on the financing of the Common Agricultural Policy.

The Presidency will seek political agreement on requests for national aids in Bulgaria and Romania to assist with the aftermath of recent drought conditions.

The Presidency will also seek political agreement on a proposal fixing cod recovery measures and a range of catch restrictions to apply in the Baltic Sea for 2008.

The Council will hold an exchange of views on the EU/Norway fisheries agreement for 2008 based on a Presidency questionnaire.

The Health and Consumer Protection Commissioner will then present the Commission's Communication on EU Animal Health Strategy (2007-2013) "Prevention is better than cure".

A number of issues, as follows, will be raised under any other business: Spain will request Council discussion of the future of the bluefin tuna fishery.

Poland will request Council discussion on the situation in the pigmeat market.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

General Affairs and External Relations Council

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Jim Murphy): My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary, Kim Darroch (UK Permanent Representative to the EU) and I represented the UK at the General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) in Luxembourg.

Before the Presidency opened the Council, it briefed Partners on the Intergovernmental Conference on the draft EU Reform Treaty, ahead of the European Council on 18-19 October. The UK was assured by the Presidency that the language in the Reform Treaty which allows national parliaments to challenge proposed EU legislation on subsidiarity grounds is permissive and contains no obligation, and that the Treaty text will be amended to reflect this.

The Government are content that all the UK red lines have been achieved and are reflected in the new draft Treaty text published by the Presidency on 5 October, a copy of which has been sent to Parliament.

The agenda items covered were as follows:

The Council adopted Conclusions supporting ongoing efforts by the UN and African Union to resolve the conflict in Darfur and expressing the EU's commitment to improving the security situation in the wider region through the deployment of EUFOR Tchad-CAR. The Conclusions, which the Government fully support, expressed concern about the recent announcement by the Sudan People's Liberation Movement to suspend its participation in the Government of National Unity, and urged the continuation of regional dialogue to achieve reconciliation including full implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement.

Burma

The Council discussed the deteriorating situation in Burma before agreeing a package of EU measures against the regime including a trade and investment ban in the timber, gems and precious metals sectors, which the Government fully support.

The Council adopted Conclusions condemning the violent use of force against the demonstrators and calling on the regime to engage with the UN-led reconciliation process while expressing the EU's readiness to review these measures in light of developments, with the threat of further measures if necessary —including a ban on future EU investment, as called for by the Prime Minister.

Zimbabwe

The Council discussed sending an envoy to Zimbabwe to report back on the economic and humanitarian situation in Zimbabwe. The Presidency and the High Representative for the Common Foreign and Security Policy, Javier Solana, is taking this forward.

Western Balkans

The Chief Prosecutor of the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia (ICTY) briefed the Council on Serbia's co-operation with ICTY.

The Council adopted Conclusions, which the Government support, welcoming the signature of the Stabilisation and Association Agreement with Montenegro and expressing the EU's support for High Representative Miroslav Lajcak and efforts to progress key reforms in Bosnia and Herzegovina in particular police reform. The Council also expressed full support for efforts by the Troika (EU, Russia and US) to secure a negotiated settlement on the status of Kosovo.

Libya

The Council discussed Libya following the release of the medical workers sentenced to death in connection with the infection of children with HIV/AIDS in Benghazi.

The Council adopted Conclusions giving the Commission a mandate to open negotiations with Libya on a framework agreement in areas of mutual interest including illegal migration. The Government support the Commission's work in this area.

Middle East Peace Process

The Council adopted Conclusions, which the Government support, encouraging the continued dialogue between President Abbas and Prime Minister Olmert, reiterating the hope that the meetings will lead to meaningful negotiations on final status. The Council Conclusions also expressed full support for the Annapolis meeting in November hosted by the US and stressed the importance of the EU: providing financial support to the Palestinian Authority as soon as possible; urgently re-engaging and expanding the EU Police Mission in the West Bank (EUPOL CORPS); and opening the crossings into Gaza.

The Council adopted Conclusions on Lebanon condemning the assassination of MP Antoine Ghanem and urging agreement on a Presidential candidate through dialogue.

Iran

The Council discussed ways the EU could contribute to international efforts to resolve the Iranian nuclear issue, which include the E3+3-led (UK, France, Germany, Russia, China and US) twin-track diplomatic approach supported by the Government, offering Iran a substantial package of benefits if they co-operate, but incremental UN sanctions if they continue to defy international law.

The Council adopted Conclusions which fully reflect the Government's position, reiterating its support for the efforts by the High Representative for the Common Foreign and Security Policy, Javier Solana, to encourage Iran to return to talks on a long-term solution, and calling for Iran's full and timely implementation of all measures required by or agreed with the International Atomic and Energy Agency, while expressing the EU's intention to consider what additional measures it might take to support the UN process and the shared objectives of the international community.

Iraq

The Council reaffirmed its commitment to supporting the Government of Iraq to bring stability, security and prosperity to all of its citizens. It discussed ways in which the EU could enhance its engagement with Iraq, including through supporting implementation of the UN's role as set out in UN Security Council Resolution 1723; building the capacity of central institutions; and providing humanitarian assistance. Written Answers to Questions

Monday 8 October 2007

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

10 Downing Street

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what changes he has made to No. 10 Downing street since 27 June 2007 to make it more environmentally friendly. [154088]

Phil Hope: No. 10 Downing street forms an integral part of the Cabinet Office estate.

The Cabinet Office is committed to contribution to the goals, priorities and principles of the UK Government sustainable development strategy, "Securing the Future". We are equally committed to achieving the targets for sustainable operations on the Government estate launched by the Prime Minister in June 2006. To this end the Cabinet Office has implemented a system of environmental management and improvement, which enables us to measure and monitor our impact on the environment, commit to improvements within the set time frames and report publicly on progress.

10 Downing Street: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent on refurbishments and improvements to No. 10 Downing street in (a) June and (b) July 2007. [153348]

Edward Miliband: Costs incurred on refurbishments and improvements to No. 10 Downing street in the 2007-08 financial year, will be available only when the Department's resource accounts are fully audited and laid before Parliament. This is expected to be before the 2008 summer recess.

Auctions

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will list the Government-approved auction houses. [153875]

Gillian Merron: The Government do not hold a list of approved auction houses. Individual departments decide upon which auction houses to use, according to their individual need.

Information regarding Government auctions can be found at the Direct Gov website at http://www.direct.gov.uk/en/HI1/Help/YourQuestions/DG_10014697. A copy of which is also available in the Libraries of the House.

Charities: Finance

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the Government's policy is on paying foregone interest when money owed or promised to charities is delayed. [154537]

Phil Hope: Public sector organisations should: use good commercial practice in managing the flows of expenditure and commitments they deal with; settle their bills on time within contractual terms in line with The Better Payments Practice Code; and be bound by The Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1988. In relation to grants, once an agreement has been made and payment schedules agreed to, public sector organisations should honour these in the same way as they would any commercial or contractual arrangements. Government departments are required to note as exceptional any interest payments in relation to late payments in their resource accounts. This is set out in the "Managing Public Money" guidance issued by HM Treasury on sound financial management of public funds.

Departments: Buildings

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will place in the Library a copy of the design and procurement option under consideration for the refurbishment for the heritage Cabinet Office estate. [151282]

Edward Miliband: I refer the hon. Member to the answer that the then Minister for the Cabinet Office and Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, my right hon. Friend the Member for North-West Durham (Hilary Armstrong) gave to the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) on 8 March 2007, Official Report, column 2184W.

Departments: Freedom of Information

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2007, Official Report, column 35W, on departments: freedom of information, and the Ministry of Justice aggregated statistics, what information has been requested of his Department under the Act in the last six months. [153617]

Edward Miliband: Information relating to Freedom of Information and Environmental Information requests is published on a quarterly basis by the Ministry of Justice. Information for January to March 2007 was published on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 10WS, copies of the document are in the Libraries of the House. Information for April to June 2007 is due to be published in the autumn. It is not the Government's normal practice to disclose details of the content of such requests.

Departments: Official Hospitality

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many receptions have been held by his Department since May 2005; broken down by (a) date, (b) venue, (c) purpose, (d) host, (e) who paid, (f) estimated attendance and (g) cost to his Department. [151278]

Edward Miliband: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Railways

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent by his Department on first class train tickets in the last 12 months. [153291]

Edward Miliband: This information is available only at disproportionate cost.

Emergency Services: Training

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what arrangements there are for collaboration between the Emergency Planning College and the Fire Service College for training in multi-agency response. [155485]

Edward Miliband: The types of training delivered by the Fire Service College and the Emergency Planning College reflect their differing but complementary missions. The Fire Service College focuses on specialist training at the operational (bronze), tactical (silver) and strategic (gold) levels, and over 90 per cent. of its students are from the fire and rescue service. As officers progress through the levels, they receive increasing exposure to multi-agency operations. In contrast, the Emergency Planning College's courses bring together all the many services and organisations involved in multi-agency working at the strategic (gold) level in large-scale emergencies, including non-blue light scenarios such as influenza. As a result, fire and rescue service students comprise less than 10 per cent. of the Emergency Planning College's intake.

In order to maximise the UK's resilience to emergencies the Emergency Planning College and Fire Service College collaborate to ensure that their training programmes are consistent with their responsibilities, meet their respective customers' requirements and achieve synergy. The overall co-ordination is effected through periodic meetings at senior and middle management levels of the major providers of multi-agency training, including the Fire Service and Emergency Planning Colleges and the National Policing Improvement Agency.

Minister for the Olympics and for London

Mrs. May: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the total estimated annual cost is of (a) expenses, (b) salary, (c) office space, (d) administrative support and (e) special advisers for the Minister for the Olympics. [154700]

Tessa Jowell: I have been asked to reply.

The cost of Cabinet Office Ministers' offices will be accounted for in the Department's annual report and accounts for 2007-08 when accounts have been finalised. A list of special advisers by Department and pay band will be published in due course. Details of ministerial salaries are available in the House Library and at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/other/parliamentary/pay/ministerial/index.asp

Non-Profit Making Associations

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what record has been kept of charities and social enterprises launched as part of Government initiatives since 1997. [154605]

Phil Hope: No central record is kept of the number of the number of charities or social enterprises launched as part of Government initiatives.

Where an independent charity or social enterprise is launched as part of a Government initiative, the relevant Government department would maintain formal records. The Office of the Third Sector keeps both electronic and paper records of the initiatives it has launched.

Non-Profit Making Associations: Grants

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much grant funding was given to third sector organisations by (a) the Active Community Directors' and (b) the Social Enterprise Unit in each year of their operation. [154474]

Phil Hope: The Office of the Third Sector (OTS) was created from the Active Communities Directorate (ACD) of the Home Office and the Social Enterprise Unit of the Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) as a machinery of government change in May 2006.

Audited information on expenditure by the ACD in the Home Office and the Social Enterprise Unit in the DTI is not available separately. Recorded grant funding by the ACD, based on internal outturn data of grants paid to the sector in each financial year was as follows:

1999-2000	15,705,645
2000-01	18,894,849
2001-02	28,146,399
2002-03	44,119,332
2003-04	63,767,427
2004-05	107,780,463
2005-06	154,824,807

The Social Enterprise made a small number of grants during its lifetime totalling less than £1 million between its creation in October 2001 and the transfer of funding to the Office of the Third Sector in May 2006.

Details of the transfer of grants in 2006-07 from the Home Office and the Department of Trade and Industry to the Cabinet Office are published in the Central Government Supply Estimates (2006-07), Winter Supplementary Estimates and New Estimates HC 2 and in the Central Government Supply Estimates (2006-07), Spring Supplementary Estimates HC 293.

Office of the Third Sector

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the purpose is of the review of the Office of the Third Sector; and how long it is planned to take. [154540]

Phil Hope: The purpose of the review was to examine the structure and skills set in the Office of the Third Sector.

The review process ran from January to April 2007. This was implemented and the new structure came into effect on 4 June 2007.

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether the results of the review of the Office of the Third Sector will be made publicly available. [154603]

Phil Hope: The review considered the structure and skills set of the Office of the Third Sector. The result of this review is the new structure that came into effect on 4 June 2007. An overview of this structure is publicly available on the Office of the Third sector website: http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/third_sector/, a copy of which I have placed in the Library of the House.

Terrorism: Memorial Day

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what plans she has to promote and contribute towards the European Union's Memorial Day for the victims of terrorism, in 2008; and if she will make a statement. [154099]

Tessa Jowell: Plans are still being developed at the EU for the 2008 European Union's Memorial Day for the victims of terrorism, it is therefore too early to give details of any contribution. However, as in previous years, we will make information available to the 2008 Memorial Day through appropriate mechanisms such as the 7 July Assistance Centre Newsletter.

Waste Disposal: Fees and Charges

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will place in the Library a copy of the Prime Minister's Strategy Unit report on variable charging for domestic rubbish collection. [153811]

Edward Miliband: The Strategy Unit has not published a specific report on variable charging for domestic rubbish collection. Its report "Waste Not, Want Not", published in November 2002, looked at how we manage waste overall in England and considered a range of financial incentives to encourage householders to reduce and recycle more waste, including variable charging. The Government are currently consulting on proposals to allow authorities to introduce local variable waste charging following publication of the Waste Strategy 2007.

The Strategy Unit's "Waste Not, Want Not", report is available at http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/strategy/work_areas/waste/index.asp.

The Waste Strategy for England 2007 is available at http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/waste/strategy/index.htm.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales who will be liable for the cost of the damage caused by the polluting of Brofiscan Quarry in South Wales. [154583]

Mr. Hain: I understand that the Environment Agency is currently investigating the matter of responsibility for remediation costs, and is in contact with several companies and individuals.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what assessment he has made of the cost of the damage caused by the polluting of Brofiscan Quarry in South Wales. [154584]

SCOTLAND

Departments: Taxis

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much was spent by his Department on taxis in the last 12 months. [153200]

David Cairns: In 2006-07, the Scotland Office spent £9,421 on taxis. All travel is undertaken in accordance with the "Civil Service Management Code" and the "Ministerial Code".

Elections

David Mundell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions have taken place since the Scottish Parliamentary elections in May between the Secretary of State and returning officers on the process of auto-adjudication used during the counting process. [155096]

David Cairns [holding answer 10 September 2007]: None. The decision on the content of the user agreement in relation to how the system dealt with ballot papers, including auto-adjudication, was the responsibility of returning officers and the e-counting provider. The Scotland Office did not take any decisions on the inclusion of auto-adjudication. These matters will come within the scope of the independent review of the recent Scottish elections led by Mr. Ron Gould.

Historic Scotland: Information Officers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many press officers are employed by Historic Scotland. [154160]

David Cairns: This is a devolved matter for the Scottish Executive and Historic Scotland.

Holyrood Parliament Building

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what proportion of the construction costs of the Scottish Parliament building was provided from central Government funding. [156330]

David Cairns: The construction costs of the Scottish Parliament is a devolved matter.

The devolved administration and legislature in Scotland are funded through the Scottish block grant. This is paid for through general UK taxation and voted on by the UK Parliament. The costs of the Scottish Parliament building are met from within the block grant.

Voting Methods

David Mundell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether the Government's review of the experience of new voting systems will take account of information to be reported by the current Electoral Commission's review chaired by Ron Gould of the recent Scottish elections. [156189]

David Cairns: Yes.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

ACP and Developing Countries: Common Sugar Regime

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent representations his Department has received from African, Pacific and Caribbean countries on implementation of the reform of the Common Agricultural Sugar Policy. [154563]

Mr. Thomas: DFID Ministers and officials have had a productive and ongoing dialogue with the African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) countries on the issue of European Union (EU) sugar reforms. This has included meetings and correspondence and has covered the depth and pace of the reforms, the amount and allocation of transitional assistance and the implications for sugar of the EU's duty and quota free market access offer under the Economic Partnership Agreements (EPA's).

Most recent communication between DFID and the ACP countries has been about the European Commission's proposal to terminate the sugar protocol (SP). A number of ACP countries have been concerned about the impacts of the ending of the protocol. However, it is a logical consequence of the EU internal sugar market reforms and the offer of duty and quota free market access as part of the EPAs.

We consider that the Commission's market access offer, on 4 April 2007 will provide, over time, real opportunities for ACP sugar exporters to expand exports to the EU.

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment his Department has made of the effect on sugar producers in developing countries of the implementation of the reform of the Common Agricultural Policy sugar regime. [154542]

Mr. Thomas: In 2003 the European Commission undertook an impact assessment of the proposed reform of the European Union (EU) internal sugar market (this was formally adopted by the Agricultural Council in February 2006). In May 2006 DEFRA undertook a comprehensive regulatory impact assessment of the reform. This assessment looked at the potential impact of the reform on all stakeholders including African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) countries that supply sugar to the EU market under a preferential trade agreement. In addition DFID has commissioned a number of independent studies looking at the impacts of the reform on the sugar industry in developing countries, with particular emphasis on the least developed countries (LDC's).

The assessments and studies all suggest that the reform will present challenges for the ACP countries who will see the value of their preference decline. They also show that the reform will provide impetus for some of the ACP countries to move their economies away from large scale dependency on sugar and thereby provide long term economic benefit in the form of efficiency gains. However the assessment also suggests the ACP countries will need financial assistance to help them diversify their economies and adapt to the reforms.

In response to these assessments DFID successfully lobbied the Commission to provide transitional assistance for the ACP countries. As a result of the lobbying the EU has earmarked around €1.244 billion between 2007 and 2013. Allocation of these funds is based on a national Sugar Action Plan submitted independently by the ACP countries. DFID has provided technical and financial support to a number of ACP countries to draw up their individual plans.

Departments: Public Private Partnerships

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding his Department provided to the public-private infrastructure advisory facility in each year since its inception. [154398]

Mr. Malik: DFID has supported the public private infrastructure advisory facility (PPIAF) over three phases since its inception in 1999. Our total commitment to PPIAF from 1999 to 2008 is £53.3 million, broken down annually as follows:

1999-2000	3,200,000
2000-01	5,895,287
2001-02	3,598,848
2002-03	8,209,761
2003-04	7,179,905
2004-05	6,525,733
2005-06	2,804,781
2006-07	7,487,555

International Assistance

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department has taken to establish the first global roster for education in emergencies since the announcement of its establishment on 5 April. [154366]

Mr. Malik: At a UK-chaired donor/agencies meeting on 22 May 2007 in Geneva, UNICEF and the Save the Children Alliance (SCA), the lead agencies for education in emergencies, confirmed that establishing a global roster of education experts was the priority in a programme of measures they are leading to build the capacity of UN and non-governmental organisations (NGOs). DFID has discussed follow up on this with UNICEF and the SCA, and is monitoring progress closely.

DFID has also provided UNICEF with £4 million per year over four years to support their role in responding to emergencies. This includes building education response capacity through the Education Cluster Support Unit.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of the £20 million funding announced on 5 April for activities in emergency and post-crisis countries over the next four to five years will be used to fund the first global roster for education in emergencies. [154367]

Mr. Malik: The programme of work to be covered by the £20 million announced on 5 April is currently being discussed by DFID and UNICEF. It has not yet been finalised.

North Korea

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment his Department has made of the humanitarian situation in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea; and if he will make a statement. [154056]

Mr. Malik: We assessed the humanitarian situation in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea at the end of August, in response to the flooding there. As a result of the assessment, DFID has contributed up to £700,000 in response to the Flash Appeal issued by the United Nations on 27 August. £650,000 has gone to programmes under way and being implemented by Save the Children UK and the World Food Programme. We have also offered support to the UN if required to assist with coordinating the relief effort, which is estimated to last a further three months.

North Korea: Non-Governmental Organisations

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions his Department has had with AIDCO and ECHO on support for the work of non-governmental organisations in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea. [154064]

Mr. Malik: The most recent discussion DFID officials have had with the Commission was on 13 September in Brussels.

The Directorate General for Humanitarian Aid (ECHO) will close its programmes in North Korea in May 2008. This is primarily because the North Korean Government requested its donors to end humanitarian aid for the first time in August 2004 and then enforced it in August 2005.

AidCo will now assume the lead on the EU assistance programme, and they plan to allocate a total of €35 million between 2007 and 2010, including €8 million in 2007, largely concentrating on food security. Non-governmental organisations in Pyongyang (and possibly others not currently based in the country) will be bidding for a share of the €8 million. AidCo will take over responsibility from ECHO for the NGOs operating in North Korea.

Overseas Aid

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding his Department channelled through the (a) World Bank, (b) International Monetary Fund, (c) United Nations and (d) World Trade Organisation in each of the last 10 years. [154399]

Mr. Thomas: Data on DFID's multilateral assistance to the World Bank, International Monetary Fund (IMF) and United Nations over the last 10 years are set out in the following table. The World Trade Organisation does not act as a donor but as a forum for trade negotiations and therefore no funding is channelled through it. These figures do not include the element of the DFID bilateral programme channelled through the listed multilateral organisations.

	World Bank	IMF	United Nations
1997-98	189,815	20,000	131,658

Overseas Aid: Water

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding his Department has provided for water projects in the last 10 years, broken down by (a) project and programme and (b) country. [154516]

Mr. Thomas: A detailed breakdown of DFID support for the water sector over the last five years can be found in the two reports titled "Financial Support to the Water Sector 2002 to 2004" and "Financial Support to the Water Sector 2004 to 2006", prepared for DFID by WS Atkins Plc. Both are available on DFID's website, www.dfid.gov.uk.

Earlier data are not available on a comparable basis.

Palestinians: Overseas Aid

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to provide assistance to Palestinians at the Rafah border crossing. [154592]

Mr. Malik: The 6,374 Palestinians who were stranded in Egypt due to the closure of the Rafah crossing returned to Gaza between 29 July and 12 August.

No DFID assistance was required.

South East Asia: Overseas Aid

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance he made available to those countries in south-east Asia affected by the floods there. [156375]

Mr. Malik: DFID responded to the floods in south Asia and Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea. We did not receive requests for assistance from south-east Asian states.

In Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea, DFID contributed £650,000:

£500,000 through WFP to provide food, clean water and safeguard people against water borne diseases;

£149,422 to Save the Children for essential healthcare support;

We have also offered support to the UN if required to assist with coordinating the relief effort.

In south Asia DFID contributed over £5 million to help the worst affected countries:

In Bangladesh we contributed £2.1 million through the Chars Livelihood Programme, United Nations Development Programme and the International Centre for Diarrhoeal Disease Research, Bangladesh (ICDDR,B) to provide food, water, emergency shelter and medicines to help more than one million people in the worst-affected districts;

In Pakistan, we contributed £2.2 million through the Pakistani Rural Support Programme Network, the United Nations, the International Federation of the Red Cross (IFRC) and international non-governmental organisations (INGOs) providing multi-sectoral immediate relief as well as livelihoods assistance;

In India, DFID gave Save the Children £750,000 to provide general relief items, health care and livelihood support, children's education and protection to 13,341 families (including 31,660 children).

Sudan: International Assistance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much of the US$ 100 million promised to the Eastern Sudan Reconstruction and Development Fund has been delivered; and what (a) reports he has received on and (b) assessment he has made of the work of the Fund's governing board. [153928]

Mr. Thomas: The Government of National Unity has allocated the required US$ 100 million to the Eastern Sudan Reconstruction and Development Fund but this funding has yet to be disbursed. The structure of the Fund's governing board, which is detailed in Article 23 of the Eastern Sudan Peace Agreement, has been agreed. However the executive director has not yet been appointed and as such the board is not operational. No reports have been received.

Sudan: Overseas Aid

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will estimate the number of civilians affected by the situation in Darfur and unable to access humanitarian aid due to the level of insecurity in the region; and if he will make a statement. [154696]

Mr. Thomas: DFID does not make its own estimates but relies on those provided by the UN. The UN uses the number of people in need of emergency aid as its criterion for defining those who are affected by conflict. This figure currently stands at 4.2 million, including 2.2 million internally displaced persons (IDPs). There are some 500,000 people across Darfur who are cut off from all humanitarian assistance and protection services. For many of the others, access to aid is only sporadic and frequently interrupted by insecurity and attacks on humanitarian staff.

DFID condemns the continuing violence targeting civilians and humanitarian workers in Darfur and has called on all sides to cease the violence immediately; revise the ceasefire, engage constructively in the renewed political process and support the rapid deployment of the AU/UN peacekeeping force for Darfur.

UN High Commissioners for Refugees: Information Officers

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many press officers are employed by the UN High Commissioner for Refugees. [154724]

Mr. Malik: DFID is not responsible for the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) and therefore does not hold information regarding the number of press officers employed by them.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Clergy: Sexual Offences

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 12 July 2007, Official Report, column 1592W, on clergy: sexual offences, whether the information submitted to the Police Service of Northern Ireland by solicitors acting on behalf of the Roman Catholic Church was in the form of full details or summaries of allegations. [152817]

Paul Goggins: Solicitors acting on behalf of the Roman Catholic Church provided PSNI with details regarding the victims and their allegations. This information permitted PSNI to make contact with those victims and establish the full facts of each case. For legal reasons no further comment can be made at this stage.

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the name is of each special adviser in his Department. [153068]

Mr. Woodward: There are currently no special advisers employed in my Department.

Departments: Recruitment

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people have been appointed to his Department outside Civil Service grades in the last 30 days. [153067]

Paul Goggins: From 1 July 2007 to date the Northern Ireland Office has not appointed any staff to its Department outside of civil service grades.

Departments: Taxis

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much was spent by his Department on taxis in the last 12 months. [153066]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office, excluding its Agencies and Executive NDPBs, spent £28,031 directly on taxis in 2006-07 (this is the last 12 months for which audited expenditure figures are available). However, where members of staff meet the cost of taxi fares out of their own pocket and reclaim the amount from the Department, such sums are grouped with other incidental expenses e.g. car parking. It would not be possible to extract the taxi element from these figures except at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Travel

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much was spent by his Department on (a) first class and (b) business class flights in the last 12 months. [153064]

Mr. Woodward: £781,170 was spent on business class travel, and a further £60,908 was spent on foreign flights in 2006-07 (this is the last 12 months for which audited figures are available). It is not possible to disaggregate the amount spent on flights to foreign destination by class except at disproportionate cost.

In January of this year the Department introduced arrangements for the greater use of economy class flights.

Departments: Tribunals

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much was spent by his Department on industrial tribunals in the last 12 months. [153060]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office, excluding its agencies and executive NDPBs, spent £85,000 on industrial tribunals in 2006-07 (this is the last 12 months for which audited expenditure figures are available).

Departments: Visits Abroad

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many overseas visits were made by (a) officials and (b) Ministers within his responsibility, and at what cost, in each year since 1997. [151659]

Mr. Woodward: The information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, since April 2004 my Department has recorded the total cost of overseas travel by air and train by Ministers and officials. This information is set out in the following table. The majority of the journeys in question were made between the UK and the Republic of Ireland. Information on the cost of car travel between Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland is not held centrally.

	Flights	Cost (£)	Rail	Cost (£)	Total (£)
April 2004 to December 2004	186	146,770.93	112	5,079.64	151,850.57
January 2005 to December 2005	313	268,801.48	60	3,003.19	271,804.67
January 2007 to June 2007	111	129,568.49	92	3,553.50	133,121.99

In addition, since 1999 the Government have published on an annual basis, a list of all overseas visits by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500, as well as the total cost of all ministerial travel overseas. Copies of the lists are available in the Libraries of the House. All travel is undertaken in accordance with the Civil Service Management Code and the Ministerial Code.

Sexual Offences: Northern Ireland

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answers of 25 June 2007, Official Report, columns 20-2W, on sexual offences and 10 July 2007, Official Report, columns 1398-9W, on Northern Ireland: convictions, what assessment he has made of the reasons for the conviction rate for rape being lower than for all offences; what meetings he has had with (a) the Police Service of Northern Ireland, (b) the Public Prosecution Service and (c) women's support or rape crisis groups to discuss ways of increasing the conviction rate; and what plans he has to increase the conviction rate for rape. [152818]

Paul Goggins: We remain committed to reviewing the effectiveness of case handling and improving support services to victims and survivors of sexual violence to help them cope with the traumatic impact of the offence and assist them in giving their best evidence in court.

PSNI, with assistance from the Public Prosecution Service, has recently reviewed the management of a range of rape cases in order to find ways of improving the investigation of such cases. Preliminary findings are being analysed.

A regional strategy for sexual violence, which was the subject of extensive consultation and workshops involving statutory and voluntary sector agencies, victims' groups and the general public, is due to be published by the end of the year by the NIO and DHSSPS. It will specifically examine factors which contribute to the attrition rate in relation to sexual offences and identify ways to address under reporting of offences, further improve inter-agency case management and develop services which meet the needs of victims of sexual violence.

One of the strategy's key measures already announced ahead of formal publication is the development, by a multi-agency steering group involving victims' group Nexus, of Northern Ireland's first sexual assault referral centre. The SARC will build on the valuable services currently available in police child abuse and rape inquiry suites to deliver a more coordinated response to the needs of victims by providing immediate medical aftercare and individual counselling and other support services while also facilitating the preservation of forensic evidence to assist in the successful prosecution of offenders.

Vetting: Applications

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many Criminal Records Check applications were received in each of the last three calendar years, broken down by category; how many have been received in 2007; what the trend is in average processing times during this period; how many staff are involved in undertaking this work; and what the budget is for the work in 2007-08. [155355]

Paul Goggins: The PSNI has advised that they are currently unable to provide accurate figures for vetting requests received prior to February 2007, due to technical difficulties. The PSNI is working to rectify this, and I have asked the Chief Constable to keep me updated on progress.

A total of 80,119 applications were received between February and August 2007. The fall annual total is expected to be approximately 150,000. The following table gives a breakdown by category.

Presently the PSNI vetting section has 10 staff. In 2007-08 the work is expected to cost £184,000 excluding overheads.

The Police Service of Northern Ireland aims to turnaround 90 per cent. of vetting applications within 15 working days. This target has been met in previous years, but due to the technical difficulty noted above, is not being met at present. Additional resources have been dedicated to improving this performance, and progress towards the target is being monitored.

Aerials

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many mobile phone masts are on the Valuation Office Agency's ratings list in England. [155694]

John Healey: The number of non-domestic hereditaments shown in the Rating Lists of England, under the description of Communication Station as at 26 September 2007 is 27,428. This figure includes all mast sites including mobile, telecommunications and broadcast sites. A break down to show the numbers of mobile phone sites could be delivered only at a disproportionate cost.

Allotments: Liability

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has provided to local authorities in relation to public liability and allotments. [155687]

Mr. Iain Wright: In June 2001 the Department (then DETR), the LGA, Shell Better Britain Campaign and the GLA jointly published a 'Growing in the Community: A Good Practice Guide for the Management of Allotments' for local authorities—a free copy was circulated to all local authorities. The aim of the guide was to raise standards in the provision, management and care of allotments and the guide has a section on public liability insurance. The guide recommends that local authorities obtain further advice on public liability from representative bodies such as the National Society of Allotments and Leisure Gardeners who provide free legal advice to members.

The guide is currently being updated by the LGA in consultation with the Department and will be published later this year.

More general advice on health and safety on allotments is available in 'Allotments: A Plot Holders Guide' which was published by the Department in June 2007, and in the Health and Safety facts sheet published by the Allotment Regeneration Initiative.

Allotments: Sales

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what (a) approvals and (b) rejections of the sale or disposal of allotments under the Allotments Act 1925 have been made by her and her predecessor since May 2007. [152520]

Mr. Iain Wright: We have been advised by the Government Offices that between 1 May 2007 and 20 September 2007 there have been 10 approvals of the sale or disposal of allotments:

"Former" allotment land at Hollin Lane/Rochdale Road, Middleton, Rochdale.

Turnsdale Allotment, County Durham—sale of one allotment plot which is continuing as an allotment.

Days Field, Breckland—5.09 acres (replacement sites have been made available).

Shoulder of Mutton, Breckland—3.47 acres (replacement sites have been made available).

South Acton Estate, Ealing, London.

Finnigan Road Allotment, Plymouth—sale of an 0.1 acre overgrown vacant plot for addition to garden of adjoining house.

Whitton Church Land field, Ipswich (land not used for allotment purposes since before 1985)—to provide more football pitches in the locality.

Bucklands Way Allotments, Sutton, London—temporary one year licence for occupation of land/hut which forms part of the allotment site.

Church Fields Allotments Land, Surrey Heath—land given over to additional burial ground.

Carshalton Athletic FC, War Memorial Sports Ground, Sutton, London.

There have been no rejections of the sale of allotments.

There are currently a total of 34 application cases which are pending decision.

Audit Commission: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many press officers are employed by the Audit Commission. [154150]

John Healey: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission. The Chief Executive of the Audit Commission has written to the hon. Member.

Council Housing: Overcrowding

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many council tenants in London are classed as living in overcrowded accommodation. [154383]

Mr. Iain Wright: Based on data derived from the Survey of English Housing it is estimated that over the period 2003-04 to 2005-06 an average of 62,000 households living in council housing in London were in overcrowded conditions, as defined by the Bedroom Standard.

Council Housing: Waiting Lists

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average waiting time was for council housing in each London borough in each of the last 10 years. [154814]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on average waiting time on a housing list for households is not held centrally. While information is collected centrally on the number of households on local authority housing waiting lists, which is given in the annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (HSSA), there is no indication of average time spent on a waiting list.

The accuracy of the list also depends on the extent to which housing authorities keep the register up-to-date, e.g. some people might already have found housing, yet remain on the list. It is also important to bear in mind that not everyone on the waiting list will necessarily be in urgent housing need. It will also include those who consider social housing as their preferred choice, or one of a number of housing options.

Council Tax: South East Government Office

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment her Department has made of the council tax collection rates of (a) Gravesham, (b) other councils in Kent and (c) other councils in the South East Government Office in the last 10 years; and if she will make a statement. [154569]

Mr. Dhanda: The collection and enforcement of council tax is a matter for individual billing authorities. Communities and Local Government has made no assessment of the collection rates in the last 10 years for Gravesham, other councils in Kent or other councils in the South East. Across England, in-year collection of council tax rose for the seventh successive year in 2006-07, to 96.9 per cent. of the total collectable.

Departmental Travel

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 12 July 2007, Official Report, column 1629W, on departmental travel, what the (a) cost and (b) purpose was of the visits to (i) the US and (ii) Kenya; and how many staff went on each visit. [153724]

Hazel Blears: The visit to the US cost £7,021 and was for two staff to share best practice with policy and law enforcement practitioners and community organisations working on integration/cohesion and preventing violent extremism and to deliver two lectures on these subjects.

The Kenya visit cost £2,898 and was for one member of staff to attend the UN Habitat Governing Council as part of the UK delegation.

Departments: Legislation

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 24 July 2007, Official Report, column 957W, on Departments: Legislation, which (a) sections and (b) schedules of the specified acts have (i) been repealed and (ii) not been brought into force. [154205]

Emergency Services: Gloucestershire

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the role played by the Gloucestershire tri-service centre during recent floods and water shortages. [154929]

John Healey: [holding answer 10 September 2007]: A review of the wider lessons learned is to be carried out by the Cabinet Office, with support from the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and the Department of Communities and Local Government. This will examine the emergency response to the floods in June and July and consider how to reduce the risk and impact of floods in the future. The role performed by the Gloucestershire tri-service centre will be taken into account as part of this wider exercise.

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will review the decision to break up the Gloucestershire tri-service centre. [154930]

John Healey [holding answer 10 September 2007]: The Gloucestershire tri-service centre will not be broken up. The centre will continue to house staff from all three emergency services and support tri-service working after the control room of the fire and rescue service is moved to the South West Regional Control Centre. The Government are committed to creating a new national network of nine resilient regional control centres which will enhance the ability of the Fire and Rescue Service to respond to major incidents and natural disasters in a co-ordinated, efficient and effective manner. We believe that the public will be better protected by this approach. The new Regional Control Centres will however build on the valuable lessons learnt on joint working from the tri-service pilots, including the recent experience of dealing with flooding in Gloucestershire.

English Partnerships: Information Officers

Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many press officers are employed by English Partnerships. [154459]

Mr. Iain Wright: English Partnerships does not employ press officers. It does however have six corporate communications officer posts in its headquarters which deal with press and media inquiries as part of their remit. One of these posts is currently vacant.

Equality: EC Action

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the UK Government have received a reasoned opinion from the European Commission on the implementation of the race equality directive (2000/43/CE); and if she will make a statement. [154013]

Mr. Dhanda: The UK received a reasoned opinion from the European Commission concerning the implementation of Council Directive 2000/43/EC ("the Race directive") on 29 June 2007. The Commission argued that the UK had not fully transposed the Race directive in relation to the definition of indirect discrimination, and because there was a lack of transparency over the remedies available to victims of instructions to discriminate. The Government replied to the Commission on 24 August confirming that it would amend domestic law to clarify the situation and meet the Commission's concerns. We intend to lay regulations before Parliament shortly.

First Time Buyers: Age

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the mean age of a first-time buyer was in each year since 1997. [155857]

Floods: Bassetlaw

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what requests she received in July 2007 for assistance with flooding recovery and humanitarian aid by Bassetlaw District Council (a) in writing, (b) by e-mail and (c) by telephone. [153854]

John Healey: Communities and Local Government have been in regular contact with all the local authorities who have been affected by the floods and this includes Bassetlaw district council

Contact with Bassetlaw district council has included collecting information to inform understanding of the impact of the flooding in the district and specific information to contribute to the decision making process for the provision of the Flood Recovery Grant. On the basis of the relative number of households affected (based on the available information at the time) Bassetlaw district council was allocated £250,000 in Flood Recovery Grant (£200,000 on 13 July and £50,000 on 20 July).

In addition, on 27 June 2007 Bassetlaw district council notified Communities and Local Government of their intention to claim under the Bellwin scheme for the June floods. The Bellwin scheme provides emergency financial assistance from Government to local authorities to help meet the uninsurable costs of immediate action to safeguard life or property or prevent severe inconvenience to inhabitants in the case of an emergency or disaster such as the floods.

Floods: EC Grants and Loans

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what European Union assistance is available to help rebuild communities damaged by floodwater; and if she will make a statement; [153309]

(2) what plans the Government have to apply for EU funding assistance to help communities rebuild after the recent flooding; and what the deadline is for applying for any such assistance. [153310]

[152541]

Yvette Cooper: The Department has not made any such payments to Rightmove or Countrywide.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove) of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 164W, on home information packs, what payments her Department and its predecessor made to (a) Rightmove and (b) Countryside for pilot schemes relating to home information packs. Yvette Cooper: The Department has not made any such payments to Rightmove or Countrywide.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what meetings Ministers from her Department have had with the Association of Home Information Pack Providers in the last 12 months. [152833]

Yvette Cooper: I have met with the Association of Home Information Pack Providers (AHIPP) on a number of occasions, most recently on 6 September 2007. I have also had similar meetings with other representative bodies and we are continuing to work closely with all key stakeholders on HIPs and EPCs.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether (a) home information packs and (b) energy performance certificates may include the unique property reference number or a BS7666-compliant address of the domestic dwelling. [153795]

Yvette Cooper: Energy performance certificates include a unique property reference number, which is generated by the Register Operator. Neither this nor a BS7666-compliant address is included in a HIP.

Home Information Packs: Valuation Office

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons the Valuation Office Agency has not been granted access to the home condition report database. [152516]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 22 May 2006, Official Report, column 1400W to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) regarding access to home condition reports.

Homelessness: Cambridgeshire

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many households in (a) South Cambridgeshire and (b) East Cambridgeshire were accepted as homeless in each year since 1997. [153763]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation is collected quarterly at local authority level, in respect of households rather than people.

Information reported each quarter by local authorities about their activities under homelessness legislation includes the number of households accepted by local authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty. The duty owed to an accepted household is to secure suitable accommodation.

This data is published in our quarterly statistical release on Statutory Homelessness, which includes a Supplementary Table showing the breakdown of key data, including acceptances, by each local authority. This table is published on our website and placed in the Library each quarter. The latest release was published on 10 September 2007 and contains data for the period April to June 2007:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/housingresearch/housingstatistics/housingstatisticsby/homelessnessstatistics/publicationshomelessness/

A summary table showing the total number of households accepted as owed the main homelessness duty for East and South Cambridgeshire is as follows.

Homelessness: Greater London

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what percentage of people were (a) homeless and (b) on the council housing waiting list in each London borough in each of the last 10 years. [154806]

Mr. Iain Wright: The first table shows (i) the number of households accepted as owed the main homelessness duty, and (ii) this number as a percentage of total households in the area, for each London borough for the last 10 financial years (from 1997-98 to 2006-07).

Information on numbers of households, rather than people, is reported each quarter by local authorities about their activities under homelessness legislation, and includes the number of households accepted by local authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty. The duty owed to an accepted household is to secure suitable accommodation.

The second table shows (i) the total number of households on local authorities' housing waiting lists (i.e. not just those that are homeless), and (ii) this number as a percentage of total households in the area, for each London borough for the last 10 calendar years (from 1997 to 2006).

Local authorities in England report the numbers of households on their housing waiting list as at 1 April in their annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix returns. Not everyone on the waiting list is necessarily in urgent housing need. The waiting list includes those who consider social housing as their preferred or one of a number of housing options, and those who decide to get onto the waiting list ladder before they need or want to move house—particularly where the priority system is heavily based on waiting time. Note that the figures include all households on the waiting list, and not only those that are homeless.

Housing Associations

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the legal status is of housing associations. [154384]

Mr. Iain Wright: The term "housing association" is defined in section 1 of the Housing Associations Act 1985 for the purposes of that Act as:

"A society, body of trustees, or company—

(a) which is established for the purpose of, or amongst whose objects or powers are included those of, providing, constructing, improving or managing, or facilitating or encouraging the construction or improvement of, housing accommodation, and

(b) which does not trade for profit or whose constitution or rules prohibit the issue of capital with interest or dividend exceeding such rate as may be prescribed by the Treasury, whether with or without differentiation as between share and loan capital."

Housing Corporation: Information Officers

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many press officers are employed by the Housing Corporation. [154423]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Housing Corporation currently employs two press officers.

Housing Green Paper

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many hard copies of the 2007 Housing Green Paper were printed and then discarded following the last minute changes to the document. [153813]

Mr. Iain Wright: No copies were printed then discarded.

Housing: Carbon Emissions

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's definition is of a zero carbon residential dwelling. [153869]

Mr. Iain Wright: As set out in "Building a Greener Future: Policy Statement", a zero carbon home means that, over a year, the net carbon emissions from all energy use in the home would be zero. This would include energy use from cooking, washing and electronic appliances as well as space heating, cooling, ventilation, lighting and hot water.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment

(a) her Department and (b) its agencies have made of the effect on construction costs of building a zero-carbon home. [155689]

Mr. Iain Wright: A regulatory impact assessment, which sets out the range of estimated costs associated with the zero carbon homes policy, as set out in Building a Greener Future Policy Statement, was published on 23 July 2007 and is available on the Department's website.

Housing: Construction

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local planning authorities in each (a) region and (b) county have approved (i) local development framework core strategies and (ii) housing allocation development plan documents. [152641]

Mr. Iain Wright: 14 local planning authorities have been issued with final inspectors' reports finding their core strategy development plan documents sound. 12 of these authorities have now proceeded to adoption of their core strategy. These are set out in the following table.

Region (a)	County (b)	Local Planning Authority	Title(i)	Adopted

Seven local planning authorities have been issued with final reports finding their area action plans sound. These area action plans have included housing allocations as part of the development plan document. The seven relevant authorities have all proceeded to adoption. These are set out in the following table.

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the number of house building starts and completions there have been in each of the last four quarters. [155530]

Yvette Cooper: The latest statistics on new house building were published on the 16 August: Communities and Local Government Statistical Release: "House building: April to June Quarter 2007".

Housing: Databases

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which public sector bodies are entitled to undertake (a) primary disclosures and (b) secondary disclosure of information from (i) the Home Condition Report database and (ii) the Energy Performance Certificate database. [153785]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 22 May 2006, Official Report, column 1400W, to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles), regarding disclosure of Home Condition Reports.

I also refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 161W, to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Mr. Gove), regarding disclosure of Energy Performance Certificates.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of (a) home condition reports and (b) energy performance certificates (EPCs) that will be lodged on the respective online registers once (i) home information packs are required for all homes and (ii) EPCs are required for rented and social domestic dwellings. [153796]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer of 25 June 2005, Official Report, column 160W, given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles). We will be monitoring the take-up on Home Condition Report.

The Regulatory Impact Assessment for the Energy Performance of Buildings Directive—Articles 7-10 published on 29 March 2007 details the estimated number of energy performance certificates that will be lodged in the register by sector.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the URLs are for the (a) Energy Performance Certificate database and (b) Home Condition Report database. [153914]

Yvette Cooper: The URLs are for the Energy Performance Certificate database and Home Condition Report database are www.epcregister.com and www.hcrregister.com.

Housing: Empty Properties

Mike Wood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many empty homes in the private and social sectors she plans to bring back into use; and if she will make a statement. [153792]

Yvette Cooper: We are committed to reducing the number of empty homes and in particular the number of homes that are left empty for long periods of time. The Government do not set a national target for the number of empty homes to be brought back into use as this can be affected by local housing market conditions. However, the Housing Green Paper makes it clear that local authorities should do more to tackle empty homes and we are exploring ways to achieve an increase in activity. We consider that all local authorities should have in place comprehensive strategies on how they intend to deal with empty homes. Many local authorities set their own empty homes targets.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on her plans to encourage a greater take-up of empty dwelling management orders. [153793]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Housing Green Paper makes it clear that local authorities should do more to tackle empty homes as part of a wider strategy of increasing housing supply and we are exploring and consulting on ways to achieve this. We consider that all local authorities should have in place strategies on how they intend to deal with empty homes. We expect such strategies to identify and address the different reasons for empty homes.

Enforcement action to bring empty homes back into use should only be considered as a last resort when voluntary measures have proved unsuccessful. We are therefore keen to ensure that local authorities adopt empty dwelling management orders as part of a comprehensive strategy that encompasses a wide range of options.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many empty homes there were in (a) South Cambridgeshire and (b) East Cambridgeshire in each of the last five years. [153764]

Mr. Iain Wright: Estimates for vacant dwellings in the local authority areas of East Cambridgeshire and South Cambridgeshire since 2002 are tabulated. These include vacancies up to six months and long term vacancies over six months. These are as reported by local authorities through the Council Tax Base (CTB1) form and present vacant dwellings receiving some or a full discount on council tax.

Housing: Energy

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether research has been conducted by her Department and its predecessor into the manner in which the EU directive on energy performance certificates has been implemented in other EU member states. [153717]

Yvette Cooper: The UK is as a member state committed to the implementation of the European Directive on the Energy Performance of Buildings. It participates fully in Article 14 meetings hosted by the European Commission and attends meetings of the Concerted Action network which shares best practice on implementation of the directive.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) enforcement notices were served and (b) prosecutions were brought as a result of non-compliance with the energy efficiency requirements in Part L of the Building Regulations in each year between 2002 and 2007. [153856]

Mr. Iain Wright: Enforcement of compliance with the Building Regulations is undertaken by local authorities. There is no central register of enforcement notices served or prosecutions brought. In the main, local authorities aim to resolve issues that arise through inspection of and advice to those undertaking work. Enforcement notices and prosecution are generally only used as a last resort.

Housing: Floods

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library copies of the submissions to the consultation on the most recent revision to PPS25. [153784]

Mr. Iain Wright: A report summarising the responses to the Planning Policy Statement 25 Development and Flood Risk consultation has been placed in the Library of the House and is also available on the Communities and Local Government website. This is located at:

www.communities.gov.uk/documents/planningandbuilding/pdf/154211.

Responses can be viewed on request at the Eland House offices of Communities and Local Government.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many homes built in the last 10 years suffered flood damage in June and July 2007; [153843]

(2) what her most recent estimate is of the number of homes that were flooded in England in June and July 2007. [153845]

John Healey: Local authorities have provided their own figures on the number of households affected by flooding (defined as those residential properties where the habitable accommodation has been affected, and excluding those, where—for example—only garage and/or outbuildings were affected). On that basis, information held as of 25 September 2007 estimates that 47,933 households were flooded in June and July. The figures may include some households which flooded on both occasions. We do not hold data which allows us to identify whether individual houses were damaged by the flooding.

The information requested on how many homes built in the last 10 years suffered flood damage in June and July 2007 is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the source is of the dataset Areas of Land at Risk of Flooding held on her Department's MapsOnTap database. [153915]

Mr. Iain Wright: The source of the data set, Areas of Land at Risk of Flooding, held on the 'Maps on Tap' database is the Environment Agency.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of new domestic dwellings were built in areas of flood risk in each Government office region in England in the most recent year for which figures are available. [156518]

Mr. Iain Wright: On a provisional estimate, 9 per cent. of all new dwellings in England in 2005 were built in flood risk areas. A more robust estimate for 2004 shows that 10 per cent. of all new dwellings in England were built in flood risk areas during that year. The following table gives a breakdown by Government office region of the percentage of new dwellings built in flood risk areas for the last 10 years.

Flood risk is a major factor in the location of new development. Flood risk areas account for about 10 per cent. of land in England, including parts of major cities, and around 10 per cent. of the population already live in flood risk areas. The Government's aim is to avoid inappropriate development in areas of high flood risk. The Government published planning policy statement (PPS25) in December 2006 to strengthen and clarify earlier policy on this issue.

PPS25 ensures that flood risk must be taken into account at all stages of the planning process. Development that would not be safe in the higher flood risk areas should be directed to areas of lower risk wherever this is practicable. In particular, more vulnerable development, such as housing, should not be permitted in high risk areas unless it can be clearly demonstrated that the need for the development outweighs the risk, and it will be safe, without increasing flood risk.

The definition of high flood risk areas and floodplain used by Communities and Local Government is the high risk zone mapped by the Environment Agency as being at a probability of flooding, excluding the presence of flood defences, of at least a one in 100 each year for river flooding and at least a one in 200 for coastal flooding. This is the basis for the definition of 'high risk areas' in PPS25.

Returns to CLG from local authorities and the NHBC. Local authority figures presented are as reported. Regional totals include estimates for missing returns.

Housing: Immigration

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 23 July 2007, Official Report, column 745W, on Housing: Immigration, how many of the additional households projected by each of the sets of household projections referred to in that Answer were projected to be in (a) London and (b) each region of England. [154029]

Mr. Iain Wright: An estimate of the amount of projected household growth attributable to net migration is available at the England level only. This is because the estimate is derived from the Office for National Statistics variant population projections that are themselves available at the England level only.

Housing: Inspections

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) mean and (b) median time is for (i) a home inspector and (ii) a domestic energy assessor to be fully accredited. [152383]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 26 June 2007, Official Report, column 633W to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove).

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number and proportion of trained and accredited (a) home inspectors and (b) domestic energy inspectors likely not to practise as such within (i) one and (ii) five years of qualifying. [154334]

Yvette Cooper: The number of home inspectors and domestic energy assessors will be sufficient to produce the energy performance certificates for home information packs required by the market.

Housing: Local Authorities

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authority houses were (a) sold and (b) demolished in each London borough in each of the last five years. [154811]

Mr. Iain Wright: The numbers of local authority homes sold and demolished in each London borough in each of the last five years are tabulated below. Figures for 2006-07 are not yet available.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many shared equity homes are on the National Register of Social Housing in England. [153711]

Mr. Iain Wright: The National Register of Social Housing recorded 4,221 dwellings in shared ownership in England in July 2007. This is 1.3 per cent. of the 318,976 dwellings for which the category of provision had been provided by local authorities and housing associations.

In July 2007 the National Register of Social Housing contained records of 1.19 million dwellings out of a total of 4 million. Participation by landlords is at present discretionary. Landlords have only provided the category of provision information for 318,976 dwellings. Without this we are not able to identify those in shared ownership. We are working with local authorities, and, through the Housing Corporation, with housing associations to speed up the capture of data and complete the information on category of provision and other attributes.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which Minister approved the establishment of the National Register of Social Housing; and on what date approval was given. [153905]

Mr. Iain Wright: My right hon. Friend the Member for Streatham, (Keith Hill) then Minister of Housing and Local Government, approved the establishment of the National Register of Social Housing on 13 September 2004.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the (a) Social Homebuy, (b) Open Markets Homebuy and (c) New Build Homebuy schemes apply to social tenants in Wales. [153906]

Yvette Cooper: The Social, Open Market and New Build HomeBuy schemes operate in England to help social tenants, key workers and other priority first time buyers into home ownership.

Housing in Wales is the responsibility of the Welsh Assembly Government.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department has a target for the number of Social HomeBuy sales between 2005 and 2010. [153911]

Yvette Cooper: The Government have not set a specific target for sales under the Social HomeBuy pilot scheme which runs until March 2008. Final numbers will be dependent on participation by local authorities and housing associations offering the scheme and the take up from tenants. The scheme is one of a range of options which aims to help social tenants, key workers and other first time buyers into home ownership.

As announced in the Housing Green Paper: 'Homes for the future: more affordable', more sustainable on 23 July, we want to see the opportunity of Social HomeBuy offered more widely by landlords and we will announce further proposals later this year.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the business case for the National Register of Social Housing. [153913]

Mr. Iain Wright: The latest version of the business case for the National Register of Social Housing has been placed in the Library of the House, as requested.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many private developments have met the 50 per cent. affordable housing target since its inception, broken down by London borough. [154055]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested is not held centrally. The Mayor of London's 50 per cent. affordable housing target is a strategic target for London as a whole, and not a requirement for each individual planning application. Planning applications for housing development in London are primarily the responsibility of the boroughs, who consult the Mayor of London on a limited number of applications that raise issues of strategic importance.

Housing: Parking

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what changes have been made to the recommendations in Planning Policy Statement 3 on the minimum and maximum amount of car parking in new residential developments. [154074]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 31 July 2007, Official Report, column1674W.

Housing: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of (a) housing association and (b) private sector housing within Peterborough constituency was judged to be unfit in each year since 1997. [154068]

Mr. Iain Wright: The percentage of (a) housing association and (b) private sector housing, within Peterborough, judged to be unfit in each year since 1997 is given in the following table. The data are as reported by the local authority.

Percentage of unfit dwellings within (a) housing association and (b) private sector housing, as reported by local authorities

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many houses were built by (a) private sector companies, (b) housing associations and (c) the local authority within the Peterborough City Council area in each year since 1997. [154069]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information is available only by the eventual tenure of the dwelling rather than by the group that built the dwellings.

The following table tabulates the number of new build completions by tenure in Peterborough in each year since 1997-98 by tenure.

Housing: Renewable Energy

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the Valuation Office Agency's estimate is of the average increase in the capital value of a domestic dwelling from (a) a small wind turbine and (b) solar panels. [153916]

Mr. Dhanda: No such estimate has been made.

Housing: Sales

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what number and proportion of homes sold each year are (a) one or two, (b) three and (c) four or more bedroomed properties. [156514]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities and Local Government do not collect the data in the format requested. However for England we have made the following estimates based on data from the Regulated Mortgage Survey and HM Land Registry.

Estimated number and proportion of homes sold in 2006 by number of bedrooms

Number of bedrooms	Properties sold	Proportion of all sales (percentage)
One or two	458,991	37.5
Three	535,599	43.8
Four or more	228,370	18.7
Total	1,222,960	100.0

Housing: Sewers

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the planning procedure is relating to (a) drainage and (b) sewerage for new housing developments in (i) England and (ii) Scotland; and if she will make a statement. [154115]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 31 July 2007, Official Report, column 1665W.

Planning procedures in Scotland are a matter for the Scottish Executive.

Housing: Unique Property Reference Number

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many domestic dwellings in England have a unique property reference number. [156519]

Mr. Iain Wright: The unique property reference number (UPRN) is maintained by the Improvement and Development Agency in the National Land and Property Gazetteer. It is not for Communities and Local Government to comment on the content of the National Land and Property Gazetteer. Further information on the National Land and Property Gazetteer can be found on the internet at www.nlpg.org.uk

Housing: Waiting Lists

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many households were on waiting lists for homes in Peterborough in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [154692]

Mr. Iain Wright: The number of households on the waiting list for social housing in Peterborough in each year since 1997, as at 1 April each year, is tabled as follows and also published on the Communities and Local Government website in Table 600. For future reference purposes, the link for this table is as follows:

Communities and Local Government Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix Return (HSSA)

Local authorities in England report the numbers of households on their housing waiting list as at 1 April in their annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix returns. Not everyone on the waiting list is necessarily in urgent housing need. The waiting list includes those who consider social housing as their preferred or one of a number of housing options, and those who decide to get onto the waiting list ladder before they need or want to move house—particularly where the priority system is heavily based on waiting time. The size of the waiting list is not an indicator of absolute need, it is only useful as a broad indicator of housing demand in an area.

Land Use

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will take steps to prevent land banking by housing developers. [154385]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department for Communities and Local Government's Green Paper "Homes for the future: more affordable more sustainable" (July 2007) describes the steps that we have already taken through the development control process to encourage developers to utilise land for building homes more swiftly. We have said that we will consider whether further measures are needed. We have also proposed to explore further how to ensure consistent and comprehensive declaration of developers' total residential land holdings within their accounts.

The Callcutt Review of House Building Delivery, which we expect to receive later this year, will examine the acquisition, holding and disposal of land for house building, and the influence of land supply on levels of house building production. In addition, the Office of Fair Trading has announced a market study into house building in the UK. The study, expected to report in summer 2008, will consider whether land which is suitable for new homes is being brought forward for development. We will consider land banking further in the context of these wider reviews.

Land Use: Public Sector

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which Department has lead responsibility for maintaining the Register of Surplus Public Sector Land. [153912]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Register of Surplus Public Sector Land was set up in 2003. It is managed by English Partnerships on behalf of Communities and Local Government and in collaboration with other Government Departments, their sponsored bodies and other public sector organisations.

The register provides a single reference point for all participating public sector organisations on the nationally available supply of surplus land. It helps to ensure that wider Government objectives, including housing needs and regional economic and housing strategies, are factored into land disposal decisions. The register identifies land held by central Government and its agencies that is surplus to operational requirements, and allows a 40 day period for public bodies to express an interest in this land before it is placed on the market.

Local Authorities (Model Code of Conduct) Order 2007

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to amend the Local Authorities (Model Code of Conduct) Order 2007 during the course of 2007. [154075]

John Healey: We have asked the Standards Board for England to monitor the operation of the revised code of conduct for members following its implementation in April 2007, and to make recommendations, as it sees fit, about any further revision with effect from April 2008.

Local Authorities: Finance

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authorities had their bid for disabled facilities grant capital allocation for 2007-08 not met in full; what criteria are applied to decide the proportion of bid met; and if she will make a statement. [153773]

Mr. Iain Wright: In 2007-08 216 local authorities (LAs) in England did not have their bid for Disabled Facilities Grant (DFG) funding in full. Despite substantially increasing the Government funding available for the national DFG programme, from £57 million in 1997 to £126 million in 2007-08, there is still considerable demand for the grant.

The national budget is divided up between the regions using a formula which takes into account data from the English House Condition Survey on the number of disabled people in each region living in unsuitable housing and a regional building cost index.

Government offices (GOs) are responsible for overseeing the allocation of DFG resources. In order to assist the GOs in this process the department supplied them with the LA bid for DFG funds and a local needs indicator, which is the number of individuals in each LA in receipt of either disability living allowance or attendance allowance. The GOs take these factors into account and balance them with any local data or information which they think is relevant in order to allocate DFG resources.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she will publish the Government's response to the consultation on the Disabled Facilities Grant Programme: the Government's proposals to improve programme delivery. [153774]

Mr. Iain Wright: The summary of responses to the Disabled Facilities Grant Programme consultation was published on the Department's website on 13 August 2007, please see following weblink:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/housing/facilitiesprogrammegovernmentspr.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what requests she has received from (a) Bassetlaw District Council, (b) Nottinghamshire County Council and (c) Manton Neighbourhood Renewal Pathfinder for inclusion in the participatory budgeting pilot. [153853]

John Healey: During 2006, members of the Manton Community Alliance, the delivery body for the Manton Neighbourhood Management Pathfinder, attended two workshops on participatory budgeting (PB) run by the Participatory Budgeting Unit (PB Unit), run by Church Action on Poverty, and part funded by the Department.

Early in 2007, following these seminars and further discussions, the Manton Community Alliance invited the PB Unit to make a presentation to their board on developing a PB pilot in Manton. In May 2007, the Manton Community Alliance Board voted to develop a PB project and engaged with the PB Unit to assist in this process.

Local Authorities: Population Studies

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government from which local authorities her Department has received representations on the Government's estimation of their populations; and if she will make a statement. [156395]

John Healey: Communities and Local Government receive representations from local authorities about the data used in the local government finance settlements, including the Office for National Statistics' (ONS) population estimates and population projections.

In this context, Communities and Local Government has received specific representations regarding the ONS population data from the following 45 authorities, including two police authorities and two fire and rescue authorities:

Barking and Dagenham, Brent, Bristol, Calderdale, Corby, Cumbria, Derby, Durham (CC), Haling, East Lindsey, Ellesmere Port and Neston, Enfield, Gateshead, Hammersmith and Fulham, Haringey, Hillingdon, Hounslow, Islington, Lambeth, Leeds, Leicester, Lewisham, Luton, Merton, Milton Keynes, Newham, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, North Tyneside, Northumbria Police, Norwich, Oldham, Pendle, Plymouth, Redbridge, Rushmoor, Sheffield, Slough, South Cambridgeshire, South Yorkshire Fire, South Yorkshire police, Southwark, Sunderland, Telford and The Wrekin, Tyne and Wear Fire, Westminster.

Questions on the accuracy and calculation of the population statistics are a matter for the ONS.

Local Government Finance Funding Changes Independent Inquiry

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether representatives of her Department made any written submission or representation to the Lyons Inquiry on local government. [155678]

John Healey: No formal written submissions or representations were made to the Lyons Inquiry on local government on behalf of the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister or Communities and Local Government.

Local Government: Equal Pay

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has (a) to offer financial support to local government for equal pay between men and women and (b) to promote equal pay in local government; and if she will make a statement. [154408]

John Healey: Equal pay is not a new pressure on local government and we expect local authorities to manage it proactively and affordably. We have given local authorities greater flexibility in dealing with this pressure by amending the capital finance regulations, and have also revised the process of equal pay capitalisation. On 28 September I announced the allocation of £500 million equal pay capitalisation directions to 46 authorities, giving them the financial flexibility to make one-off back-payments to thousands of employees—mostly women.

Local authorities, as employers, are responsible for meeting their statutory requirements, including the Gender Equality Duty and their obligations under the Equal Pay Act.

Ordnance Survey Agency: Information Officers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many press officers are employed by the Ordnance Survey Agency. [154178]

Mr. Iain Wright: Ordnance Survey employs two press officers.

Planning Inspectorate: Appeals

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many appeals the Planning Inspectorate has ruled on in the last 24 months related to development on floodplains. [156515]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested is not held centrally and cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate costs.

Planning: Greenbelt

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons the Town and Country Planning (Residential Development on Greenfield Land) (England) Direction 2000 was cancelled. [153909]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Town and Country Planning (Residential Development on Greenfield Land) (England) Direction 2000 was introduced as a transitional measure on the introduction of Planning Policy Guidance Note 3: 'Housing' in March 2000.

Planning Policy Statement 3: 'Housing' (PPS3) published in November 2006 introduced a new and less restrictive approach to the supply of land for housing, in order to help us achieve the step change in delivery we need to provide an increase in the supply of new homes. Local authorities are required to have a rolling five-year supply of land for housing, giving priority to the release of brownfield land. The national target is that 60 per cent. of housing development should be on brownfield land.

PPS 3 gives local authorities the responsibility for deciding the most suitable location for housing, taking account of their local circumstances and the availability of deliverable brownfield sites. It is no longer appropriate therefore to require them to refer larger greenfield sites to the Secretary of State as the Greenfield Land Direction did, and to keep this requirement in place would mean that it takes longer to make decisions on planning applications which could delay the delivery of necessary new housing on suitable sites.

Planning: Publications

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent on printing hard copies of (a) the 2007 Housing Green Paper, (b) the 2007 Planning White Paper and (c) the 2007 Sub-National Review document; and how many copies were printed of each. [153814]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information is as follows:

2007 Housing Green Paper

In line with the requirements on the supply of command papers we printed 600 copies for The Stationery Office (TSO) plus 4,550 additional copies at a cost of £11,712.

2007 Planning White Paper

In line with the requirements on the supply of command papers we printed 650 copies for The Stationery Office (TSO) plus 5,950 additional copies at a cost of £17,779.

2007 Sub-National Review document

This was published by HM Treasury and no printing costs were incurred by Communities and Local Government.

Power Stations: Floods

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the provisions of the new PPS25 on development on flood plains apply to the development of power generation infrastructure, including electricity sub-stations. [156517]

Mr. Iain Wright: Yes. Power generation infrastructure, including electricity sub-stations is included in PPS25, table D2 Flood Risk Vulnerability Classification. They are defined as 'essential infrastructure' as it is acknowledged that power stations and grid and primary substations may need to be located in flood risk areas. This is because power stations often need a ready supply of water and sub-stations need to be located near to the communities they supply. The PPS25 sequential test will ensure that they are located in low risk areas where possible, but where there are no alternative lower risk locations for this type of development then the exception test will ensure that they are safe.

Recent flood events during the summer have highlighted the importance of essential infrastructure being protected during flood events and PPS25 aims to ensure that any new electricity infrastructure that is essential in areas at risk of flooding is designed and constructed to be operational during floods.

Public Sector Relocation Independent Review

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Meriden of 19 June 2007, Official Report, column 1679W, on the Public Sector Relocation Independent Review, whether her Department has destroyed any documents relating to the Lyons Inquiry into Local Government since the transfer of the documents from the inquiry to the responsibility of her Department. [154028]

John Healey: No.

QE2 Conference Centre: Information Officers

Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many press officers are employed by the QE2 Conference Centre. [154739]

Mr. Iain Wright: As at 1 April 2007 there were no press officers employed by the QE2 Conference Centre. The QE2 Conference Centre does employ a marketing officer.

Regional Assemblies: Finance

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for how long the regional assemblies outside London will receive central Government grant. [153902]

Mr. Iain Wright: The review of sub-national economic development and regeneration, published on 17 July 2007, made clear reformed regional development agencies will in due course assume responsibility for a single integrated regional strategy. The timing of this is dependent on the necessary legislation.

In the meantime, regional assemblies will continue to receive central Government grant to enable them to carry out their responsibilities as regional planning bodies, to exercise regional housing board functions and to scrutinise RDAs' regional economic strategies.

Regional Development Agencies: Finance

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the change in funding will be for regional development agencies when they are designated as regional planning bodies. [153903]

Mr. Iain Wright: Funding for regional development agencies for the next three years will be determined through their forthcoming comprehensive spending review settlement. The level and timing of any additional funding in relation to additional planning functions will be dependent on the measures set out in the legislation necessary to enable the regional development agencies to assume these functions.

Regional Government

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's definition is of (a) sub-national and (b) sub-regional governance. [153801]

John Healey: The Review of sub-national economic development and regeneration was published on 17 July 2007. For the purpose of the Review, "sub-national" was taken to include regional, sub-regional and local levels. Sub-regional governance in this context refers to any arrangement involving more than one, but fewer than every, local authority in a single region (as defined in the Regional Development Agencies Act 1998, Schedule 1—Regions).

Regional Planning and Development

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether local authorities will have the power (a) to veto and (b) to amend the new integrated regional spatial strategies of the regional development agencies. [153719]

Mr. Iain Wright: Details of how the new integrated regional spatial strategies will be developed and agreed following a consultation exercise. A consultation paper to assist this will be published later this year.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what the timetable is for the publication of the new integrated regional strategies; and how the roll-out of the existing regional spatial strategies will be affected; [153799]

(2) what the timetable is for the transfer of responsibilities on regional planning from regional assemblies to regional development agencies; [153800]

(3) whether primary or secondary legislation will be required to designate the regional development agencies as regional planning bodies. [153904]

John Healey: The Government will consult on the Single Regional Strategy later this year, as indicated in the Review of Sub-National Economic Development and Regeneration. This will require primary legislation to transfer regional planning responsibilities from the Regional Assembly to the Regional Development Agency; implementation is not expected before 2010.

The existing RSSs will not be affected by the timetable for the publication of the new Single Regional Strategies.

Rights of Way

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 23 July 2007, Official Report, column 752W, on rights of way, whether the Independent Planning Commission will be required to undertake consultation with (a) the public and (b) user groups to ascertain whether alternative rights of way are being provided or the current rights of way are not needed. [154348]

Mr. Iain Wright: Further to the answer given to the hon. Member on 23 July 2007, Official Report, column 752W, the Infrastructure Planning Commission will only take decisions about closure and/or diversion of public rights of way, where this is requested in an application for the development of a nationally significant infrastructure project. Any applications made to Infrastructure Planning Commission will be judged in a public and transparent manner as set in chapter 5, paragraphs 5.21—5.38 of "Planning for a Sustainable Future" (cm 7120). This process contains public consultation at its heart, and all interested parties will be able to submit their evidence to the examination.

South East England Regional Assembly: Information Officers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many press officers are employed by the South East England Regional Assembly. [154157]

Mr. Iain Wright: The South East England Regional Assembly employs no dedicated press officers. Work on press releases and press inquiries is shared between three staffing its multidisciplinary communications team who manage public consultations, opinion research and community involvement in respect of the Assembly's strategic planning, housing and transport responsibilities across 74 local authority areas and a population of over eight million people. In addition, they manage the Assembly's publications and websites, IT support, internal communications and external communications including press inquiries and press releases. The work on press releases and press inquiries is equivalent to 1.3 full-time press officers.

Stakeholder Advisory Panel on Home Buying and Selling

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what dates the Stakeholder Advisory Panel on Home Buying and Selling has met. [153815]

Yvette Cooper: The Stakeholder Advisory Panel on Home Buying and Selling met on the 25 July 2007.

Structure Plans

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what adopted structure plans are in force in each (a) region and (b) county; and what the date is (i) of their adoption and (ii) on which they cease to be part of the development plan under current legislation. [152640]

Yvette Cooper: Under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004, all structure plans lapsed on the 27 September 2007, unless they were adopted in September 2004, in which case they will lapse three years from their date of adoption.

Regional planning bodies can make an application to save individual structure plan policies, to be saved after the lapse of the structure plan.

The Secretary of State decided which individual structure plan policies will be saved by the 27 September 2007

The current status of adopted structure plans by region are detailed as follows:

North East

County Durham Structure Plan adopted 1999, Northumberland Joint Structure Plan adopted in 1995 and Tees Valley Structure Plan adopted 2004 will all expire on 27 September 2007

Yorkshire and Humber

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Armed Forces

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his assessment is of the strength and capabilities of the (a) Afghan National Army, (b) Afghan National Police and (c) Afghan Auxiliary Police Force. [154243]

Des Browne: The Afghan National Army has approximately 40,000 trained and equipped soldiers and is capable of joint combat operations alongside the international forces deployed in Afghanistan. The Afghan National Police (ANP) is currently 76,000 strong. It is augmented by the 6,000-strong Afghan National Auxiliary Police. Overall, the level of capability is less advanced in the Afghan police services than in the Army.

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what measures will be taken to ensure that forward operating bases in Afghanistan are kept supplied with necessary provisions during winter; and if he will make a statement. [154224]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Throughout the winter, forward operating bases (includes patrol bases) in Afghanistan will continue to be supplied in the regular and routine manner in which they have been during other months. Additional measures will be taken to ensure British forces are prepared for the winter conditions. These measures will include issuing a winter clothing supplement, measures to protect vehicles and equipment, infrastructure checks, and reviews of stock holdings.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the primary method of transport is for supplies into the Afghan theatre. [154227]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There is no primary method of transporting supplies into the Afghanistan theatre of operation. The UK employs a range of routes via land and air to move supplies into the country.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many incidents of theft have been reported on British military supplies during transit from the port of debarkation in Pakistan to the final destination in Afghanistan since 2001. [154228]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Since October 2006 eight reports of theft have been confirmed. A number of other losses are being investigated, but the exact detail and circumstances of those losses have yet to be confirmed. Information on the number of reported thefts before October 2006 is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many attacks have been made on UK forces in Afghanistan in each month since October 2006. [154244]

Des Browne: The table records the number of attacks instigated by enemy forces on UK forces in Regional Command (South) in Afghanistan. Attack levels will vary according to seasonal factors, planned enemy activity and the operational tempo and movements of UK forces.

Aircraft Carriers: Procurement

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence where the new aircraft carriers will be based. [154020]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to the statement I made on 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 871, in which I confirmed that the new aircraft carriers are to be base-ported in Portsmouth.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will ensure that any cooperation with France in order to reduce costs will not result in a delay for the introduction of the new aircraft carriers. [154021]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We have always made it clear that for cooperation with France to work it must deliver cost savings and must do so without delaying the UK or French carrier programmes.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many type 45 destroyers will be procured in order to provide escort security to the UK's new aircraft carriers. [154048]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Several types of vessels will provide escort and security for the aircraft carriers, and the numbers employed will vary according to the threat faced. There are many variables involved in determining the number of ships required to defend a carrier or amphibious task group. These include the level of the threat, the level of multinational involvement and the type and scale of the operation. We currently have a contract for six type 45 destroyers.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the expected cost is of each of the future aircraft carriers. [154395]

Des Browne: The project to provide two future aircraft carriers is currently expected to cost £3.9 billion. There is agreement and a scheme of incentives, however, to work with industry to reduce this before a final price is settled by 2010.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reasons the former target in-service dates of 2012 and 2015 have been replaced by 2014 and 2016 respectively for each of the future aircraft carriers. [154396]

Des Browne: In-service dates are not set until Main Gate, when the project is mature enough for us to take a view on the appropriate date. That point was reached in July and the dates (2014 and 2016) have been set.

Armed Forces: Culture

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what resources his Department provides for the cultural education of personnel when deployed overseas. [154231]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Cultural awareness training is an integral part of pre-deployment training for all personnel undertaking overseas operations. In mature theatres cultural awareness training is continued through education centres. Additionally, literature is available via a number of internal websites, and units are provided with material in CD and DVD formats to widen accessibility.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many UK personnel are deployed on operations, broken down by location. [154238]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The following table shows the number of personnel deployed on operations by operation and location at 9 September 2007.

	Number
2002-03	988

(2) how many complaints he received from military personnel about the Joint Personnel Administration system in each month since December 2006. [154547]

Derek Twigg: Since December 2006, 1,032 complaints had been received from armed forces personnel via the centralised JPA complaints process about mispayments and other apparent problems with pay, or the handling of queries. The following table shows the breakdown of these by month:

	Number of complaints

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the incidence of suicide by (a) serving members of the armed forces, (b) serving members of the armed forces who have served in a theatre of conflict and (c) former members of the armed forces was in each year for which figures are available. [154041]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence has centrally compiled and verified records of coroner-confirmed suicides and open verdict deaths that have occurred among UK regular Service personnel while in service during the period 1984 to 2006. The information is summarised in the following table .

Information is also available on regular service personnel who were deployed to the conflicts in the Gulf (September 1990 to June 1991), Iraq (January 2003 to December 2006) and Afghanistan (October 2005 to December 2006), and have since died in service of coroner-confirmed suicide or open verdict deaths.

Information on suicides and open verdict deaths that may have occurred to service personnel after discharge from the services is not currently available.

Armed Forces: Young People

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his policy is on the minimum age of entry into the UK armed forces; and if he will make a statement. [154709]

Derek Twigg: The minimum age of entry into the UK armed forces is 16 years. The services provide challenging and constructive training and employment to many young people and enable them to learn valuable transferable skills. In financial year 2006-07, 30 per cent. of all new recruits were under 18 years of age.

No young person under the age of 18 years may join the armed forces unless the application is accompanied by the formal written consent of his or her parents or guardian. Throughout the recruit selection process, the staffs at the Armed Forces Careers Offices (AFCO) provide comprehensive written and verbal guidance to all potential recruits, in particular those under 18 years of age and their parents or guardians, regarding their terms and conditions of service, the commitments that they would be undertaking, and their rights to discharge.

Defence policy is that service personnel under the age of 18 are not to be deployed on any operations outside of the UK that would result in them becoming engaged in, or exposed to, hostilities. In addition, in line with UN policy service personnel under 18 are not to be deployed on UN peacekeeping operations.

Army Board: Official Cars

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether wives and partners of non-ministerial members of the Army Board are allowed to use official cars. [154043]

Derek Twigg: In accordance with established rules covering both service and civilian staff, non ministerial members of the Army Board using official cars for official purposes may be accompanied by their spouses, where appropriate. A spouse may also use official transport free of charge when travelling to represent their partner at official ceremonial and formal functions or where special transport is required for medical appointments.

Army Board: Uniforms

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost was of providing dress uniforms for all military members of the Army Board in the latest period for which figures are available. [154046]

Derek Twigg: For the purpose of this question, dress uniform has been taken to mean the blue frock coat, great coat and trousers (overalls), worn by certain personnel, including members of the Army Board, as well as Number 1 Dress.

The blue frock coat, great coat and trousers (overalls), are pool items and not the personal property of the General Officer. They are returned on cessation of the entitlement to wear them. The total cost of purchasing one set of these items is approximately £1,900.

The purchase of Number 1 Dress is an individual responsibility for which an allowance of up to £463 is paid to entitled officers, provided that no such allowance has been paid in the previous 12 years. Additionally, there are grants available to officers on promotion to cover the cost of new rank insignia, which is also purchased by individual officers. At the higher echelons, these grants are as follows:

Major General	213.00
Lieutenant General	11.00
General	11.00
Field Marshal	110.00

Army: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) inflow into and (b) outflow from the infantry was in each of the last 12 months. [154235]

Derek Twigg: Officers are only allocated a regiment on completion of their commissioning course at Royal Military Academy Sandhurst (RMAS), hence officer intake figures have not been provided.

The following table shows the Regular Army soldier untrained intake figures for the infantry during the 12 months prior to March 2007.

Army: Official Hospitality

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions in the last 12 months servicemen have been used to serve at functions for Guards Officers. [154044]

Derek Twigg: The Defence Communication Services Agency (DCSA) ceased to exist on 6 April 2007, when it was absorbed into the Defence Equipment and Support organisation. As at April 2007, Directorate General Information Systems and Services, the part of Defence Equipment and Support which carries out the functions of the former DCSA, employed one full time press officer. This individual also performs general public relations and community liaison duties.

Derek Twigg: As at 1 April 2007, one press officer was employed by Defence Estates.

Defence Science and Technology Laboratory: Information Officers

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many press officers are employed by the (a) Defence Science and Technology Laboratory and (b) UK Hydrographic Office. [154682]

Derek Twigg: Dstl employs two people in press officer roles. The Hydrographic Office has two people who carry out some press officer duties as part of their wider communications roles.

Departments: Legislation

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what legislative provisions introduced by his Department since 1997 have been repealed. [154207]

Derek Twigg: The MOD has been responsible for the introduction of four Acts since 1997 of which all remain in force.

Departments: Non-departmental Public Bodies

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 29 June 2007, Official Report, column 879W, on Departments: non-departmental public bodies, why the Fleet Air Arm Museum is classified as a public corporation. [154176]

Derek Twigg: The decision to classify the Fleet Air Arm Museum as a public corporation is a matter for the independent Office for National Statistics. However I understand that it was based on the fact that more than 50 per cent. of the museum's operating costs are met by market income.

Departments: Official Engagements

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his official engagements were in the week of 16th to 21st July. [154322]

Des Browne: From 16 to 19 July I was in London where I had various meetings, including with ministerial colleagues and officials from the MOD and the Scotland Office. On Monday 16 July I also met with the British High Commissioner to Australia, answered oral questions on Defence issues in the House and attended a BBC Proms performance in support of Sailor, Soldier, Airman Family Association. On Tuesday, I attended Cabinet and appeared before the Scottish Affairs Committee for an oral evidence session on the Scotland Office Annual Report. That afternoon I also met representatives of Oracle Residential Ltd. to discuss defence accommodation issues. On Wednesday I met with the British High Commissioner to Pakistan. On Friday 20 and Saturday 21 July I was in my constituency in Scotland.

Duke of York's Royal Military School

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reasons funding for the Duke of York's Royal Military School's upgrade programme for boarding accommodations has been withdrawn; and if he will make a statement. [154245]

Derek Twigg: Approximately four years ago funding was allocated to The Duke of York Royal Military school to build sixth form accommodation. Regrettably, plans were not finalised within the specified time frame and the money was reallocated to another project. However, The Duke of York Royal Military school is currently preparing a main gate business case to upgrade boarding accommodation at the school. If successful this would be for the financial year 2008-09.

EU Battle Groups

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the certification process is for UK military units participating in the EU battle groups; and who certifies them. [154259]

Des Browne: Before being part of any EU Battle Group package, nations are required to certify that their contribution meets the defined standards and criteria as set out in the EU Battle Group concept. As such, UK military units participating in an EU Battle Group are nationally certified following a number of Battle Group level exercises to assess and validate their competencies and readiness.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what UK (a) brigade, (b) battalions and (c) companies formed the core of the EU battle group in the first half of 2005. [154223]

Des Browne: The UK commitment to provide a European Union battle group on standby from January to June 2005 was covered by the Joint Rapid Reaction Force. Once the characteristics of any appropriate EU operation were known, the most appropriate units would have been selected from those forming the Joint Rapid Reaction Force at the time. This included 1st Battalion the Royal Gurkha Rifles as the Spearhead Land Element (replaced by 1st Battalion the Royal Green Jackets in April 2005, now 2nd Battalion The Rifles), and 2nd Battalion the Parachute Regiment who provided the airborne taskforce capability throughout.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when UK military units participating in EU battle groups have to be certified for the 2008 EU battle group. [154260]

Des Browne: Member states contributing to the EU battle group are required to certify one month in advance of the standby period that their battle group package meets the battle group standards and criteria. Any UK military units expected to participate in the UK commitment to provide an EU battle group on standby from July to December 2008 should therefore be certified by 1 June 2008.

Iraq: Armed Forces

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 4 June 2007, Official Report, columns 171-2W, on Iraq: armed forces, what changes were made to his Department's agreed plans as a result of the events described. [154217]

Des Browne: Working with the Iraqis, coalition planning evolved over time and was sufficiently flexible to respond to changing circumstances and conditions on the ground.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his assessment is of the capabilities of the Iraqi (a) army, (b) navy, (c) air force and (d) police in Multi-National Division South East. [154241]

Des Browne: The capabilities of all branches of the Iraqi Security Forces (ISF) in Multi-National Division (South-East) (MND(SE)), including the army, navy, air force and police, continue to develop. In the three provinces already handed over to the Iraqi authorities, they have proved themselves able to maintain security. In Basra, the Iraqi Army have successfully taken on responsibility for a number of former coalition bases in and around Basra city. The Government of Iraq have recently decided to increase ISF resources and manpower in MND(SE) by two Iraqi National Police Battalions and an additional Iraqi Army division.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his assessment is of the capabilities of units in the 10th Division of the Iraqi Army to carry out autonomous operations. [154242]

Des Browne: 10 Division and its subordinate units continue to make good progress in strengthening their ability to operate autonomously, as demonstrated by recent operations, including the successful handover of UK bases in Basra city in September. The constituent brigades of 10 Division now operate autonomously in three of the four provinces in MND(SE): Dhi Qar, Al Muthanna and Maysan. However, there remains a requirement for advice and support from coalition forces to enhance current capabilities.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 9 July 2007, Official Report, column 1285W, on Iraq: peace keeping operations, what assessment he made of advice provided by the former Attorney General on the interpretation of the definitions referred to in the answer in the context of the activities of UK armed forces in Iraq. [154079]

Des Browne: Legal advice given to Government (whether by the Law Officers or any other lawyer) is confidential and covered by legal professional privilege. In accordance with the long-standing convention, set out in the Ministerial Code and adhered to by successive governments, neither the fact that the Law Officers have (or have not) advised, nor the content of any advice given, is disclosed outside Government.

Sir Robert Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the number of UK troops based in Iraq fell below 44,000. [154645]

Des Browne: The number of UK military personnel in the Operation Telic area of operations fell below 44,000 in April 2003.

Military Aid: Floods

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has received on the use of the armed forces to help tackle instances of flooding in England. [154687]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Over the last three years, the Ministry of Defence has received the following representations for military assistance from the civil authorities to help tackle instances of flooding in England:

July 2007: Gloucestershire and Southern England;

June 2007: Yorkshire and Humber region;

January 2005: Carlisle;

August 2004: Boscastle.

In each case, the armed forces provided assistance to the civil authorities.

Military Aircraft: Helicopters

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he will make a statement on progress on (a) acquiring six Merlin helicopters from Denmark and (b) converting eight Chinook helicopters; [154248]

(2) when he expects the (a) six Merlin helicopters from Denmark and (b) the eight Chinook helicopters currently being converted to be operational. [154249]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The six Merlin helicopters arrived in the UK in July 2007. These aircraft are currently being configured to UK standards, and are expected to be operational by 31 March 2008. Two aircraft have been delivered to RAF Benson, where air and ground crew training is now under way.

With regard to the conversion of the eight Chinook MK3 helicopters, an initial contract was placed with Boeing on 1 August. On current plans we expect to see the aircraft delivered by the end of 2009.

Military Exercises: Finance

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the budget was for military training exercises in each year since 1997; and what the estimated budget is for each of the next three years. [154233]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Navy

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what contribution the Royal Navy will make to the EU Headline Goal 2010 and interim targets for 2008. [154321]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Headline Goal Questionnaire (HGQ) 2006 details those forces which potentially could be made available for use on EU-led operations. Copies of the HGQ were placed in the Library of the House on 22 June 2007.

There are no interim targets for 2008.

Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what percentage of British military personnel do not live in permanent buildings in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan; [154263]

(2) how many British military personnel are housed in tents in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq. [154265]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The protection of our forces in Iraq and Afghanistan is of an extremely high priority and a number of improvements have been made, and will continue to be made, to accommodation in both theatres in order to enhance security.

I am withholding information on force protection arrangements at our bases in Iraq and Afghanistan as its disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of our armed forces.

Reserve Forces: Driving

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the statement of 11 June 2007, Official Report, column 38WS, on Drivers' Hours (Derogation for Reservists), if he will place in the Library a copy of the guidelines developed by his Department. [154057]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Formal internal MOD instructions for reservists who may be affected by this amended legislation were developed jointly by the Ministry of Defence and the Department for Transport, and issued in April 2007. All Reserve Units were notified through the chain of command in the normal manner, and employers were made aware of this via the Supporting Britain's Reservists (SaBRE) campaign. This document has been available on the SaBRE website since 10 April, at the following location:

http://www.sabre.mod.uk/output/Page532.asp.

I will place a printed copy of the guidelines in the Library of the House.

UK Hydrographic Office

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the application of the Office of Fair Trading report on Commercial Use of Public Sector Information to the UK Hydrographic Office. [154387]

Derek Twigg: I expect the UK Hydrographic Office (UKHO) to participate fully in the further work identified in the Government response. This includes the provision of information to HM Treasury's economic study. The study, which is being conducted by Cambridge University, aims to provide cost and benefit information for possible alternative models of supply and charging for public sector information by Trading Funds. The completed study is due to be submitted to Government in mid November 2007.

The UKHO will also, if requested by DBERR and HMT, provide input to their work on the economics of information pricing.

The recommendations included in the market study report will be used to inform licensing policy following completion of the review of the UKHO's structure and ownership. I expect to announce the outcome of the review early in 2008.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the application of the economic review of trading funds to the UK Hydrographic Office. [154388]

Derek Twigg: I assume that this question refers to the Government response to the Power of Information report (recommendations 9, 10 and 12). The Government intend to undertake independent economic work on the costs and benefits of the current trading fund charging model. As one of the five largest trading funds, I expect the UKHO to respond positively to any requests received for information to support this work.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the review of the UK Hydrographic Office is expected to be published. [154389]

Derek Twigg: I commissioned a study of the structure and ownership options for the UK Hydrographic Office which will report to me by the end of the year. I will make a statement to the House in due course.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions Ministers and officials in his Department working on the review of the UK Hydrographic Office have had with HM Treasury on the recently commissioned economic review of trading funds. [154390]

Derek Twigg: In response to the OFT review of Public Information, and the Cabinet Office Power of Information Review, HM Treasury have commissioned work to assess the economic benefit from information created by Trading Funds. HM Treasury officials have requested assistance from the Chief Executives of the Met Office and Hydrographic Office to support the study into availability and charging of public information. MOD officials over seeing the work of the MOD trading funds, including the UKHO ownership and structure options review, will be available to support the HM Treasury Study.

Veterans Agency: Information Officers

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many press officers are employed by the Veterans Agency. [154726]

Derek Twigg: The Veterans Agency and the Armed Forces Personnel Administration Agency merged together on 2 April 2007 to form the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency (SPVA). SPVA has two people who carry out press officer functions as part of their duties. They also undertake other tasks.

TRANSPORT

A15: Road Traffic

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average daily volume of traffic was between each junction of the A15 within the Peterborough City Council boundaries in each year since 1997. [154071]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The annual average daily flow (AADF) data are available for every link of the A15 in the Peterborough local authority area. These links correspond to sections of the A15 between major junctions. Details of these links and their AADF data for all motor vehicles from 1997 to 2006 can be found in the following tables. The AADF data are rounded to the nearest 100 vehicles.

Aircraft: Air Conditioning

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many reported contaminated air events there were in each of the last five years, broken down by aircraft type. [154090]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I am informed by the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) there have been 306 reportable occurrences involving contaminated air during the five year period from 1 January 2002 to 31 December 2006, and a further 72 reportable occurrences between 1 January and 30 June 2007—shown as follows:

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on links between ill-health among air crew and fumes released from aircraft. [154325]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In 2006 the Department commissioned the independent Committee on Toxicity (COT) to evaluate evidence submitted by the British Air Lines Pilots Association (BALPA) in relation to cabin air "fume events". The COT received information from oil companies, airlines, engine manufacturers, independent scientific experts and pressure groups. The COT reported on 20 September 2007. Its report is published on its website:

www.advisorybodies.doh.gov.uk/cotnonfood/index.htm.

The Committee on Toxicity considered that it was not possible to conclude whether cabin air exposures (either general or following incidents) cause ill-health in commercial aircraft crews. It recommended further work, in particular, and as a priority, to ascertain whether substances in the cabin environment could potentially be harmful to health. COT considered that this work should be designed to detect any potentially harmful substances, rather than focus on named substances.

In keeping with its commitment to promoting healthy flying, the Department accepts this priority. Through the Aviation Health Working Group, it has recently made preparations for such a study by testing equipment which may be capable of capturing substances released during oil and hydraulic fluid fume incidents. Once effective equipment has been identified it is intended to sample around 1,000 flights using more than one sampling device, more than one laboratory to analyse the results, and an independent project manager from the academic world.

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how compliance with Civil Aviation Authority guidance on the use of oxygen masks in air contamination incidents is monitored and enforced. [154324]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) has advised that UK air operators whose aircraft are required to be fitted with oxygen equipment must provide guidance to crews on its use in air contamination incidents. This guidance must be retained in their Operations Manual which is checked in the course of normal oversight by the Flight Operations Inspector.

Compliance with the guidance in the event of incidents will be monitored by routine review of Air Safety Reports and Mandatory Occurrence reports. Non-compliance would be raised formally with the aircraft operator, who would be required to propose and implement measures to ensure future compliance.

Airports: Police

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the outcome was of the review of those airports which are not designated for police purposes; and if she will list those airports where the police presence continues to be funded by the local police authority. [155805]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Independent Review of Airport Policing report was submitted to the Department for Transport and Home Office in July 2006. In his written statement of 20 July 2006, Official Report, column 56WS, the Secretary of State welcomed the broad thrust of the review and outlined its key recommendations. His written statement of 14 June 2007, Official Report, column 63WS, provided an update on the subsequent work.

The funding arrangements for airports are dependent on whether an airport is designated under section 25 of the Aviation Security Act 1982. There are nine designated airports which are London Heathrow, London Gatwick, Stansted, Aberdeen, Edinburgh, Glasgow International, Glasgow Prestwick, Birmingham and Manchester. All remaining airports are funded wholly or partly by the local police authority, or by other means, for example voluntary contributions by the airport operator.

Airports: Security

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many security staff have been employed checking departing passengers at (a) Heathrow, (b) Gatwick and (c) Stansted in each of the last 12 months; and how many departing passengers have been checked during that period. [156323]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The UK National Aviation Security Programme requires airports to comply with specific security measures which are subject to regular inspection by the Department for Transport to ensure that standards are adhered to. The programme does not mandate the number of security personnel required to undertake security tasks. As private businesses, decisions about staffing are rightly a matter for the airports themselves. All departing passengers and their baggage are all subject to security screening at UK airports.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many items and what tonnage of material have been confiscated from departing passengers as a result of security checks at (a) Heathrow, (b) Gatwick and (c) Stansted in each of the last 12 months. [156324]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Government do not maintain records as the management of this process and disposal of the items are a matter for airports.

Aviation: Standards

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of (a) the extent of overbooking in the airline industry and (b) the associated levels of risk to passengers of not being allowed to travel on their pre-booked flight. [156656]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Overbooking is a common practice among airlines and provides for the more efficient use of aircraft, for example where passengers have failed to check in for flights for which they have purchased tickets. The Government do not believe that denied boarding is a widespread problem, based on the relatively small number of complaints on this issue received by the Air Transport Users Council. In the event a passenger is denied boarding, Regulation (EC) 261/2004 sets minimum levels of financial compensation, and requires passengers to be offered a choice between re-routing and reimbursement.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she is taking to ensure that all airline passengers are made aware of the risk of not being allowed to travel on their pre-booked flight due to overbooking at the time of purchasing tickets; and if she will make a statement. [156657]

Jim Fitzpatrick: It is common practice for airlines' terms and conditions of carriage to include a reference to the possibility of denied boarding and the action they will take to compensate passengers who are inconvenienced in this way. In addition, the website of the Air Transport Users Council includes advice on this issue. The Government do not believe the extent of the problem is such that further action is necessary to highlight this risk to passengers.

Bull Bars: Regulation

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what rules apply to the use of bull bars on cars in the UK. [155961]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Since 25 May 2007, the requirements of EC Directive 2005/66/EC, concerning bull bars, apply to all new cars being registered under the type approval scheme. Similarly, all bull bars offered for sale as an accessory must be approved and carry an approval mark.

Bull bars fitted before this date are subject to the general safety requirements of the Road Vehicles (Construction and Use) Regulations 1986.

Bus Services

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many local authorities run night bus schemes; and if she will make a statement. [154764]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Local authorities, apart from Transport for London, do not run bus schemes. Operators outside London may wish to run buses during the night and they register these routes with the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA).

Exact information on the number of schemes is not available without incurring disproportionate costs.

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what projected central Government expenditure is per head of population for local public transport for (a) London, (b) each of the English passenger transport executive areas and (c) each of the English regions in each of the next 10 years; and what such expenditure was in each year since 2001-02. [154804]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses include figures for the Department for Transport's expenditure per head of population for local public transport in London and the other English regions. Planned figures are available at this level of disaggregation for 2007-08 but not beyond. Regional figures have not been split down to the passenger transport executive areas.

The following table shows the DFT spend on local public transport per head of population in each English region, including London, for each year from 2001-02 to 2007-08. It includes direct payments from central Government to bus operators, but not financial support for local authorities (including bus services) or funding for heavy rail services. These are both reported elsewhere in the Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses, which are published at:

[1] Plans.

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidance her Department provides to bus operators on the priority to be given to users of pushchairs and wheelchairs when there is insufficient room in a vehicle to carry both. [156160]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Powers granted to Government under the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 enabled the Department for Transport to make regulations allowing wheelchair users to access new buses and travel in safety and in reasonable comfort. No such powers were granted in respect of people using pushchairs.

The Department published guidance in 2003 advising bus staff of their duties with respect to disabled passengers, and more than 150,000 copies of this document have been issued.

More recently, the Department has worked with the Disability Rights Commission (now the Commission for Equality and Human Rights) to produce sector specific guidance for transport operators on avoiding discrimination. The guidance for buses and scheduled coaches provides advice on use of the designated wheelchair space by passengers other than wheelchair users, and this document is available from their website at www.equalityhumanrights.com

While other passengers are at liberty to use the designated wheelchair space when it is not required by a wheelchair user, it should be vacated, if at all possible, when it is required for a wheelchair user to travel.

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidance her Department provides to bus operators on the safety implications of the carriage of more than one (a) wheelchair user and (b) pushchair per vehicle; and if she will make a statement. [156161]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Public Service Vehicles Accessibility Regulations 2000 (PSVAR) specify vehicle construction requirements to enable disabled passengers, including wheelchair users, to access new buses and travel in safety and reasonable comfort. Each new bus falling with scope of these regulations is required to be fitted with at least one wheelchair space.

The Public Service Vehicles (Conduct of Drivers, Inspectors, Conductors and Passengers)(Amendment) Regulations 2002 require that the driver of a bus which complies with the PSVAR allow a wheelchair user to board if the designated wheelchair space is unoccupied, and it is safe to do so. An operator should not transport more occupied wheelchairs than there are designated wheelchair spaces on their vehicle. The Department published guidance in 2003 advising bus staff of their duties with respect to disabled passengers, and more than 150,000 copies of this document have been issued.

There are neither regulations nor guidance relating specifically to the safe carriage of pushchairs on buses. However, there are general regulations in force which seek to protect the safety of all passengers on buses.

Buses: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of how many and what percentage of the bus fleet have hybrid engines, broken down by region. [154807]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The number of hybrid-electric buses cannot currently be identified from the DVLA vehicle registration database.

Car Hire: Driving Offences

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) accidents and (b) traffic offences occurred involving hire cars in each of the last five years. [154748]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is not available.

Cars

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment the Government has made of the top speeds of the most popular cars currently using British roads and of trends in the advertised top speeds of vehicles sold in the UK. [156555]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government have made no assessment of the top speeds of cars using British roads, nor of trends in the advertised top speeds of vehicles sold in the UK. However the Government reached an agreement with the Advertising Standards Agency (ASA) about not glamorising speed and all advertisements have to be pre-cleared.

Civil Aviation Authority: Information Officers

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many press officers are employed by the Civil Aviation Authority. [154554]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In the CAA's Corporate Communications department, there are three full-time press officers and two members of staff who job-share a press officer post.

Cycling: Accidents

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people were seriously injured in collisions between cyclists and pedestrians in each of the last five years. [156426]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of people seriously injured in reported personal injury accidents between pedal cyclists and pedestrians in each of last five years is shown as follows:

	Number of serious casualties
2002	57
2003	53
2004	57
2006	57

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many traffic accidents there were involving cyclists in (a) Wirral, South and (b) Merseyside in each of the last five years. [156464]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of reported personal injury road accidents involving at least one pedal cyclist in (a) Wirral, South and (b) Merseyside in each of the past five years is shown in the table.

	Number of accidents
	Wirral South	Merseyside
2002	13	353
2003	21	284
2004	16	326
2005	13	350
2006	21	311

Cycling: Safety Measures

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of cycle helmet wearing rates; and if she will make a statement. [156460]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The findings of surveys of helmet wearing rates on major and minor built up roads from 1994 to 2004 and 1999 to 2004 are shown in the following tables.

Derry City Airport

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will make a statement on the investigation of the runway subsidence incident at Derry City airport on 8 August 2007; and what the conclusions of the investigation were. [156712]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The aerodrome conducted an immediate investigation into the incident that occurred on 8 August 2007 and the report was presented to the CAA. The investigation revealed that the First Choice aircraft (airbus A320) that had arrived from Reus (Spain) was unable to access the main aircraft parking area due to congestion. In agreement with Air Traffic Control (ATC) the aircraft was initially held on a taxiway until space became available. While holding on the taxiway, the main aircraft wheels sank into the taxiway surface.

The report concluded that the aircraft should not have been held on that taxiway, as the taxiway was not designed to accept the weight of the A320 aircraft. The aerodrome operator subsequently issued an operating instruction that prevents aircraft of this size using that taxiway in the future. They have also commissioned a review of the pavement strength for the main runway and other paved surfaces. The United Kingdom Aeronautical Information Package (UKAIP) entry for the aerodrome has also been amended to reflect the pavement values for the aerodrome surfaces. They have also instigated a review of the equivalent commercial information available to pilots.

The aerodrome is also planning a new extension to the aircraft parking area in 2008 that will provide additional parking stands, which should reduce the need for aircraft to hold pending stand availability. This will include a new direct taxiway from the main runway.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency: Disclosure of Information

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency provides information about UK driving licence holders and registered owners of cars to (a) European and (b) other countries; whether there have been recent changes in policy; and if she will make a statement. [154213]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency is a member of EUCARIS (the European Car and Driving Licence Information System) which electronically links the databases of participating European registration authorities. The EUCARIS treaty permits the checking of information when a driving licence is produced for exchange or a vehicle registration document is applied for.

Driving licence information is currently exchanged only between Great Britain, Germany, Latvia, Luxembourg and the Netherlands, and is restricted to the following information:

Full name of licence holder

Date of birth

Place of birth

Categories of vehicle the holder is permitted to drive

The validity period and date of issue

Restrictions/signals (e.g. stolen, lost, withdrawn, duplicate, invalid etc.).

Vehicle data can be exchanged with Belgium, Estonia, Germany, Hungary, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Romania and Sweden. Information exchanged is restricted to Vehicle Identification Number (VIN), registration mark, make, model, date of first registration (if applicable), colour, fuel type and whether there are any restrictions or signals (e.g. stolen, vehicle scrapped or documents/plates stolen or missing).

Information is exchanged only with registration authorities of countries outside the EU where they have adequate data protection laws. This is conducted on a case-by-case basis. There has not been any recent policy changes.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency: Telephone Services

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what revenue the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency received from its use of 0870 numbers in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [156670]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 17 September 2007, Official Report, columns 2190-91W.

Driving Offences: Fines

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much was raised in fines from traffic cameras in Cambridgeshire in each of the last five years; and how much of the money raised was spent on road safety in each year. [153765]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department only holds information about speed and red-light cameras operating under the national safety camera programme, the audit certificates for the Cambridgeshire Safety Camera Partnership for the last five financial years outlined in table A show the fine revenue from conditional offer of fixed penalties for offences detected by speed and red light cameras operating under the then National Safety Camera Programme.

Table A

2002-03	771,360
2003-04	1,245,780
2004-05	1,196,460
2005-06	1,259,880

Under the then netting off funding arrangements, safety camera partnerships reclaimed expenditure directly attributed to the prevention, detection and enforcement of offences, the amounts reclaimed by the Cambridgeshire partnership in these financial years is set out in table B. the surplus was returned to the Consolidated Fund.

Driving: Licensing

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people (a) over and (b) under the age of 25 years held a full UK driving licence in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) South Tyneside, (iii) the North East and (iv) the UK in each year since 1997. [156031]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Statistics are held for local authorities and regions for 2006 only. Information is not held by constituency so we are unable to supply data for Jarrow. The Department for Transport only hold figures for Great Britain.

Area	Under 25	Over 25	Total

Various DfT Drivers Censuses

The Drivers Census is run on a sporadic basis. That is the reason why there appear to be missing years in the table.

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what percentage of (a) male and (b) female car driving licence holders have unendorsed licences. [156554]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Although DVLA records details of driving convictions on its driving licence records, it does not have available a statistical breakdown of the numbers of male and female drivers who have unendorsed licences.

Driving: Working Hours

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 11 June 2007, Official Report, column 38WS, on drivers' hours (derogation for reservists), what steps have been taken with regard to a derogation for reservists from Regulation (EC) 561/2006; and what progress has been made in securing this change. [156401]

Jim Fitzpatrick: As set out in the written ministerial statement of 11 June 2007 we have written to the European Commission requesting an exemption from the weekly rest requirements of Regulation (EC) 561/2006 for professional drivers when undertaking military training as a reservist with the volunteer reserve forces or acting as instructors in the cadet corps at the weekend. This request was made in accordance with Article 14.1 of the Regulation which provides for exceptions in exceptional circumstances.

The European Commission are currently considering our request and discussions are ongoing.

Electric Vehicles

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what percentage of cars on British roads were electric or hybrid vehicles (a) 10 years ago and (b) at the most recent date for which figures are available. [156557]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number and percentage of licensed electric or hybrid electric cars in Great Britain at (a) the end of 1997 and (b) the end of 2006 were as follows:

	Number	Percentage
2006	17,618	0.06

Ferries: Lymington

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations she has received on the environmental impact of plans to increase the water displacement of ferries between Lymington and Yarmouth; and if she will make a statement. [156383]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department's Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) has received one written representation from a private individual on this subject which included environmental impact concerns. The MCA would expect Wightlink to take these concerns into consideration in its plans for the replacement of the existing vessels. The MCA's primary concern will be the safety of the new vessels and of other users of the waters in which the vessels will be operating.

Freight: Liverpool

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what planning assumptions have been made about the likely growth in freight volumes through the port of Liverpool. [156556]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department has itself made no such assumptions: planning to meet growth in traffic is a matter for the Mersey Docks and Harbour Company. In relation to containers specifically, the Company's evidence to the inquiry last year into the application for a Harbour Revision Order to permit development of the Seaforth River Terminal included a projection to 2015 of the trend growth-rate of 5.1 per cent. per annum which had been experienced over the 10 years to 2005.

Limehouse Station

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the Safety Inspectorate last inspected c2c's platform capacity at Limehouse Station during peak travel times; and if she will make a statement. [156394]

Mr. Tom Harris: This is an operational matter for c2c.

Motor Vehicles: Insurance

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her most recent estimate is of the number of uninsured vehicles on British roads; and what assessment she has made of trends in numbers of uninsured vehicles. [156319]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Our latest estimate (2005) for uninsured driving is based on a comparison of the vehicle register, maintained by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) and the Motor Insurance Database. It is that there are about 2.1 million licensed vehicles (about 6.5 per cent. of the UK vehicle fleet) being driven by uninsured drivers.

We have no long-term evidence on trends, however we will make a more up to date assessment of the levels of uninsured driving and there is some recent evidence from the insurance industry showing that for the year 2006 there was a 4.2 per cent. drop in claims for compensation for the victims of uninsured drivers.

Departments: Information Officers

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many press officers are employed by Trinity House; [154656]

(2) how many press officers are employed by the Northern Lighthouse Board. [154666]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Trinity House and the Northern Lighthouse Board employed one full-time member of staff each on press officer activities as at 1 September 2007.

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many press officers are employed by the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency; [154718]

(2) how many press officers are employed by the Driving Standards Agency. [154719]

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many press officers are employed by the Vehicle Certification Agency. [154664]

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many press officers are employed by the Maritime and Coastguard Agency. [154431]

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many press officers are employed by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency. [154163]

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many press officers are employed by the Highways Agency. [154125]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The full-time equivalent number of staff employed on press officer activities on 1 September 2007 by DfT executive agencies is as follows:

	Press office staff (FTE)
DSA	2
DVLA	5
GCDA	0
HA	11
VCA	0

	Press office staff (FTE)
VOSA	1
Total	21

Press office activities in most agencies are not carried out by staff or units solely dedicated to this purpose.

Public Service Vehicles: Carbon Emissions

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she has taken to promote the use of low emission hybrid engines in public transport vehicles; and if she will make a statement. [154808]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government policies to support low carbon transport technologies are set out in the Low Carbon Transport Innovation Strategy (LCTIS) published in May 2007.

The Government currently provide funding for low carbon technology research and development through the grant programme managed by the Energy Saving Trust. As announced in LCTIS, this funding will in the future be managed by the Technology Strategy Board through their Low Carbon Vehicle Innovation Platform providing up to £30 million per annum. The programme is technology neutral and will be open to developments of hybrid technology in public transport vehicles.

Railways: Flood Control

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which railway lines had services cancelled owing to flooded lines in June and July 2007. [153851]

Mr. Tom Harris: These are operational matters for Network Rail as the owner and operator of the national rail network. The right hon. Member should contact Network Rail's chief executive at the following address for a response to his question:

Ian Coucher
Chief Executive
Network Rail
40 Melton Street
London, NW1 2DE

Railways: Kent

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many carriages are currently (a) in service and (b) out of service on the Kent Integrated Franchise. [153898]

Mr. Tom Harris: There are 1,292 carriages in operation on the franchise. 18 carriages are currently not in service due to fire, crash and derailment damage.

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) which platforms on the North Kent lines between London and Dartford need lengthening to accommodate 12 car trains; and when she expects this work to be completed; [154701]

(2) what discussions her Department has had with Southeastern Trains on introducing 12 car trains; and if she will make a statement; [154702]

(3) what estimate she has made of the future demands for extra capacity on North Kent services between London and Dartford; and if she will make a statement. [154704]

Mr. Tom Harris: The rail White Paper published in July set out the safety, reliability and capacity improvements the Government want to buy by 2014. The next step in the process is for the industry to consider in more detail how best to deliver those improvements, though the specimen capacity options published in conjunction with the White Paper did identify platform lengthening on two of the three London to Dartford routes as a scheme which could contribute towards achieving the capacity target.

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the performance of (a) Southeastern Trains and (b) the previous operator for North Kent services between London and Dartford over equivalent periods; and if she will make a statement. [154703]

Mr. Tom Harris: "Southeastern" is the current operator of trains in south east London and Kent, including services between London and Dartford. Southeastern took control of this franchise in April 2006. The previous operator was South Eastern Trains.

Since April 2006, average punctuality and reliability on Southeastern's routes improved from 86.7 per cent. to 88.9 per cent. The previous operator, South Eastern Trains, had been responsible for raising average performance from 79.4 per cent. when it took over operations in November 2003.

Figures reflect the performance of all services operated by this franchise, as the Department does not hold the data for the London-Dartford routes on their own.

Railways: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans she has to increase railway capacity on services between Peterborough and London in terms of the number of (a) new carriages and (b) capacity for more passengers; and when the new carriages will be rolled out. [154328]

Mr. Tom Harris: A fleet of new trains is due to be introduced on the Peterborough to London route as part of the final stage of the Thameslink Programme in December 2015. In the meantime, the December 2008 timetable will see an extra 16 carriages on London to Peterborough and Cambridge routes. This will allow key peak services to provide an additional 1,779 and 2,490 seats in the morning and evening peaks respectively.

Railways: Standards

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps her Department is taking with train operators to improve (a) ticket pricing, (b) onboard facilities and (c) punctuality. [153313]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Government regulate rail fares where operators are likely to have a high degree of market power. Increases in regulated fares are limited to RPI+1 per cent. and the Secretary of State for Transport recently announced that regulated fares will be capped at this level until at least 2014. Fares that are not subject to regulation are priced at the discretion of train operators. However, the recent White Paper, "Delivering a Sustainable Railway", concluded that the fares structure requires simplification for the benefit of passengers and announced its intention to work with the rail industry to implement a simplified fares structure.

Facilities on board trains are a matter for train operators and the rolling stock companies. They are required to comply with relevant safety and accessibility regulations but decisions on other facilities are a matter for them.

The rail industry has continued sustained improvement in punctuality since 2002 and reliability is now back above pre-Hatfield levels. The recent White Paper announced the Government's intention to specify an overall improvement in train reliability (in terms of the public performance measure) of 92.6 per cent. by 2014, compared to a current industry reliability figure of 88.1 per cent. Franchise agreements with train operators contain performance standards that the operators have a contractual obligation to meet and the Department for Transport has sanctions that it can take to ensure that train operators meet their performance obligations.

Railways: Stansted Airport

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if officials in her Department will meet representatives of Central Trains to discuss the possibility of providing earlier weekday and weekend services between Peterborough and Stansted Airport. [154066]

Mr. Tom Harris: Responsibility for train services between Peterborough and Stansted Airport will transfer from Central Trains to Arriva Trains Cross Country on 11 November. The issue of service enhancement to and from Stansted Airport was raised with bidders as part of the franchise bidding process.

Arriva Trains Cross Country have confirmed to the Department that they are seeking improved services to and from the airport and are actively exploring options for the December 2008 timetable change.

Road Traffic Control: Disabled

Jeremy Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidance is issued by the Department for Transport to highway authorities on consulting people with disabilities before the construction of traffic calming measures. [156582]

Ms Rosie Winterton: "Local Transport Note 1/07 Traffic Calming" (Department for Transport, 2007) contains guidance on consultation (including consultation with people with disabilities) before the construction of traffic calming measures.

Roads: Accidents

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many fatal accidents where a medical condition was a contributory factor were recorded in each of the last five years. [153750]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of fatal road accidents in which any participant had "illness or disability, mental or physical" as a contributory factor was 132 in 2005 and 127 in 2006.

2005 is the earliest year for which this information is available.

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many people (a) over and (b) under the age of 25 years holding a full UK driving licence were killed in road accidents whilst driving a car in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) South Tyneside, (iii) the North East and (iv) England and Wales in each year since 1997; [156030]

(2) how many people (a) over and (b) under the age of 25 who did not hold a full UK driving licence were killed in a road accident while driving a car in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) South Tyneside, (iii) the North East and (iv) the UK in each year since 1997; [156660]

(3) how many people (a) over and (b) under the age of 25 who did not hold a full UK driving licence were injured in a road accident while driving a car in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) South Tyneside, (iii) the North East and (iv) the UK in each year since 1997. [156661]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is not available.

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people were (a) killed and (b) injured in road accidents in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) South Tyneside, (iii) the North East and (iv) England and Wales in each year since 1997. [156036]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of killed and injured casualties resulting from reported personal injury road accidents in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) South Tyneside, (iii) the North East and (iv) England and Wales in each year since 1997 is shown in the table.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on which (a) motorways and (b) trunk roads the Highways Agency used (i) water containment and (ii) pumps to respond to floods since the beginning of June 2007. [153841]

Mr. Tom Harris: The stretches of motorways and trunk roads on which the Highways Agency used water containment and/or pumps since the beginning of June 2007 is given in Tables 1 and 2 as follows. Several instances arose where flood warning signs were erected and gully clearance was necessary; these have not been included in the tables.

Roads: Repairs and Maintenance

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many programmed road surface repairs there are. [156419]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not held centrally for local roads. Highway maintenance on local roads in England is the responsibility of each local highways authority. All local highway authorities have been encouraged to produce asset management plans for their roads. These will consist of inventories of stock, its existing condition, and target condition based upon desired service levels. This information will assist local highway authorities to programme their road surface repairs.

The Department has also endorsed "Well maintained highways", the code of practice for highway maintenance produced by the UK Roads Board. The document which can be found at www.ukroadsliaisongroup.org provides best practice guidance on the programming of highway maintenance.

The Highways Agency are responsible for highway maintenance on the strategic road network in England. Their programme is sub-divided into significant renewal schemes and small works. Both types of programme may fluctuate, depending on the overall state of network assets and in-year urgency for tackling unexpected deterioration. The condition target for the strategic road network is measured by a road surface condition index. This target has been met since it was introduced in 2004-05.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment she has made of the likelihood of achieving the 2010 target for eliminating the road maintenance backlog. [156421]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The National Road Maintenance Condition Survey for 2005 showed that the 10 Year Plan interim target to halt carriageway deterioration by 2004 had been achieved. We have encouraged local authorities to produce asset management plans for local roads. As more of these become available we expect to gain a better understanding of the investment required to bring local road conditions up to the appropriate operational standards.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of local authorities' budgets for road maintenance are required to be allocated to road preservation. [156422]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department for Transport provides local authorities in England (outside London) with funding support for capital highway maintenance funding for investment in their network, including its structures and street lighting. Revenue funding provided through the Revenue Support Grant (RSG) may also be used for highway maintenance. Neither funding is ring fenced. It is for each local authority to determine how their allocations are spent, in line with their priorities. Funding in London is a matter for the mayor.

Shipping: Scotland

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many meetings have taken place between her Department and the Scottish Executive's (a) Marine Directorate and (b) Transport Directorate since May regarding the devolution of further powers for the Scottish Parliament under UK marine legislation. [155754]

Jim Fitzpatrick: No such meetings have been held and none have been requested by the Scottish Executive.

Taxis

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions her Department has had with the Transport Occupational Command Unit regarding (a) the number of crimes committed by illegal minicab drivers and (b) proposed measures to reduce the number of illegal minicabs operating in London. [153876]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department has not had any discussions with the Transport Operational Command Unit on these matters. However, we keep in touch with TfL officials about a range of taxi-related issues. We are aware, through discussions with TfL, that the unit undertakes dedicated enforcement activities in respect of illegal minicab drivers in London using a variety of methods including multi-agency road checks and visits to operators. We are also aware of TfL's initiative to enhance safety for passengers through its "Safer Travel at Night" campaign.

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans she has to reduce the number of illegal minicab drivers operating in (a) London and (b) England. [153873]

Ms Rosie Winterton: If individuals provide a minicab service without holding the requisite licences they are committing an offence. Responsibility for enforcing the law rests with Transport for London within London and the relevant local licensing authority elsewhere in England. The police also, of course, have a role to play in enforcing the law.

Last year we brought forward a change in the law which will establish a more comprehensive system for licensing minicabs (private hire vehicles—PHVs). Section 53 of the Road Safety Act 2006 repeals the exemption from PHV licensing outside London for vehicles which work on contracts lasting not less than seven days. When the repeal takes effect—in January 2008—it will be much harder for operators and drivers to evade licensing. A similar provision (section 54 of the Act) will bring operators and drivers dedicated to contract work in London within the PHV licensing regime—in March 2008.

Taxis: Bus Lanes

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions her Department has had with (a) the Mayor of London's office and (b) Transport for London on the access of private hire vehicles to bus lanes. [153874]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department keeps in touch with TfL officials about a range of issues related to TfL's responsibilities for taxis and private hire vehicles, including the question of PHV access to bus lanes. We are aware that TfL are giving consideration to this question. As part of this, they have sought the Department's advice on the road signs that would be required.

I am not aware of any discussions with the Mayor of London's office on this issue.

Taxis: Licensing

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 17 September 2007, Official Report, columns 2195-6W, on taxis: licensing, what assumptions were made about the (a) total number of currently unlicensed drivers, (b) number of vehicles, (c) number of operators and (d) average licence fees when making the estimate referred to; and how the estimate of total costs of £1 million was reached. [155916]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The estimate of £1 million was included in the Regulatory Impact Assessment (RIA) for the proposal to repeal the private hire vehicle (PHV) contract exemption; a copy of this is in the Library of the House. The RIA was based on the following assumptions: (a) 2000 drivers, (b) 2000 vehicles and (c) 300 operators would have to be licensed as a direct result of the repeal of the contract exemption. Average fees for each of the licences were assumed to be £250, £200 and £400 respectively.

These estimates and assumptions were based on the fact that the terms of the contract exemption are narrow and apply in a relatively limited number of cases. They made no allowance for cases now coming to light where transport providers might have believed, or claimed, that they were covered by the exemption but were not in reality so covered. A number of these cases are, and will remain, outside the definition of a PHV in the legislation and therefore will still not need to be licensed. Others should have been licensed as PHVs in the past and repeal of itself will not therefore create a new requirement to meet licensing costs. The Department has sought the views of stakeholders on draft guidance for local licensing authorities on the impact of the repeal and we expect to publish the final version of this shortly.

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what checks her Department makes on non-British drivers who work with a valid licence as taxi drivers in the UK. [156558]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Local authorities in England and Wales (outside London) and Transport for London (in London) are responsible for licensing taxi drivers.

The relevant legislation states that taxi drivers outside London must have held a full GB or EU driver licence for 12 months. In addition, local licensing authorities must satisfy themselves that an applicant for a taxi driver licence is a "fit and proper" person to hold such a licence. The way in which they carry out this assessment is a matter for individual authorities.

However, the Department has produced Best Practice Guidance to assist local licensing authorities; the guidance includes advice about carrying out background checks on applicants from elsewhere in the EU and other overseas countries and relevant sources of information.

Thameslink Railway Line

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when work will commence to install the two extra rail lines north of London Bridge to accommodate Thameslink services; and when such work will be completed. [154705]

Mr. Tom Harris: Preliminary work is scheduled to begin in January 2009. The work will be completed by 2015.

Tolls: Manchester

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations she has received about the proposed congestion charge in Greater Manchester. [154063]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Association of Greater Manchester Authorities (AGMA) have submitted a business case for Transport Innovation Fund funding for a package to tackle congestion by combining transport investment and road pricing. We are currently assessing the case.

Travel: Concessions

Mr. Simon: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) which local authorities have implemented public transport discount schemes for those aged 18 years and under; [153759]

(2) what guidance she has issued to local authorities on the financing of public transport discount schemes for young people. [153840]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There is no statutory obligation on local authorities to implement concessionary fare schemes for young people. Therefore the Department does not issue guidance on the financing of such schemes nor hold information on which local authorities have introduced them.

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will bring forward amendments to the provisions of the transport legislation which prevent the disabled and medically disadvantaged from using public transport at discounted rates for their journeys to work at peak times. [156567]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Concessionary Bus Travel Act 2007, which received Royal Assent on 19 July 2007, provides for free off-peak local bus travel throughout England for older and eligible disabled England residents from April 2008. The Act improves on the existing statutory minimum entitlement of free travel within an eligible person's local authority area.

Local authorities retain the flexibility to offer more than the statutory minimum concession to their residents, which can include free or discounted travel at peak times for older and disabled people, and travel on other modes like trams or trains. Many authorities do offer additional concessions, funded locally, taking into account local circumstances.

In addition, the Government requires train operating companies to participate in the Disabled Persons Railcard scheme, which provides a third off most tickets, including at peak times.

The Concessionary Bus Travel Act 2007 contains powers allowing the Government to further extend the statutory minimum concession in the future, both on buses and on other modes.

Travel: Paris

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many and what proportion of passenger journeys from (a) all English and (b) London airports in each of the last five years to (i) Paris and (ii) Brussels were undertaken by (A) air, (B) rail and (C) road. [154746]

Jim Fitzpatrick: It is not possible to provide the information exactly as requested. However, the International Passenger Survey can show the number of passenger trips to Paris and Brussels made by air (from London and other UK airports) and by train (Eurostar). The number of trips to Paris and Brussels by road is not available.

Travel: Young People

Mr. Simon: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she is taking to promote walking and cycling strategies for young people, with particular reference to schemes other than the school journey. [153757]

Ms Rosie Winterton: While we make no excuse for focusing on walking and cycling strategies which can help children walk and cycle to school, young people can also benefit from many of our other initiatives to encourage people to walk and cycle more. Cycle training teaches young people a life skill which enables them to undertake a range of journeys, not just to school. Evidence shows our safe routes to school are also being used by the wider population to access other locations on foot or by bike.

Many of the improvements local authorities are making to local cycling infrastructure and cycle networks can also benefit young people. One of our 6 Cycle Demonstration owns, Derby, has a specific focus on targeting improvements to encourage those under 25 to cycle.

We are also continuing to monitor progress on our Walking and Cycling Action Plan which aims to increase levels of walking and cycling to reduce congestion, improve public health and provide for more pleasant public space. Progress reports on the action plan are placed on the Department for Transport website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_control/documents/contentservertemplate/dft_index.hcst?n=12069&1=2

The next update will be in October 2007.

Mr. Simon: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she is taking to ensure that the views of those aged 18 years and under are taken into account in the consultation on the draft Transport Bill. [153762]

Ms Rosie Winterton: As part of the public consultation into the draft Local Transport Bill, the British Youth Council, the National Black Boys Can Association, the National Youth Agency and the Regional Work Unit (North East) were all sent the consultation documents and invited to submit their views.

I have also been consulting with a number of stakeholders about the draft Bill as part of a regional tour over the summer. One group that I met in Newcastle were the Bus Buddies, a group of young people with an interest in public transport, who were given the opportunity to ask questions about the Bill.

Waste and Resources Action Programme

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment her Department has made of the impact of the Waste and Resources Action Programme's promotional campaign encouraging local authorities to use recycled aggregate. [156420]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department for Transport has not made a formal assessment of the impact of the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) information service on the sustainable use of aggregates.

The Department will shortly complete some research on behalf of the UK Roads Board on sustainable choice of materials for highway works. This will be published as a guide for local authority highway engineers and will describe in detail the benefits of recycling aggregates where appropriate, as well as providing links to WRAP information.

The Department endorses "Well-maintained Highways" (TSO, 2005 or www.ukroadsliaison group.org), the UK Roads Board's code of practice on highways maintenance. This provides best practice guidance on preparing a policy for sustainable development in highway maintenance and draws local authorities' attention to WRAP's activities.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many apprenticeship places there are; how many are filled; what the equivalent figures were in 2002; and what he expects them to be in 2012. [154091]

Mr. Lammy: The following table shows the total number of apprenticeship starts in 2001-02 and 2005-06, and the latest information for 2006-07.

	Apprenticeship starts	Advanced apprenticeship starts
2001-02	108,300	54,000
2006-07[1]	125,300	54,800

[1] These figures are based on latest management information. Comparable official statistics for 2006-07 will be published in the Statistical First Release "Further Education, Work-Based Learning, Train to Gain and Adult and Community Learning—Learner Numbers in England 2006/07".

Note:
Numbers have been rounded to the nearest 100.

Source:
Learning and Skills Council (LSC) Work Based Learning (WBL) Individualised Learner Record (ILR).

The LSC's ILR is a census of activity capturing provision that learners enrol on and not the number of places that are available to learners. The LSG will fund what young people want to study and will work to ensure sufficient capacity is in place to meet the demand.

We want to continue the expansion of apprenticeships so that by 2013 every suitably qualified young person will be able to take up a place on the programme.

We are working with the LSC to promote apprenticeships to employers of all sizes and so increase their take-up. Many employers are already on board with 130,000 offering apprenticeships in England with over 180 apprenticeships available across more than 80 industry sectors.

We have increased the completion rate to 59 per cent. and rising—up from only 24 per cent. five years ago. We plan to increase this further in the next three years to match that of other top competitors. The Government are working with the LSC and key partners to deliver provider incentives, foster provider collaboration, improve staff training, and develop with Sector Skills Councils guidance for individual sectors.

Diplomas will also provide clear progression routes into apprenticeships and, indeed, contain apprenticeship components within their content where specified by the Diploma Development Partnerships.

We are also building stronger links with higher education to ensure that apprentices who have the ambition and capacity to do so can enter higher education.

Some of these staff are engaged in other work in addition to their duties as press officers. (2) what criteria must be met by educational institutions to be included on the list of applicable courses for student visas. [154514]

Bill Rammell: To help tackle abuse of the student immigration route of entry to the UK, the Home Office will only grant visas to international students who have offers of places to study at colleges on the DIUS Register of Education and Training Providers. Colleges applying to join the DIUS Register are required to supply evidence that they are providing education and training, and meeting the requirements of the Immigration Rules. The registration process is one of continual assessment.

Institutions failing to maintain the necessary standards are subject to review and removal from the Register if justified. The Borders and Immigration Agency advised us that Kelvin Business School was in breach of the Immigration Rules. The college was therefore removed from the DIUS Register on 19 July 2007.

Qualifications

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which cross-sector standards-setting bodies are to be invited to draw up their own qualification strategies and take the lead in approving qualifications in their sector. [154188]

Bill Rammell: To date, the SSDA has approved four (4) standard-setting bodies to develop pan-sector qualifications strategies. These four are Management and Leadership (MSC), Administration (GIA), Marketing and Sales (MSSSB) and Customer Services (IGS). The only other pan-sector for which a qualifications strategy is currently being considered is health and safety. If any other standard-setting body wanted to develop its own qualifications strategies it would need to demonstrate that the occupational area they want to cover is not already covered by an existing Sector Skills Council's Sector Qualifications Strategy.

In developing their pan-sector qualifications strategies, each standard-setting body is working closely with a lead Sector Skills Council which will ensure employer needs across the board are represented and that there is no duplication with other qualifications strategies. No standard-setting bodies will be responsible for approving qualifications, this is the role of the Sector Skills Councils. All cross-sector standard-setting bodies are being 'buddied' with a lead Sector Skills Council which will approve qualifications, drawing on the expertise of the standard-setting body and liaising with other Sector Skills Councils as appropriate.

Scientific Advisory Committees: Finance

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what the (a) total annual remuneration and (b) average annual remuneration payable to members of each scientific advisory committee was in the latest year for which information is available; [154359]

(2) how many members were appointed to each scientific advisory committee in the 10 years to 31 March 2007; [154360]

(3) what the cost was of each scientific advisory committee to public funds in each of the last 10 years ended 31 March. [154361]

Ian Pearson: There are 81 Scientific Advisory Committees (SACs) who support the work of their sponsor Departments. Management of SACs is a matter for their sponsor Departments who are responsible for establishing the SAC's terms of reference and membership and for ensuring that they deliver value for money. There are no arrangements for collecting the data requested centrally. To do so would be disproportionately costly.

Student: Finance

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will estimate the fee income for higher education providers as referred to in the written ministerial statement by the then Minister for Lifelong Learning, Further and Higher Education of 23 March 2005, Official Report, columns 71-2WS, on student finance. [154781]

Bill Rammell: I refer the hon. Member to my answer to the Question from the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 594W, on student fees and charges.

Students: Loans

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many complaints were made about late student loan payments to students in 2006-07. [153900]

Bill Rammell: In the academic year 2006-07 the Student Loans Company responded to 189 complaints about loan payment delay.

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many complaints have been received from graduates against the Student Loans Company in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [156588]

Bill Rammell: The number of complaints received specifically from graduates is not available. The total number of new complaints registered by the Student Loans Company from all sources, including customers prior to and after graduation, and third parties, is as follows:

	Number
April 2004 to March 2005	1,417
April 2005 to March 2006	1,451
April 2006 to March 2007	1,818
April 2007 to date	933

The aforementioned figures represent less than 0.05 per cent. of the SLC's customer base.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Animals: Abuse

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will review the adequacy of the maximum penalty for the neglect of and cruelty to animals. [154376]

Jonathan Shaw: There are no plans to review the current penalty for the offence of animal cruelty contained in the Animal Welfare Act 2006, which came into force in Wales on 27 March 2007 and in England on 6 April 2007.

The Act increased the maximum penalty for an offence of causing unnecessary suffering to an animal from £5,000 to a fine of £20,000, or a maximum term of imprisonment of six months, or both. The Act also introduced the new offence of failing to ensure the welfare of animals, which carries a penalty of up to six months' imprisonment, or a fine of up to £5,000, or both. I am satisfied that these sentences are proportionate and in line with those provided for in comparable legislation.

Biodiversity

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps are being taken to monitor the effectiveness of the Environmental Stewardship schemes in rebuilding biodiversity apart from assessing the condition of Sites of Special Scientific Interest. [154544]

Joan Ruddock: DEFRA and Natural England are spending about £1.5 million a year to monitor and evaluate how effectively the full range of agri-environment scheme objectives is being delivered; including biodiversity, landscape, the historic environment and access.

British Waterways: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many press officers are employed by British Waterways. [154133]

Jonathan Shaw: British Waterways employs two full-time press officers. There are a further 10 other staff whose job description includes liaison with the media.

Carbon Emissions

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what the estimated total level of carbon emissions in the UK was in (a) 2004, (b) 2005 and (c) 2006; [156211]

(2) what the level of carbon emissions in the EU was in (a) 2004, (b) 2005 and (c) 2006. [156713]

Mr. Woolas: The following table shows the estimated total level of carbon dioxide emissions for the UK and the EU, 2004-06.

2004	554.6	3,858
2005	554.2	3,815
2006	560.6	n/a

Figures are million tonnes of net carbon dioxide emissions (emissions minus removals).

Emissions are presented as carbon dioxide equivalents in line with international standards for reporting and carbon trading. To compute the carbon equivalent of the emission of carbon dioxide, divide by 44/12.

The figures shown do not include any adjustment for the effect of the EU Emissions Trading Scheme (EUETS), which was introduced in 2005.

The figures shown for the UK for 2006 are provisional. EU emissions figures for 2006 will be published in January 2008.

Carbon Emissions: Televisions

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the (a) cost of and (b) volume of carbon dioxide emissions produced by the energy consumption of televisions in use in the UK which possess a screen blanking feature. [153967]

Joan Ruddock: No information is available about the number of televisions in use in the UK which have a screen blanking facility (which allows the selected channel to be received in audio only). Therefore, it is not possible to make an estimate of the cost or volume of carbon dioxide emissions resulting from use of these appliances.

Climate Change

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he plans to take to promote the prevention of deforestation (a) in England and (b) globally as a means of combating climate change; and if he will make a statement. [155652]

Mr. Woolas: Tree felling in England is controlled by the Felling Regulations, which are administered by the Forestry Commission. Deforestation is also subject to the provisions of the Environmental Impact Assessment (Forestry) (England and Wales) Regulations 1999. Permission is not normally granted for deforestation unless it is for the recreation of priority open habitats, which have been lost due to planting with trees; often non-native conifers.

Under the Kyoto Protocol, global emissions from deforestation are already taken into account by developed countries in meeting their emissions reduction commitments. The UK and other European Union (EU) member states are negotiating on how to include emissions from deforestation from developing countries in future climate change agreements, on a voluntary basis.

This process is also supported by UK and EU action to tackle illegal logging and improve sustainable timber procurement, working with international partners including producer and consumer countries. Reducing emissions from deforestation is a key aim of the Environmental Transformation Fund announced in the 2007 Budget. The UK has already announced that £50 million from this Fund will go towards reducing deforestation in the Congo Basin, by promoting sustainable forestry.

Coastal Areas: Access

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many miles of UK coastline are not accessible to (a) walkers and (b) climbers. [156687]

Jonathan Shaw: Natural England's report to the Government on coastal access in February 2007 estimated that nationally 70 per cent. of the English coast has some access for walkers by right or other recognised provision; for example on public rights of way, open country under the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000, national trails or National Trust land. However, these existing rights and provisions for access within the 70 per cent. often fail to join up in a way that gives continuous access around the coast.

Natural England's estimate is that at least 30 per cent. of the English coast has no legal or other recognised access at all. This varies between individual regions.

Natural England carried out some work on issues related to climbing, however no detailed information on the amount of English coast not accessible to climbers has been collected.

The provision of access in Scotland and Wales is a matter respectively for the Scottish and Welsh Assembly Governments.

Countryside Agency: Information Officers

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many press officers are employed by the Countryside Agency. [154555]

Jonathan Shaw: The Countryside Agency employed two media and parliamentary officers (nearest equivalent) until it was dissolved by Act of Parliament (Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006) on 30 September 2006. The successor body created on 1 October 2006 from the merger of English Nature, the Countryside Agency and the Rural Development Service-Natural England currently employs 6 six full-time press officers.

Dartmoor

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations he has received about access to Vixen Tor for climbers. [156686]

Jonathan Shaw: I have received no recent representations about Vixen Tor.

Deer: Forests

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations he has received about damage caused by deer to forestry. [154543]

Joan Ruddock: My Department received a number of representations about the damage caused by deer, including forestry damage, during the consultation on a proposed Deer Regulatory Reform Order that took place last year.

Following this consultation, and in response to problems associated with deer damage, the Regulatory Reform (Deer) (England and Wales) Order SI 2007/2183 was made on 25 July 2007. The Order, which comes into force on 1 October 2007, amends the Deer Act 1991 to increase the number of management options available to land managers so that they are better equipped to mitigate the damage caused by deer.

Domestic Wastes

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment has been made by (a) the Environment Agency and (b) his Department on the level of burning of domestic waste by households in England. [153976]

Joan Ruddock: No specific assessment has been made by my Department or the Environment Agency on the level of burning of domestic waste by households in England.

Complaints about statutory smoke nuisance from domestic bonfires, or the burning of other materials, are made at the local authority level. Statistics are not held centrally by my Department.

DEFRA carried out research into emissions of dioxins from the burning of domestic waste in 2006. The review recommended that further work should be done to establish what practical measures could be taken to reduce dioxin emissions from bonfires and domestic combustion and, consequently, exposure to dioxins. Further work in estimating dioxin emissions from domestic burning is due to start in October 2007.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding the waste and resource action programme provided to each local authority in (a) Wales, (b) Scotland and (c) Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [153994]

Joan Ruddock: Any funding allocated to local authorities in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland is a devolved matter for the Scottish Parliament, the Welsh Assembly Government and the Northern Ireland Executive.

Domestic Wastes: Recycling

Martin Salter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the effect on the recycling rates of local authorities of introducing an alternate weekly bin collection scheme. [154118]

Joan Ruddock: My Department has not commissioned or evaluated research into the effects on recycling performance of local authority decisions to move away from weekly collections of residual waste. However, of the top 20 highest recycling local authorities in England in 2005-06, 19 were operating an alternate weekly collection scheme for residual waste.

Recent research into kerbside systems in Scotland, by Remade Scotland[1], reported that the factors influencing high recovery rates for dry recyclate collections were found to be collection frequency, collection capacity, number of materials collected, and collection frequency of residual waste. One of the findings of the report was that dry recyclate schemes operated in conjunction with a fortnightly residual waste collection produced 65 per cent higher recovery rates than those associated with a weekly residual collection.

Energy: Conservation

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the Energy Efficiency Commitment will include ring-fenced funding to assist hard to reach rural households. [156029]

Mr. Woolas: The Energy Efficiency Commitment (EEC) is an obligation on electricity and gas suppliers in Britain to promote and deliver improvements in energy efficiency in households.

While it does not have a specific fuel poverty objective, the EEC does require suppliers to direct 50 per cent. of energy savings towards a priority group of low-income customers. Energy suppliers are free to find the most cost-effective ways to meet their obligations.

DEFRA held a statutory consultation on the third phase of EEC (to be renamed the Carbon Emissions Reduction Target) over the summer. Final proposals for the relevant legislation are expected to be put to Parliament this winter.

The consultation proposals suggested new flexibilities in the way that energy suppliers could meet their priority group obligations, encouraging them to work with customers in particularly hard to treat houses, such as those off the gas grid or with solid walls.

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what steps his Department is taking to provide energy efficiency measures suitable for rural consumers in hard to heat homes that do not respond to traditional energy efficiency measures; [156366]

(2) what (a) steps his Department is taking and (b) advice and support is available to encourage rural consumers to become more energy efficient. [156367]

Mr. Woolas: The Government are committed to improving the energy efficiency of homes across England in both rural and urban areas.

Our fuel poverty policies also aim to improve the energy efficiency of homes of the fuel poor. For those eligible clients, including rural customers who do not have access to mains gas, Warm Front has looked to widen the support it can offer by considering alternative (often low carbon) technologies for inclusion within the scheme. Further pilot schemes are now being instigated to test other technology for Warm Front suitability, including solar thermal and air source heat pumps.

The Warm Front scheme not only offers the installation of heating systems and insulation for eligible households, but also provides advice on improving the efficiency of the dwelling. Eaga Plc, the Warm Front scheme manager, has worked in conjunction with other organisations such as Age Concern, Farm Crisis Network and the Pension Service in rural communities across England to promote energy efficiency and other key support services.

We continue to fund the Energy Saving Trust, which provides information and advice to individuals and householders, including rural households. We have launched the Act on CO_2 brand, including an advertising campaign and on-line carbon calculator to raise awareness of the link between personal behaviour and climate change.

English Nature: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many press officers are employed by English Nature. [154145]

Jonathan Shaw: English Nature employed four full-time press officers. In October 2006, English Nature merged with part of the Countryside Agency (which employed two full-time press officers) and part of the Rural Development Service (which was covered by DEFRA's press officers) to form Natural England. The number of press officers employed by Natural England is six.

Environment Agency: Flood Control

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consideration is being given to making changes to the Environment Agency's budget in the light of this summer's floods. [156182]

Mr. Woolas: My Department's formal Comprehensive Spending Review settlement for 2008-09 to 2010-11 is expected to be announced later this month. This will be followed by the Department's own financial allocation process, during which the Environment Agency's budget will be determined. This process will be based on careful prioritisation across the Department and all its sponsored bodies. The Secretary of State has already announced an overall increase of £200 million to £800 million in 2010-11 for Government spending on flood and coastal erosion risk management. Allocations between operating authorities will be confirmed following the medium term planning exercise for capital projects later this year.

Environment Agency: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many press officers are employed by the Environment Agency. [154140]

Mr. Woolas: The information that we have from the Environment Agency is that it currently employs 24 press officers across eight regions. They maintain a 24 hour service providing media information in the event of an environmental incident.

Environment Agency: Thames Valley

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much has been allocated for maintenance to the Environment Agency's Thames Valley West region in each of the last three years. [156548]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency's maintenance expenditure for the West Area of Thames Region in each of the last three years is as follows:

2005-06	3.76
2006-07	3.80
2007-08	4.33

Environment Protection

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the current specific heads of expenditure are for maintenance work carried out by the Environment Agency; what proportion is being spent on (a) dredging, (b) weeding and (c) other environmental measures in 2007-08; and if he will list the measures. [154112]

Mr. Woolas: The current Environment Agency headings for flood risk management maintenance expenditure include channel maintenance, structure maintenance, defence maintenance, operation, MEICA (mechanical, electrical, instrumentation, control and automation), buildings and ground maintenance, incident response, and non-recurring maintenance.

In 2006-07, the proportion of maintenance expenditure on each of the following headings was as follows:

	Percentage
Dredging	3.8
Aquatic weed removal	10.2
Grass cutting, tree removal and pollarding	6.6

Flood Control

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the policy of the Environment Agency is for handling river surges following heavy rainfall; and if he will make a statement. [153848]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency uses the latest technologies to monitor rainfall, river levels and sea conditions 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. Once potential flooding is detected, flood warnings are issued to people and organisations in the areas at risk.

During flood events, the Environment Agency attends Gold and Silver Commands to advise on the current and forecast flooding situation. They participate in the co-ordinated response to major incidents along with the emergency services, local authorities and other bodies.

After flooding has subsided, the agency undertakes reviews of the event. These include mapping the depth and extent the water reached to improve flood risk mapping, flood forecasting and responses to town and country planning proposals. Repairs are carried out on the agency's assets and blockages that might increase the risk of flooding are removed. Drop-in centres are held for the public to share their experience and obtain advice.

The agency is investing some £436 million this year in the maintenance and improvement of river flood management measures which reduce the risks from high flood levels.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of flood defences supervised by the Environment Agency and owned by third parties were classed as in good or better condition in April 2007. [153849]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency monitors the condition of those flood defence assets on Main River and the coast that are maintained by third parties.

The proportion (by length) of flood defences such as raised walls and embankments, maintained by third parties, that were in good or better condition in April 2007 was 46 per cent., with a further 49 per cent. in fair condition.

The proportion (by number) of flood defence structures, such as sluices and outfalls, maintained by third parties, that were in good or better condition in April 2007 was 59 per cent., with a further 33 per cent. in fair condition.

These assessments are based on visual inspections.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs who is responsible for surface water drainage in (a) Scotland and (b) England. [154109]

Mr. Woolas: This is a devolved issue, and in Scotland is the responsibility of the Scottish Executive Environment and Rural Affairs Department (SEERAD).

In England, the responsibility for managing surface water drainage is shared by several different authorities. The Environment Agency has a general supervisory duty over all matters relating to flood management and permissive powers to manage flood risk from main rivers and the sea. Local authorities are responsible for surface drainage from roads and public spaces, and the operation of highway drains; they also have permissive land drainage responsibilities for non-main rivers. Water and sewerage companies have a statutory duty to ensure the effective drainage of premises in their area, including any piped surface water arising from them. Internal drainage boards have permissive powers to undertake work to secure drainage and water level management within their districts, which cover 10 per cent. of the country's land area (mostly rural areas currently). The Highways Agency covers drainage from trunk roads.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what criteria he will use when deciding how to spend his Department's additional budget for flood defences for 2010-11; whether the money will apply to planned projects or additional projects; and how the money will be shared between capital expenditure and maintenance expenditure. [154111]

Mr. Woolas: Subject to the Department's formal comprehensive spending review settlement for 2008-09 to 2010-11, allocations between operating authorities will be confirmed following the medium-term planning exercise for capital projects later this year using the prioritisation process.

At any one time, there are numerous projects at a variety of stages of development and the additional funding announced will be used to bring forward those schemes which address the highest risk from flooding and coastal erosion.

DEFRA does not fund maintenance expenditure by local authorities or internal drainage boards. While DEFRA funds the majority of the overall flood risk management activity of the Environment Agency, we look to them to decide the most appropriate balance between capital expenditure and maintaining existing defences.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the Environment Agency expects to publish amendments to its flood risk maps available to the public on their website based on data collected from events since May 2007. [155675]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency expects to have reviewed the data from the summer floods and incorporated any amendments to its flood map on the internet by the end of January 2008.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proposals he has to extend the national guidance on managing flood risk. [156181]

Mr. Woolas: The Government continue to work closely with the Environment Agency, other delivery partners and stakeholders, to ensure that any guidance on managing flood risk is fit for purpose. Our "Making Space for Water" strategy is looking at a number of areas where guidance could be refined, in particular for appraisal of flood defence schemes.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures are being considered to create, manage and improve existing flood plans, drainage and ditches systems to act as natural flood defences for future flood protection. [156183]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency exercises general supervision over all matters relating to flood defence and is the principle flood risk management operating authority in England. Local authorities and internal drainage boards also have permissive powers to manage flood risk and drainage in certain areas. All operating authorities are responsible for considering appropriate measures to manage flood risk in their areas of responsibility in line with their own operational guidance and DEFRA's policy guidance. DEFRA guidance encourages operating authorities to work with natural processes where possible, and to consider the benefits of improving the storage capacity of flood plains and ditch systems where this is a viable means of managing flood risk.

The Environment Agency also advises local planning authorities on the appropriateness and impacts of development in areas of flood risk with a view to making sure that the capacity of the functional flood plain to reduce risks is given appropriate consideration in land use planning.

Flood Control: Agriculture

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance is being given to farmers on (a) contour ploughing and (b) grass and natural planting along river banks to help manage flood waters in high risk areas. [156184]

Mr. Woolas: A review of the impacts of land use and management on flood generation has been carried out through the joint DEFRA/Environment Agency research project FD2114 (2004). This identified a number of measures that can help to mitigate localised flooding by delaying run-off; including cultivation techniques such as contour ploughing and land management measures such as the use of grass buffer strips.

The Environment Agency also provides guidance on the use of contour ploughing to reduce run-off and erosion through its Best Farming Practice booklet (revised in 2003).

As part of DEFRA's "Making Space for Water" strategy, two projects are examining the role that rural land use and land management can play in managing flood risk at the farm and catchment scale. These projects will deliver recommendations in 2008 and inform future advice to farmers and farming representatives.

Flood Control: Berkshire

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what capital projects there are in the Environment Agency's forward programme to alleviate flooding along the River Loddon in Berkshire. [153846]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency's Capital Programme includes the development of a flood risk management strategy for the River Loddon catchment. This is due to start in 2008 or 2009.

The decision to progress any specific options identified in the strategy will depend on their relative priority, when compared to other projects nationally, and the availability of funding.

Flood Control: Coastal Areas

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the current estimate is of the coastal surge risk over the next four years; and how this estimate will be kept under review. [154110]

Mr. Woolas: The current estimate of surge risk is linked to the estimate of storminess over the next four years. Analysis of the weather over the last 50 years has shown a trend for strengthening winds in the Atlantic with wide yearly variability.

However, as the drivers for storm surge events are directly weather related, it is not possible to forecast their occurrence with any certainty more than 48 hours in advance.

The Environment Agency now oversee the Storm Tide Forecasting Service, the tide gauge network, which forecasts and measures surge events, with "Wavenet", which measures wave size and strength. These services are provided to the agency to support their short-term forecasting in partnership with the Met Office, Proudman Oceonographic Laboratory and the Government scientists at the Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science.

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects the Environment Agency to publish guidance to landowners on the maintenance of sea defences. [154415]

Mr. Woolas: Information for owners and occupiers of land adjacent to sea defences in England is available from the Environment Agency's website at:

http://www.environment-agency.gov.uk/commondata/acrobat/maintenance_1830292.pdf

I have also arranged for copies to be placed in the Libraries of the House. The Environment Agency has also produced a leaflet summarising the landowner policy options. This is currently being printed and should be available in all the Environment Agency's area offices by the end of October.

Flood Control: Essex

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects the Environment Agency to publish the (a) Blackwater and Colne Estuary Management Plan and (b) Crouch and Roach Estuary Management Plan. [154414]

Mr. Woolas: Subject to approval, the Environment Agency expects to publish the Blackwater and Colne Estuary Strategy in the summer of 2009.

The Agency submitted the Roach and Crouch Estuary Strategy to DEFRA in 2006. This was acknowledged, although not formally approved, in May 2007 as representing the right long term approach and "framework for action" for both these estuaries.

The Strategy is a public document and has been approved by the Anglian (Eastern) Regional Flood Defence Committee and the Environment Agency Board. The Agency is progressing work on the ground in accordance with the Roach and Crouch Strategy and will bring the Strategy in line with the new DEFRA guidance when it is next reviewed in four years time.

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the condition of sea defences in Maldon district. [154416]

Mr. Woolas: DEFRA has overall policy responsibility for flood and coastal erosion risk management in England, funds most of the Environment Agency's flood related work and grant aids individual capital improvement projects undertaken by local authorities and internal drainage boards. The programme to manage risk is driven by these operating authorities; DEFRA does not carry out works, nor direct the authorities on which specific projects to undertake.

The sea defences in Maldon district are inspected annually by the Environment Agency. The last inspection was in late September and October 2006. This year's inspections will begin shortly. The findings are used to plan and prioritise refurbishment work for future years.

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many properties in (a) Maldon district and (b) Chelmsford borough are located in areas at one in 200 year risk of flooding. [154412]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency estimates that the number of properties located in areas with a one in 200 annual probability of tidal flooding is as follows:

Location	Number of properties at risk
Maldon district	3,715
Chelmsford	1,366

Flood Control: North Yorkshire

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to review the allocation of flood protection funds in Pickering. [156541]

Mr. Woolas: Capital funding is allocated by the Environment Agency to individual projects by applying a prioritisation system to all proposals on a national basis.

The Environment Agency will consider the priority of the proposed flood alleviation scheme for Pickering in light of the flooding this summer, however they do not expect it to change significantly.

The Environment Agency is working with Ryedale district council to look at lower cost options to reduce flood risk in Pickering, such as home owners installing flood barriers to doors. The Environment Agency is also working closely with the town council which intends to develop an emergency flood plan for the town in addition to setting up a flood warden scheme.

Flood Control: Oxford

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Environment Agency has taken to divert water on to farmland adjacent to the River Thames above (a) Oxford and (b) Reading to avoid urban flooding. [153847]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency has not taken any such steps.

During periods of moderate flow, all the weirs on the River Thames are operated to maintain the upstream water level—or headwater level—at, or close to, the standard headwater level for each weir. Standard headwater levels are set by the Environment Agency in connection with their statutory powers as the navigation authority for the River Thames.

After periods of wet weather, Environment Agency staff progressively open the gates of each weir as far as necessary to accommodate any increase in flow while still maintaining standard headwater level.

Flood Control: West Cumbria

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what additional support his Department is providing to ensure that those areas in Westmorland and Lonsdale which are most at risk do not suffer flooding; [153385]

(2) what assessment has been made of the risks to areas in Westmorland and Lonsdale that are most susceptible to flooding. [153386]

Mr. Woolas: Overall Government funding for flood and coastal erosion risk management will rise from the £600 million this year to £800 million in 2010-11. Investment is prioritised in order to reduce the threat to people and their property and deliver the greatest environmental, social and economic benefit, consistent with the Government's sustainable development principles.

Within the Westmorland and Lonsdale constituency, the Environment Agency has an ongoing programme of prioritised maintenance works for flood defences and river systems. The Agency also has a programme of investigations and studies which aim to identify improvement works for inclusion in their medium to long-term capital investment programme.

Floods: EU Grants and Loans

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what EU funding is available in the event of emergency flooding; what applications he has made to access this funding; what criteria apply for such applications to be granted; and whether matched funding is required. [153337]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

The EU Solidarity Fund (EUSF) was set up in November 2002 as a result of the extreme flooding disaster that hit Central Europe in the summer of 2002. The purpose of the fund is to provide financial assistance to the regions of Europe in dealing with an extraordinary "major" or "regional" disaster of natural causes, including severe flooding. The fund is specifically targeted at support for emergency relief action, cleaning up and getting destroyed infrastructure back into working order. Match funding is not required under the EUSF.

Before a member state can apply for support from the fund, the total amount of damages incurred in a major disaster must exceed a specific level. The EUSF's eligibility threshold for what are termed "National Level Disasters" is for all damages, insurable and uninsurable, to exceed €3 billion (2002 prices) or 0.6 per cent. of the affected country's Gross National Income (GNI), whichever is the lower, in order to qualify for assistance. The UK current estimate for total damage suffered in the June and July floods is €4 billion (£2.9 billion).

An application for support from the EUSF in respect of the June and July flooding in England, Wales and Northern Ireland was lodged with the Commission on 20 August and is currently being discussed with them. The application is not a bid as it will be for the Commission to decide whether, and if so at what level, support will be offered. Applications by other member states to the EUSF have resulted in offers of support ranging between 2.5 per cent. and 5 per cent. of the total damage suffered.

Foot and Mouth Disease

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the cost of the 2007 foot and mouth outbreak to (a) farmers within the surveillance zone and (b) farmers in England. [155577]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 17 September 2007]: DEFRA has made an initial estimate of the total costs of the outbreak to the UK of £20 million, based on an economic model that has been developed for foot and mouth disease. The full impact will depend on domestic and international restrictions that remain in place and the estimate may be revised as further data become available. Disaggregated estimates of the cost to farmers in the surveillance zones or the whole of England would be unreliable.

Forestry Commission: Information Officers

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many press officers are employed by the (a) Rural Payments Agency and (b) Forestry Commission. [154482]

Jonathan Shaw: The Rural Payments Agency employs one person who spends half of their time on press office tasks.

The Forestry Commission is a cross border body and has two press officers for GB and International issues and two press officers for England. In addition a further communications professional provides cover for holidays and weekends.

Government Laboratories

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will list the requests made to the Government for funding to maintain, upgrade or replace facilities at government-run laboratories for which his Department is responsible in each year since 2001, broken down by laboratory. [155575]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The Government-run laboratories for which DEFRA is responsible are the Centre for Environment Aquaculture and Fisheries Science, the Central Science Laboratory and the Veterinary Laboratories Agency. DEFRA agrees annual business plans and budgets with these agencies. It is then for the respective laboratory management teams to decide how to maintain, upgrade or replace facilities within that funding structure. Major capital investment projects (for example, laboratory replacement) are agreed with and funded by DEFRA.

Hazardous Substances: Waste Disposal

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent meetings he has had with companies about (a) the polluter pays principle and (b) the disposal of toxic waste. [154590]

Joan Ruddock: Neither my ministerial colleagues nor I have held any recent meetings with companies specifically on the polluter pays principle or on toxic waste deposits. However, Lord Rooker and my hon. Friend the Member for Exeter (Mr. Bradshaw), then Minister of State at DEFRA, met Environment Agency officials on 22 May 2007 concerning toxic waste disposal.

The "polluter pays" is an underpinning principle of European and domestic environmental legislation under which those responsible for pollution must pay the costs of measures necessary to eliminate that pollution, or reduce it to comply with the standards laid down by public authorities.

Home Energy Efficiency Scheme

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what average amount households paid in 2006 to top up a Warm Front grant for an energy efficiency measure; and how many such households paid to top up their Warm Front grant in 2006. [156363]

Mr. Woolas: The average top up or excess paid per household in England in 2006-07 was £437.86. The number of excess payments was 30,666.

It is not possible from the data held to determine exactly who paid the excess in each case. In addition to individual householders, a number of third parties such as charities, local authorities and installers have all contributed to excess payments in 2006-07.

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many households in England received Warm Front grants in 2006; how many rural households in England received Warm Front grants in 2006; and what the average value of a Warm Front grant to a rural household in England was in 2006. [156364]

Mr. Woolas: A total of 253,079 households in England received Warm Front grants in 2006-07. Of these, 37,496 were classified as rural households under the criteria set out by the Office for National Statistics. The average grant to those rural households was £1,104.44.

Housing: Energy

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made towards achieving the target laid down in section 217 of the Housing Act 2004 to ensure that by 2010 the energy efficiency of residential accommodation in England should increase by 20 per cent. compared with 2000; what progress was made in each year since the Act came into force; and if he will make a statement. [154098]

Mr. Woolas: The energy efficiency of the housing stock in England cannot be monitored directly but is modelled, using data from periodic surveys of the housing stock coupled with data on the installation of energy saving measures. Based on the delivery of measures by existing energy efficiency programmes, we expect to be on track towards the 20 per cent. target. DEFRA is currently analysing the effects of energy efficiency policies but cannot yet quantify the improvement precisely.

However, there is one positive indication that efficiency has already started to improve substantially. Against a long-term trend of rising gas consumption, household gas usage fell by over 8 per cent. over the period 2004-06. Of this, up to half could be attributed to higher prices; weather changes had little effect. Improved energy efficiency for heating, particularly higher levels of insulation (installed via the energy Efficiency Commitment) and more efficient boilers (required by Building Regulations), is likely to have contributed to the remaining reduction of gas, the principal heating fuel. However, more detailed analysis is required to quantify this effect, and to express it in terms of improved energy efficiency.

Housing: Floods

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of developments in the last decade have been on flood plains according to the Environment Agency's records. [153975]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency does not hold records on the proportion of developments built on flood plains. However, it does record planning permissions that are granted against its advice on flood risk grounds. These are reported annually in the Agency's High Level Target HLT5 reports.

In the last reporting period (April 2005 to March 2006), 95 per cent. of cases where the Environment Agency objected on flood risk grounds were determined in line with the Agency's advice, compared with 92 per cent. in 2004-05.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) when he expects to announce access to the full flood mapping data and flood defence information for existing and planned defences; and on what basis this will be provided to insurance companies; [154107]

(2) if he will differentiate between the types of property in flood mapping data and flood defence information; and if he will publish the address point data as opposed to postcode level to insurance companies. [154108]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency's flood maps provide information on flood risk from rivers and the sea. Full flood mapping data and flood defence information is already available in response to requests for access. A standardised set of information is available to insurance companies, among others, for re-use under licence, subject to the Environment Agency's standard licence terms and conditions.

The Environment Agency's Flood Map and National Flood Risk Assessment (NaFRA) data are also available, under licence, subject to the Environment Agency's standard licence terms and conditions. Both data sets show areas of land at risk of flooding.

The Environment Agency does not offer a product that differentiates between types of property because the requirements of different users vary, and because the chance of a property flooding is dependent on many factors including floor levels, construction methods and construction materials. Subject to the intended use of the resulting data, licensees may combine Environment Agency data with their own property type datasets to produce a dataset that meets their specific needs.

The latest National Flood Risk Assessment (NaFRA 2006) data are available to insurers in a format which contains both address point references and spatial and postcode formats.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of properties flooded during June and July 2007 which were built after 1945. [154392]

Mr. Woolas: No estimate has been made to date on the number of properties flooded during June and July 2007 that were built after 1945. Local authorities have provided information about the number of residential properties and businesses affected by the summer floods, however this does not include an assessment of property age.

The Environment Agency is gathering data and information as part of its review of the summer 2007 floods and this will include the categorisation by age of properties affected by flooding from rivers. This information should be available by the end of November.

As we announced in July, a full review of the flooding, its causes and subsequent management to see if any lessons need to be learned about how to manage and respond to this type of event in the future is in progress. The review is being led by an independent Chair, Sir Michael Pitt.

Joint Nature Conservation Committee: Information Officers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many press officers are employed by the Joint Nature Conservation Committee. [154320]

Jonathan Shaw: The Joint Nature Conservation Committee employs no full-time press officers. Press duties are shared across its communications team and, in total, are estimated to occupy less than 0.5 full-time equivalent (FTE) posts.

Landfill: Hazardous Substances

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of landfill sites which have been used for the disposal of toxic waste (a) in Buckingham constituency and (b) in the UK in the last 10 years. [154588]

Joan Ruddock: There were no landfill sites used for the disposal of hazardous waste in Buckinghamshire between 1997 and 2002. From 2002, the following four landfill sites have been used for the disposal of hazardous waste in Buckinghamshire.

i) Gerrards Cross
ii) Newton Longville
iii) Broad Lane
iv) Calvert Pit

Of these sites, only Calvert Pit and Newton Longville currently accept hazardous waste. The acceptance of hazardous wastes is controlled by the terms and conditions of the permits for the sites and within the constraints originating from the Landfill Directive. All other landfill sites accepting hazardous waste in Buckinghamshire were closed before 1997.

Data taken from the Environment Agency's waste regulatory information system and landfill capacity data show that there have been 333 landfill sites used for the disposal of hazardous waste in England and Wales in the last 10 years. Data for the whole of the UK are not collected centrally.

Lighting: China

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what response the Government have made to the EU's extension for one year of duty on imports from China of energy saving light bulbs. [155165]

Mr. Thomas: I have been asked to reply.

The UK is opposed to the European Commission's proposal to extend anti-dumping duties on imports from China of energy saving light bulbs for a further 12 months.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to reply to the letter to the Under-Secretary of State (Biodiversity) dated 15 June 2007 from the hon. Member for Hyndburn on Mr. and Mrs. Riding. [153755]

Mr. Woolas: I apologise for the delay. A response was sent on Tuesday 21 August.

National Parks: South Downs

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if he will consider extending the period of public consultation on the boundary change designation of the South Downs National Park to include evidence relating to the Western Weald; [154037]

(2) whether consideration has been given to extending the period of public consultation on the boundary change designation of the South Downs National Park. [154065]

Jonathan Shaw: After careful consideration, I announced on 27 July that, while the formal deadline for responses remained 13 August, the Secretary of State would consider all objections and representations which were received by 24 September 2007.

The purpose of this consultation was to elicit comments on any new relevant matters which we thought were most likely to fall into one of the following categories:

(i) any implications for the Designation Order (as varied by the Variation Order) arising directly as a result of revised National Parks legislation—amendments to the National Parks and Access to the Countryside Act 1949 made by the Natural Environment and Rural Communities (NERC) Act 2006, sections 59 and 99;

(ii) any implications for the Designation Order (as varied by the Variation Order) arising directly as a result of the High Court and Court of Appeal Judgments on the challenge by 'Meyrick Estate Management Ltd.' relating to the New Forest National Park;

(iii) the possible alternative boundary line from north of Petersfield running east across to Pulborough;

(iv) possible additional areas recommended for inclusion within the proposed South Downs National Park.

Ofwat: Information Officers

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many press officers are employed by Ofwat. [154425]

Mr. Woolas: Ofwat is the economic regulator of the water and sewerage industry in England and Wales.

It employs two full-time press officers.

Radioactive Wastes

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many sites in the United Kingdom are authorised under the Radioactive Substances Act 1993 to dispose of (a) low level and (b) very low level radioactive waste. [156449]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency authorises the accumulation and disposal of radioactive wastes under the Radioactive Substances Act 1993. According to national data, in England and Wales there are some 535 waste producing sites that are authorised to dispose of low level radioactive waste and some 560 waste producing sites that are authorised to dispose of very low level radioactive wastes. Some waste producing sites will hold authorisations for both low level and very low level radioactive waste disposal.

Recycling: Directories

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of printed telephone directories (a) delivered and (b) recycled in the last 12 months; and what assessment he has made of the environmental impact of printed telephone directories. [154001]

Joan Ruddock: No estimate has been made by my Department on the number of printed telephone directories delivered or recycled or a specific assessment made of their environmental impact.

Telephone directories are recycled every year, most often into card and corrugated board, loft insulation, packaging materials, jiffy bags, egg boxes, animal bedding and newsprint.

Paper has been identified as a material where reduced waste and greater recycling can yield significant environmental benefits. The Government have already finalised voluntary producer responsibility agreements which will encourage, in particular, increased recycling of newspapers, magazines and direct mail with the Newspaper Publishers Association, the Periodical Publishers Association and the Direct Marketing Association respectively.

As they explore the scope for the recycling and recovery of waste paper, the Government will also be looking to other sectors of the paper industry to establish similar agreements or incorporate them into the development of the existing agreements. These would cover office paper, free newspapers, catalogues and directories and possibly other products as well.

Recycling: Packaging

Martin Salter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to increase the rate of recycling of packaging. [154117]

Joan Ruddock: Two sets of Regulations in the UK, the Producer Responsibility Obligations (Packaging Waste) Regulations 2007 and the Packaging (Essential Requirements) Regulations 2003 (as amended) have already increased the levels of recovery and recycling across all packaging materials and are driving down the sizing and weight of packaged items. Packaging recycling has doubled since 1997 and statutory binding targets will ensure further improvements.

The current UK targets are as shown in the following table, but are subject to change, due to an upcoming consultation.

	EU target (percentage)	2008	2009	2010
Paper target	60	67.5	68	68.5
Glass target	60	73.5	74	74.5
Aluminium target	—	32.5	33	33.5
Steel target	—	58.5	59	59.5
Metals	50	—	—	—
Plastic target	22.5	24.5	25	25.5
Wood target	15	20.5	21	21.5
Recovery target	60	68	69	70

The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP), which is partly funded by DEFRA, is responsible for delivering greater material efficiency, including increasing recycling rates. Its work on packaging waste interlinks with many aspects of recycling, such as working with local authorities to advise on recycling facilities and overcome barriers to recycling. WRAP also has a behavioural change programme which targets consumer recycling and explains why this is important.

WRAP is working with the retail industry to increase the recycling content of packaging and is targeting the supply chain through the voluntary 'Courtauld Commitment' agreement. Through its business growth and manufacturing programmes, WRAP is also working to ensure that the necessary facilities are in place in order to increase the capacity and capability of recycling and to increase the use of recycled materials in manufacturing.

Royal Botanic Gardens Kew: Information Officers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many press officers are employed by the Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew. [154177]

Joan Ruddock: Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew has one press officer and a public relations manager and press assistant who also work with the media. This team of three is managed by a head of corporate communications with a wider brief. Wakehurst Place, home of the Millennium Seed Bank, has one press and marketing officer.

Vandalism

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent estimate he has made of the total cost of graffiti to the UK economy in a year. [153958]

Jonathan Shaw: No estimate has been made of the cost to the UK economy of graffiti. Local authorities have powers to remove graffiti and can recover the costs of doing so on surfaces that are in or on the street.

Waste Management

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans his Department has to work with the Department of Communities and Local Government on the implementation of the Waste Strategy for England 2007; and whether he will integrate (a) small, (b) medium and (c) large-scale biological treatment facilities within this implementation. [154153]

Joan Ruddock: My Department has established a Waste Strategy Board to drive forward and monitor delivery of the Waste Strategy for England 2007 across Government. The board includes representatives from the other Government Departments with a key interest in waste, including Communities and Local Government (CLG), and we will be working closely with these Departments in implementing the strategy.

My Department is also working with CLG to take forward specific aspects of the strategy, including planning for waste infrastructure, pollution control, waste aspects of the local government performance framework, and proposals to remove the ban on local authorities using financial incentives to increase recycling by households.

The strategy sets out the measures that the Government have put in place to secure the investment in infrastructure needed to divert waste from landfill. It remains vital that regional spatial strategies and local development documents look forward and make adequate provision for the appropriate types and scales of infrastructure and waste treatment facilities needed, including biological treatment plants. It is also important for specific, suitable sites to be identified in plans.

Water: Emergencies

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether he plans to reassess the provision of water supplies in civil emergencies; [154363]

(2) what assessment he has made of Severn Trent's capacity with regard to (a) water tankers and (b) water bowsers and their replenishment during crises; [154369]

(3) what assessment he has made of the capacity of Severn Trent to cope with the recent flooding in Gloucestershire; [154370]

(4) what requests for assistance his Department received from (a) Severn Trent and (b) other water companies to manage water supplies in the recent floods in Gloucestershire and the surrounding area; [154371]

(5) what discussions he has had with Severn Trent on civil emergencies. [154372]

Mr. Woolas: There are a number of reviews being carried out by different organisations into the flooding that occurred in the summer. One of these is a wide-ranging and thorough review that has been established by the Government to identify any lessons to be learned for the way that we manage and respond to flooding events such as those experienced recently. This review will cover issues such as loss of drinking water supplies. It is being led by an independent chair, Sir Michael Pitt. We are aiming to publish initial findings by the end of the year and subsequently a formal report. A call for evidence is currently lodged on the Cabinet Office and UK Resilience websites. Until these reviews have been completed and the recommendations considered, it would not be right to comment or speculate at this stage on any actions that might need to be taken.

However, I can confirm that during the flooding of Gloucester and the surrounding area, and following a specific request from the Severn Trent Water, my Department was able to facilitate the use of further road tankers from private companies to assist in the filling of the water bowsers.

Water: Shortages

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which water companies had a hose pipe ban in force on (a) 26 July and (b) 8 October. [154333]

Mr. Woolas: On 26 July 2006, the following water companies had hosepipe bans in force in some or all of their supply areas: Thames Water, Southern Water, Mid Kent Water, South East Water, Three Valleys Water, Sutton and East Surrey Water, Folkestone and Dover Water and Cholderton and District Water.

All of these bans remained in force on 8 October 2006 with the exception of that for Folkestone and Dover Water. No hosepipe bans were in force on 26 July 2007 and there are none in force at present.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Carer Benefits

13. Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will take steps to improve the level of benefits for carers. [156115]

Mrs. McGuire: We fully recognise the valuable contribution made by all carers. From this month, we have further raised the carer's allowance weekly earnings limit from £87 to £95, allowing carers to earn more before their benefit is affected.

The Government are working with carer's organisations and others to review our National Carers Strategy. In this review we are examining carer's benefits in depth. We plan to publish the review's conclusions in March 2008.

Child Maintenance

14. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average length of time taken to agree an award of child support was over the last 12 months. [156117]

Mr. Plaskitt: The agency is currently clearing 72 per cent. of applications within 12 weeks. This is compared with just 53 per cent in March 2006, before implementation of the operational improvement plan.

I might add that 83 per cent. are cleared within the 26-week target against just 67 per cent. before the operational improvement plan.

For all applications cleared in June 2007, the average length of time taken to agree an award of child support was 91 days from first contact to clearance. It was 143 days before the operational improvement plan.

Worklessness

15. Angela Watkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of trends in the level of worklessness among under 25 year olds since 1997. [156118]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State gave earlier to the hon. Members for Lichfield (Michael Fabricant) and for Preseli Pembrokeshire (Mr. Crabb).

Social Fund

16. Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the operation of the social fund. [156119]

Mr. Plaskitt: In 2006-07 Jobcentre Plus paid:

more than 270,000 Community Care Grants nearly 1.3 million Budgeting Loans over 1 million Crisis Loans over 40,000 Funeral Payments over 235,000 Sure Start Maternity Grants

all with a total value of £1 billion.

These payments helped around 2 million people to cope with one off expenses that otherwise they would not have been able to afford.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will consider the merits of establishing a separate credit bank social fund for low earners; and if he will make a statement. [154092]

Mr. Plaskitt: As part of its financial inclusion strategy, the Government are committed to increasing the availability of affordable forms of credit for those who find it difficult to access mainstream lenders such as banks. Potential for reform of the Social Fund will be considered in this context.

The £42 million Growth Fund, which is a key element of our strategy, is doing much to increase the availability of affordable credit, having made in excess of 30,000 loans to financially excluded people in its first few months, with many thousands more excluded people to be helped as expansion of this sustainable service continues. In parallel with this we are working closely with the credit union movement and investing £1 million of the Growth Fund to test ways in which the recently announced Transaction Banking Service can be introduced to enable even greater service through credit unions for those who find it difficult to access mainstream financial services.

Furthermore, as announced in Financial Inclusion: the way forward, the Government has established a working group, involving the banking industry and the Financial Inclusion Taskforce, to consider ways in which the capacity and coverage of third sector lenders can be increased nationwide, through the support of the banking sector and the Government.

Crisis Loans

17. Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the adequacy of telephone-based systems for the delivery of crisis loans. [156120]

Mr. Plaskitt: The modernisation of our telephone service has greatly improved access to crisis loans. It has resulted in a more efficient service for our customers, and provided more flexibility to meet call demand.

Council Tax Benefit

18. Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment his Department has made of the effects of aligning starting thresholds for council tax benefit with those for income tax. [156121]

Mr. Plaskitt: This was one of the recommendations in the recent report from the Communities and Local Government Select Committee and we will publish our formal response shortly.

Child Poverty

19. Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest assessment is of the trend in levels of child poverty. [156122]

Caroline Flint: There have been a number of significant reforms to our tax and benefit system. From April 2009, in real terms, households with children will be, on average, £1,800 per year better off, while those in the poorest fifth of the population will be, on average £4,000 a year better off than in 1997.

Access to Work Programme

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what criteria are used to measure the effectiveness of the access to work programme. [154672]

Mr. Plaskitt: There are several criteria used to measure the effectiveness of access to work. The level of expenditure and the number of people helped into work by the scheme are the two key criteria.

Child Support Agency: Telephone Services

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for what period of time the Child Support Agency Midlands Business Unit retains recordings of telephone calls from members of the public. [154642]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Jos Joures, dated 8 October 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As the Chief Executive is currently on annual leave I am responding, with his authority, on his behalf.

You ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, for what period of time the Child Support Agency Midlands Business Unit retains recordings of telephone calls from members of the public. [154642]

Prior to 26 March 2007, telephone calls made to the Child Support Agency were recorded and retained for 3 weeks. From that date, voice recording functionality was enhanced to allow telephone calls to be retained for 14 months. This functionality applies to any call made through the Agency's call routing system. Certain calls, for example where a client calls a caseworker's number directly, are not recorded.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Children: Maintenance

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will discuss with ministerial colleagues steps to facilitate easier access to Judicial Review for parents owed money via the Child Support Agency. [154042]

Mr. Plaskitt: A Judicial Review claim may be issued in the administrative court by any person with sufficient interest in the matter to which the application for Judicial Review relates.

Matters relating to court proceedings are the responsibility of the Ministry of Justice who advise that those applying for a Judicial Review are expected to exhaust whatever alternative remedies are available to them under the particular process they are concerned about.

The Child Support Agency has already, through the Operational Improvement Plan made considerable improvements in client service over the last year with new scheme uncleared applications at their lowest level since January 2004 and 72 per cent. of new cases cleared within 12 weeks. These improved service levels, complemented by a thorough and tested appeals process ensure clients have access to the necessary support and advice in all their dealings with the Agency. It is therefore more appropriate to continue to improve client service, through the Operational Improvement Plan enabling the Child Support Agency to deliver more money to more children, than to place additional and unnecessary burdens on our courts.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will take steps to (a) register private agreements for child maintenance and (b) set standards, monitor and enforce such private registration; and if he will make a statement. [154610]

Caroline Flint: We believe that the Commission should form a view as to whether it should run a register, potentially on a test basis first, to assess take-up, its cost effectiveness and the relative stability of the agreements reached.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the new maintenance assessment under the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is designed to compensate for the costs of raising children; how the formula has been derived; and if he will make a statement. [154620]

Mr. Plaskitt: The principles of the basic maintenance formula under the Commission will be based on the structure of the formula introduced in 2003 with percentage rates based on the non-resident parent's income and number of qualifying children.

We are satisfied that the percentage rates strike the right balance between the needs of the child and the other expenses that non-resident parents have to meet.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether any of the main objectives of the planned Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission will be to collect the arrears of child maintenance owed to parents with care; and if he will make a statement. [154623]

Caroline Flint: The Commission's main objective is to maximise the number of effective maintenance arrangements in place.

This main objective is supported by two subsidiary objectives. The first is to encourage and support voluntary maintenance arrangements. The second is to support the making of applications to the statutory maintenance service and to secure compliance with parental obligations under the Child Support Act when this is appropriate.

Securing compliance with parental obligations includes securing payment of any arrears owed under the Child Support Act.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will bring forward plans to allow the courts to make child maintenance orders without the agreement of both parents where the courts are dealing with other financial aspects of divorce or separation; and if he will make a statement. [154626]

Caroline Flint: The Government have no plans to allow courts to impose child maintenance orders on parents. We want to promote a collaborative process that encourages parents to reach agreement about maintenance wherever possible. Where parents are unable to agree they may apply to the Child Support Agency for a maintenance calculation.

Children: Poverty

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) people and (b) people in families with children live in households with below 40 per cent. of median income. [153426]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is not available.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will introduce a system in his Department for the collection of information on child poverty at county level. [154766]

Mr. Plaskitt: The official measure of child poverty is derived from an annual survey, the Family Resources Survey. While this gives an accurate picture of the national position, the survey sample is too small to allow for disaggregation to county level. However, I recognise the importance of measuring child poverty at a more local level and have asked analysts in my Department to investigate the feasibility of producing an alternative measure that will give an indication of progress locally.

Crisis Loans: Telephone Services

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) whether the Government plan to increase the number of staff manning the Jobcentre Crisis Loan helpline; and if he will make a statement; [154181].

(2) what the average time was that a caller to the Jobcentre Crisis Loan helpline had to wait before the call was answered in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [154182]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked Lesley Strathie to reply to your questions asking whether the Government plans to increase the number of staff manning the Jobcentre Crisis Loan helpline; and what the average time was that a caller to the Jobcentre Crisis Loan helpline had to wait before the call was answered in the latest period for which figure are available. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to Ms Strathie as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus. I am replying on her behalf as Acting Chief Executive.

Average call waiting times are not available as we do not have a national Crisis Loan helpline. Telephone calls for Crisis Loans are taken at Benefit Delivery Centres around the country using separate 0800 numbers. Centralisation of Benefit Delivery is not yet complete. In areas where Social Fund Benefit Delivery Centres have yet to be rolled out customers may call their local office on a local number.

To help with the increasing demand in Crisis Loan applications we have, since early July, started to re-deploy staff from the Contact Centre Directorate to handle telephone enquiries about Crisis Loans. As a result there will be an extra 500 people taking calls from customers applying for Crisis Loans.

Departments: Cabinet Committees

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which Cabinet Committee meetings he has attended in the last 12 months. [154876]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 10 September 2007]: A full list of all Cabinet Committees, including their membership and terms of reference, can be found in the Library of the House. It is Government practice to place such a list in the Library approximately every six months. Previous lists contain the membership information requested. Information relating to the proceedings of Cabinet and Cabinet committees, including the number of meetings held and attendance, is generally not disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussion.

Departments: Cornwall

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what (a) meetings and (b) correspondence has taken place between his Department and Cornwall county council on joint delivery of services at a local level. [154769]

Mrs. McGuire: The Pension Service and Jobcentre Plus have had and continue to have regular communication with Cornwall county council.

There has been dialogue between Pension Service Local Service staff and Cornwall county council through meetings and correspondence since January 2004. Jobcentre Plus (JCP) has also had regular meetings and correspondence with Cornwall county council. The external relations managers and partnership managers of JCP Devon and Cornwall district work closely with a variety of groups and boards from Cornwall county council to achieve joint delivery of services.

The information which is available on meetings and correspondence is presented in the following tables.

All travel is undertaken in accordance with the Civil Service Management Code and the Ministerial Code.

Note:
Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.

The Department does not obtain jobs for people, but rather provides advice and support to help people engage with the labour market. Although there are no specific targets, the Department has a Public Service Agreement to significantly increase the employment rate of disabled people and reduce the difference between their employment rate and the overall rate in the three years to March 2008.

Hard-to-Help Families

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will consider the merits of improving arrangements to facilitate multi-agency mentoring and follow-through for hard-to-help families with multiple problems; and if he will make a statement. [154096]

Mr. Plaskitt: Our recently published Green Paper "In work better off: next steps to full employment" (Cm: 7130) sets out proposals for improving our successful record of working in partnership with the private and voluntary sectors, other government Departments and agencies, both nationally and locally.

In addition, DWP is working with the Cabinet Office and other Departments to develop integrated services for the most disadvantaged families. The Families at Risk Review (led by the Social Exclusion Task Force) is seeking to ensure that services that work with the whole family are provided in a tailored, flexible and holistic way.

Health and Safety Executive: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many press officers are employed by the Health and Safety Executive. [154135]

Mrs. McGuire: At 1 April 2007, HSE employed eight full-time equivalent press officers, one of whom was on maternity leave.

Housing Benefit

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the outcome was of his investigation of the feasibility of collecting information on the cost of housing benefit paid to households renting properties formerly owned by local authorities; and if he will make a statement. [154050]

Mr. Plaskitt: Local authorities supply management information on housing benefit through a monthly claimant level data extract.

Since April 2007 this data extract should include, where applicable, the date when an individual housing benefit claimant had their tenancy transferred from a local authority property to a registered social landlord property. Only transfers occurring after 1 April 2007 will be captured through this data.

We are unable to identify where a housing benefit claimant is resident in a property that was formerly owned by the local authority if the transfer occurred prior to April 2007, or if it occurred when a different tenant was in place.

This data extract is not currently available for all local authorities and validation of this information needs to be carried out before the data can be used.

Housing Benefit: Fraud

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cases of housing benefit fraud have been detected and resolved using the (a) Benefit Fraud Inspectorate, (b) Housing Benefit Matching Service, (c) remote access terminals and (d) Anti-Fraud Incentive Scheme. [154765]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Benefit Fraud Inspectorate, Remote Access Terminals and the Anti-Fraud Incentive Scheme are not dedicated parts of the process of detection of individual cases of benefit fraud. Therefore the requested figures are not available.

Information from the Housing Benefit Matching Service is not available broken down separately into fraud and error.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people were claiming incapacity benefit in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since 1997. [156716]

Local Authorities Pensioner Forums

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what grants have been made to local authorities to fund local pensioner forums in each of the last three years. [156273]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: None.

New Deal Plus for Lone Parents

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions where the seven pilot schemes for the New Deal Plus for Lone Parents are taking place; in which parliamentary constituencies they are taking place; how long the pilots will last; and what criteria will be used to evaluate their effectiveness. [154670]

Caroline Flint: New deal plus for lone parents was introduced in April 2005 in North London, South East London, Bradford, Dudley and Sandwell, and Leicestershire. It was extended to Cardiff and Vale and Edinburgh, Lothian and Borders in October 2006. The current pilots, which run until March 2008, are open to eligible lone parents in non-London areas and eligible lone and couple parents in London areas.

The Child Poverty Strategy 'Working for Children', published in March 2007, announced the extension and expansion of the new deal plus pilots from April 2008 to March 2011. In pilot locations outside London, key elements of new deal plus for lone parents will be extended to eligible couple parents, and the pilots will be expanded to cover all London areas and will continue to be available to eligible lone and couple parents.

The effectiveness of the pilots is defined in terms of increased exits from benefit and increased employment outcomes compared with similar lone parents in non pilot areas. Evaluation also examines the effectiveness of delivery and impacts on the wider economy.

Early findings from the pilots were included in 'The lone parent pilots after 12 to 24 months: an impact assessment of In-Work Credit, Work Search Premium, Extended Schools Childcare, Quarterly Work Focused Interviews and New Deal Plus for Lone Parents', DWP Report 415, published in March 2007, and in 'New Deal Plus for Lone Parents qualitative evaluation' DWP Report 426, published in May 2007. Both reports are available in the Library. Qualitative findings from the Scottish and Welsh pilots, and findings from the next wave of Impact Assessments will be published next year and placed in the Library.

Details of the Parliamentary constituencies in which the new deal plus for lone parents pilots are currently operating are in the following table.

Occupational Pensions

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his estimate is of the number of occupational pension schemes in the UK which (a) have completed wind-up and (b) are in the process of winding up; what proportion began wind-up after 2 May 1997 in each case; and what his estimate is of the number of members of such schemes. [154287]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The following information was provided by the pensions regulator.

(a) The number of schemes in the UK that have wound up since 2 April 1997 is 62,814

(b(i)) The number of schemes that have commenced, but not yet completed, winding up is 8,088 with a total membership of 427,456; and

(b(ii)) The number of schemes that have been winding up since 2 May 1997 is 7,804. This is 96.5 per cent. of the schemes at (b(i)). The total membership of these schemes is 411,943. This is 96.4 per cent. of the membership at (b(i)).

Notes:

1. A wound up scheme is one which has notified the pensions regulator that it has completed winding up procedures.

2. A winding up scheme is one which has notified the pensions regulator that it has commenced winding up procedures.

3. The data supplied by the pensions regulator are current as at 3 September 2007. They come from the merger of data derived from old systems (i.e. before 6 April 2005), and have been enhanced and updated with information received via the new scheme returns—which were introduced as part of the Pensions Act 2004.

4. Total membership includes active, deferred and pensioner members.

Pension Protection Fund: Information Officers

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many press officers are employed by the Pension Protection Fund. [154722]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: As at 27 July 2007 the Pension Protection Fund has one press officer.

Pensions Regulator: Information Officers

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many press officers are employed by the Pensions Regulator. [154685]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: As at 27 July 2007 the Pensions Regulator has two press officers.

Pensions: Forecasts

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for what reason the Retirement Pension Forecasting Team is no longer able to provide forecasts of additional state pensions; when the situation will be resolved; and how many people he estimates will be affected. [154879]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 10 September 2007]: The computer systems used to produce state pension forecasts are being updated to reflect the new state pension rules included within the Pensions Act 2007 and therefore the Pension Service retirement pension forecasting team is temporarily unable to provide a state pension forecast to people who reach state pension age on or after 6 April 2010. We aim to have the system changes in place by autumn 2008.

People reaching state pension age after 2010 who contact the Pension Service retirement pension forecasting team will still be able to obtain personalised information including:

an indication of the current number of qualifying years and how many more are needed to get a full basic state pension under the new rules; and details of how changes to the state pension rules may affect the individual's state pension position.

This means people can still receive the help they need to plan for their retirement, and the vast majority of customers using these transitional arrangements have been happy with the service provided.

People who reach state pension age before 6 April 2010 can continue to receive state pension forecasts from the retirement pension forecasting team. These forecasts include information on both basic and additional state pension.

Approximately half of the people who use the forecasting "on request" (either online or by phone) service are affected by the current suspension. Based on previous requests for state pension forecasts in 2005-06 we estimate the suspension will impact 300,000 individuals.

The combined pension forecasting service is also suspended until autumn 2008 and this affects approximately 4 million individuals.

In the meantime the Pension Service are working closely with their IT suppliers to explore ways in which the timetable for reflecting state pension changes in state pension forecasting systems could be advanced.

Pensioners: Overseas Residence

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions in respect of how many pensions the UK Pension Service submitted papers to the International Pension Service in 2006; and, of these, how many people received their overseas pension entitlements within four months. [156411]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: This information is not collected or recorded by the Department.

Personal Injury: Compensation

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many personal injury claims by members of the public from local authorities were reported to his Department, in accordance with the Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997, in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [153857]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is in the following table:

Personal injury claims against local authorities

Financial year of recovery	Number of claims
2004-05	16,204
2005-06	12,839
2006-07	9,058

Notes:
1. The figures quoted are for personal injury claims made by the public against local authorities.
2. All cases settled prior to 1 January 2005, which showed that there were no recoverable benefits due to the Secretary of State, have been archived, and are therefore not included in these figures.
Source:
Figures produced by the Compensation Recovery Unit.

Remploy: Closures

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on what criteria were Remploy factories selected for closure. [156492]

Mrs. McGuire: The main selection criteria used by Remploy in proposing which of their factories should close was long-term business sustainability. The Company examined, business by business, which factories had the best opportunity to reach their commercial objectives. Finally, in each location where closure was being considered, Remploy reviewed whether they would be able to support their disabled employees in mainstream employment.

The Secretary of State will make a decision on the future of Remploy, once he receives Remploy's final proposals later this year. Until then, no Government decision will be made concerning Remploy's factories.

Social Security Benefits

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what definition his Department uses of habitual residence for the purpose of claiming benefit; and what definition is used in other European Economic Area States. [154695]

Mr. Plaskitt: Entitlement to income-related benefits requires that a person has a right to reside and be habitually resident in the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands, the Isle of Man or the Republic of Ireland (generally known as the Common Travel Area). If a person does not have a right to reside then he or she is treated as not being habitually resident and is not entitled to those benefits. A person who has a right to reside must also show that he or she is habitually resident in the UK unless he or she falls into an exemption category, such as that for EU workers.

The term "habitual residence" is not defined in UK social security legislation but there is both domestic and EC case law on how that term should be interpreted. In order to determine whether a person is habitually resident, decision makers will, on the basis of the guidelines set out in the case law, consider a variety of factors about the person's circumstances. These include, for example, his or her attachment to and intentions in the UK; his or her reasons for coming here; and whether the person has family in the UK etc. Benefit decision-makers must be satisfied on objective grounds that a person who claims income-related benefits after arriving in the country has genuinely adopted the UK as his or her place of habitual residence.

Where other European Economic Area States use the term "habitual residence" as a condition of entitlement to benefit, the term should be used in accordance with their domestic law and EC case law.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what evaluation he has made of the abuse of accommodation address agencies by perpetrators of (a) benefit fraud and (b) other criminal activity relating to the responsibilities of his Department. [156593]

Mr. Plaskitt: No such evaluation has been made.

Social Security Benefits: Illegal Immigrants

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what measures he has put in place to track the amount of benefits paid erroneously to illegal immigrants. [154286]

Mr. Plaskitt: Illegal immigrants are not entitled to DWP administered benefits. Rigorous checking processes are built into the benefit application systems to ensure that the gateway to the benefits system is secure.

State Retirement Pensions

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of successful claims for state retirement pension was made (a) by telephone interview, (b) by personal interview, (c) by post and (d) online in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [156385]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The available information is in the following table.

All state pension applications processed[1] (successful and unsuccessful) 1 September 2006 to 31 August 2007

	Percentage of total applications processed
Telephone Interview	28
Personal Interview	4
Post	66

State Retirement Pensions: Widowed People

Mr. Ian Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what information is available to the public in the form of leaflets on the switching process between widow's pension and state retirement pension. [155752]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The switching process between widow's pension and state pension is covered in three leaflets:

"State Pension—choices available to you" (code: BR33)
"A guide to Bereavement Benefits" (code: NP45)
"A guide to State Pensions" (code: NP46).

Unemployment Benefits

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what progress is being made on reducing the complexity of benefits acting as a barrier to work. [156116]

Mr. Plaskitt: We are committed to removing any barriers to the smooth transition from benefits to work.

We are determined to make work pay and we have increased the minimum income that people can expect on moving into work, thereby removing barriers and improving financial incentives to work.

Winter Fuel Payments

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what criteria are used by the Pensions Service to dispatch claim forms for winter fuel allowance to people who will be aged 60 by the end of the qualifying week. [156658]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Each year the Pension Service dispatch winter fuel claim forms to customers using the following criteria:

Customers whose 60th birthday falls between the day following the previous year's winter fuel payment qualifying week, and the last day of the current year's winter fuel payment qualifying week.

Customers within the stated birth range for whom we have an address of at least two lines and a postcode, title, surname and forename, gender, national insurance number and verification level.

Customers who request a claim form

Female customers who are identified as already being in receipt of state pension are automatically entitled to a winter fuel payment and do not need to claim.

Women's National Commission: Information Officers

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many press officers are employed by the Women's National Commission. [154657]

Barbara Follett: No press officers are employed by the Women's National Commission.

Work Opportunities: Disabled People

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to improve work opportunities for disabled people. [156114]

Mrs. McGuire: We have a range of programmes designed to provide help to people with disabilities and in the year to April 2007 these programmes supported more than 50,000 people to get into or retain employment.

We are currently reviewing our employment services for disabled people and intend to consult on our proposals later in the year.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Crown Prosecution Service: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Solicitor-General how many press officers are employed by the Crown Prosecution Service. [154139]

The Solicitor-General: The Crown Prosecution Service employs seven press officers at its headquarters. These consist of: four information officers; two senior information officers; and one chief press officer.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Office of the Immigration Services Commissioner: Information Officers

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many press officers are employed by the Office of the Immigration Services Commissioner. [154662]

Mr. Byrne: This is a matter for the Office of the Immigration Services Commissioner.

Antisocial Behaviour: Cambridgeshire

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders have been issued to 10 to 17-year-olds in Cambridgeshire in each year since their introduction; and how many in each year had individual support orders attached. [153766]

Mr. Coaker: The number of antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) is given in the following table. There have been no individual support orders (ISOs) issued in Cambridgeshire up to the end of December 2005 which is the latest period for which data are available. In April this year we completed a survey of 60 areas on support available for young people on ASBOs. The headline results support anecdotal information from practitioners that where ISOs are not being made it is mostly because they are already receiving other interventions from the Youth Offending Team (YOT). The courts are obliged to consider making an ISO every time they make an ASBO on a 10 to 17-year-old and must give a reason in open court if they decide not to do so. The use of ISOs continues to be actively promoted by the Youth Justice Board (YJB) and the Home Office as an aid to helping YOTs fulfil their role in tackling antisocial behaviour.

Persons aged 10 to 17: Number of antisocial behaviour orders issued at all courts as reported to the Home Office by the Court Service by area and year, April 1999[1] to December 2005

[1] No age details available for the period April 1999 to May 2000.

Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders have been issued in (a) Cambridgeshire, (b) south Cambridgeshire and (c) east Cambridgeshire in each year since their introduction. [153770]

Mr. Coaker: The information is shown in the following table.

Number of ASBOs issued at all courts, as reported to the Home Office by the Court Service, by period and where restrictions are imposed within local authority areas, up to 31 December 2005

[1] Between 1 April 1999 and 31 May 2000 data were collected on aggregate numbers only by police force area (pfa).
[2] Three orders cover all E and W.
[3] Two orders cover all E and W.
Notes:
1. This local authority area table differs from criminal justice system area (cjsa) tables in that an issuing court can be outside the area in which the have been imposed. For example, an issuing court may be in Hampshire (cjsa) but restrictions apply solely to a local authority area within Dorset.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders were breached in Cambridgeshire in each year since their introduction. [153771]

Mr. Coaker: The information is shown in the following table.

B8ii: Number of ASBOs proven in court to have been breached[1] in Cambridgeshire as reported to the Home Office, in each year from 1 June 2000 and 31 December 2005

	Total ASBOs breached in:

[1] Some of the ASBOs in the table have been breached in more than one year and have therefore been counted more than once. Breaches are counted in this table in the area of breach.
Note:
Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many assaults on police officers there were in London in each of the last five years. [154809]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is given in the table.

Assets Recovery Agency: Information Officers

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many press officers are employed by the Assets Recovery Agency. [154735]

Mr. Coaker: This is a matter for the director of the Asset Recovery Agency.

Association of Chief Police Officers: Information Officers

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many press officers are employed by the Association of Chief Police Officers. [154684]

Mr. McNulty: This is a matter for the President of the Association of Chief Police Officers.

Asylum: Eritrea

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has had made of the safety of refugees returned to Eritrea. [154567]

Mr. Byrne: The safety on return of unsuccessful asylum seekers from Eritrea is, as with all other nationalities, considered on an individual basis against the background of current information from a wide range of well-recognised sources about the situation in Eritrea. Those who are found not to be in need of international protection and have no legal basis of stay in the UK may return voluntarily. Where an individual does not return voluntarily, removal may be enforced. Enforced removals will only be undertaken where we are satisfied the individual has no protection needs.

Border and Immigration Agency

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints of lost documentation have the Border and Immigration Agency received from members of the public in the last 12 months. [156341]

Mr. Byrne: For the period 1 October 2006 to 30 September 2007, 183 complaints of lost documentation were recorded centrally. However, there will be instances where individuals will have written direct to various business areas which will not have been recorded centrally. It is not possible to state a more precise figure.

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many occasions the Border and Immigration Agency has paid compensation to members of the public for lost documentation over the last 12 months; and how much compensation was paid over that period. [156345]

Mr. Byrne: Such a level of detail is not required for the purposes of our ordinary financial reporting or accounting. This information is therefore not routinely available from one source within the Department and could be collected only at disproportionate cost.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) average and (b) target length of time taken between the receipt of a letter by the Borders and Immigration Agency from an hon. Member and the sending of a substantive reply has been in the last period for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [156289]

Mr. Byrne: In the period 1 January to 31 March 2007, the last period full data is available for, the average length of time it took the Border and Immigration Agency to reply to a letter from an hon. Member was 17.34 working days.

The Border and Immigration Agency's target is to respond to 95 per cent. of Members' letters on immigration and nationality related matters within 20 working days. The Agency has already improved significantly from 34 per cent. in 2004 to 54 per cent. in 2005, 78 per cent. in 2006 and should achieve more than 85 per cent. in 2007.

Cannabis

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research studies the Government have (a) undertaken, (b) commissioned and (c) reviewed into the impact of the 2004 reclassification of cannabis on (i) levels of cannabis use and (ii) levels of harm from cannabis use; and if she will make a statement. [153894]

Mr. Coaker: In 2005 the Government asked the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs to carry out a review of the classification of cannabis which took into account the harms from cannabis use on both physical and mental health, and the levels of cannabis use following reclassification. The evidence it reviewed is set out in Annex 4 of its Report, Further consideration of the classification of cannabis under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971, together with prevalence data extracted from the British Crime Survey.

Central Police Training and Development Authority: Information Officers

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many press officers are employed by the Central Police Training and Development Authority. [154736]

Mr. McNulty: The Central Police Training and Development Authority (Centrex) ceased to exist on 1 April 2007.

Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre: Information Officers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many press officers are employed by the Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre. [154172]

Mr. Coaker: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Child Exploitation and Online Protection (CEOP) Centre.

Computers: Waste Disposal

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department received from the disposal of information technology equipment in the last year for which figures are available; and what avenues were used for such disposal. [154036]

Mr. Byrne: The core Home Office, including the Border and Immigration Agency, does not own information technology (IT) assets other than internally developed software. Hardware is leased under service contracts.

For the financial year 2006-07, the only IT asset disposal within the Home Office group, including executive agencies, occurred in the Identity and Passport Service (IPS) which received a total of £2,781.73 from the disposal.

The IPS uses a company called RD Trading on an ad-hoc basis to remove information technology equipment that is no longer required.

Contracts

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department under what circumstances her Department awards contracts to outside organisations without undertaking a tendering process. [154033]

Mr. Byrne: Home Office procurement policy is to comply with its legal obligations, including those under the EU procurement rules, and public procurement policy. Goods, works or services are acquired through competitive tendering unless there are convincing reasons to the contrary, and all purchasing should be based on value for money criteria having regard to propriety and regularity.

Tendering processes may be omitted with regard to small, irregular, low value spot purchases such as individual travel and expense transactions where tendering costs outweigh the value for money benefits of a tendering process.

Criminal Record Bureau

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the differences are between basic and enhanced Criminal Record Bureau (CRB) checks; and what guidance has been given to public authorities on which type of CRB check should be commissioned. [153892]

Meg Hillier: A basic disclosure is the lowest level of disclosure. This would contain details of convictions considered to be unspent under the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act (ROA) 1974 or state that there are no such convictions. The Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) does not currently provide a basic check.

There are two levels of disclosures currently available from the CRB, known as standard and enhanced. The two checks are available in circumstances where an employer is entitled to ask exempted questions under the ROA. This includes any organisation whose staff or volunteers work with children or vulnerable adults.

Standard disclosures are available to anyone working with children or vulnerable adults, as well as certain other occupations and entry into professions as specified in the ROA. They show spent and unspent convictions, cautions, reprimands and warnings held on the Police National Computer. If the post involves working with children or vulnerable adults, the following may also be searched:

Protection of Children Act (POCA) List.

Protection of Vulnerable Adults (POVA) List.

Information that is held under Section 142 of the Education Act 2002 (formerly known as List 99).

Enhanced disclosures are available to anyone involved in regularly caring for, training, supervising or being in sole charge of children or vulnerable adults. They are also available for certain licensing purposes and judicial appointments. Enhanced disclosures contain the same information as the standard disclosure with the addition of any relevant information held by local police forces and disclosed at their discretion.

It is ultimately for each employer and not the CRB to determine what level of check is required for specific employment positions. Such determination is based on their legal and other responsibilities and subject to any statutory requirements as set by their own regulatory authorities.

Detection Rates

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the timetable is for publication of crime detection rates by Basic Command Unit for 2006-07; and for what reason they were not published with the recorded crime statistics on 19 July 2007. [153891]

Mr. McNulty: The content of the annual bulletin on crime is reviewed each year and as part of this a decision was made that it would be more appropriate to focus this bulletin on crime and victimisation and to plan to produce a separate bulletin specifically on detections rates.

Given the work involved in producing the crime bulletin it was not feasible to produce the bulletin on detections at the same time. However, some information on detections was included in Appendix 3 of the annual bulletin that appeared on 19 July.

The statistical bulletin on detection of crime by the police in 2006-07 was published on 20 September 2007. The information is too large to be included within the Official Report but it can be accessed on-line at the following web addresses. I will arrange for the relevant tables to be placed in the Library of the House.

Driving Under Influence: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many drink-driving tests were carried out in the Peterborough constituency in each year since 1997. [154070]

Mr. Coaker: Data collected centrally relate to police force areas only and are not available at constituency level.

Driving: Insurance

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions took place against uninsured drivers in the Northumbria police force area in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [154307]

Mr. Coaker: The latest figures are for the period 1997 to 2004 and are given as follows. Figures for 2005 will be available later this year.

Proceedings at magistrates courts for the offence of using a motor vehicle uninsured against third party risks[1], Northumbria police force area, 1997 to 2004

	Total proceedings
1997	12,470
1998	11,837
1999	13,296
2000	13,195
2001	12,504
2002	12,309
2003[2]	12,951

[2] As from 1 June 2003, "driving a motor vehicle while uninsured against third party risks" became a fixed penalty offence.

Notes:

It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences may be less than complete. Work is underway to ensure that the magistrates courts case management system currently being implemented by the Ministry of Justice reports all motoring offences to the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. This will enable more complete figures to be disseminated.

Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Drugs

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research her Department has (a) undertaken and (b) commissioned into the effect of the Government's 10-year drug strategy on reducing availability at street level of illicit drugs; and if she will make a statement. [153885]

Mr. Coaker: The following projects (a) undertaken by Home Office researchers looked at the effectiveness of attempts to reduce the availability of drugs at street level:

An evaluation of the Street Level Up Approach Pilot Project in four sites in England, assessing the use of intelligence to disrupt drug trafficking. The final report was not published but circulated on a restricted basis.

An evaluation of three initiatives established to tackle "middle market" drug trafficking: Operation Middle Market, Merseyside Middle Market Drugs Unit and Tarian Regional Task Force. A report summarising learning from the research was published for a police audience. Copies of the report are only available on request from the relevant Head of the Research Unit.

The following research projects (b) commissioned by the Home Office looked at the effectiveness of attempts to reduce the availability of drugs at street level:

A study of retail drug markets and the local action taken against them in eight deprived neighbourhoods. A report is available on the Home Office RDS website: http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs2/hors240.pdf

A project examining the implementation of new powers to close "crack houses" in four case study areas. Findings were published on the Home Office RDS website: http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs05/dpr42.pdf

An estimate of the size of the UK illicit drug market for six categories of illicit drugs for the reference year 2003-04. A report is available on the Home Office RDS website: http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs06/rdsolr1606.pdf.

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what research studies the Government have (a) undertaken, (b) commissioned and (c) reviewed which compare (i) the levels of illicit drug use and (ii) the levels of drug-related harm associated with international classification/regulatory systems; and if she will make a statement; [153886]

(2) what indicators her Department uses to measure the impact of changing the status of a drug within the ABC classification system on (a) levels of illicit drug use and (b) levels of drug-related harm; and if she will make a statement. [153888]

Mr. Coaker: The indicators used to measure illicit drug use and drug-related harm are not predicated on the Acceptable Behaviour Contract (ABC) classification system.

Indicators on prevalence of illicit drug use among the general adult population in England and Wales are set out in reports based on the annual British Crime Survey. Indicators relating to children of school age are published in reports of the annual survey of smoking, drinking and drug use among secondary schoolchildren in England. The Drug Harm Index (DHI) provides an overall measure of the level of drug-related harm and how it changes over time. The operation of the DHI is set out in Measuring the harm from illegal drugs using the Drug Harm Index (Home Office Online Report 24/05).

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research studies the Government have (a) undertaken, (b) commissioned and (c) reviewed into the impact of changing the status of a drug within the ABC classification system on (i) availability and price at street level of illicit drugs and (ii) the levels of drug-related harm; and if she will make a statement. [153887]

Mr. Coaker: Since 1997 only two drugs have changed in status within the Acceptable Behaviour Contract (ABC) classification system—cannabis in 2004 and methamphetamine in January 2007. The Government undertake several surveys to monitor evidence of trends in availability and price, but these are not predicted on the ABC classification system.

The Arrestee Survey and the annual survey of drug use, smoking and drinking among young people in England provide data on the perceived availability of drugs. Data on price at street level has in the past been collected by the National Criminal Intelligence Service, using information generated during the course of police operations. The Drug Harm Index (DHI) provides an overall measure of the level of drug-related harm and how it changes over time. The operation of the DHI is set out in Measuring the harm from illegal drugs using the Drug Harm Index (Home Office Online Report 24/05).

Drugs: Offences

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department under what circumstances US citizens with past drugs offences are not allowed to enter the UK. [156070]

Mr. Byrne: US citizens and other non visa nationals do not require a visa if seeking entry as a visitor to the UK for six months or less, however they are required to satisfy an Immigration Officer that they intend to stay for the period they have stated and that they do not intend to work or claim public funds.

In the event that the Immigration Officer becomes aware that the passenger has a criminal record or has been involved in criminal activity then they may be refused leave to enter.

Fixed Penalties

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many fixed penalty notices have been issued in the last 12 months; and how many have been contested in court. [154575]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

In 2004 (latest available) 3,435,254 motoring fixed penalty notices were issued. 2005 data will be available later this year.

Information on recipients of motoring offences fixed penalty notices who elect to challenge the penalty in court is not identifiable separately within the Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform.

In addition, penalty notice for disorder (PND) may be issued to offenders aged 16 and over for a specified range of minor disorder offences. PNDs have a 21 day suspended enforcement period during which the recipient must either pay the penalty shown on the notice in full or request a court hearing.

In 2005 146,481 PNDs were issued, of which 1,588 were contested in court. The equivalent information for 2006 will be available in the autumn of 2007.

Foreign Workers: Care Homes

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions her Department has had with (a) the Department of Health and (b) devolved administrations on the implications of restrictions in the number of work permits issued to overseas care workers. [149341]

Mr. Byrne: Work permits are issued where employers are able to justify that the work permit criteria are met.

The Border and Immigration Agency has held meetings with the Department of Health since January 2007 to develop updated guidance for issuing work permits for senior care workers.

The Border and Immigration Agency has consulted via correspondence with the Scottish Executive Health Department; Care Council for Wales (on behalf of the Welsh Assembly Government); and the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for Northern Ireland since April 2007 to develop updated guidance for issuing work permits for senior care workers.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions her Department has had with care providers on the issuing of work permits for overseas care staff. [149342]

Mr. Byrne: The Border and Immigration Agency has conducted normal business correspondence relating to individual work permit applications and meetings with individual employers at their request. The purpose of such meetings is to discuss issues specific to work permit applications submitted by that employer.

The Border and Immigration Agency holds quarterly Sector Advisory Panel meetings with representatives from key industry bodies (including Sector Skills Councils) and other Government Departments. A key feature of each meeting is to discuss labour market issues affecting the relevant industry such as training, recruitment, skills and pay.

The Border and Immigration Agency has also held meetings with Skills for Care and Development, which is the Sector Skills Council for the social care work force in the UK, since January 2007 to develop updated guidance for issuing work permits for senior care workers.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether her Department plans to publish new guidelines on the issuing of work permits for senior care workers; and if she will make a statement. [149344]

Mr. Byrne: The Border and Immigration Agency published updated guidance regarding work permit applications for senior care workers on 13 August 2007.

This guidance is available on the website:

http://www.workingintheuk.gov.uk/working_in_the_uk/en/homepage/news/announcements/senior_care_workers_guidance.html

Genetics: Databases

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 11 June 2007, Official Report, column 894W, on genetics: databases, what studies have been conducted by her Department on the impact of the national DNA database on black and minority ethnic communities. [154203]

Jacqui Smith: The Home Office Forensic Science and Pathology Unit conducted a review in 2005-06. In April 2007 responsibility for the National DNA Database transferred to the National Policing Improvement Agency who are currently conducting an equality impact assessment on the database.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 11 June 2007, Official Report, column 894W, on genetics: databases, what consultations she has had with representatives of (a) the Commission for Racial Equality and (b) black and minority ethnic communities on the use of the national DNA database. [154297]

Jacqui Smith: The National Policing Improvement Agency has consulted with representatives from the Commission for Racial Equality (CRE), including the CRE director of legal services. The ongoing equality impact assessment of the National DNA Database will include a programme of consultation with minority communities and in particular young black people.

Human Trafficking

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on what date she expects to launch Operation Pentameter 2; whether Devon and Cornwall Constabulary will be involved in the operation; who will be heading it; what its objective will be; what additional staff will be allocated to the operation; and what the budget will be for the operation. [155457]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The Home Secretary will be launching Operation Pentameter 2 with ACPO on 3 October. It will be a multi agency operation, UK wide, and will involve all 55 police forces co-ordinated by the UK Human Trafficking Centre.

The theme of the operation will be the same as last year and will aim to tackle trafficking for sexual exploitation.

The operation will be funded through existing resources. The UK Human Trafficking Centre receives a budget of £5 million per annum to support counter trafficking activity among local forces.

Immigrants: Criminal Records

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many foreign nationals being held in immigration detention centres have (a) British and (b) foreign criminal records; and for which categories of crimes. [154934]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 10 September 2007]: The information requested could be obtained only by conducting police national computer checks and liaising with foreign governments for all individuals held in immigration detention centres which would incur a disproportionate cost.

Immigrants: Skilled Workers

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make a statement on the Commission for Racial Equality's letter to the Border and Immigration Agency stating that the changes to the rules on highly skilled migrants were discriminatory. [154027]

Mr. Byrne: The chief executive of the Border and Immigration Agency responded to the letter she received from the Commission for Racial Equality on 6 July. I am placing a copy of her response in the Libraries of both Houses.

Independent Police Complaints Commission: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many press officers are employed by the Independent Police Complaints Commission. [154120]

Mr. McNulty: This is a matter for the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC).

Overseas Students

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps are being taken to prevent fake educational institutions enabling people to enter the UK posing as students. [154511]

Mr. Byrne: Since 1 January 2005, only overseas students who can show that they have a place to study or are already studying at an institution which appears on the Register of Education Providers (REP) have been granted entry clearances or extensions of stay as students. The REP is operated by the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) and the application process requires institutions to prove that they operate out of registered premises etc. The REP has been very successful in combating bogus colleges, particularly those which were entirely fictitious. In 2004, some 1,200 were visited ahead of the REP being implemented and 25 per cent were found not to be genuine and were prevented from registering. A further 69 colleges have so far been removed from the Register through a combination of visits conducted by compliance officers in the Border and Immigration Agency (BIA) as well as removals instigated by DIUS. Since July 2007, as the BIA has expanded its compliance resource in preparation for the introduction of the new points based system (PBS) for managing migration, officers have also begun to make more pro-active visits to colleges applying to get on the REP to prevent the registration of those found not to be bona fide.

Under the PBS we have plans to go even further. Under Tier 4: (Students) of the PBS, all education institutions will need to be registered on a new register of sponsors in order to recruit international students. No private educational institution will be able to qualify for the sponsor register unless they can demonstrate that they have been independently inspected or accredited by one of a limited number of BIA-approved accreditation bodies. As announced by DIUS on 24 July 2007, accreditation will be used to provide an independent qualitative check on an institution to demonstrate it is a genuine education provider. Tier 4 is expected to replace the current system for students in the first quarter of 2009. Unaccredited educational institutions have some 16 months to obtain the necessary accreditation in order to continue bringing international students to the UK after that date and we are confident that less reputable education providers will not be able to pass this additional test.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what protection and recourse is available for foreign students arriving in the UK who have unwittingly paid money to fake educational institutions and may not work under the terms of their student visa. [154512]

Mr. Byrne: The immigration rules set out provisions for international students to study at a bona fide private education institution which is included on the Register of Education and Training Providers. A definition of a bona fide private education institution is contained in the rules. Where it is found that an institution fails to meet this definition, it is prohibited from enrolling any more international students by being removed from the Register. Where the students at such institutions are unable to continue their studies, or where students are dissatisfied with the tuition at a college, the student rules permit them to move to another institution which is included on the Register of Education and Training Providers.

Such students may also wish to report their circumstances to their local Trading Standards Office or seek legal advice about the loss of their fees. Where a student has more serious concerns that an institution is facilitating illegal migration, then they should also contact the police.

The immigration rules permit those studying in the UK with a student visa to work part-time term-time and full-time in vacations.

Police Stations

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police stations were closed in London in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [154816]

Mr. McNulty: The management of the police estates in London are operational matters for the Commissioner for the Metropolitan Police and the City of London Police.

Police: Cambridgeshire

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of police officers in Cambridgeshire had the primary function of traffic policing in each of the last five years. [153772]

Mr. McNulty: The data are available are from 2002-03 to 2005-06 and are given in the table.

Police officers (FTE)[1] whose main function[2] is "Traffic" in Cambridgeshire from 31 March 2003 to 31 March 2006

	Traffic	Proportion of total officer strength
2002-03	85	6.1
2003-04	99	7.0
2004-05	101	7.1
2005-06	99	6.8

Notes:

1. This and other tables contain full-time equivalent figures that have been rounded to the nearest whole number. Figures include those officers on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave.
2. Staff with multiple responsibilities (or designations) are recorded under their primary role or function. The traffic function includes staff who are predominantly employed on motorcycles or in patrol vehicles for the policing of traffic and motorway related duties. The does not include officers employed in accident investigation, vehicle examination and radar duties.

Prisoners: Deportation

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many foreign national prisoners have been deported in 2007; [154206]

(2) how many foreign national prisoners were deported in each of the last 10 years. [154208]

Jacqui Smith: The chief executive of the Border and Immigration Agency wrote to the Home Affairs Committee on 14 June. A copy of this letter is available from the Library of the House.

Statistics on the deportation of foreign nationals were last published in 2002. These data are available through the Home Office's Research Development and Statistics website at:

www.archive2.official-documents.co.uk/document/cm60/6053/6053.htm

Published information on persons removed as a result of deportation action has not been available from 2003 onwards due to data quality issues. The Border and Immigration Agency is putting in place new systems to improve its data collection systems for the future in this area.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made towards the Prime Minister's target of deporting 4,000 prisoners of foreign origin by the end of the year; and what categories of crimes these prisoners were convicted of. [155647]

Mr. Byrne: The chief executive of the Border and Immigration Agency wrote to the Home Affairs Committee on 14 June in which she provided an update on progress being made with foreign national prisoners. A copy of this letter is available in the Library of the House.

Prisons: Drugs

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prison governors have visited prisons abroad to examine their drug treatment systems. [156495]

Mr. Hanson: I have been asked to reply.

Prison governors may occasionally visit overseas prisons to examine aspects of their penal system. No records are kept of prison governors specifically visiting prisons abroad in order to examine prison drug treatment systems.

Repatriation

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many prisoners have been deported to (a) Libya, (b) Lebanon, (c) Jordan and (d) Algeria since the Repatriation Agreement with each country was signed; [154301]

(2) what monitoring of Libyan prisoners has taken place following their repatriation under the Repatriation Agreement; [154302]

(3) what monitoring of Lebanese prisoners has taken place following their repatriation under the Repatriation Agreement; [154303]

(4) what monitoring of Jordanian prisoners has taken place following their repatriation under the Repatriation Agreement; [154304]

(5) what monitoring of Algerian prisoners has taken place following their repatriation under the Repatriation Agreement. [154305]

Mr. Byrne: The repatriation arrangements to which my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister referred in his statement to the House on 25 July are the memoranda of understanding (MoUs) on deportation which were signed with Jordan, Libya, and Lebanon in 2005, and the separate arrangements we have agreed with Algeria. Copies of the MoUs, and of the exchange of letters between the previous Prime Minister and the President of Algeria, are in the Library.

The terms of the MoUs signed with Jordan, Libya and Lebanon provide for the independent monitoring of assurances. Such monitoring has however not yet been needed as the Jordanian and Libyan individuals we wish to deport from the United Kingdom on national security grounds under the MoUs are still within the process of appealing against our decisions.

Since July 2005, eight men have been deported to Algeria on grounds of national security. There are no formal arrangements for post-deportation monitoring. However, the eight individuals concerned were given details of how to contact the embassy in Algiers, and were asked if they wished to provide details of next of kin who could be contacted by the embassy. Two chose to take up this offer, a third merely wanted us to let his relatives know his arrival details.

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether the provisions of the UN Convention on Torture are included in the Repatriation Agreements being concluded by the UK with other countries; [154298]

(2) which countries the Government are in negotiations with about a Repatriation Agreement; [154299]

(3) what conditions are placed by the UK on a country before a repatriation agreement can be signed. [154300]

Mr. Byrne: The agreements referred to are the Memoranda of Understanding (MoUs) on deportation with assurances (DWA) agreed with Jordan, Libya and Lebanon in 2005, and the separate arrangements under which we are able to obtain assurances in respect of people we are seeking to deport to Algeria.

These questions seek information about the numbers of prisoners deported under the arrangements and what monitoring has taken place.

The ongoing appeals process means we have not yet deported anyone under the MoUs with Jordan and Libya, and we have not yet found it necessary to seek assurances under the MoU with Lebanon. Although monitoring arrangements are in place for all three countries, to date, no actual monitoring has occurred.

Since July 2005, eight men have been deported to Algeria on grounds of national security. (A further individual who held dual Algerian and French nationality was deported to France on national security grounds). The arrangements with Algeria do not provide for formal monitoring following deportation. The deportees are given details of how they can contact the British embassy in Algiers, and are also asked if they wish to provide the details of next-of-kin who can serve as a contact point. Two of the eight opted to maintain contact with the embassy, a further individual merely asked for his relatives to be informed of his flight details.

All the men deported to Algeria were detained and questioned following their return, as provided for under Algerian law. Six were subsequently released; two are still detained in custody and are now facing criminal charges.

The terms of the draft answer have been cleared with LAB, OSCT and the FCO's Counter-Terrorism Policy Department.

Resettlement: Iraq

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what response the Government has made to the representations of Amnesty International for the UK and US to provide resettlement programmes for Iraqis who have fled their homes since 2003. [156081]

Mr. Byrne: The Government are aware that the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees and Amnesty International have called for countries to resettle some Iraqi refugees in the region. The Border and Immigration Agency has started discussions with UNHCR regarding the feasibility of resettling some of the Iraqi refugees in the region to the UK. The UK's resettlement programme, the Gateway Protection Programme, currently resettles 500 refugees a year from across the world.

Security Industry Authority: Information Officers

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many press officers are employed by the Security Industry Authority. [154426]

Mr. Coaker: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Security Industry Authority.

Serious Organised Crime Agency: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many press officers are employed by the Serious Organised Crime Agency. [154119]

Mr. Coaker: This is a matter for the Director General of the Serious Organised Crime Agency.

Terrorism

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the Prime Minister's oral statement of 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 841, on national security, how many of the 30 known terror plots, 200 groupings or networks and 2,000 individuals have police and security services begun monitoring (a) between 11 September 2001 and 19 March 2003 and (b) since 19th March 2003. [154375]

Mr. McNulty: It has been the longstanding practice of successive Governments not to comment on the operational activities of the security and intelligence agencies.

Visas: Iraq

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make special arrangements to issue visas to those Iraqi nationals who have directly assisted British forces in Basra to enter the United Kingdom should they wish to do so. [155739]

Mr. Byrne: The Prime Minister commissioned a ministerial review on 8 August 2007 of assistance that might be offered to members of locally engaged staff in Iraq. We will announce the outcome of that review shortly.

Water Supply: Security

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will review the security arrangements for bowsers which are utilised in a national emergency. [154346]

Mr. McNulty: The security of water bowsers during a national emergency is an operational matter for local chief officers of police, in consultation with water authorities.

Yarl's Wood Immigration Removal Centre

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reasons it was decided to fingerprint visitors to Yarl's Wood Immigration Removal Centre. [154209]

Jacqui Smith: Visitors to Yarl's Wood Immigration Removal Centre are not fingerprinted. A new security system is being used which takes an electronic scan of a visitor's thumbprint and recognises a number of points on the thumb to enable the centre operator to maintain a record of who is in the visits room at any time. This ensures that only visitors leave at the end of a visit. The technology does not enable a fingerprint to be reproduced and the information on the system is not passed to either the Border and Immigration Agency or the Police. The thumbprint is not retained.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of prospective employees at Yarl's Wood Immigration Removal Centre have been rejected in each of the last five years after being deemed unsuitable due to a background check. [154211]

Jacqui Smith: The percentages of prospective employees at Yarl's Wood Immigration Removal Centre who did not pass pre-employment checks in the last five years are as follows:

2002	2
2003	2
2004	2

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what background checks prospective employees at Yarl's Wood Immigration Removal Centre undergo. [154212]

Jacqui Smith: Individuals seeking employment at any immigration removal centre, including Yarl's Wood are required to undergo pre-employment checks on their immigration and financial background, counter-terrorist checks and criminal record checks to enhanced level are also carried out. Applicants must pass all of these checks before they can be accredited.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in what circumstances detainees at Yarl's Wood Immigration Removal Centre are placed in handcuffs. [154210]

Jacqui Smith: Handcuffs can be applied to adult detainees following a risk assessment indicating that an individual presents a control or security risk, or in response to an immediate incident. The purpose of handcuffing is to reduce the risk of: absconding; harm to the public, other detainees or staff; damage to property; preventing removal from the United Kingdom; or attempting to prevent the removal of another detainee. Handcuffs are only used when necessary and not as a matter of routine.

Young Offenders: Drugs

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research studies the Government have (a) undertaken, (b) commissioned and (c) reviewed on the effect of drugs education and prevention work with young offenders on reducing levels of (i) illicit drug use and (ii) drug-related harm; and if she will make a statement. [153884]

Mr. Coaker: Young offenders are one of the key risk groups identified as more at risk of developing substance misuse problems. Government Departments consider new reports and studies as part of their daily activity to ensure that current policies are based on up to date information and evidence. Recent and current research on the effect of drug education and prevention work on young offenders' drug use and drug related harm is as follows:

The National Collaborating Centre for Drug Prevention, funded through the Department of Health, produced a review in 2006 of evidence on interventions for vulnerable groups including young offenders.

The Young People's Substance Misuse Service (YPSMS) for under-18s in custody was launched in 2004. Its development and delivery has been evaluated since 2004, undertaken by Galahad on behalf of the Youth Justice Board (YJB). This evaluation is due to be published in September 2007.

JUSTICE

Absent Voting

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what response he has made to the recommendation of the Electoral Commission to require local authority returning officers to check 100 per cent. of the identifiers of postal votes in election counts. [154331]

Bridget Prentice: The Government are committed to the principle that 100 per cent. of returned postal votes should be checked. The Government will wish to move to 100 per cent. checking when it is appropriate and safe to do so, and in particular when there is deemed to be sufficient supplier capacity for checking all returned postal votes. We will work closely with the Electoral Commission and the Association of Electoral Administrators in order to establish when this position has been reached.

Animal Welfare: Prosecutions

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prosecutions there were for the torture of animals in each year since 2001. [154377]

Bridget Prentice: There is no specific offence for torture of animals.

However, information on the number of defendants prosecuted for animal cruelty in England and Wales for the years 2001 to 2005 can be viewed in the following table.

Detailed information on court proceedings for 2006 will be published in the autumn of 2007.

Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates court for the offence of cruelty to animals, in England and Wales, for the years 2001 to 2005[1, 2, 3, 4]

	Prosecuted
2001	975
2002	1,006
2003	999
2004	984

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces.

As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Antisocial Behaviour: Milton Keynes

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) parenting orders, (b) parenting contracts and (c) antisocial behaviour orders were initiated in Milton Keynes in each year since their introduction. [155669]

Mr. Hanson: Parenting orders were piloted between 30 September 1998 and 31 March 2000 but data showing the breakdown by area are not available. Parenting orders were commenced in England and Wales in June 2000. The Youth Justice Board (YJB) has since April 2000 collected the number of parenting orders by youth offending team (YOT) area, as reported to it by youth offending teams including education-related orders where the YOT has been involved. The number of parenting orders relating to crime or antisocial behaviour from April 2000 until March 2007 and those related to non-attendance of children at school until March 2004 reported to the YJB by Milton Keynes YOT are shown in table A:

Table A: Parenting orders related to youth offending or antisocial behaviour and non-attendance reported by Milton Keynes YOT

	Youth offending or antisocial behaviour	Non-attendance where YOT involved

2005-06	0	see table B
2006-07	0	see table B

Since September 2004, the Department for Children, Schools and Families has collected data on the number of parenting orders in England related to non-attendance of children at school and exclusion from school at local authority level. Between 1 September 2004 and 13 April 2007 Milton Keynes did not report any applications to the courts for parenting orders in the case of exclusions.

The number of parenting orders made following truancy prosecution between 1 September 2004 and 13 April 2007 is shown in table B.

Table B: Parenting orders made following truancy prosecution between 1 September 2004 and 13 April 2007

Data on parenting contracts in cases of antisocial behaviour and criminal conduct is collected by the Youth Justice Board as reported by YOTs. Since recording began in April 2004 of the number of final warnings with an intervention or relevant court disposal supported by a parenting contract, Milton Keynes YOT has reported no parenting contracts in the period April 2004 to March 2007.

Recording of the number of final warnings with an intervention or relevant court disposal supported by a voluntary parenting intervention, without a parenting contract, also began in April 2004. Milton Keynes YOT reported 31 such voluntary parenting interventions in the year April 2004 to March 2005, 41 in 2005-06 and 54 in 2006-07.

DCSF also collects data on the number of parenting contracts agreed with parents following bad behaviour/truancy in school. The number of parenting contracts agreed in the case of poor attendance (truancy) at school between 1 September 2004 and 13 April 2007 is shown in table C.

Notes:

1. Between 1 April 1999 and 31 May 2000 data were collected on aggregate numbers only by police force area.

Asylum: Birmingham

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which asylum seekers resident in Birmingham, Selly Oak constituency have had cases heard by judges (a) Illyas Khan and (b) J, involved in the Roselane Driza case. [156386]

Mr. Hanson: It would be inappropriate to identify individual asylum seekers who may fall into the categories requested as it would breach their right to privacy and compromise the anonymity of Judge J.

Bail

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what his Department's estimate is of the effect on the prison population of reversing the presumption in favour of bail in the Criminal Justice Act 2003. [155504]

Maria Eagle: It is not possible to make a precise calculation for full implementation of the provisions for reversing the presumption in favour of bail in the Criminal Justice Act 2003 because of the limited data held centrally and because significant assumptions have to be made about the characteristics of the cases affected.

We are pursuing a carefully phased implementation taking account of prison capacity, starting with the most serious offences.

Claims Management Services

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which claims handlers have been registered by the Claims Management Regulator. [155592]

Mr. Hanson: As at 4 October 2007, 1,476 businesses have been authorised to provide a regulated claims management service in at least one of the regulated sectors which include personal injury, employment, financial services and products, criminal injuries compensation and industrial injuries disablement benefit. Names and addresses of authorised businesses are listed on the claims management website at www.claimsregulation.gov.uk under the authorised business search tab. This register is updated daily.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what guidance is provided by the Claims Management Regulator to providers of claims management services on levels of fees charged for the accessing of consumer files. [155593]

Mr. Hanson: The Claims Management Regulator has not provided any specific guidance to authorised businesses on the level of fees charged for accessing consumer files. It is a mandatory condition of authorisation that authorised businesses comply with the Rules of Conduct. These specifically require a business to "ensure all information given to a client is clear, transparent, fair and not misleading". If a claims business has a contractual relationship with a client then it must specify "any charge the business makes".

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many meetings have taken place between the Claims Management Regulator and the Law Society since April. [155594]

Mr. Hanson: Since April the Claims Management Regulator has met the Law Society once, the Solicitors Regulation Authority three times and the Legal Complaints Service once. The Law Society and the Solicitors Regulation Authority are also members of the Regulatory Consultative Group on Claims Management which has met three times since April. There have been numerous other types of communications with these organisations since April.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what communications have taken place between the Claims Management Regulator and the Serious Fraud Office since April. [155597]

Mr. Hanson: There have been no communications between the Claims Management Regulator and the Serious Fraud Office since April. As necessary the Regulator has communicated with other law enforcement agencies including various police forces and the Serious Organised Crime Agency.

Community Service Orders

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many offenders with unpaid work orders have (a) not completed their orders and (b) been summoned back to court within the term of the order in each supervising court in England and Wales in each of the last three years; [155394]

(2) how many offenders completed their unpaid work orders in each supervising court in England and Wales in each of the last three years. [155395]

Mr. Hanson: Unpaid work requirements were introduced under the Criminal Justice Act 2003, which came into effect on 4 April 2005. They can be made under Community Orders or Suspended Sentence Orders, and are supervised by the National Probation Service. Information on the number of unpaid work requirements which (a) were not completed and (b) completed in each of the last two financial years, by individual probation area, can be found in the following tables. Given the recent introduction of these requirements, it follows that the number of terminations will increase significantly over the first few years. Information on those specifically summoned back to court is not held centrally.

This information has been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Courts: Greater London

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment his Department has made of the likely impact of the reduction of maintenance funding of the London Courts Service for 2007-08. [156458]

Maria Eagle: Maintenance expenditure within London is planned in line with an agreed estate strategy which sets the priorities for maintaining buildings in line with business objectives whilst ensuring a safe and secure working environment. Annual maintenance budgets and programmes of work are agreed in line with this strategy and on the basis of identified business and building risks. Plans and programmes are reviewed quarterly in light of changing requirements and risks, with budgets and programmes amended accordingly. Total maintenance expenditure for 2006-07 (capital and revenue) was £19,145,895. Forecast expenditure (capital and revenue) for the financial year 2007-08 is currently £18,796,250, a reduction in overall expenditure of £349,645 over 2006-07. This reflects planned reductions in both the size of regional estate and efficiency savings achieved as a result.

Criminal Cases Review Commission: Finance

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment has been made of the impact of reducing funding for the Criminal Cases Review Commission in 2007-08. [156008]

Mr. Hanson: The Criminal Cases Review Commission's budget for 2007-08 allows the Commission to spend up to £6,858,000, as compared with £6,771,000 in 2006-07, despite a reduction in the overall envelope. Departmental officials meet with the senior management team of the Commission on a monthly basis to monitor their budget and performance against targets. I understand that the Commission are currently forecasting an under-spend overall as some expenditure has been postponed, although this may change later in the year.

Criminal Justice Act 2003

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what his assessment is of the financial implications of implementing sections 154 and 155 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003. [155545]

Mr. Hanson: Implementation of sections 154 and 155 (magistrates sentencing powers) in conjunction with sections 181 and 182 (custody plus sentence) was deferred in July 2006. No assessment has been made of implementing the magistrates sentencing powers independently of the custody plus sentence.

Defamation: Internet

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many libel actions have been brought in respect of claims made exclusively on websites in each year since 1997; and how many of these were made (a) by a person or company considered to be based in the UK and (b) against a person or company considered to be based in the UK. [155622]

Mr. Hanson: Information on the number of libel actions that have been brought in respect of claims made exclusively on websites in each year since 1997; and the number of these which were made (a) by a person or company considered to be based in the UK and (b) against a person or company considered to be based in the UK is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

There is no single database of High Court cases which could be consulted to provide the information requested; the only way that this information could be obtained would be to consult each case file.

The county courts use the CaseMan IT system to record case details primarily for case management purposes. The system does not hold sufficient detailed data to enable cases involving libel to be specifically identified. Again, this information could only be obtained by consulting court case files.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many internet service providers have been subject to libel actions in each year since 1997. [155623]

Mr. Hanson: Information on the number of internet service providers who have been subject to libel actions in each year since 1997 is not centrally held and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Departmental Coordination

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what (a) ministerial committees and (b) permanent groups involving senior civil servants have been set up by his Department to liaise with the Minister for Women. [155434]

Maria Eagle: We have not set up any formal committees or permanent groups involving senior civil servants to liaise with the Minister for Women although we work closely with the Government Equalities Office on a range of issues.

Departments: Information Officers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many press officers are employed by his Department; [153026]

(2) how many press officers are employed by the Youth Justice Board for England and Wales. [154174]

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many press officers are employed by the Land Registry; [154130]

(2) how many press officers are employed by HM Court Service. [154131]

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many press officers are employed by the Office of the Information Commissioner; [154683]

(2) how many press officers are employed by the Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority; [154680]

(3) how many press officers are employed by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. [154679]

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many press officers are employed by the Boundary Commission for England; [154659]

(2) how many press officers are employed by the Public Guardianship Office; [154660]

(3) how many press officers are employed by the Parole Board for England and Wales. [154661]

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many press officers are employed by the Legal Services Commission; [154435]

(2) how many press officers are employed by Criminal Justice Information Technology; [154427]

(3) how many press officers are employed by the National Archives. [154436]

Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many press officers are employed by the Boundary Commission for Wales; [154469]

(2) how many press officers are employed by the Law Commission. [154462]

Bridget Prentice: The information requested is in the following table.

	Press officers

Boundary Commission for England	[1]0
Boundary Commission for Wales	[1]0
Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority	2
Criminal Justice Information Technology	[2]0
Her Majesty's Courts Service	2

[1] The Boundary Commission for England or Wales have no dedicated press officers. However, press enquiries are dealt with by the general secretariat staff (primarily the Secretary to the Commission).

[2] Media relations are handled centrally by the Ministry of Justice Press Office.

[3] The Law Commission has a two-person communications team. It deals with press enquiries, the Commission's publicity and marketing, the Commission's website, and the publication of the Commission's reports and consultation papers.

[4] The Office of the Information Commissioner has used the equivalent of 21 days of contracted press officer time. The information requested has been provided by the Information Commissioner's Office, an independent body created by statute with responsibility for handling complaints made under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 and the Data Protection Act 1998.

Departments: Legislation

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what legislative provisions introduced by his Department since 1997 have been repealed; [149726]

(2) what legislative provisions introduced by his Department since 1997 have not yet been brought into force. [149727]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice (MoJ) was launched on 9 May 2007 and took on all responsibilities of the former Department for Constitutional Affairs and for the National Offender Management Service and Office for Criminal Justice Reform from the Home Office. The information requested across my Department's entire legislative responsibilities and for the last 10 years would necessitate considerable staff resource across the Department and so cannot be provided except at a disproportionate cost.

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what his Department's projected spending is on advertising and promotional campaigns for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, broken down by cost relating to (i) television, (ii) radio and (iii) print media. [155895]

Mr. Hanson: The Ministry of Justice was created on 9 May 2007. It has no current plans for spending on advertising campaigns during 2007-08 so there are no costs relating to television, radio and print.

Its planned expenditure on integrated promotional campaigns through external public relations companies from 9 May 2007-31 March 2008 comprises:

£25,000 to increase understanding of the work of courts and their role in the justice system.

£12,500 for a public awareness campaign about the legal status of cohabitation.

£55,000 for a public awareness campaign on human rights.

£40,000 for a public awareness campaign on community orders.

It is likely that the Ministry will spend money relating to the Governance of Britain programme during 2007-08/2008-09, but no decisions on resources for this and for advertising and promotion on other issues have yet been made.

The Office of the Public Guardian is mounting a campaign to increase public awareness of the Mental Capacity Act. The campaign will comprise media engagement using a public relations consultancy and will cost approximately £30,000.

Plans for advertising and promotion by the Ministry of Justice for 2008-09 are not yet advanced enough to indicate spend.

Departments: Racial Harassment

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2007, Official Report, columns 141-2W, on Departments: racial harassment, how many of the 79 formal disciplinary investigations conducted in relation to the Prison Service concerned allegations made by (a) prisoners and (b) other members of staff; and how many people have been (i) disciplined and (ii) dismissed as a result of the 35 complaints that were upheld. [152819]

Mr. Hanson: The public sector Prison Service does not hold the information requested centrally in a format that would enable a detailed response to be provided.

From the information that is held on the central database, it is not clear if the individual making the allegation is a prisoner or a member of staff. It is also not possible to break the disciplinary outcome figures down any further as one investigation can involve a complaint being made against more than one person. In order to provide this information it would be necessary to recall and manually examine each individual report which would incur a disproportionate cost.

Domestic Violence Crime and Victims Act 2004

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice following the implementation on 1 April 2007 of Section 145 of the Domestic Violence Crime and Victims Act 2004, what the total amount outstanding is of surcharge payments. [155814]

Maria Eagle: Pending the rollout of a new IT system, my Department introduced an interim system that captures the amount of victims surcharge receipts collected. Between April and August the Department accounted for £455,021 in receipts by this arrangement.

My Department does not currently hold statistical information that shows the number of victim surcharge impositions outstanding. Existing IT legacy systems do not allow any kind of national overview around numbers of individuals with fines, victim surcharge or other impositions.

Driving: Licences

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people have been disqualified from holding or obtaining a driving licence under section 146(1) of the Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 since 1 January 2004. [156299]

Mr. Hanson: Although this disposal is meant to be recorded as part of court proceedings statistics, investigation shows that the data requested is not sufficiently well recorded to be given in this reply.

The Ministry of Justice has started a programme of work looking at the quality of existing data on court sentencing and how this might be improved.

Drugs: Rehabilitation

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what percentage of dependent drug users referred to a drug treatment and testing order or drug rehabilitation requirement successfully completed it in the latest period for which figures are available. [154060]

Bridget Prentice: Completion rates for Drug Treatment and Testing Orders (DTTOs) and Drug Rehabilitation Requirements (DRRs) have risen from 28 per cent. in 2003 to 44 per cent. in 2006-07.

Elections: Young People

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he has taken to measure the effect of action taken to make democracy more accessible by (a) lowering the age of candidacy and (b) opening polling booths to accompanied minors in elections held in (i) England, (ii) Wales, (iii) Scotland and (iv) Northern Ireland in 2007. [154308]

Bridget Prentice: The Government have not carried out any specific monitoring of these new provisions. I am aware that a number of persons aged 18 to 20-years-old have stood as candidates, and some have been elected. Allowing young people and children to accompany voters in polling stations will give young people the opportunity to gain first-hand experience of the electoral process which will hopefully make them more likely to participate in future elections when they reach voting age.

Electronic Tagging: Life Imprisonment

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the nature was of the offence referred to on page 11 of the report on Satellite Tracking of Offenders for which an offender subject to satellite monitoring received a sentence of life imprisonment; and what the offender's name was. [155502]

Maria Eagle: The offender received a sentence of life imprisonment for rape and false imprisonment. The offender cannot be identified as this would be likely to endanger the physical or mental health of the victim and their family. Moreover, undertakings were given to all participating offenders involved in the satellite tracking pilots protecting their anonymity in the researching of the report.

Family Conciliation Services

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will bring forward proposals to require the parties in cases concerning the residence of children and contact arrangements with non-resident parents to attend a mediation assessment before commencing court proceedings. [156195]

Mr. Hanson: Parties applying for public funding under the Community Legal Service are already required to attend a meeting with a mediator to consider mediation.

The Government continue to encourage the greater use of family mediation but do not believe that it should be made compulsory or that all parties in disputes over child residence and contact should be required to attend a meeting to consider its use.

The Government will make changes to court rules and application forms to facilitate referrals to family mediation where the court considers this would be beneficial.

The Children and Adoption Act 2006 when fully implemented will enable the court to direct parties to attend a meeting to learn about mediation in cases where it considers this is appropriate.

Fines: Compensation

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 30 April 2007, Official Report, column 1453W, on fines: compensation, what views were expressed by the Magistrates' Association and Justices' Clerks' Society to his Department during the consultation. [154644]

Bridget Prentice: During the consultation the Magistrates' Association and the Justices' Clerks' Society were concerned about the operation of the scheme and its impact on judicial independence.

My Department worked with the Magistrates' Association and the Justices' Clerks' Society to address these concerns via the Criminal Enforcement Policy Advisory Group.

Following those discussions the Magistrates' Association and Justices' Clerks' Society issued guidance on the application of the Victims' Surcharge to magistrates through their members.

An internal audit on the operation of the Victims' Surcharge process within the courts is currently being undertaken and my officials will continue to work with the Magistrates' Association and the Justices' Clerks' Society on this matter.

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 20 April 2007, Official Report, column 1453W, on fines: compensation, what representations he has received on the victims' surcharge since inception; and if he will make a statement. [154754]

Maria Eagle: Representations have been received by the Home Office, the former Department for Constitutional Affairs, and the new Ministry of Justice, since the surcharge was brought into force on 1 April 2007 on offenders whose sentence included a fine. The following information is the total received to date and updates the information given in the letter of 15 August 2007 by my hon. Friend the Member for Lewisham, East (Bridget Prentice) to the hon. Member for Stroud (Mr. Drew) and my written answer of 16 July, Official Report, column 151W, a copy of which was placed in the Library of the House.

Members of Parliament forwarded to the Government 72 letters and emails from members of the public about the surcharge. Forty-five of these were from people identifying themselves as magistrates. Of these, one magistrate sent letters to five different MPs, and two magistrates wrote jointly to four different MPs. The Government also received a petition signed by 48 magistrates from the Calderdale (North and West Yorkshire) Magistrates' Bench.

The Government also received 13 letters directly from members of the public (eight of whom identified themselves as magistrates) and two letters from the Magistrates' Association.

Fixed Penalties

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 8 January 2007, Official Report, column 137W, on fixed penalties, how many penalty notices for disorder have not been processed where a victim may wish to seek compensation through the criminal courts. [156272]

Mr. Hanson: The police do not collect information on the number of penalty notices for disorder (PNDs) which were not processed because the victim sought compensation through the criminal courts. The Office for Criminal Justice Reform collect data only on the number of PNDs actually issued.

Fixed Penalties: Cambridgeshire

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many fixed penalty notices for disorder were issued in Cambridgeshire in each year since their introduction, broken down by category of offence; and what percentage of money was collected in (a) each category and (b) total in each year. [153769]

Bridget Prentice: Data on the number of penalty notices for disorder (PNDs) issued for all offences paid (and the percentage of money collected), contested in court, and unpaid PNDs registered as fines at court, in Cambridgeshire police force area are provided in the following tables. Data are provided for the years 2004 and 2005, equivalent data for 2006 will be available in autumn 2007.

As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Foreigners: Prisoners

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many foreign nationals were imprisoned in each of the last five years in England and Wales. [153312]

Bridget Prentice: The figures requested are in the following table:

Immediate custodial sentenced receptions into prison establishments 2001-05

	British nationals	Foreign nationals	Unrecorded nationality	Total
2001	84,217	6,026	280	90,523
2002	86,114	7,018	483	93,615
2003	84,251	7,482	512	92,245

Immediate custodial sentenced receptions into prison establishments 2001-05

	British nationals	Foreign nationals	Unrecorded nationality	Total
2005	80,418	9,612	384	90,414

The figures provided in this table are for the number of sentenced receptions into prison establishments in England and Wales in each of the years in question and not the total prison population held in each of the years. The word "imprisoned" is taken to mean the numbers placed in prison under sentence during the 12-month period in each year, not the total numbers held in prison (including prisoners on remand and non-criminal prisoners), which would be answered by prison population figures[1].

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

[1] The figures provided should not be interpreted or used to reflect totals for prison population or total prison capacity.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many foreign former prisoners were housed in young offender institutions on 20 July 2007. [154026]

Mr. Hanson: Comprehensive data in the form necessary to answer the question is not available on the electronic case management system. The information would need to be gathered from the paper files held on each prisoner and this would involve disproportionate cost.

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost was in 2006-07 of providing free telephone calls to foreign national prisoners. [155723]

Mr. Hanson: Prisoners, whether UK citizens or foreign nationals, with close family living abroad receive a free five minute phone call once a month if they have not had a social visit in the preceding period. There is no centrally held information about the cost of free calls nor locally of the breakdown between UK citizens and foreign nationals. Therefore, it is not possible to provide this information. Each establishment pays for such calls from their local budget, and costs are dependent on the number of eligible prisoners as well as the country they wish to call.

House of Lords: Reform

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent discussions he has had with cabinet colleagues on proposals for legislative reform of the House of Lords. [156074]

Mr. Straw: I will reply to the hon. Gentleman as soon as possible.

Human Trafficking

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many safe houses there are in the UK for victims of human trafficking; and how many trafficking victims these safe houses accommodated in each of the last five years. [155302]

Maria Eagle: The Government have funded the Poppy project to provide support to adult women trafficked for sexual exploitation since 2003. Poppy has 35 bed-spaces across London and an outreach service. The project accepts referrals from across the United Kingdom. Women who apply for asylum continue to be supported by the project but are accommodated through Asylum Support. Additionally, there are a number of independently funded voluntary organisations that are able to accommodate and support victims of human trafficking for sexual exploitation.

The following table details the number of women supported through the Poppy project in the last five years. Information on the number of women supported by the independently funded voluntary organisations is not held centrally.

	Support and accommodation	Outreach support
2007 (January to August)	43	57
2006	40	9
2005	34	1
2003	25	12

Judicial Communications Office for England and Wales: Information Officers

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many press officers are employed by the Judicial Communications Office for England and Wales. [154434]

Bridget Prentice: The Judicial Communications Office for England and Wales has two press officer posts. The junior appointment is a job-share.

Legal Aid

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the rate of legal aid has been since 1997; how much has been spent on legal aid in each year since 1997; and how many hours of legal aid work have been provided in each such year. [155449]

Maria Eagle: The expenditure on legal aid in cash terms during each of the financial years since 1997-98 is set out in the following table.

	£ million
1997-98	1,525
1998-99	1,623
1999-2000	1,551
2000-01	1,664
2001-02	1,716
2002-03	1,909
2003-04	2,077
2004-05	2,038
2005-06	2,028
2006-07	1,980

Legal aid is paid at a wide range of different rates reflecting the variety of cases funded under different schemes within the Criminal Defence Service (CDS) and Community Legal Service (CLS). Details of the rates currently payable for the various categories of legal aid are available on the Legal Services Commission's website.

It is not possible to state the number of hours of legal aid work carried out in each year since 1997, as this is not centrally recorded. By January 2008 the vast majority of legal aid work will be remunerated on a 'per case' basis rather than by the hour, reflecting the progressive extension of fixed and graduated fees over recent years.

Offenders: Deportation

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 17 July 2007, Official Report, column 270W, what the Department's estimated timescales are for the completion of the procedures referred to with (a) Jamaica, (b) Nigeria and (c) Pakistan. [154189]

Bridget Prentice: The United Kingdom has concluded prisoner transfer agreements with both Jamaica and Pakistan. The Agreement with Jamaica was signed in London on 26 June 2007; the Agreement with Pakistan was signed in Islamabad on 24 August 2007. Before these agreements come to force each country must complete their respective constitutional procedures.

In the United Kingdom this means that the text of the agreements must be laid before Parliament for 21 consecutive sitting days. It is intended that the Agreements with Jamaica and with Pakistan will be laid before Parliament when it reassembles after the summer recess.

Jamaica has not yet completed changes to its domestic legislation but UK officials in Kingston are following up progress with the Jamaican Ministry of National Security and the Attorney-General's Office.

The Agreement with Pakistan has only recently been signed. We do not yet know what domestic procedures are necessary to enable the Pakistani Government to ratify it. The British High Commission will take this forward with the Pakistani Government.

Negotiations with Nigeria are ongoing. It is not possible to say when they will be concluded.

Parc Prison

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if the Minister with responsibility for prisons will meet the hon. Member for Bridgend and a group of interested parties to discuss the case for a footpath to be built from the A4061 to Parc Prison. [154085]

Mr. Hanson: I have arranged for my hon. Friend and interested parties to meet with prison representatives of HMP YOI Parc to discuss the case for a footpath to be built. A representative of HMP YOI Parc will contact my hon. Friend's constituency office to arrange this.

Parole

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the cost implications of the Court of Appeal ruling that prisoners should be compensated when they are detained beyond the date on which they are eligible for parole; what estimate he has made of the number of prisoners who may fall within the terms of this ruling, broken down by period of detention beyond eligibility for parole; what steps he is taking to ensure that HM Prison Service ends this practice; and if he will make a statement. [154342]

Mr. Hanson: Her Majesty's Prison Service Annual Report and Accounts 2006-2007 details parole performance for the fiscal year 2006-07. Of those prisoners awarded parole, only 3 per cent. were subject to late release due to administrative delays. This is lower than in previous years and the Government are committed to ensuring that no prisoner is detained in prison beyond their parole eligibility date due to administrative delays.

Personal Records: USA

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will make a statement on the Passenger Name Record system and the agreement with the US for the handing over of personal data; what restraints or limitations of use or storage of such data (a) are binding under the agreement and (b) are expected by the agreement but are not binding; and if he will make a statement. [156065]

Mr. Hanson: The European Union, on 23 July 2007, and the United States of America, on 26 July 2007, signed an agreement on the processing and transfer of Passenger Name Record (PNR) data by air carriers to US authorities. The new agreement, which is binding, is in three parts:

(i) an agreement signed by both parties;

(ii) a letter which the US sent to the EU in which it sets out assurances about how the US handles the collection, use and storage of EU PNR data; and

(iii) a letter from the EU to the US acknowledging receipt of the assurances and confirming that it considers the level of protection of EU PNR data in the US as adequate.

The main features of the agreement and the accompanying letter are:

The purposes for the transfers are unchanged and are for preventing and combating (1) terrorism and related crimes; (2) other serious crimes, including organised crime, that are transnational in nature; and (3) flights from warrants or custody for crimes described above. PNR may be used where necessary for the protection of the vital interests of the data subject or other persons, or in any criminal judicial proceedings, or as otherwise required by law.

Data will be retained for seven years in an operational status and for a further eight years in a non-operational status. The new agreement imposes stringent conditions that it may be accessed only with the approval of a senior DHS official designated by the Secretary of Homeland Security and only in response to an identifiable case, threat or risk.

Sensitive personal data will be filtered out and will not be used by the DHS, except in exceptional cases where life is at risk. The DHS will maintain a log of any access to sensitive data and will inform the European Commission normally within 48 hours.

The Government believe that this agreement balances the need to prevent and combat crime with the need to provide data protection safeguards for UK passengers.

A copy of the agreement and the exchange of letters was published in the Official Journal of the European Union on 4 August 2007.

Prison Accommodation

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average total certified normal accommodation was of the prison estate in England and Wales in each year since 1997. [154784]

Bridget Prentice: The following table shows the average in use certified normal accommodation (CNA) of the prison estate in England and Wales for each year since 1997.

	In use CNA
1997	56,411
1998	61,439
1999	62,266
2000	63,245
2001	63,780
2002	64,158
2003	66,022
2004	67,678
2005	69,090
2006	70,658
2007 (as at 31 July)	71,247

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent estimate he has made of spare capacity in the prison system; what plans he has to build new prisons; and if he will make a statement. [156213]

Mr. Hanson: The Government will ensure that there are sufficient prison places for those serious and dangerous offenders who ought to be in prison. The National Offender Management Service continues to investigate options for providing further increases in capacity. A programme to deliver 8,000 new prison places by 2012 was announced in July 2006, to be provided both in new prisons and by expansion at existing prisons.

A further 1,500 places were announced on 19 June 2007. Work started immediately on 500 of the extra places, the first of which will come into use in January 2008. The composition of the further 1,000 places will be decided in the light of Lord Carter's forthcoming report into the long-term future of the prison estate and the supply and demand of prison places.

The National Offender Management Service is closely monitoring the prison population and spare capacity in the system.

We are reviewing the basis by which the current spare capacity is calculated and will make a further statement shortly.

Prison Accommodation: Cardiff

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many times facilities in Cardiff court buildings have been used to house prisoners overnight in each month in 2007; and if he will make a statement. [156287]

Mr. Hanson: Prisoners were held overnight in court cells in Cardiff on 11-12 June 2007. This is the only occasion on which prisoners were held overnight in court cells in Wales during 2007.

Prison Service: Pay

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on how many occasions the Deputy Director General of HM Prison Service recommended a member of staff to receive required hours allowance in each of the years that he occupied the role of (a) Deputy Director General and (b) Director of Operations; what reasons were provided for receipt of the allowance in each case; and if he will make a statement. [153680]

Maria Eagle: The Director of Operations recommended that one member of his staff be paid required hours allowance. This was to reflect the individual's role as a duty officer in support of the Incident Command Suite and was in line with arrangements for other duty officers. There have been no other recommendations made during his tenure as Director of Operations or Deputy Director General.

Prison Service: Public Appointments

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on how many promotion and selection boards the Deputy Director General of HM Prison Service sat in each of the years that he occupied the role of (a) Deputy Director General and (b) Director of Operations; and if he will make a statement. [153675]

Maria Eagle: The current Deputy Director General sat on the following boards as Director of Operations:

	Board
11 April 2003	Eastern Area Manager post
3 November 2003	Thames Valley, Hampshire and IoW Area Manager post
14 November 2003	Head of Personnel Management Group
	Head of Juveniles Group
30 June 2004	London Area Manager post
9 September 2004	Head of Performance Delivery post (Operations Directorate)
11 July 2005	West Midlands Area Manager post
11 July 2005	South West Area Manager post
12 July 2005	Casework Manager post (Operations Directorate)
3 March 2006	Budget Manager post (Operations Directorate)
2 August 2006	North East Area Manager post

On the following board commenced as Director of Operations and concluded as Deputy Director Genera (DDG):

16 November 2006/6 December 2006—Yorkshire Area Manager post

On the following board as DDG:

6 March 2007—Head of Women and Young Peoples Group

9 May 2007—HR Director post

Prisoners Release: Housing

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what percentage of prisoners discharged at the end of their sentence (a) went into temporary accommodation and (b) were of no fixed abode in the most recent period for which figures are available. [156293]

Mr. Hanson: Data are currently collected on the percentage of prisoners who move on to settled accommodation on discharge from custody. Details of those in temporary or of no fixed abode are not collected. Between 1 April and 31 July 2007, 80.2 per cent. of discharged prisoners moved to settled accommodation.

Prisoners Release: Reoffenders

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the proportion of convicted criminals released through the early release scheme who go on to re-offend; what plans he has to review the operation of the early release scheme; and if he will make a statement. [156212]

Maria Eagle: The number of prisoners released under End of Custody Licence (ECL) conditions who have subsequently been recalled to prison for alleged re-offending in August is 30. This is based on those notifications to the National Offender Management Service received by the end of 21 September. The number of releases on ECL in August was 2,493.

These figures were published on the Ministry of Justice website on 28 September 2007.

ECL was introduced as a temporary measure and we will keep under review the length of time it will remain in use in the light of new prison capacity coming on stream and the review by Lord Carter. So far the data collected about ECL indicate that the scheme is working well.

Prisoners: Death

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 19 July 2007, Official Report, columns 577-83W, how many of the deaths in prisons since 1997 took place in prisons that were classified as overcrowded; what assessment he has made of the effects of overcrowding on the number of deaths in prison; and if he will make a statement. [154154]

Bridget Prentice: The precise impact on prisoners of increased prison populations and their overcrowding, alongside other factors, is unclear. Cell-sharing can be a protective factor and overcrowding itself does not explain why there are self-inflicted deaths in prisons. Most significantly, a high proportion of prisoners arrive in prison with risk factors that we know increase the risk of them harming themselves, such as substance withdrawal, uncertainty and anxiety about their own cases, the impact of and adjustment to imprisonment, family concerns, a history of previous abuse or self-harm, and mental health issues.

However, managing very high numbers of prisoners can hinder efforts to reduce prisoner suicide rates. For example, by causing an increase in transfers between prisons, some prisoners being located further from home and family support, a possible reduction in the time staff can spend with individual prisoners on care and risk assessment, and an increase in the length of time prisoners are locked in their cells, rather than engaged in regime activities, association and other purposeful activity.

Prisoners: Drugs

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many prisoners received regular methadone in the last 12 months; [156532]

(2) how many prisoners received prescribed Buprenorhine in the last 12 months; [156533]

(3) how many prisoners received prescribed Natraxone in the last 12 months. [156534]

Mr. Hanson: This information is not held centrally in the form requested.

Since April 2007, the Department has collected information on regular opioid prescriptions. These will predominately be methadone treatments, but may also include Buprenorphine. Prisons reported 4,458 such treatments from April to July 2007.

Prisoners: Mental Health Services

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what assessment he has made of the prevalence of mental health problems amongst prisoners aged 60 years and over; [155616]

(2) what assessment he has made of the adequacy of levels of provision of health services in prisons for older prisoners; [155618]

(3) what assessment he has made of the health of older prisoners compared with (a) older people in general and (b) younger prisoners. [155619]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested is not held centrally.

A thematic review by HM Chief Inspector of Prisons, 'No problems—Old and quiet: Older prisoners in England and Wales' (2004), examined the health care services available to older prisoners. It found that 85 per cent. of older male prisoners had one or more major illnesses documented in their medical records, and 83 per cent. reported at least one chronic condition. The most common documented illnesses were mental health issues and cardiovascular, musculo-skeletal and respiratory conditions.

A copy is available in the Library and on the Home Office website at:

http://inspectorates.homeoffice.gov.uk/hmiprisons/thematic-reports1/hmp-thematic-older-04.pdf

The Department of Health will publish 'Pathways to Care for Older Offenders: A Toolkit for Good Practice' shortly. This good practice toolkit will help enable prison healthcare staff to develop services, backed by a formal, routine assessment process, that meet the health and social care needs of older offenders both during their stay in prison and following release back into the community. A copy will be placed in the Library.

Prisoners: Transport

Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many prisoner journeys in the south-west in relation to each prison were made by taxi or other private hire vehicle; and at what cost in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07; [154597]

(2) how much each prison in the south-west region spent on privately contracted transportation in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07; and what proportion of this cost was represented by taxi or private hire journeys. [154598]

Maria Eagle: Accurate information is not available in the form requested and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost, as it would require a search through a very large number of invoices, and interrogation of a number of accounting codes.

Prisons: Elderly

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what arrangements he makes for the provision of healthcare services in prisons to take account of the particular needs of older prisoners. [155615]

Mr. Hanson: Since April 2006, commissioning responsibility for prison health services has been fully devolved to the national health service.

Primary care trusts work with prisons to assess the health care needs of their population, whatever their age, and develop services to meet those needs. Local partnership boards ensure that these are of an equivalent quality and range to that which the general public receives from the NHS.

Services for older prisoners should be made on the basis of the NHS National Service Framework for Older People—issued to all prisons under cover of a Prison Service Instruction in 2001. This requires staff to deliver comprehensive and well co-ordinated packages of care that meet the needs of older prisoners and ensure continuity of care for them on release.

An older prisoners action group has recently been established as part of the Care Services Improvement Partnerships health and social care in criminal justice programme. This will work to address the specific health and social care service inequalities for older offenders, including establishing national access protocols to services based on a common assessment of need.

Prisons: Overcrowding

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the impact of prison overcrowding on the number of (a) prisoner suicides and self-inflicted injuries, (b) prisoner-on-prisoner and prisoner-on-prison officer assaults and (c) re-offending rates. [153917]

Bridget Prentice: The precise impact on prisoners of increased prison populations and their overcrowding, alongside other factors, is unclear. Cell-sharing can be a protective factor and overcrowding itself does not explain why there are self-inflicted deaths in prisons. Most significantly, a high proportion of prisoners arrive in prison with risk factors that we know increase the risk of them harming themselves, such as substance withdrawal, uncertainty and anxiety about their own cases, the impact of and adjustment to imprisonment, family concerns, a history of previous abuse or self-harm, and mental health issues.

However, managing very high numbers of prisoners can hinder efforts to reduce prisoner suicide rates. For example, by causing an increase in transfers between prisons, some prisoners being located further from home and family support, a possible reduction in the time staff can spend with individual prisoners on care and risk assessment, and an increase in the length of time prisoners are locked in their cells, rather than engaged in regime activities, association and other purposeful activity.

Similarly, there is no clear link between higher population levels and violence. For example, analysis of young offenders statistics, a prisoner group that can be associated with higher assault rates, has not been able to show any such link.

In respect of re-offending rates, the National Offender Management Service has not established a correlation between overcrowding and re-offending. Prison Service monitoring of the delivery of offending behaviour programmes has shown that less than 1 per cent. of those who started offending behaviour programmes in 2006-07 failed to complete them because of transfer, possibly indicating any increased prisoner transfers due to population levels or other factors are not hindering completion of offending behaviour programmes.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many of the self-inflicted deaths in prisons in (a) 2006 and (b) 2007 to date occurred inside prisons that were classified as overcrowded. [154278]

Bridget Prentice: The information requested is provided in the following table.

	2006	[1]2007
Total self-inflicted deaths[2] in custody	67	58
Self-inflicted deaths that occurred in prisons where the number of prisoners held in one or more cells exceeded Certified Normal Accommodation	59	46

[1] up to and including 20 August only.

[2] Self-inflicted deaths include all deaths where it appears that a prisoner has acted specifically to take their own life. Annual numbers may change slightly from time to time as inquest verdicts and other information become available (previously some 20 per cent. of these deaths have not received a suicide or open verdict at inquest).

Prisons: Visits

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prison establishments the Deputy Director General of HM Prison Service visited in each of the last 12 months; on which dates; to which prisons; which of these visits were (a) announced and (b) unannounced; and if he will make a statement. [153676]

Maria Eagle: The Deputy Director General has visited the following establishments in the last 12 months. All the visits were announced.

Date	Prison
12 September 2006	Askham Grange
19 September 2006	Sudbury
20 October 2006	Bedford
23 November 2006	Foston Hall
29 November 2006	Lancaster Farms
30 November 2006	Lancaster Castle
18 December 2006	Wormwood Scrubs
4 January 2007	Shepton Mallet
5 January 2007	Shrewsbury
7 March 2007	Buckley hall
8 March 2007	Stafford
8 June 2007	Gartree
22 June 2007	Wayland
26 July 2007	Holme House
1 August 2007	Kennet
22 August 2007	Dorchester
7 September 2007	Highpoint

Public Order Offences

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 4 June 2007, Official Report, column 267W, on public order offences, what data is available on the number of penalty notices for disorder issued in (a) 2006 and (b) 2007, broken down by (i) offence and (ii) police force area. [156271]

Mr. Hanson: Information on the number of penalty notices for disorder (PNDs) issued in 2006, broken down as requested will be available in November, when the data are published.

Road Traffic Offences: Prisoners Release

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 23 July 2007, Official Report, column 800W, on road traffic offences: prisoners release, which of the releases for motoring offences between (a) 29 June and 5 July and (b) 6 July and 31 July, were for the offences of (i) causing death by dangerous driving under section 1, (ii) dangerous driving under section 2 and (iii) causing death by careless driving while under the influence of drink or drugs under section 3a of the Road Traffic Act 1988. [156268]

Mr. Hanson: Data on the number of End of Custody Licence releases for the three specific sections of the Road Traffic Act 1998 are not collated centrally because the recording of offence details on prison IT systems is not sufficiently detailed. Collecting this information reliably to answer the question at the detailed level requested would involve collecting and checking data manually and therefore incur disproportionate cost.

Robbery: Sentencing

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what percentage of convictions for robberies of personal property resulted in (a) custodial and (b) community sentences in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2006. [154558]

Bridget Prentice: It is not possible to identify the number of convictions for personal robbery as court proceedings data do not differentiate between personal and commercial robberies.

The following table shows the number of convictions for "Robbery" in England and Wales in 1997 and 2005, as well as the number and percentage of community sentences and custodial sentences.

2006 data will be available in November 2007.

Number of defendants found guilty and sentenced for robbery with sentence breakdowns and percentages: England and Wales: 1997 and 2005[1,2]

Of those sentenced	1997	2005
Found guilty	5,589	7,083
Sentenced	5,597	7,139
Community sentence	1,307	2,539
Percentage	23	36
Immediate custody	4,008	4,407

Sentencing

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 10 May 2007, Official Report, column 441W, on sentencing, how many of the 173 offenders referred to maintain their innocence. [154201]

Bridget Prentice: Information on prisoners who maintain their innocence is not held centrally by the Pre-Release Section (PRS) in the National Offender Management Service, nor is it recorded on the Prison Service Inmate Information System. The information could be collected only at disproportionate cost by examining the individual case records of the 173 prisoners concerned. As the information requested is not recorded routinely it is unlikely that an examination of individual case files either by PRS or staff at the various prisons concerned would produce reliable or accurate information.

Denial of guilt itself is no bar to indeterminate sentence prisoners progressing through their sentences, or to ultimate release on licence. Prisoners may maintain their innocence for a wide variety of reasons and that stance may often change during sentence. Guidance on the management of life sentence prisoners who deny their guilt is contained in PSO 4700.

Sexual Offences: Children

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were convicted of sexual offences against children in each year from 1980-81 to 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [153941]

Mr. Hanson: Information on the number of people convicted of sexual offences against children for the years 1995 to 2005 can be viewed in the following table.

Information for 1980 to 1994 is being gathered and I will write to the hon. Gentleman and place a copy in the Libraries of the House once available.

Court proceedings data for 2006 will be available in the autumn of 2007.

2001	2,163
2002	2,284
2003	2,154
2004	2,399

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[3] 128 offences have been used In this table and include sections of the following statutes: Sexual Offences Act 2003, Sexual Offences Act 1956, Sexual Offences Act 1956 as amended by Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994, Sexual Offences Act 1956 as amended by Sexual Offences (Amendment) Act 2000, Sexual Offences Act 1956 as amended by the Sexual Offences Act 1967.

[4] Some offences have been omitted as the vast majority of data will be against adults, and a minority will be against children.

Stamp Duties

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what records the Land Registry plans to collate on the number of house sale transactions that will receive the zero rate of stamp duty on zero carbon homes. [153977]

Bridget Prentice: Her Majesty's Land Registry does not collate data relating to stamp duty land tax including number of new zero carbon homes that will qualify for a stamp duty land tax relief, because this data will be collated by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs who are responsible for administering stamp duty land tax.

Supreme Court

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the costs of (a) setting up and (b) operating a supreme court; and what estimate he has made of the cost of continuing the appellate function of the House of Lords. [156651]

Maria Eagle: As announced on 14 June 2007 the estimated running costs of the UK supreme court is £12.3 million per annum at 2010-11 prices. The annual running cost includes a rental figure of £2.1 million per annum, increasing at a rate of 2.5 per cent. per annum. The rental figure covers the cost of the renovation and will be paid to Kier Group over a 30-year period.

There are additional set up costs of £5.9 million for the Ministry of Justice programme team over the five years of the implementation programme and £14.3 million for items such as Ministry of Justice professional adviser fees and the non-capital element of the fit-out costs including loose furniture, IT and library books.

As previously announced the running costs of the Appellate Committee of the House of Lords were estimated at £3.2 million per annum at 2004 prices. This figure excludes building and services costs as it is not possible to extract these specific sums from the overall running costs of the House of Lords.

Tribunal Services: Interpreters

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost was of interpreters for the Tribunals Service for the last 12 months. [154755]

Bank Services

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimate he has made of the value of deposits in dormant bank accounts in (a) Scotland and (b) the United Kingdom. [154453]

Kitty Ussher: The Government set out in their March consultation document that dormant accounts would include bank and building society accounts where there has been no customer-initiated activity for a period of at least 15 years. On this basis, an assessment by banks and building societies suggests that between £250 million and £350 million lies currently unclaimed in banks, and up to £150 million unclaimed in the building society sector. These figures are for the United Kingdom. There are no specific estimates for Scotland.

The banks and building societies have committed to a comprehensive recruiting exercise in advance of the introduction of an unclaimed assets scheme in the UK. This will build on existing arrangements to help customers to track down their accounts.

Bank Services: Domicile

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate his Department has made of the number of UK-domiciled people with undeclared bank accounts abroad. [152912]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC does not have an estimate of the number of UK-domiciled people with undeclared bank accounts abroad.

Cash Dispensing: Yeovil

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will introduce new, free ATMs in Yeovil constituency as part of the Working Group initiative to improve access in low income communities; and if he will make a statement. [154624]

Kitty Ussher: As announced by my predecessor on 19 June, excellent progress has been made towards the goal of providing over 600 new free ATMs across the 1,707 low income target areas identified by the ATM working group as lacking convenient access to free cash withdrawals. Yeovil constituency is not one of the target areas identified by the working group because no areas in Yeovil constituency were found to fall within the most deprived quartile of areas in the UK according to the Index of Multiple Deprivation. However, Yeovil constituency currently has 61 free ATMs, according to LINK data.

Child Benefit

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was underpaid in child benefit in each year since 1997. [154316]

Jane Kennedy: Child benefit is paid for each week of entitlement at a fixed weekly rate. The amount of child benefit paid is solely based on the number of children for whom the claimant is responsible.

All eligible claimants of child benefit receive this full weekly entitlement in respect of all eligible children.

Child Benefit: Overseas Residence

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 365W, on child benefits: overseas residence, whether all such cases are handled by a single centralised processing unit. [154058]

Jane Kennedy: All child benefit claims are processed centrally.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to his answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 365W, on child benefit: overseas residence, for what reason his Department does not hold information on the amount of child benefit and child tax credit paid in respect of children living abroad. [154326]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC collects and publishes a great deal of information on tax credits and child benefit and this is available on its website. The data collected and published are kept under review to ensure that the most helpful information is made available wherever possible.

Child Trust Fund

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his latest estimate is of the cost to the public purse of the Child Trust Fund in each year from 2007-08 to 2020-21 for which an estimate exists; and if he will make a statement. [154007]

Kitty Ussher: The information is as follows:

Friend Economic Secretary to the Treasury on 18 April 2006, Official Report, column 542W, and to the reply he received from my right hon. Friend Secretary of State for Education and Skills on 17 October 2006, Official Report, column 1112W.

Administration costs—I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 25 January 2006, Official Report, column 2214W, to the hon. Member for Leeds, North-West (Greg Mulholland). Updated figures will be published later this year.

Clothing: China

Mr. Moore: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the value of garments manufactured in China that were imported into the UK from Bangladesh in the latest period for which figures are available. [154083]

Departments: Advertising

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the cost-effectiveness of advertising commissioned by his Department in the last 12 months. [148506]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury's only advertising in the last 12 months has been for the purpose of staff recruitment. Posts are only advertised externally where suitable candidates are not expected to be available internally.

The Treasury takes advice from its contracted advertising agency for the most suitable media for each job. The contract was awarded in April 2007 following a competitive tender via the Catalist Framework.

The media used are regularly reviewed for their effectiveness in terms of the quality and quantity of applications generated.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many consultants' contracts were terminated early in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and at what cost in each year. [154341]

Angela Eagle: This information requested is not centrally held and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Contracts

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the Government's policy is on the use of tendering processes as part of the awarding of commercial contracts. [154035]

Angela Eagle: The Government's policy is to achieve value for money (vfm) in all their purchasing decisions. EU Procurement Directives provide the legal framework for public procurement. They set out the procedures which must be followed before awarding a contract when its value exceeds set thresholds. The EU rules reflect and reinforce the value for money focus of the Government's procurement policy.

Where a tender process is not subject to the Directives (e.g. below threshold), EU Treaty-based principles of non-discrimination, equal treatment, transparency, mutual recognition and proportionality apply and some degree of advertising, appropriate to the scale of the contract, is likely to be necessary to demonstrate transparency.

Departments: Debts

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what level of the financial remissions set out in the departmental annual report his Department made by (a) recoverable debts caused by official error, (b) recoverable debts not pursued on the grounds of value for money and (c) irrecoverable debts in each year since 2000; and if he will make a statement. [154532]

Angela Eagle: Losses and special payments are subject to strict control procedures and notation arrangements as set out in "Government Accounting". The Treasury complies with those arrangements and reports losses in its Resource Accounts as necessary. A more detailed breakdown than that shown in the Resource Accounts could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Copies of the Resource Accounts can be found at:

www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/about/resourceaccounts/

Public Services and Growth	4

Departments: Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent by his Department on staff awaydays in the last 12 months. [153166]

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the 20 most expensive training courses provided to Ministers and civil servants in his Department were in 2006; and what the cost was of each per participant. [153918]

Angela Eagle: This information is not held centrally and would be available only at a disproportionate cost.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what training courses were attended by staff from (a) HM Revenue and Customs and (b) his Department in each of the last three years; how many staff attended each course; and what the cost was of each course to his Department; [153922]

(2) how many days' training on average were provided to each member of staff at (a) HM Revenue and Customs, (b) his Department, (c) the Office for National Statistics, (d) the Debt Management Office, (e) the Royal Mint, (f) the Office for Government Commerce, (g) the Government Actuary's Department and (h) the Valuation Office Agency in each of the last five years. [153961]

Angela Eagle: The information is not held centrally and would be available only at a disproportionate cost.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent on training awaydays for staff of his Department and its agencies in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [153960]

Angela Eagle: Most Departments do not record the cost of awaydays separately from other training and development costs. The following information is available without incurring disproportionate costs.

Department/ agency	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
National Savings and Investments	33	58	35
Office of National Statistics	25	22	23

The Treasury only started to record awayday costs separately in 2005-06, when initial data collection indicated spend of £54,000 on awaydays. Due to changes to the accounting system more accurately to capture spend on awaydays, including associated training, recorded spend in 2006-07 was £192,000. This figure is therefore not directly comparable to the previous year.

Departments: Visits Abroad

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total cost was of visits abroad by staff in his Department and its agencies in 2006-07. [153962]

Angela Eagle: For details of spending on overseas visits in 2006-07 by staff and Ministers of HM Treasury I refer to the answer given by my hon. Friend the then Financial Secretary to the right hon. Member for Maidenhead (Mrs. May) on 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 1186W. Information on spending on overseas visits is not separately identified in the accounting systems of National Savings and Investments or the Valuation Office Agency and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Details of spending by the other Departments and agencies is as follows:

2006-07

Department/agency	£000
Debt Management Office	17
Office of Government Commerce	75
OGCbuying.solutions	4
Royal Mint	316
Office for National Statistics	418
Government Actuary's Department	71
HM Revenue and Customs	1,949

Since 1999, the Government have published on an annual basis a list of all overseas visits by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500, as well as the total cost of all ministerial travel overseas. Copies of the lists are available in the Libraries of the House. All travel is undertaken in accordance with the "Civil Service Management Code" and the "Ministerial Code".

Departments: Marketing

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent on managing his Department and its agencies' corporate identities in each year since 1997-98. [153920]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him today to Question 153923, on the cost of brand management. In addition to those costs, the following information is available without incurring disproportionate cost:

the Office of Government Commerce spent £15,000 in 2004-05 and £19,000 in 2006-07 on re-branding;

the Office for National Statistics spent £122,000 in 2003-04 and £53,000 in 2004-05

the Government Actuary's Department spent £21,000 in 2001-02 and £38,000 in 2006-07 on design of new logos and changes to stationery and signage following changes to its corporate identity;

the Royal Mint spent £79,000 in 2006-07 in respect of a one off exercise to introduce a new corporate identity, and National Savings and Investments have spent approximately £58,000 in each year since 2004.

For HMRC spending, I refer to the answer given on 22 February 2007, Official Report, Column 836W.

Disabled: Employment

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what proportion of disabled people were in work in each year since 1997. [154673]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 20 September 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Questions about the number and proportion of disabled people who were in work in each year since 1997. (154673)

The attached table shows the number and proportion of disabled people of working age who are in employment for the three months ending June each year from 1999 to 2007. The disability question was first asked in 1999. Comparable estimates are not available for 2000. These estimates are not seasonally adjusted.

Estimates are taken from the Labour Force Survey (LFS). As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Disabled[1] people of working age[2] in employment: United Kingdom: not seasonally adjusted

2003	3,362	49
2004	3,485	50

[3] Disabled people in employment as a percentage of all disabled.
Note:
Comparable data are not available for 2000.

Domestic Rates: Northern Ireland

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) gross and (b) net revenue from domestic rates in Northern Ireland was in each year since 1997-98; and what the estimated figures are in each case for 2007-08. [153805]

Angela Eagle: I understand that the information requested is obtainable from the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency, an agency within the Northern Ireland Department of Finance and Personnel.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether Sir David Varney's review of taxation policy and economic growth in Northern Ireland will review the new system of domestic rates and the policy for domestic rate revaluations. [153809]

Jane Kennedy: The published terms of reference for Sir David's review were

"To report on how current and future tax policy, including the tax changes in the Budget 2007, can support the sustainable growth of businesses and long-term investment in Northern Ireland."

Domicile: Taxation

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment his Department has made of the effect of its amnesty for offshore account holders based in the UK on the number of non-domicile tax claimants; and if he will make a statement. [153859]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC has no evidence to suggest that the Offshore Disclosure Arrangements have affected the number of non-domicile tax claimants. The arrangements, which enable offshore account holders who registered by 22 June deadline to disclose any liability not previously included in their tax returns, are not an 'amnesty' because full tax, interest and penalties are all payable.

Environmental Trusts

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what steps he is taking to facilitate the release of monies deposited in Environmental Trust accounts originally earmarked under Entrust's categories C and CC for education and research; [154198]

(2) what total amount derived from landfill tax revenues is held in the largest 12 environmental trust accounts; [154199]

(3) what steps he (a) has taken and (b) is taking to make the bank accounts of environmental trusts which receive landfill tax monies more accountable; [154200]

(4) how much remains unspent in Environmental Trust bank accounts unable to be released due to the withdrawal of the education and research C and CC categories. [154197]

Angela Eagle: Any contributions made before 1 April 2003 for spending on sustainable waste management (object C and CC) projects that had a written agreement in place committing those funds to a specific project prior to 1 April 2007 can still be spent on that project. If there was not a written agreement in place by 1 April 2007, the funds should be released for spending on other qualifying objects.

This policy has been clearly communicated by HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) and Entrust to site operators and environmental bodies respectively.

Information provided by environmental bodies on their most recently submitted returns shows that the largest 12 environmental bodies held a total of approximately £97 million in their bank accounts at the end of the period in relation to contributions made under the Landfill Communities Fund. Environmental bodies must report to Entrust the amount of money held in their bank accounts relating to contributions made to them under the Landfill Communities Fund. Entrust verifies this information, according to risk, as part of its audit function. Entrust also provides quarterly reports to HMRC of contributions made and spent. HMRC keep a keen interest in the relationship between money contributed and spent.

Exchequer Secretary

Mrs. May: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total estimated annual cost is of (a) expenses, (b) salary, (c) office space, (d) administrative support and (e) special advisers for the new Exchequer Secretary. [154699]

Angela Eagle: I draw the ministerial salary of a Parliamentary Under-Secretary. I have five members of staff in my private office. I have no special advisers. An estimate of the annual costs of my office space, administrative support and other expenses could be made only at disproportionate cost.

Financial Services Authority: Information Officers

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many press officers are employed by the Financial Services Authority. [154433]

Kitty Ussher: I understand that the Financial Services Authority has 10 press officers in total, including the head of department and two managers.

Financial Services Compensation Scheme: Information Officers

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many press officers are employed by the Financial Services Compensation Scheme. [154686]

Kitty Ussher: I understand that the Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS) employed two full-time people who acted as press officers as at 1 April 2007.

Fiscal Liaison Officers

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many fiscal liaison officers there were in each year since 2000, broken down by the location in which they were based; and if he will make a statement. [154492]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC currently employs a network of Fiscal Crime Liaison Officers, based overseas, with jurisdictional responsibility for some 48 countries. However, I cannot give details of the locations of HMRC Fiscal Crime Liaison Officers, as to do so could jeopardise current operations and potentially put the officers and their families at risk.

Fraud

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what evaluation he has made of the abuse of accommodation address agencies by perpetrators of fraud relating to (a) taxes, (b) customs and excise and (c) other criminal activity relating to the responsibilities of his Department. [156594]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC undertakes research to establish whether accommodation addresses are exploited by fraudsters that covers various areas of the Department's activities. However, providing a full analysis would require reference to current criminal casework and intelligence, which is not in the public interest.

Grandparents: Parental Responsibility

John Barrett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the contribution to the economy of grandparents who undertake child care roles. [153993]

Jane Kennedy: The Government have not made an assessment of the contribution to the economy of grandparents who undertake child care roles.

HM Revenue and Customs: Contracts

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the review of external contracts at HM Revenue and Customs will report. [154288]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs is currently reviewing the two main strategic IT and Accommodation contracts, the ASPIRE and STEPS Contracts. The ASPIRE Review will be completed in March 2008. The STEPS Review will report internally in autumn 2007. HM Revenue and customs are not currently reviewing any other external contracts.

HM Revenue and Customs: Correspondence

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer why HM Revenue and Customs has not replied to the letter of 6 June from the hon. Member for Aylesbury on the case of Mr. P. J. E. of Aylesbury concerning tax credit claims for his disabled son and daughter-in-law; and when HM Revenue and Customs expects to reply. [155170]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 12 September 2007]: The hon. Member's constituent's tax credit award is affected by the administrative problem with certain claims-as detailed in my written statement of 25 July 2007, Official Report, columns 62-63WS.

HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) is in the process of writing to those claimants whose awards are affected. An HMRC official at the tax credit office telephoned the hon. Member's parliamentary office on 4 September 2007 with an update and an interim reply was issued on 14 September 2007.

HM Revenue and Customs: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many press officers are employed by HM Revenue and Customs. [154136]

Jane Kennedy: The HM Revenue and Customs press office currently employs:

Head of Media

10 press officers serving the national media;

5 press officers engaged on communications strategy and planning; and 11 press officers throughout England, Scotland and Northern Ireland serving the regional media.

HM Revenue and Customs: Internet

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people downloaded HM Revenue and Customs podcasts in each month since their inception. [153982]

Jane Kennedy: The monthly downloads since April 2007 are as follows:

	Number
April	2,414
May	1,370
June	919
July	1,073

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost was of producing HM Revenue and Customs podcasts in each month since their inception. [153983]

Jane Kennedy: The total production cost of the two HMRC podcasts launched in April 2007 was £5,300 plus £927.50 VAT.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he has taken to measure the effectiveness of HM Revenue and Customs podcasts. [153984]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC carefully assesses the effectiveness of its podcasts by monitoring the number of downloads and customers who have registered for the subscription feed.

HM Revenue and Customs: Job Satisfaction

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment he has made of levels of staff satisfaction at HM Revenue and Customs in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement; [153988]

(2) what processes he has in place to measure staff satisfaction at HM Revenue and Customs. [153989]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC takes staff satisfaction very seriously. To monitor this it conducts a staff survey twice a year which questions a sample of its staff.

The results of the November 2006 staff survey is published on the HMRC internet at http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/research/

The June 2007 staff survey results are currently being finalised.

HM Revenue and Customs: Operating Costs

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total running costs were of each of the offices of HM Revenue and Customs in each of the last five years. [153991]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs cannot supply the information requested as its provision would be at disproportionate cost.

HM Revenue and Customs: Productivity

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what processes he has in place to measure staff productivity at HM Revenue and Customs. [153990]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC has a range of performance measures at individual, team and departmental levels which provide staff productivity information.

Housing: Valuation

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the presence of double or treble glazing in a domestic dwelling may affect its capital valuation for valuation purposes by the Valuation Office Agency. [153806]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the then Minister for Local Government to my hon. Friend the hon. Member for Stroud (Mr. Drew) on 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 504W, which sets out the position in respect of valuations carried out by the Valuation Office Agency for council tax purposes. For other capital valuations, the effect will depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many neighbourhood geo-codes recorded by the Valuation Office Agency to assist with domestic valuation purposes there are in (a) England and (b) Wales. [153810]

Jane Kennedy: The Valuation Office Agency (VGA) does not use the term "neighbourhood geo-code". However, when developing the Automated Valuation Model (AVM) for the postponed Council Tax Revaluation in England, the VOA divided the country into approximately 10,000 localities. The precise number cannot be provided except at disproportionate cost. AVM functionality was not used in the Revaluation in Wales.

Inland Revenue: Reviews

Mr. Gray: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether his Department commissioned the review and report undertaken by Messrs Attwood (International Division) and Bishop (Large Business Office) of Inland Revenue in August 1999. [154040]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 381W.

[156270]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 8 October 2007:

(b) how many lone parents there were in each local authority at the 1981 Census, expressed as a proportion of the working age population, broken down by five year age cohort. (156252)

I have been asked to reply in her absence.

Figures are provided for the 1981, 1991 and 2001 decennial censuses. As no published tables exist that provide the requested figures, the tables have been specially run and deposited in the House of Commons Library.

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about the proportion of the working-age population employed in manufacturing industries in each local authority area. I am replying in her absence, (156269)

Tables giving the information requested have been placed in the House of Commons Library. The figures in the tables are estimates from the Annual Local Area Labour Force Survey, for the twelve months ending in March of each year from 1996 to 2007.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the Labour Force Survey are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Pope: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects the Paymaster General to reply to the letter dated 28 June 2007 from the hon. Member for Hyndburn on Ms M. Hartley-McGough. [153791]

Office for National Statistics: Information Officers

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 20 September 2007:

The attached table gives the number of people aged (a) 50 to 54, (b) 55 to 59, (c) 60 to 64, (d) 65 to 69 and (d) over 70 years in employment for the three months ending June each year from 1997 to 2007. Comparable estimates are not available for 1998 and 2000. These estimates are not seasonally adjusted.

Personal Savings

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effects of the trend in the UK household savings ratio over the period 1997 to 2006; and if he will make a statement. [153925]

Kitty Ussher: HM Treasury continually monitors the level of household savings, and the implications for the wider economy are examined as part of the pre-Budget report and Budget forecasting process.

Since 1997 the Government have: introduced the Individual Saving Account (ISA) so that everyone has access to a tax-advantaged savings scheme; introduced the Child Trust Fund (CTF) so that in the future all children will enter adulthood with a financial asset regardless of family background, and piloted the Saving Gateway to explore ways in which matched funding can promote saving in lower income households.

PFI

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) aggregate gross value of the total expected cash payments under all current and approved future private finance initiative contracts and (b) estimated current capital value of all existing and future private finance initiative contracts is. [154285]

Angela Eagle: The information requested is as follows:

(a) Projections of future cash payments under the private finance initiative were provided in Budget 2007 at table C19. This can be found on the HM Treasury website at the following address:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/3/2/bud07_c19.pdf

(b) The estimated capital value of signed PFI contracts can be found on the HM Treasury public website:

The latest estimate of the capital value of unsigned PFI contracts at the preferred bidder stage can be found in table C18 of Budget 2007:

Plastics: Taxation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what Government policy is on a (a) plastic bag and (b) chewing gum tax. [153819]

Angela Eagle: The Chancellor continues to keep all taxes under review. The Government currently have no plans for a plastic bag tax or a chewing gum tax.

Public Participation: Elderly

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which groups are being consulted as part of his Department's review of the needs of over 85 year-olds. [154649]

Andy Burnham: As part of the long-term vision of the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review, the Government have consulted widely the implications of an ageing population on public services such as long-term care for the elderly. In addition to those listed, this work has benefited from the input of other groups with whom the Department of Health, the Department of Communities and Local Government, the Department for Work and Pensions and Her Majesty's Treasury have engaged on related issues.

Public Sector: Pensions

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 393W, on public sector pensions, when he will publish his latest estimate of the total liabilities of unfunded public service pension schemes as at 31 March 2006. [154018]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Gentlemen to the answer my right hon. Friend the former Chief Secretary gave on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 393W.

A new estimate will be published in the autumn.

Revenue and Customs: Manpower

Mr. Paice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many HM Revenue and Customs front-line detection staff with primary responsibility for detecting illegal imports of products of animal origin were employed in each year since 2001-02. [153767]

Jane Kennedy: With the exception of certain technical specialists, all HMRC frontline detection staff are employed as multifunctional Customs staff with a responsibility to tackle a range of risks at the border, including dealing with products of animal origin (POAO). None of them are employed with primary responsibility for detecting illegal imports of products of animal origin.

Revenue and Customs: Telephone Services

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many calls were received to the confidential hotline Customs Confidential in each year since 2000; how many resulted in charges being issued; and if he will make a statement. [154491]

Jane Kennedy: Statistics for HMRC's Customs Confidential Hotline are unavailable for the years 2000 to 2002. They are held for 2003 onwards and are:

	Calls received
2003	29,581
2004	23,728
2005	31,389
2006	37,950
2007 (to end of July)	22,309

It is not possible to identify the number of charges resulting from these calls. Prosecution is one among a range of options that HMRC may take in relation to intelligence derived from Customs Confidential. In cases that lead to prosecution the intelligence received through Customs Confidential may be a small part only of that used during the course of the investigation.

Smuggling: Tobacco

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what proportion of HM Revenue and Customs cigarette seizures were of (a) counterfeit cigarettes and (b) contraband cigarettes, in each year since 2000; and if he will make a statement; [154483]

(2) how many (a) counterfeit and (b) contraband cigarette seizures there were of (i) 0-250,000, (ii) 250,001-500,000, (iii) 500,001-750,000, (iv) 750,001-1,000,000, (v) 1,000,001-2,000,000, (vi) 2,000,001-3,000,000, (vii) 3,000,001-4,000,000, (viii) 4,000,001-5,000,000, (ix) 5,000,001-6,000,000 and (x) 6,000,001 or more cigarettes in each year since 2000; and if he will make a statement. [154497]

Angela Eagle: The latest HM Revenue & Customs (HMRC) Annual Report, available on the HMRC website: www.hmrc.gov.uk covering the period 2001-02 to 2005-06, indicates that HMRC has seized more than 12 billion cigarettes since the Tackling Tobacco Smuggling Strategy was launched in 2000. Prior to 2002, HMRC did not estimate the proportion of counterfeit cigarettes seized.

From 2002 to 2004, data on seizures of cigarettes in quantities above 500,000 sticks, and from 2004, data on seizures in quantities above 250,000 sticks, are published in HMRC Annual Reports. No further breakdown of this information is available.

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many confiscation orders concerning suspected illicit tobacco were (a) requested and (b) given in each year since 2000; and if he will make a statement; [154484]

(2) how many people convicted of using their premises for the sale of unmarked tobacco products were fined in each year since 2000; and if he will make a statement; [154487]

(3) how many people convicted of trading in illicit tobacco not bearing a UK duty-paid fiscal mark were (a) given a fine and (b) prohibited to sell tobacco products for up to six months in each year since 2000; and if he will make a statement; [154488]

(4) how many people convicted of (a) tobacco smuggling and (b) handling smuggled tobacco were given a (i) fine, (ii) community sentence and (iii) custodial sentence in each year since 2000; and if he will make a statement; [154489]

(5) what the average time was between seizure of suspected illicit tobacco and cigarettes and criminal charges being issued for (a) tobacco smuggling and (b) handling of smuggled tobacco in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [154501]

(6) how many (a) seizures, (b) prosecutions and (c) convictions there were for the use of premises for the sale of illicit tobacco in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [154502]

(7) how many (a) seizures, (b) prosecutions and (c) convictions there were for trading in illicit tobacco in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [154503]

(8) how many (a) seizures, (b) prosecutions and (c) convictions there were for the handling of smuggled tobacco in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [154504]

(9) how many (a) seizures, (b) prosecutions and (c) convictions there were for smuggling tobacco in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [154505]

Angela Eagle: High level data on tobacco seizures, numbers of people sentenced and the value of confiscation orders made are published in HM Revenue & Customs Annual Reports—available on the HMRC website: www.hmrc.gov.uk. The latest report contains details for years 2001-02 to 2005-06. However, the information is not collated and recorded in a way that would enable the level of detail requested to be identified.

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many scanners were in operation as part of the national network of scanners to detect high volume tobacco and cigarette smuggling in freight containers in each year since 2000; and if he will make a statement. [154490]

Angela Eagle: The Government take very seriously the detection of smuggled cigarettes and tobacco and the fleet of scanners has made a vitally important contribution to the success of the tobacco smuggling strategy. The number of scanners that have been in operation since 2000 is:

	Number
2000-01	3
2001-02	12
2002-03	12
2003-04	14
2004-05	14
2006-07	14

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much hand-rolled tobacco bound for the UK was seized overseas by HM Revenue and Customs overseas officers and their host agencies in each year since 2000; and if he will make a statement. [154493]

Angela Eagle: Figures for the amount of hand-rolling tobacco (HRT) seized overseas have not been routinely compiled and published to date. Most seizures of illicit shipments of HRT take place in he UK as the criminal activity normally involves the smuggling of product which has been purchased duty-paid in other member states. These seizure statistics are published in HM Revenue and Customs annual reports—available on the HMRC website:

www.hmrc.gov.uk

The last report contains details of such seizures from financial years 2001-02 to 2005-06, and indicates that more than 1,150 tonnes of HRT have been seized since the Tackling Tobacco Smuggling Strategy was launched.

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many illegal cigarettes bound for the UK were seized overseas by HM Revenue and Customs overseas officers and their host agencies in each year since 2000; and if he will make a statement. [154494]

Angela Eagle: HM Revenue and Customs publishes its seizure statistics in its annual reports—available on the HMRC website:

www.hmrc.gov.uk

These statistics include details of the amount of seizures of illicit cigarettes made overseas as a result of HM Revenue and Customs overseas officers' engagement with their host agencies. The last report contained details of such seizures from financial years 2001-02 to 2005-06, indicating that HMRC has seized more than 12 billion cigarettes since the "Tackling Tobacco Smuggling Strategy" was launched in 2000.

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what progress has been made in reaching the operational target for hand-rolled tobacco of reducing the size of the UK illicit market by 1,200 tonnes by 2007-08; and if he will make a statement; [154495]

(2) how much was spent in each year on the publicity campaign launched in March 2000 to increase public awareness of tobacco smuggling; and if he will make a statement; [154498]

(3) how many people were employed to tackle tobacco smuggling in each year since 2000, broken down by job description; and if he will make a statement; [154499]

(4) how much was spent on tackling hand-rolled tobacco and cigarette smuggling communication campaigns in each year since 2000; and if he will make a statement. [154506]

Angela Eagle: The most recent HM Revenue and Customs estimate of the size of the illicit market for hand-rolled tobacco (HRT) is for 2004-05. Estimates for 2000-01 to 2004-05 were published in "Measuring Indirect Tax Losses—2006" by HMRC in December 2006 and is available in the House of Commons Library.

An assessment of the HRT illicit market share estimate for 2005-06 will be available at the pre-Budget report 2007.

The full-time equivalents (FYE) of staff employed to tackle tobacco smuggling for 2005-06 and 2006-07 are shown in the table. Figures for 2000-01 to 2004-05 are not available.

	Detection	Investigation	Intelligence	Total
2005-06	1,406	319	325	2,050
2006-07	1,545	278	297	2,120

HMRC have invested just over £5.1 million (excluding VAT) in media campaigns to support the anti-smuggling cigarette and hand-rolling tobacco strategies since March 2000. The spend by year was:

	Media spend (£)
2000-01	2,049,968
2001-02	865,772
2002-03	806,193
2003-04	672,449
2004-05	83,368
2005-06	556,382

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the (a) revenue loss, (b) illicit market share and (c) cross-border shopped share of the illicit hand-rolled tobacco market in each year from 2004; and if he will make a statement. [154496]

Angela Eagle: The estimated revenue loss to the Exchequer (duty plus VAT) from the consumption of hand-rolled tobacco supplied illicitly and from legitimate cross-border purchases and their respective market shares of total consumption for 2000-01 to 2004-05 are given in "Measuring Indirect Tax Losses—2006" published by HMRC in December 2006, which is available in the House of Commons Library.

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what average time was taken to confirm or deny that seized (a) cigarettes and (b) hand-rolled tobacco was counterfeit before charges could be made in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [154500]

Angela Eagle: Since the measures requiring tobacco manufacturers to control their supply chains came into effect on 1 October 2006 the time taken to determine whether seizures of cigarettes or hand rolling tobacco notified to the tobacco manufacturers were counterfeit has been less than 30 days. Prior to this, the time taken varied but was rarely more than two months. The circumstances of each case determine what further action may be taken.

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many meetings his Department had with tobacco manufacturers to discuss tobacco smuggling in each year since 2000; what the dates were of the meetings; and if he will make a statement. [154507]

Angela Eagle: Contact with the main UK tobacco manufacturers and exchange of information has been a key part of the success of the tackling tobacco smuggling strategy. Officials of HM Revenue and Customs have met regularly and frequently with UK tobacco manufacturers in each year since 2000 to discuss tobacco smuggling and other issues.

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the market share of illicit cigarettes of cross border marketing and smuggling in each year since 2003; and if he will make a statement. [154533]

Angela Eagle: HM Revenue and Customs estimates the market share of illicitly supplied cigarettes consumed in the UK and of cigarettes that have been legitimately cross-border shopped.

The estimated market share, and revenue loss to the Exchequer, of illicitly supplied and cross-border shopped cigarettes for 2000-01 to 2004-05 are given in "Measuring Indirect Tax Losses—2006" published by HMRC in December 2006 and is available in the House of Commons Library.

Stamp Duties

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the timetable is for the introduction of the zero rate of stamp duty for zero carbon homes; [153802]

(2) what records (a) his Department, (b) HM Revenue and Customs and (c) the Valuation Office Agency will collate on the number of house sale transactions that received the zero rate of stamp duty on zero carbon homes; [153803]

(3) what his Department's definition of a zero carbon residential dwelling is for the purposes of stamp duty. [153812]

Kitty Ussher: The draft regulations, which set out (among other matters) the definition of a new zero-carbon home for stamp duty land tax purposes, were circulated to the Public Bill Committee on the Finance Bill in May. The Treasury consulted interested stakeholders on these draft regulations in June and July. It is intended that draft regulations will be laid before Parliament in October under the affirmative procedure with a view to being approved by the House of Commons coming into force.

It is proposed that the tax relief will apply retrospectively to acquisitions of homes that met the criteria occurring from 1 October 2007, in line with the Government's Budget commitment.

The tax relief will be claimed using the stamp duty land tax return, which will contain a specific code for this tax relief. HM Revenue and Customs will therefore be able to monitor the number of claims for tax relief and the amount of relief given. HM Treasury will have access to this data in an aggregated form. The Valuation Office Agency has no plans to collate information in respect of the relief.

Tax Allowances: Small Businesses

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the (a) number and (b) proportion of small businesses which will benefit from the introduction of the new annual investment allowance in (i) 2008-09 and (ii) 2009-10. [154284]

Jane Kennedy: The annual investment allowance (AIA) was introduced as part of the Budget 2007 business tax reforms. The AIA will benefit all those small businesses that make capital investments, regardless of their legal form. There are around 4.3 million small businesses, 2.1 million of which are estimated to be making capital investments. For 95 per cent. of these, the AIA will mean that all of their capital expenditure can be written off in the year of investment.

Tax Credit Act 2002

Peter Viggers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many breaches of section 18 of the Tax Credit Act 2002 have occurred since it came into force; and what sums of money were involved in each case. [155408]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 17 September 2007]: As set out in my statement of 25 July, HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) estimate that 250,000 awards will need to be reviewed. HMRC estimate that around £20 million in recovered sums will need to be refunded in total.

Tax Credits

Peter Viggers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much tax credit has been reclaimed in each of the last five years; from how many individuals tax credits payments were reclaimed in each such year; and what estimate he has made of the amount to be reclaimed in 2007-08. [155409]

Jane Kennedy: For information on tax credit debt and recovery in years 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06, I refer the hon. Member to table 4, section 2, of the Comptroller and Auditor Generals Standard Report in the HM Revenue and Customs 2006-07 accounts, which is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/about/hmrcaccounts2007.htm

Information on overpaid tax credit awards and debt recovery for 2006-07 and 2007-08 will be published in future annual reports.

Information on the number of individuals who have had their tax credit overpayment recovered is not available except at disproportionate cost.

An estimate of the recovery of overpaid tax credits in 2007-08 is not available.

Tax Evasion: Telephone Services

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the Tax Evasion Hotline cost to administer in each month since its inception; [153985]

(2) how many calls the Tax Evasion Hotline received in each month since its inception; [153986]

(3) what proportion of calls received by the Tax Evasion Hotline resulted in prosecutions for tax evasion in each month for which figures are available. [153987]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs does not currently have a separate record of the cost to administer the Tax Evasion Hotline in each month since its inception. These data could be collated only at disproportionate cost.

The number of calls received by the Tax Evasion Hotline each month since its inception are detailed in the following table. HM Revenue and Customs advertising campaigns can significantly affect the volume of calls received in any month.

HM Revenue and Customs are unable to provide this information. The exemption at section 31(1)(a) of the Freedom of Information Act on 'law enforcement' also provides an exemption from disclosure in respect of the proportion of calls received resulting in prosecution.

Calls received by the Tax Evasion Hotline

Taxation on Gambling

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the effective rate of tax is for bingo played in a licensed bingo premises; [154443]

(2) what the effective rate of tax is for player-to-player poker played in a casino; [154444]

(3) how much VAT was paid by licensed bingo clubs in each of the last five years for which figures are available; [154615]

(4) how much VAT was paid by casinos in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [154616]

Angela Eagle: Total VAT receipts are published in the Financial Statement and Budget Report 2007. It is not possible to give the breakdown requested. Player-to-player poker played in a casino is subject to VAT at the standard rate of 17.5 per cent. Duty is levied at 15 per cent. on gross profits from bingo and participation fees for mainstage bingo are subject to VAT at the standard rate. The casino and bingo industries are also subject to the usual taxes imposed on business.

Taxation: Overseas Residence

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will update the information contained in paragraphs 2.14 and 2.15 of the April 2003 background paper on reviewing residence and domicile rules in individual taxation for the most recent date for which the information is available. [145041]

Jane Kennedy: It is not possible to update these figures on a directly comparable basis due to changes in the methodology applied since the publication of the background paper. Specifically, whereas the figures set out in the background paper were based on a 10 per cent. sample of the self-assessment system, current data draws on all available self-assessment returns.

On that basis, data drawn from the 2005-06 self-assessment returns show that some 143,000 have a residence or domicile status which would enable them to benefit from the remittance basis of taxation. Of these, some 114,000 are non-domiciled residents, with the remainder being resident but not ordinarily resident.

The most recent analysis suggests that around 83,000 individuals completed an employment schedule with UK employment income of about £9.7 billion, giving an average annual employment income of just under £120,000. A smaller subset of 17,000 also returned foreign earnings totalling £900 million which were not remitted to the UK and therefore not liable to tax, giving an average foreign earnings figure of just over £50,000.

As the data contained in paragraph 2.15 of the background paper was the result of a one-off analytical exercise which has not been repeated, an update is therefore not available.

Terrorism: Finance

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the value of suspected terrorist funds frozen and then unfrozen was in each of the last 10 years for which information is available; and if he will make a statement. [153863]

Kitty Ussher: Since 2001, when the UN's terrorist asset freezing regime was established, 282 accounts totalling approximately £630,000 have been frozen in the UK. Approximately £25,000 has been unfrozen since 2002[1]. The Treasury does not publish a historic breakdown of frozen or unfrozen funds for each year, due to the need to avoid the identification, directly or indirectly, of personal or operationally sensitive information. However, we make quarterly statements to Parliament on the operation of the asset freezing regime.

[1] These figures include approximately $58,000 of suspected terrorist funds frozen in the UK and approximately $31,000 of unfrozen funds. This has been converted using current exchange rates. Future fluctuation in the exchange rate may impact on the contribution this sum makes to future totals of suspected terrorist funds frozen.

Trading Funds

Mr. Todd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the economic review of trading funds will include a consultation process with public and private sector stakeholders. [154391]

Andy Burnham: We expect the experts commissioned to undertake the study to consult with all stakeholders they consider necessary to inform their work.

Valuation Office

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what data the Valuation Office Agency has purchased from the Landmark Information Group in the last five years; and for what purposes. [153807]

Jane Kennedy: The Valuation Office Agency's Mineral Valuer provides advice to central Government Departments and public sector clients in respect of valuation issues arising from the re-development of contaminated or potentially contaminated and brownfield land.

The initial stage of the provision of such advice involves the collation of information from available record sources to establish the previous use history of the subject site.

The Agency procured the services of the Landmark Information Group as it considers their Enviro Check Report offers the Agency's clients the most efficient and cost-effective solution to the gathering of this information at this time.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the Valuation Office Agency has made representations to have access to the energy performance certificate register. [153808]

Jane Kennedy: The Valuation Office Agency has not made any representations to have access to the energy performance certificate register.

Valuation Office Agency: Information Officers

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many press officers are employed by the Valuation Office Agency. [154421]

Jane Kennedy: The Valuation Office Agency employs two (full-time equivalent) people with press officer responsibilities.

Valuation Office: Vetting

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether staff of the Valuation Office Agency who undertake inspections of domestic dwellings for council tax valuation purposes are required to have (a) basic and (b) enhanced Criminal Records Bureau checks. [153804]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the written answer that my right hon. Friend the former Paymaster General gave the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) on 6 February 2006, Official Report, columns 1036-37W.

Since April 2007, one in five of new staff has been subject to basic criminal record bureau checks in line with the HM Government baseline personnel security standards.

Water Charges: South West Region

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the average proportion of household income spent on water bills in each county in the South West. [154767]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 20 September 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what estimate has been made of the average proportion of household income spent on water bills in each county in the South West. (154767)

Estimates of household expenditure and income are based on the Expenditure and Food Survey (EFS), which is based on a sample of approximately 7,000 households in the UK. Statistics on household expenditure are published in 'Family Spending', the latest edition of which was published on 18th January 2007 http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=361). An analysis of the household income data collected in the EFS also appears in the ONS analysis 'The effects of taxes and benefits on household income', the most recent analysis being published on 17th May 2007 (http://www.statistics.gov.uk/taxesbenefits). The survey sample is not sufficiently large to allow reliable results to be produced for counties. However, using the data underlying these reports, estimates have been calculated of the proportion of household income spent on water bills in the South West region, compared to the UK as a whole.

In 2005/06, average household expenditure on water charges was £329 per year for the South West compared to £277 for the UK. In the same year, the average household disposable income in the South West of England was £25,197, compared to £26,039 for the UK as a whole. So the proportion of disposable household income spent on water bills was 1.3% in the South West and 1.1% for the UK as a whole.

Welfare Tax Credits

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Government have written off in misplaced tax credits in (a) Hampshire and (b) England in each year since their inception. [153631]

Jane Kennedy: The total value of disputed overpayments in the UK written off as a result of official error was around the following:

	Value (£ million)
2004-05	5.8
2006-07	9.0

The value of disputed overpayments written off in 2005-06 was greater because HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) cleared a large number of cases from the first year of tax credits where error rates were much higher. HMRC details of the procedures adopted between April 2005 and 30 September 2005 were published in the Supplementary memorandum submitted by HMRC in the Treasury Select Commission's report: "The administration of tax credits: sixth report of session 2005-06: Volume 2 Oral and written evidence (page Ev193), House of Commons papers 811-II 2005-06".

The information requested is not available at county level or for England.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of people who were underpaid tax credits in 2005-06 were living on incomes of less than 60 per cent. of UK median earnings. [153981]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, information on the number of underpaid tax credit awards in 2005-06 by level of income used for calculating tax credit entitlement is available in Table 5 of the HMRC publication "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Finalised Annual Awards 2005-06. Supplement on Payments in 2005-06", which is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personaltax-credits/cwtc-quarterly-stats.htm

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many tax credit claimants had their entitlements wrongly calculated in each year for which figures are available. [153992]

Jane Kennedy: Information on error and fraud in the Child and Working Tax Credits can be found on HMRC's website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personaltax-credits/error-fraud.htm

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the increase in the annual entitlement to tax credits as a result of increasing the income disregard from £2,500 to £25,000; what the margin of error is in that calculation; and if he will make a statement. [154621]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member on 19 December 2006, Official Report, column 1472W.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimates of the number of tax credit compliance staff have been made public since 1 March 2003; and if he will make a statement. [154622]

Jane Kennedy: Ministers and officials update Parliament on tax credit staffing numbers as necessary and these are on the record. For the most recent figures on compliance staff available, I refer the hon. Member to the Committee of the Public Accounts 22nd report, of Session 2006-07, on tax credits and specifically to the oral evidence by HMRC officials on 23 October 2006 given at question 80.

Welfare Tax Credits: Illegal Immigrants

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what mechanisms he has put in place to track the amount of tax credits paid erroneously to illegal immigrants. [153979]

Jane Kennedy: Persons subject to immigration control are not generally entitled to tax credits. This follows long standing Government policy. "Tackling Error and Fraud in the Child and Working Tax Credits" is available on the HMRC website. This document sets out what HMRC has been doing and will continue to do, to tackle error and fraud.

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was overpaid in tax credits to deceased claimants in each of the last three years. [153965]

Jane Kennedy: Around £2 million was overpaid in tax credits in each of the last three years, 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06, where the award ceased due to the death of an applicant.

This can occur due to the time taken to notify HMRC of a death.

HMRC are currently exploring whether added flexibility could be built in to mitigate overpayments in the circumstance.

Welfare Tax Credits: Scotland

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the Written Ministerial Statement of 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 62WS, on tax credit administration, how many awards HM Revenue and Customs will be reviewing from people living in (a) Scotland and (b) Orkney and Shetland in 2003-04 and 2004-05; and how many households in (i) Scotland and (ii) Orkney and Shetland will be contacted about their 2005-06 awards. [154059]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC will be reviewing approximately 16,000 awards in Scotland for 2003-04 and 2004-05, of which around 100 are in Orkney and Shetland.

Around 6,000 households in Scotland have been contacted about their 2005-06 awards, around 50 of which are in Orkney and Shetland.

Ascension Island

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the recourse available to inhabitants of Ascension Island under the Human Rights Act 1998; and if he will make a statement. [156157]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has not made a formal assessment of the application of the Human Rights Act 1998 to those who work and live on Ascension Island. It is a matter for the courts of St. Helena and dependencies to determine (under the English Law (Application) Ordinance and/or St. Helena Law (Application) Ordinance) whether UK Acts of Parliament should apply in these jurisdictions. However, the UK has extended the European Convention on Human Rights and the Right of Individual Petition to St. Helena and dependencies.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he or his Ministers plan to visit Ascension Island; and if he will make a statement. [156230]

Meg Munn: There are no plans for a ministerial visit to Ascension Island at present.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 17 July 2007, Official Report, column 248W, on Ascension Island, what the programme of information and education consisted of; what materials have been distributed on Ascension Island; what public meetings have been held; and if he will make a statement. [156251]

Meg Munn: The programme of information and education about the benefits of participation in the democratic process is ongoing. The Governor held open public meetings to discuss governance and democracy issues in May and September. Public consultation, including an open meeting in May, has taken place on new draft entry control and harbours legislation. Public consultation has also taken place during 2007 on taxation reform, for which consultation papers were published and circulated. The Governor and the Ascension Island Administrator have consulted the Ascension Island Advisory Group on a number of issues, including policy on property and businesses.

Bermuda Housing Corporation

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what public response was made by (a) his Department and (b) the Governor to the television broadcast of the Premier Ewart Brown of Bermuda on 1 June 2007 during which he criticised the Governor in relation to the Bermuda Housing Corporation investigation; and if he will make a statement. [155821]

Meg Munn: The Governor and the Premier issued a joint press statement on 7 June 2007 (available on the Government of Bermuda website, www.gov.bm). The Foreign and Commonwealth Office drew on this statement in answer to press inquiries.

Bermuda: Politics and Government

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what alterations to protocol were proposed by Dr. Ewart Brown, Premier of Bermuda, to the Governor, in June 2007, with regard to the future relationship between the holders of their respective offices; what response the UK Government have made; and if he will make a statement. [155820]

Meg Munn: We are unaware of any alterations to protocol proposed by Dr. Ewart Brown, Premier of Bermuda in June.

Bermuda: Territorial Waters

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) class of maritime craft, (b) numbers of craft and (c) numbers of personnel are maintained by the Government of Bermuda to ensure law enforcement and national security in and around the territorial waters of Bermuda; and if he will make a statement. [156333]

Meg Munn: We understand that the Bermuda Regiment currently has the following equipment in service: 23 ft Rigid Inflatable Boats and 17 ft Boston Whalers; the number of crafts are two Rigid Inflatable Boats and two Boston Whalers; and there are 16 part time soldiers in the Boat Troop.

The Bermuda Police Service currently has the following vessels in service: 27 ft Boston Whalers, 22 ft Boston Whalers, 24 ft Halmatic Rigid Hull Inflatables, 52 ft Austal Patrol Boat; the number of craft are two 27 ft and 22 ft Boston Whalers, two Halmatic Rigid Hull Inflatables and one Austal Patrol Boat; and there are 17 officers in the Marine Unit.

Bosnia: Politics and Government

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the political situation in Bosnia-Herzegovina. [155417]

David Miliband [holding answer 17 September 2007]: We are concerned by the lack of political progress in Bosnia and Herzegovina (BiH). Elections in 2006 saw an increase in ethnic nationalist rhetoric. Since then, progress on the reform agenda has slowed. The priority is for BiH's leaders to reach agreement on police reform, a key condition for conclusion of BiH's Stabilisation and Association Agreement with the EU. Longer-term, constitutional reform will also be necessary for BiH to deliver effective governance for its citizens and carry out the reforms that the EU accession process will require. However, there has been little progress on either of these issues since the elections.

We fully support High Representative/EU Special Representative (EUSR) Miroslav Lajcak and appreciate his efforts to unblock key reforms since he took up office in July. We regularly express our concern about the lack of progress to BiH's leaders bilaterally, as well as through the EU and in conjunction with the Office of the High Representative/EUSR.

British Overseas Territories

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what response his Department has made to proposal of the Chief Minister of the British Virgin Islands that Governors should be excluded from future meetings of the Overseas Territories Consultative Council; and if he will make a statement; [155818]

(2) which Chief Ministers of overseas territories have indicated their support for the idea that Governors should be excluded from future meetings of the Overseas Territories Consultative Council; and if he will make a statement. [155819]

Meg Munn: In advance of the November 2006 Overseas Territories Consultative Council, the Chief Ministers and equivalents of the British Virgin Islands, Bermuda, the Cayman Islands, Anguilla, Montserrat, and the Turks and Caicos Islands proposed that governors should not attend the meeting. My noble Friend the former Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, subsequently agreed with Chief Ministers that governors should attend the meeting to help the discussions on issues where they were particularly closely engaged in the territories, including law enforcement, international financial regulation and disaster management. A successful Overseas Territories Consultative Council meeting was held on this basis.

Burma: Drugs

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of levels of heroin production in Myanmar. [156496]

Dr. Howells: The UK does not conduct an independent assessment of levels of heroin production in Burma. We rely on the internationally accepted reporting from the United Nations Office of Drugs and Crime (UNODC) available at: http://www.unodc.org/unodc/en/world_drug_report.html. According to their 2005 World Drugs Report it is estimated that 370 tons of heroin were produced in Burma in 2004. The UNODC did not provide figures for heroin production in Burma for 2005 or 2006.

Cayman Islands: Politics and Government

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs why the constitution of the Cayman Islands varies from other overseas territories of comparable size in that the Governor chairs the Cabinet and there is no premier or chief minister; and if he will make a statement. [155811]

Meg Munn: Each overseas territory constitution is different. The differences reflect the constitutional development of the territory at the time the constitution was agreed. The Cayman Islands constitution came into force in 1972.

In the Cayman Islands, the governor presides at meetings of the cabinet. This is the case in all other Caribbean overseas territories. In Bermuda, the Premier presides.

The office of Leader of Government Business was established by the Cayman Islands (Constitution) (Amendment) Order 2003 and the holder of this office performs a role similar to the Premier or Chief Minister in other overseas territories.

Chen Guangcheng

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government have made to the Chinese Government on the assault in prison of Chen Guangcheng; and whether the Government are continuing to urge the Chinese Government to release him. [153463]

Meg Munn: We monitor the case of Chen Guangcheng very closely, and have raised his case repeatedly with the Chinese Government, both bilaterally and through the EU. Following reports that Mr. Guangcheng was beaten in Linyi prison on 16 June, the UK supported an EU demarche on his case on 2 July. My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, the right hon. Lord Malloch-Brown, raised the case most recently during his visit to Beijing in August. We will continue to push for progress on his case at every available opportunity.

Colombia: Drugs

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of levels of cocaine production in Colombia. [156498]

Dr. Howells: The UK does not conduct an independent assessment of levels of cocaine production in Colombia. We rely on the internationally accepted reporting from the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime. According to their World Drugs Report 2007 available at: http://www.unodc.org/unodc/en/world_drug_report.html, Colombian potential cocaine production in 2006 was estimated at 610 metric tons.

Cuba: Political Prisoners

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent estimate he has made of the number of political prisoners in Cuba. [154564]

Meg Munn: It is difficult to estimate the number of political prisoners in Cuba as the Cuban Government maintains tight control over such information. However, Amnesty International's 2007 report identifies at least 69 "prisoners of conscience" in Cuba and they are currently reviewing the cases of dozens of other prisoners who could also be considered prisoners of conscience see:

http://thereport.amnesty.org/eng/Regions/Americas/Cuba.

In a report dated 5 July 2007, the Cuban Commission for Human Rights and National Reconciliation (CCHRNR—a standard non-official source of human rights information in Cuba) documented 246 political prisoners. The CCHRNR has also reported that thousands of young Cubans are imprisoned on the charge of "peligrosidad predelictiva", which means they have not committed a crime but are considered likely to do so. More information on the human rights situation in Cuba can be found in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's 2006 Annual Human Rights Report at:

www.fco.gov.uk/humanrights.

Cuba: Politics and Government

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the prospect of democratic transition in Cuba. [154580]

Meg Munn: Last year's changes in the leadership in Cuba have not, so far, led to evidence of significant change in Cuban Government policy. UK policy continues to follow the 1996 EU Common Position, which aims to encourage a process of peaceful transition to pluralist democracy and respect for human rights in Cuba. As part of this policy, the UK/EU also continues to pursue constructive engagement with both the Cuban Government and all other sectors of Cuban society, including members of the opposition.

We remain concerned about the political situation in Cuba, which is a one-party state with considerable restrictions on fundamental human rights. We continue to press the Cuban authorities to respect these human rights, including political freedoms.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the government of Cuba about (a) the release of political prisoners, (b) freedom of speech and (c) freedom of political expression. [154581]

Meg Munn: On 30 April 2007, my right. hon. Friend the then Minister for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs, expressed concern about political prisoners and other human rights issues during a meeting with Cuban Deputy Minister for Foreign Trade Antonio Carricarte. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office raises human rights issues—including the release of political prisoners, freedom of speech and freedom of political expression—on a regular basis with the Cuban Government.

Departments: Contracts

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs under what circumstances his Department awards contracts to outside organisations without undertaking a tendering process. [154034]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Occasionally and exceptionally competitive tendering is not possible due to the nature of the goods and services being purchased. Such circumstances might arise as a result of the following:

when equipment being purchased needs to be compatible with existing equipment;

when only one company or supplier is known to have the special technical competence required to provide the service; to repair an item and only the original manufacturer can do so;

when a repeat order needs to be placed and the original supplier holds the tooling, artwork, designs; in cases of extreme urgency—but not if it arises because of inadequate planning; and for contracts which must be accompanied by special security measures or when the protection of the essential interests of the security of the United Kingdom require it.

All proposals of this nature to contract with a single source (i.e. without undertaking a tendering exercise) with an estimated value in excess of 1,000 need careful consideration and specific approval. The supporting case should at a minimum cover the following factors:

why the supplier concerned is the only possible supplier of our requirements;

what is the basis for believing that the supplier concerned will provide value for money? What comparisons have been made in this area;

what market research has been carried out to identify other potential suppliers. And with what result;

what is the full estimated value of the contract. What breakdown of costs is available; and is the award of this contract likely to lead to further similar business being awarded to the same supplier without competition.

Where single source tendering is proposed for purchases which exceed £1,000, a single source justification form must be completed and include an assurance that value for money will be achieved and background information covering as a minimum the points above to support that assertion. Decisions on single source purchasing where the value of the requirement is between £1,000 and £5,000 may be made by the internal sponsor department although advice should be sought from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's procurement centre of excellence, Procurement Strategy Unit, as required.

Single source proposals in excess of £5,000 must be submitted for approval to the Procurement Strategy Unit. They must be considered by an official with specific delegated authority for single source action. Because of the risks, officers who are authorised to approve single source tenders are instructed to probe and challenge where necessary the justification for such action and record the reasons for their decision.

Departments: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proportion of people employed by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies are disabled. [153600]

Meg Munn: 250 staff serving in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) at 30 September 2006 had declared a disability. This represents 4 per cent. of our total UK-based workforce. These figures include staff at Wilton Park Conference Centre and in FCO Services, both executive agencies of the FCO.

The latest published data records the disability status of civil servants in departments and agencies at 30 September 2006. It appears in "Civil Service Statistics 2006" at Table P. This document is produced by the Office for National Statistics and can be accessed from the following web-site addresses:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=2899&Pos=&ColRank=1&Rank=422.

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/downloads/theme_labour/2006CivilServiceStatistics.pdf.

Declaration of a disability is voluntary.

Departments: Legislation

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 24 July 2007, Official Report, column 1054W, on departments: legislation, which (a) sections and (b) schedules of the specified acts have been (i) repealed and (ii) not brought into force. [154202]

Mr. Jim Murphy: No section or schedule of the two specified Acts has been brought into force.

Departments: Tribunals

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much was spent by his Department on industrial tribunals in the last 12 months. [153048]

Meg Munn: Between June 2006 and May 2007 the Foreign and Commonwealth Office paid £112,128.97 in legal costs in relation to employment tribunal claims.

Drugs

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what contribution the UK has made to initiatives to destroy drug-related crops by chemical spraying in foreign countries; and if he will make a survey. [156221]

Dr. Howells: The UK has not provided funding for the destruction of illicit drug crops by chemical spraying overseas.

We have, however, undertaken a jointly funded project with the Organisation of American States to study the environmental and health impacts of the chemicals used in the aerial eradication programme of the Colombian Government.

EC Reform: Treaties

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what changes from unanimity to other forms of decision-making would be enacted by the existing text of the proposed EU Reform Treaty. [155471]

David Miliband [holding answer 17 September 2007]: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply my right hon. Friend the Minister for Europe gave to the hon. Member for Shipley (Philip Davies) on 26 July 2007, Official Report, columns 1468-69W.

Egypt: Religious Freedom

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the Government will urge the Egyptian Government (a) to allow Christian converts from Muslim backgrounds to change their religion in their identity papers and (b) to remove completely the requirement for a person's religion to be stated in Egyptian identity documents. [154405]

Dr. Howells: We are concerned about the problems arising from Egyptian identity cards that allow one of only three religions to be listed on them, and are aware that it is very difficult for Christian converts to change their religion on their identity cards. We have raised this regularly with the Egyptian Government both through the European Union and bilaterally, the last occasion being in September 2007. We will continue to raise this matter.

Embassies: Official Cars

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many cars are owned by UK embassies overseas, broken down by (a) location and (b) make and model of car; and what the annual budget was for (i) acquisition, (ii) running and (iii) maintenance of those cars in 2006-07. [154803]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The number of vehicles owned by our missions overseas is approximately 1,200 (current to the end of August 2007) and is constantly changing.

We are, however, unable to provide the information and breakdown that the hon. Member has requested because the Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not hold this information centrally and it would it incur disproportionate cost to collate it.

Entry Clearances

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many visa applications have been refused in each of the last five years. [156487]

Dr. Howells: The information requested by the hon. Member can be found in the following table.

	Total applications	Total refusals	Percentage refusals
2006-07	2,753,078	515,084	19
2005-06	2,550,277	473,742	19
2004-05	2,544,352	483,457	19
2003-04	2,233,837	339,616	15.2
2002-03	1,941,910	249,830	12.9

EU Countries: Arms Trade

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to seek changes to the EU Code of Conduct on Arms Exports to prevent its circumvention by the re-export of arms between third countries. [154336]

Dr. Howells: The UK has one of the most rigorous and transparent export licensing regimes in the world. All UK export licence applications are assessed against the Consolidated EU and National Export Licensing Criteria on a case-by-case basis and will not be approved if the export contravenes the Criteria or other international commitments. Criterion Seven refers explicitly to

> "The existence of a risk that the equipment will be diverted within the buyer country or re-exported under undesirable conditions".

If the Government believe that there is a risk, then the application will be refused.

The Government are however, open-minded about the case for further enhancing export controls. On 18 June, the Government launched a review of the export control legislation introduced in 2004 under the Export Control Act 2002. This includes a public consultation that seeks comments on the impact and effectiveness of the legislation, and whether there is a need to change or enhance the controls further.

EU Reform: NATO

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment has been made of the likely effect the EU Reform Treaty will have on the NATO alliance. [154254]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) will remain the cornerstone of the UK's security policy, a key means of delivery for the UK's foreign and security policy objectives and the only organisation for collective defence in Europe.

The European Security and Defence Policy supports and complements NATO. The EU Reform Treaty text makes clear that NATO is of its members and the instrument for implementing that commitment.

> "the foundation for the collective defence"

Gaza: Frontiers

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what representations his Department has made on returning EU observers to the Rafah border crossing; [154594]

(2) what recent representations the Government has made to Israel and Egypt on re-opening the Rafah border crossing. [154595]

Dr. Howells: Officials at our embassy in Cairo raised the issue of Palestinians stranded on the Gaza/Egypt border with Tareq Maaty, Egyptian Deputy Assistant Minister for Refugee and Consular Matters on 23 August. Mr. Maaty confirmed that following discussions the Egyptian Foreign Minister Aboul Gheit had in Israel in late July, the vast majority of the 6,000 Palestinians stuck in the Sinai have now returned to Gaza via the Erez crossing. While Hamas still controls the Rafah crossing, Egypt, Israel and Palestinian President Abbas are unable to guarantee the security needed to reopen it. We continue to stress to the Israelis the importance of opening the crossings into Gaza.

We believe there is an urgent need to re-open the Rafah crossing. The 23 July the EU General Affairs External Relations Council called:

> "on all parties to work towards an opening of the crossings in and out of Gaza for both humanitarian and commercial flows. Karni and other crossings must be open on a regular and predictable basis, in view of reaching the transit volumes foreseen in the Agreement on Movement and Access. This is necessary to ensure the viability of the Palestinian economy and to improve the living conditions of the Palestinian people, both in Gaza and in the west bank. It also underlines the need to re-open the Rafah crossing point and stands ready to resume the full activities of the EU Border Assistance Mission Rafah as soon as conditions allow".

Hina Jilani

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to encourage Indonesia to allow (a) foreign journalists, (b) independent observers and (c) NGOs into West Papua. [156432]

Meg Munn: Officials at our Embassy in Jakarta visit Papua regularly and meet local officials, academics, journalists and non-governmental organisation (NGOs). We continue to encourage the Indonesian Government to allow access to Papua for media organisations. We are aware that the BBC correspondent based in Jakarta was given permission to visit Papua in September. We will continue to press the authorities to permit other journalists to visit.

Hina Jilani, UN Special Representative of the Secretary-General on the Situation of Human Rights Defenders was given permission to visit Papua in June. Access to Papua for developmental NGOs has improved significantly since the election of Governor Suebu in 2006 and a number of international NGOs and UN agencies have established representative offices in Jayapura.

Indonesia

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he and other Ministers from his Department have to visit Indonesia. [156470]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has no plans to visit Indonesia in the immediate future. I am considering making a visit to the region as part of my ministerial duties. My hon. Friend the Minister for the Middle East visited in April and Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials regularly visit Indonesia. The bilateral relationship between the UK and Indonesia is good, with strong political links. We work closely with the Indonesian Government on key areas of shared concern including counter terrorism, climate change and inter-faith.

Iran: Kidnapping

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the Iranian Government for information on the physical health and wellbeing of Iranian trade union leader Mansour Ossanlou, who was abducted in Tehran; and if he will call for his prompt release. [155934]

Dr. Howells: Mansour Ossanlou, President of the Syndicate of Workers of the Tehran and Suburbs Bus Company, has been arrested and detained several times over the last two years for his involvement in peaceful industrial action by the bus union. We, along with the EU, have serious concerns about Iran's commitment to uphold its international obligations with regard to freedom of expression, freedom of association and the right to form or join trade unions. We have therefore been monitoring Mr. Ossanlou's situation closely. We were extremely concerned at his forcible detention by unidentified assailants on 10 July. It has since been confirmed that he is being held in Evin Prison in Tehran and is being investigated for alleged distribution of propaganda against the regime. We understand that neither his family nor his lawyers have had full access to visit him in prison.

On 16 July I called in the Iranian ambassador to London to discuss human rights issues. I raised specific concerns about the treatment of Mr. Ossanlou, and urged Iran to ensure that he is treated well and in accordance with his rights. I highlighted that we consider his arrest to be a direct breach of Iran's commitments under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights. In meetings with the Iranian Ministry of Foreign Affairs on 21 July and 1 September, the EU presidency also condemned Mr. Ossanlou's violent arrest and detention for peaceful actions in support of civil rights.

Iran: Nuclear Power

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the UK policy is on the 21 August 2007 agreement between the International Atomic Energy Agency and the Islamic Republic of Iran in relation to Iran's nuclear programme; and if he will make a statement. [155418]

David Miliband [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The agreement announced on 21 August between Iran and the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) sets out a workplan for Iran to address outstanding issues concerning its past nuclear programme. If Iran implements it in full, it may prove to be a step towards resolving the Iranian nuclear problem. But addressing the outstanding issues is only one of the steps the International Community requires Iran to take in order to restore confidence in its intentions. As the UN Security Council has unanimously demanded in Resolutions 1696, 1737 and 1747, and as the IAEA Board of Governors made clear in its Resolution GOV/2006/14 of February 2006, Iran also needs to implement fully the Additional Protocol and additional measures that the IAEA has requested, and to suspend enrichment-related and reprocessing activities. Until Iran meets these obligations we will continue to follow the dual track strategy agreed with our partners in the "E3+3" (China, France, Germany, Russia and the United States), and to discuss further measures aimed at persuading Iran to fulfil all its international obligations.

Iraq Constitution

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what help the UK Government are providing to secure the delivery of Article 140 of the Iraqi Constitution. [155946]

Dr. Howells: Implementation of Article 140 is a matter for the Government of Iraq. We continue to encourage the Iraqi and Kurdish regional authorities to ensure that the Article 140 process is fair and transparent and reflects, so far as is possible, the views of each of the different communities involved.

Iraq: Armed Forces

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 18 May 2007, Official Report, column 973W, on Iraq: armed forces, what changes were made to agreed plans as a result of the events referred to. [154016]

Dr. Howells: As I said in my response to my right hon. Friend on 18 May 2007, Official Report, column 973W, the detail of exchanges between the Government and the US Administration in 2003 remains confidential. Planning remained flexible throughout this period to take full account of developments on the ground.

Iraq: Elections

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he expects there to be new elections in Iraq. [156083]

Dr. Howells: Article 56 of the Iraqi constitution allows for elections for the Council of Representatives to be held 45 days preceding the conclusion of the Council of Representatives' four-calendar-year electoral term. The current electoral term began on 16 March 2006, the date of the first session of the present Council of Representatives. Elections should therefore be held on 30 January 2010.

The timing of the next round of provincial elections is subject to legislation being drafted by the Government of Iraq.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much has been paid to private military security companies in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan to protect (i) Foreign and Commonwealth Office personnel, (ii) other British Government personnel and (iii) British Government civilian and military infrastructure; and if he will make a statement. [155060]

David Miliband [holding answer 10 September 2007]: The amounts paid to private security companies in Iraq and Afghanistan to protect Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), Government personnel and Government civilian and military infrastructure are provided as follows.

Afghanistan	44,000,000

These payments relate to contracts put in place by the FCO and certain other Government Departments in Iraq and Afghanistan between 2003 and 2008.

Iraq: Religious Freedom

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the Government will take steps to bring to justice those Islamic extremists responsible for the systematic intimidation and driving out of Christians from Dora district and the neighbourhoods of Al-Baya'a, Al-Thurat and Al-Saydia in Baghdad; and if he will make a statement. [154409]

Dr. Howells: Responsibility for investigating and prosecuting crimes committed in Iraq is the responsibility of the Iraqi security forces and judicial authorities. The Government remain deeply concerned about the high levels of violence which Iraqis, including Christians, are having to endure. We continue to raise this in our regular contacts with the Iraqi Government and to press for action to protect all Iraqis. We understand that the Iraqi authorities, with the backing of coalition forces, have increased the security presence in Dora.

Jamaica: Drugs

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of levels of cannabis production in Jamaica. [156497]

Dr. Howells: The UK does not conduct an independent assessment of levels of cannabis production in Jamaica. We rely on the internationally accepted reporting from the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC). According to their World Drugs Report 2007, available at: http://www.unodc.org/unodc/en/world_drug_report.html, cannabis production (herb and resin) takes place in nearly all the countries in the Latin American and Caribbean region. The UNODC report estimates that Jamaican cannabis resin represented 3.1 per cent. of global production in 2003-05.

Maldives: Politics and Government

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the discussions with President Gayoom of the Maldives during his recent visit to the UK covered (a) charges brought against members of the opposition and (b) the use of state resources and media for President Gayoom's party's campaign for the referendum. [154550]

Dr. Howells: My noble Friend the Minister with responsibility for Africa, Asia and the UN, the right hon. Lord Malloch-Brown, met President Gayoom at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) on 20 July. They discussed the economic and political situation in Maldives, but did not cover the specific issues raised by the hon. Member. Lord Malloch-Brown issued a statement following the meeting calling for free and fair elections and successful conduct of the referendum which is available on the FCO website at:

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of progress made by the Special Majlis towards amending the new constitution of the Maldives. [154551]

Dr. Howells: Since the election of the Special Majlis (Constituent Assembly), progress towards the new constitution has been slow. But there have been advances, in particular in relation to the legalisation of political parties, a more tolerant approach to press freedom and the release from detention of many political prisoners.

The referendum in Maldives on 18 August has given the Special Majlis a mandate to develop a constitution based on a presidential system of government. We urge all political parties to work together to ensure that this is done in a transparent manner and that it results in a constitution which delivers a liberal multi-party democracy.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the progress made by the Government of the Maldives in reforming the judiciary since the visit of UN Special Rapporteur on the independence of judges and lawyers in February 2007. [154552]

Dr. Howells: Judicial reform is an important part of the reform process in Maldives. The Maldivian Government has stated publicly that they are drafting secondary legislation on the regulation of the judicial sector. This will need to be compatible with new draft constitutional provisions. We understand that the UN Development Programme is funding an international consultant whose role is to provide technical assistance to the Maldivian Government for this purpose.

Maldives: Referendums

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy for the UK or the EU to send international observers to the referendum to be held in the Maldives on 18 August. [154470]

Dr. Howells: At short notice, the Maldivian Government invited the EU, Commonwealth and the South Asian Association for Regional Co-operation to observe the referendum. The EU and Commonwealth were unable to send formal observer missions, although the Commonwealth did send a small Election Experts Team. Officials from our High Commission in Colombo, accredited to Maldives, visited the country on polling day and met key stakeholders.

Northern Cyprus

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the British High Commissioner for Cyprus last visited northern Cyprus; who he met from the Turkish Cypriot Administration on that occasion; and what area of northern Cyprus he visited. [156208]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Our High Commissioner in Nicosia visits northern Cyprus frequently. On 3 October he accompanied my right hon. Friend the Member for Enfield, North (Joan Ryan), in her role as Special Representative to Cyprus, on her calls on a wide range of representatives of the Turkish Cypriot community in northern Nicosia.

Northern Cyprus: Property

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions have taken place between his Department and property estate agents in the United Kingdom who offer properties in northern Cyprus for sale to British citizens on the advice to be offered to prospective purchasers. [156203]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Government have no locus to intervene with estate agents in the UK offering properties for sale in northern Cyprus. As such, no discussions have taken place. Foreign and Commonwealth Office Travel advice remains the most appropriate and effective way for the Government to warn British citizens of the potential risks involved.

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions have taken place with officials of the Turkish Cypriot Administration in northern Cyprus on the extent of private housing development taking place in northern Cyprus; and when such discussions last took place. [156205]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Our High Commission in Nicosia regularly raises the issue of property development with the Turkish Cypriot leadership, most recently in September 2007.

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports have been received from the British High Commissioner for Cyprus on the extent of private housing development taking place in northern Cyprus. [156206]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Our High Commission in Nicosia reports regularly on the general scale and location of property development in northern Cyprus, as well as on other specific issues such as electrification of the Karpas region.

Pakistan: Frontiers

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his (a) Pakistani and (b) United States counterparts on securing the border between Afghanistan and Pakistan; what the outcome was of these discussions; and if he will make a statement. [155316]

David Miliband [holding answer 12 September 2007]: I have discussed issues relating to Afghanistan-Pakistan border security on a number of occasions, including with Pakistani Foreign Minister Kasuri and with US Secretary of State Rice. All parties have reaffirmed their long-term commitment to Afghanistan, and the desire to see stable and peaceful development in the border areas and the wider region.

Palestinians: Entry Clearances

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many entry clearance applications have been received from Palestinian citizens residing in (a) east Jerusalem, (b) the west bank and (c) the Gaza strip in the last 12 months; and what percentage of these applications were approved. [156012]

Dr. Howells: Our consulate general in Jerusalem processes entry clearance applications from residents of east Jerusalem, Gaza and the west bank.

Between 1 October 2006 and 1 October 2007 the consulate general received 1,075 applications for entry clearance from holders of Palestinian Authority travel documents living in the west bank and Gaza. 880 of these applications were issued and 154 were refused. Forty-one applications were either withdrawn, lapsed or are in progress. To collate statistics on whether applicants are resident in the west bank or Gaza would incur disproportionate cost as details of applicants' residency are not recorded centrally.

Palestinian residents of east Jerusalem do not hold Palestinian Authority travel documents. They may apply for entry clearance using a Jordanian T Series document or an Israeli issued Laissez Passer.

There were 543 applications from holders of Jordanian T Series documents, Jordanian passports and holders of Israeli issued Laissez Passers, which show the nationality as Jordanian. To determine which ones are from Palestinians resident in east Jerusalem would incur disproportionate cost.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs for what reasons entry visas were not granted to the Palestine under-19 football squad and its support staff; and what representations he has received on the matter. [156158]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, to my hon. Friend the Member for Leyton and Wanstead (Harry Cohen) on 10 September 2007, Official Report, column 2008W.

A total of 262 letters had been received up to and including 3 October on this matter.

Russia: Entry Clearances

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the average waiting time is for Russian (a) students, (b) politicians, (c) business people and (d) others between application for and grant of visas to visit the UK; and if he will make a statement. [153775]

Dr. Howells: UKvisas does not keep statistics on average waiting times for different types of visa applications. Instead, UKvisas performance is measured against the following Public Service Agreement (PSA) standards:

PSA 1: 90 per cent. of straightforward non-settlement applications to be processed within 24 hours.

PSA 2: 90 per cent. of non-settlement applications requiring further inquiries or interview to be processed within 15 days.

PSA 3: 90 per cent. of settlement applications to be processed within 12 weeks.

Our visa sections in Russia exceeded these standards in the 2006-07 and 2005-06 financial years. In 2005-06, an average of 92 per cent. of PSA 1 applications were processed within 24 hours, 97.4 per cent. of PSA 2 applications were processed within 15 days, and 100 per cent. of PSA 3 applications were processed within 12 weeks.

Provisional figures for 2006-07 show that, on average, 92 per cent. of PSA 1 applications were processed within 24 hours, 97 per cent. of PSA 2 applications were processed within 15 days, and 100 per cent. of PSA 3 applications were processed within 12 weeks.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information is provided to Russian applicants for visas to visit the UK. [153776]

Dr. Howells: The information provided to Russian applicants is a combination of generic material that applies to all visa applicants and tailored guidance relevant to applications in Russia.

This information is available primarily through the UKvisas main website: www.ukvisas.ov.uk, our embassy in Moscow's website: www.britaininrussia.ru and the website of UKvisas' commercial partner in Russia: www.ukvac-ru.com.

A range of printed information on applications and procedures is also available at the four visa application centres in Russia operated by VFS.

Special Envoys

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many special envoys have been appointed to (a) foreign countries, (b) overseas and dependent territories and (c) states under UN mandates since 27 June 2007. [155403]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 17 September 2007]: Two special envoys to either foreign countries, overseas and dependent territories or states under UN mandates have been appointed since 27 June 2007. Michael Williams has been appointed the UK Special Representative on the Middle East and Special Projects. (Further information is available on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website at:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename:= OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid= 1007029391629&a=KArticle&aid= 1184758541371%20&yeai=2007&month=2007-08-01&date= 2007-08-03.)

My right hon. Friend the Member for Enfield, North (Joan Ryan) has been appointed as the Special Representative to Cyprus, (further details are available on the No. 10 website at:

http://www.number-10.gov.uk/output/Page12240.asp.)

Timor-Leste: Extradition

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with Indonesian officials on the extradition to East Timor of Col. Burhanuddin Siagian. [156433]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no discussions with Indonesian officials on the extradition to East Timor of Indonesian Colonel Burhanuddin Siagian. We believe that this is a matter for consideration between the Indonesian and East Timorese Governments.

The UK has consistently expressed concern to both the Indonesian and East Timorese Governments about impunity for those responsible for human rights abuses in East Timor. These issues are pursued through their bilateral Commission for Truth and Friendship (CTF). We have encouraged both governments to make the CTF a process that enjoys the confidence of the victims and the international community.

UK Trade and Investment: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many press officers are employed by UK Trade and Investment. [154137]

Meg Munn: Four press officers are employed by UK Trade and Investment.

Visa Facilitation Services

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the total cost has been to public funds of payments made to Visa Facilitation Services for the provision of an online visa application service in (a) India, (b) Nigeria and (c) Russia. [154638]

Dr. Howells: The Visa Facilitation Services online application services in India, Nigeria and Russia are funded by a handling fee charged to applicants. No public funds have been involved in the provision of this service.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he plans to seek financial compensation from Visa Facilitation Services for the security failures set out in the report of the Independent Investigation published on 28th July; and if he will make a statement. [154639]

Dr. Howells: No, as no financial loss was incurred. The independent investigator concluded that she could find no evidence that any personal data were misused as a result of the breach of security at the Visa Facilitation Services online visa application facility. We are committed to working with Visa Facilitation Services to ensure that a high standard of customer service is maintained under the contract, which replaces the previous arrangements.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his Department has any remaining contracts with Visa Facilitation Services in force; and if he will make a statement. [154640]

Dr. Howells: UKvisas signed a commercial partnership agreement with VF Worldwide Holdings Ltd. (Visa Facilitation Services) on 27 February 2007. This contract provides that VF Worldwide Holdings will supply UKvisas with visa application and related services in the far east, Former Soviet Union, Gulf and Pakistan, South Asia, South East Asia (excluding Australia and New Zealand), Southern, Central and Eastern Africa and West Africa. This contract is being rolled out across the world gradually throughout 2007. As it comes into effect in each country, it will supersede any previous existing contracts between UKvisas and Visa Facilitation Services in that country.

Visa Facilitation Services currently provides a service for UKvisas in China, India, Qatar and Russia under contracts which have not yet been superseded by the 27 February 2007 contract.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether disciplinary action has been taken against members of staff at UKvisas following the report of the Independent Investigator into breaches of data security in the Visa Facilitation Services online visa application facility; and if he will make a statement. [154641]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has accepted all of the recommendations made by the independent investigator in her report into the data breach at the Visa Facilitation Services online visa application facility. None recommended disciplinary action against UKvisas staff.

Zimbabwe: Entry Clearances

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he expects a determination to be made on visa application number VC 005578 submitted on 7 September 2006 at the British embassy in Zimbabwe. [154309]

Dr. Howells: Our embassy in Harare issued visa application number VC 005578 on 20 August, following the authentication of the applicant's documents by the Zimbabwean authorities on 16 August.

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the average time was that the British embassy in Zimbabwe had to wait to receive a response from the Zimbabwean authorities for the authentication of documents submitted with a visa application in the latest period for which figures are available. [154310]

Dr. Howells: The waiting time for our embassy in Harare to receive a response from the Zimbabwean authorities for the authentication of official documents submitted with a visa application over the last 12 months has varied from four weeks to 12 months.

Visa section staff at our embassy in Harare have no control over the time the Zimbabwean authorities take to respond to such requests, and continue to chase any request for authentication of documents.

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency Departments

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many attendances there have been at Type 1 accident and emergency departments (a) in total and (b) per 100,000 population in each year since 1997-98 in England, broken down by strategic health authority area. [154273]

Mr. Bradshaw: Prior to quarter 1 (April to June) 2001-02, attendance data were collected only as a total figure for all types of accident and emergency (A and E) department (major departments, single specialty departments and minor injury and illness services, including minor injury units). A and E attendances split down into A and E type were first collected in quarter 1 (April to June) 2002-03. Therefore, it is not possible to provide Type 1 attendance figures prior to 2002-03.

The following tables show data on the number of attendances and the number of attendances per 100,000 head of population, at Type 1 A and E departments for strategic health authorities in England since 2002-03 to 2006-07.

Department of Health dataset QMAE
Mid year population estimates for each year, 2001 Census Based: Office for National Statistics (ONS)

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimates he has made of the number of young people under 16 who are regular binge drinkers. [152243]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

Available evidence suggests ("Schools Survey on Drinking, Smoking and Drug Use among young people") that the percentage of young people who drink alcohol is falling (from 27 per cent. in 1996 to 21 per cent. in 2006).

Because there is no definition of binge drinking for under-18s, the Government do not make an estimate of how many under-16s regularly binge drink. We do know, from the Schools Survey, that around half of young people under 16 who had drunk alcohol in the last week consumed an average of more than four units on each day they drank. These findings, however, only relate to young people who drank alcohol in the last seven days. The majority of pupils did not drink any alcohol at all during that time.

Ambulance Services: Northamptonshire

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the revised plans for ambulance cover in Wellingborough and Northamptonshire. [154478]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is for each ambulance service to plan the provision of appropriate resources to meet local demand. The East Midlands Ambulance Service National Health Service Trust is responsible for ambulance service provision in Wellingborough and Northamptonshire.

Botox

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the Government plan to introduce regulation of the cosmetics industry with regard to botox injections. [154271]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government have asked the Independent Healthcare Advisory Services to take the lead in setting up an industry-led self-regulatory scheme for botulinum toxin and dermal fillers. More details about this scheme will be given in due course.

Breast Feeding

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to promote the breastfeeding of infants; and if he will make a statement. [156461]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department continues to support and promote breastfeeding and will be supporting the National Breastfeeding Awareness Week planned from 11 to 17 May 2008. The week will be supported with a range of promotional materials, funding a conference and working with the local national health service, voluntary organisations and practitioners to facilitate locally-run events.

The Department is also exploring the introduction of a new metric on breastfeeding duration. Also ongoing activity includes television and radio advertising, an updated website, revised publications for parents and health professionals, and providing advice/support for pregnant women and new mothers through the Healthy Start programme.

The Department is continuing to work with the Food Standards Agency on the implementation of the European Union directive on infant formula and follow-on formula regulations, including World Health Organisation best practice.

Central Middlesex Hospital

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the impact of Professor Sir Ara Darzi's report on Central Middlesex Hospital. [154053]

Ann Keen: Lord Ara Darzi's report 'Healthcare for London: A Framework for Action' is intended to begin a dialogue about the future shape of health care services in London. The consultation on the models of care and delivery recommended in the report is due to begin formally in November 2007.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the financial position of Central Middlesex Hospital. [154054]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is not held by individual hospitals, but by national health service trusts. Central Middlesex Hospital is managed by North West London Hospitals NHS Trust.

At quarter 1, 2007 to 2008, North West London Hospitals NHS Trust is forecasting a surplus of £6 million at the end of the 2007 to 2008 financial year.

Chronically Sick: Health Services

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost of implementing in full the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Long-term Care. [154780]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In England, the Government have accepted each of the recommendations of the Royal Commission on long term care except the recommendation that personal care should be provided free at the point of delivery to all in all settings. We estimate that the cost of implementing free personal care in England would be around £1.5 billion at 2003-04 prices.

The Personal Social Services Research Unit has recently published "Paying for Long-Term Care for Older People in the UK: Modelling the Costs and Distributional Effects of a Range of Options", which models a range of options for funding long-term care, including making personal care free to all in all settings.

The report gives estimated public expenditure costs at 2002 prices of between £1.35 billion and £1.8 billion, depending on the way in which free personal care is implemented. This covers residential and home care for older people. It covers the whole of the United Kingdom. The England equivalent range would be about £1.2 billion to £1.6 billion. These estimates take account of limited offsetting savings of disability benefits.

Cirencester Hospital

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to make a decision on the independent sector provider contract for Cirencester Hospital. [156357]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department is working with the national health service to review the specifications of schemes in Phase 2 of the central procurement process, including the proposed scheme for the Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire area, to ensure that future schemes best meet the needs of the local NHS, and are responsive to the needs of the communities in which they will operate. This exercise is ongoing, and expected to be completed in October. Once this process is complete, and all parties involved in negotiations have been informed of the outcomes, further information will be made available.

Commission for Patient and Public Involvement in Health: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many press officers are employed by the Commission for Patient and Public Involvement in Health. [154151]

Ann Keen: The Commission for Patient and Public Involvement in Health employ seven communications leads and one head of communications. Part of the role these officers perform includes dealing with the media.

Commission for Social Care Inspection: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many press officers are employed by the Commission for Social Care Inspection. [154132]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We understand from the Commission for Social Care Inspection that there are three press officers employed.

Congenital Abnormalities

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the effect on children's (i) brains and (ii) development of (A) prematurity, (B) foetal alcohol spectrum disorder and (C) fragile X syndrome. [154614]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department funds research to support policy and to provide the evidence needed to underpin quality improvement and service development in the national health service and through its Policy Research Programme supports a programme of research at the National Perinatal Epidemiology Unit (NPEU) on the health of pregnant women and their babies. This includes research relating to cerebral palsy and other early childhood impairment where prematurity is the single largest risk factor. With additional support from other funders, NPEU is also undertaking work which relates to neurodevelopmental follow-up of groups of children recruited to trials of specific interventions, where either all or the majority of the recruited children were preterm.

Implementation of the Department's research strategy "Best Research for Best Health" has resulted in an expansion of our research programmes and in significant new funding opportunities for health research. In particular, the major focus of the neonatal medicine research group at the Hammersmith and St. Mary's and Imperial College Biomedical Research Centre, formed this year, is the prevention and treatment of brain injury and developmental impairment in the newborn infant, both as a result of prematurity and birth asphyxia. The Department has allocated £7 million over five years to the research theme of which the Centre's work forms a part.

The Medical Research Council (MRC) is one of the main agencies through which the Government support medical and clinical research. In 2005-06, MRC expenditure on research related to premature birth amounted to £4 million. In addition, the MRC supports a large portfolio of reproductive tract research and underpinning reproductive medicine and paediatric research.

More specifically, the MRC is currently funding a research project on Fragile X syndrome that aims to provide fundamental insights into the cellular mechanisms through which cognitive symptoms of the syndrome arise and that may be important for discovery of new therapies for mental retardation.

Dental Services

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many dentists have failed to meet their target number of units of dental activity since the new NHS dental contract was introduced in 2005, broken down by primary care trust; [154061]

(2) how many dentists (a) completed their annual units of dental activity (UDA) early, (b) requested further UDAs and (c) requested but were refused further UDAs in the latest period for which figures are available, broken down by primary care trust. [154062]

Ann Keen: Information is not available in the form requested.

Information on the total units of dental activity delivered in 2006-07 at England, strategic health authority and primary care trust (PCT) level is contained in "NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006". This report is available in the Library.

Information is not held centrally on the number of contractors who completed their annual contracted level of activity before the end of March 2007 or on the number of requests to PCTs to deliver additional activity during 2006-07.

The Dental Services Division (DSD) of the National Health Service Business Services Authority holds data on dental activity provided under NHS dental contracts, together with information provided by PCTs on the levels of activity commissioned for each contract. However, these data are not routinely published. The DSD is currently considering a freedom of information request for a comparison of the two data items for 2006-07. Depending on the outcome, some contract level information of this kind may be available from the DSD later this autumn.

Dental Services: Bolton

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS dentists there are in Bolton; and how many of these are taking on new patients. [154051]

Ann Keen: As of 31 March 2007 there were 110 dentists on open national health service contracts in the Bolton primary care trust area. The number of dentists taking on new NHS patients is not collected centrally.

Ann Keen: There have been six parliamentary questions from my hon. Friend the Members for Bolton, North-East (Mr. Crausby) and for Bolton, South-East (Dr. Iddon) on dental services in Bolton. In addition, there have been a small number of letters from members of the public.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which private consultancy firms (a) his Department and (b) agencies which report to his Department engaged in each of the last three years; which programmes or projects each firm worked on; and what the approximate cost to the Department or agency concerned was of each engagement. [155871]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not collect information on projects awarded to private consultancy firms by the Department and its agencies in the format requested. To do so would attract disproportionate cost.

A new system will be introduced in April 2008 called SHOWA, which will be able to gather such information for the Department.

Departments: Lisbon Agenda

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what policies his Department has adopted to assist in the United Kingdom's fulfilment of the Lisbon Agenda criteria. [155844]

Dawn Primarolo: A healthy population is a key driver to achieving economic growth. This is at the core of the Department's policies to improve and modernise health services and to prevent illness and morbidity through activities such as health promotion.

A key part of this will be to reduce health inequalities in the United Kingdom. The Department is working to a public service agreement target to reduce inequalities in health outcomes by 10 per cent. by 2010.

Departments: Pay

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 11 July 2007, Official Report, column 1552W, on Departments: pay, (1) how many (a) civil servants are on each payscale and (b) consultants are on each banding within the Department's Commercial Directorate; [154653]

(2) whether the commercial directorate contractor bandings refer to (a) per hour, (b) per day, (c) per week, (d) per month or (e) per annum. [154802]

Dawn Primarolo: The Commercial Directorate contracts interims for a specified piece of work or time period. The bandings are an internal control tool created by and used solely by the Commercial Directorate and refer to day rates. The number of interims (headcount) by bandings in the Commercial Directorate at 1 October 2007 is shown in the following table.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the value is of the unitary payments of each private finance initiative scheme overseen by his Department over the lifetime of the contract, expressed in constant 2007-08 prices, and discounted to present value. [155027]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 10 September 2007]: The following table gives details of private finance initiative schemes which have reached financial close including capital value, unitary payments at 2007-08 prices, and the total value of these discounted to present value.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 11 July 2007, Official Report, column 1553W, on departments: public expenditure, what items of specific guidance have been given to (a) the Finance Directorate and (b) his Department generally on the Comprehensive Spending Review process. [154106]

Mr. Bradshaw: In preparation for the Comprehensive Spending Review, HM Treasury has worked closely with the Department and with all Government Departments, providing guidance throughout the process.

Dietary Supplements: EU Law

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when Ministers of his Department expect next to meet representatives of Consumers for Health to discuss the implementation of the food supplements directive; [156224]

(2) if he will make a statement on the outcome of the Working Group meeting of EU member states held on 24 September to discuss the setting of maximum permitted levels for nutrients in food supplements and fortified foods; [156225]

(3) whether officials of (a) his Department and (b) the Food Standards Agency have made representations to the European Commission on the extent of the circulation of the Commission's recent orientation paper on the setting of nutrient levels for food supplements and fortified foods; and if he will make it his policy to encourage the Commission to improve the openness and transparency of its activity on the implementation of the food supplements directive; [156226]

(4) if he will make a statement on the anticipated timetable for the setting of maximum permitted levels for nutrients in food supplements; [156227]

(5) what legal principles informed the contribution of the Food Standards Agency to discussions with the European Commission on the setting of maximum permitted levels for vitamins and minerals in food supplements; and if he will make a statement; [156228]

(6) what recent contacts there have been between officials of the Food Standards Agency and their counterparts in (a) the Republic of Ireland and (b) other European member states to discuss the setting of maximum permitted levels for nutrients in food supplements; and if he will make a statement. [156229]

Dawn Primarolo: The meeting of the Working Group on 24 September was to obtain member states' initial views on an orientation paper on setting maximum and minimum levels for vitamins and minerals in foodstuffs, issued by the Commission in late July. We have been advised by the Food Standards Agency (FSA) that general discussions on the orientation paper in the working group revealed that many member states are yet to establish views on many issues. The Commission has asked member states to consider the various issues presented in the orientation paper in preparation for more detailed discussions at the next working group meeting which has provisionally been scheduled for November.

FSA officials have raised the issue of circulation of the orientation paper with the European Commission. The Commission recognised that member states have obligations to consult their stakeholders and did not place restrictions on the circulation of the paper, leaving this to the discretion of the member states. The FSA sent the paper to United Kingdom stakeholders on 8 August seeking their initial comments and held a meeting on 14 September during which the paper was discussed in detail. Further meetings between the FSA and Ministers will be arranged when necessary.

The European Commission has indicated its intention to produce proposals in the form of draft amending legislation to go forward to the Standing Committee on Food Chain and Animal Health (SCoFCAH) for consideration in early 2009.

Recent discussions between FSA officials and the European Commission focussed on the Commission's orientation paper, and have not extended to detailed discussions of legal principles. The legal basis for setting levels of vitamins and minerals in foodstuffs that informs the FSA's contribution to discussions with the Commission is outlined in the Food Supplements Directive 2002/46/EC and the Regulation on the addition of vitamins and minerals and of certain other substances to foods EC No 1925/2006.

FSA officials met with their counterparts from the Republic of Ireland and other member states during, and in the margins of, the European Commission's working group meeting with member states on 24 September, on the setting of maximum permitted levels of vitamins and minerals in food supplements.

Disposable Syringes

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the Vendafit needle dispensing machine in the context of managing the condition of drug dependent patients. [155731]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has made no assessment.

Doctors: Career Structure

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the findings of Sir John Tooke's independent review of the Modernising Medical Careers programme; and if he will make a statement. [156448]

Ann Keen: The Department would like to thank Sir John Tooke and his review group for investing so much time and expertise in providing recommendations for the future of medical training for 2009 and beyond. We will consider Sir John's findings carefully.

Drugs: Internet

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what restrictions there are on the bringing into the UK of non-prescription medical drugs purchased by individuals on the internet; whether the Government have any plans (a) to tighten these restrictions and (b) to impose the enforcement of existing restrictions; and if he will make a statement. [156069]

Dawn Primarolo: Under the Medicines for Human Use (Marketing Authorisations Etc.) Regulations 1994, it is unlawful for medicinal products for human use to be marketed, manufactured, imported from a third country, distributed and sold or supplied in the United Kingdom except in accordance with the appropriate licences or exemptions.

Medicinal products for human use that are brought into the UK by an individual for his or her own use or that of a member of his/her family, including those purchased via the internet or by mail order, are not regarded as being imported for sale or supply within the UK and accordingly are not subject to the controls of the Marketing Authorisation Regulations. Any onward sale or supply, however, would place the product on the market and bring it within the regulatory system designed to protect public health and safety. There are no plans at this time to change the legislation.

Epilepsy

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps his Department is taking to reduce the level of stigma experienced by people with epilepsy; [153654]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the implementation of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's guidance on the treatment of prisoners diagnosed with epilepsy; [153655]

(3) what assessment his Department has made of the adequacy of information provided to patients upon diagnosis of epilepsy on the risks of sudden unexpected death in epilepsy. [153656]

Ann Keen: The Department is working to reduce the level of stigma experienced by those with epilepsy by raising awareness of this condition among the public. Information on epilepsy is made available on the NHS Direct website at www.nhsdirect.nhs.uk as well as the Epilepsy Information Network.

We commissioned the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) to produce clinical guidelines for the diagnosis, management and treatment of epilepsy. This guidance, published in October 2004, specifically covers the importance of informing patients and their families of the risks of sudden death in epilepsy. In addition, we have made a grant of almost £290,000 to the National Society for Epilepsy to improve support and information for people with epilepsy and their families through their Epilepsy Information Network.

We have made no assessment of the implementation of the guidance produced by NICE on the treatment of prisoners diagnosed with epilepsy.

Epilepsy: Learning Disability

Chris McCafferty: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the effects of the implementation of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence epilepsy clinical guidance on the treatment of people with epilepsy with learning disabilities. [153973]

Ann Keen: We have made no assessment of the effects of the implementation of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's epilepsy guidance on the treatment of those with learning disabilities.

Epilepsy: Nurses

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many specialist epilepsy nurses there are; and what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of their work. [155637]

Mr. Bradshaw: The annual workforce census does not separately identify specialist epilepsy nurses from the rest of the nursing workforce.

Since 1997, there has been an increase of almost 80,000 qualified nurses employed in the national health service in England, and the number of training places for nurses and midwives has risen by 51 per cent. This will increase the pool of nurses from which nurses specialising in epilepsy can be drawn.

No assessment has been carried out centrally. It is for local trusts in partnership with local stakeholders to determine how best to use their funds to meet national and local priorities for improving health and to commission services accordingly, this includes provision of specialist nursing posts.

Epilepsy: Video Games

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many photosensitive epileptic seizures caused by electronic games were recorded in (a) England and (b) the South West in each of the last five years. [153974]

Ann Keen: Information on the number of epileptic seizures caused by electronic games is not collected.

EU Countries

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what official visits he is planning to European Union member states in the next six months. [155845]

Dawn Primarolo: The Secretary of State is planning to visit Brussels for political and policy meetings at the end of November 2007.

I have the following visits scheduled on behalf of the Secretary of State:

	Scheduled visits
14-15 October 2007	Meeting other European Union Health Ministers in Rome
14-15 November 2007	Media Global Health Committee Trade Event, Dusseldorf
6 December 2007	European Union Health Council, Brussels

Eyesight: Testing

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the effect of the introduction of charges for (a) eye tests and (b) dental check-ups on demand for these services; and if he will make a statement. [154779]

Ann Keen: There is no system of national health service charges for sight tests. Certain groups including children, people aged over 60, those on a low income and those predisposed to eye disease are eligible for NHS funded sight tests. Those not eligible for NHS funded sight tests have to pay privately.

In 1999 we reintroduced free sight tests for everyone aged 60 and over. This resulted in a switch from private to NHS sight tests, rather than any material increase in the overall number of sights tests. This suggested that the cost of a sight test is not a disincentive for individuals.

This Government have not introduced charges for dental examinations. NHS charges for dental examinations have been in place since 1989 for those patients who are not exempt on income or other grounds. In April 2006 the system of charges was simplified as part of the wider reforms to NHS dentistry. Under the reforms, dental examinations are no longer charged as a separate item of service but as part of a course of treatment. A basic course of treatment (band 1) costs £15.90 and includes examination, diagnosis (including x-rays if needed), preventative advice and, if clinically indicated, a scale and polish.

Fibromyalgia

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has commissioned on fibromyalgia over the last five years. [156387]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to my right hon. Friend the Member for Oxford, East (Mr. Smith) on 23 April 2007, Official Report, column 962W.

Food Standards Agency: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many press officers are employed by the Food Standards Agency. [154138]

Dawn Primarolo: The Food Standards Agency currently employs eight press officers.

General Practitioners

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what percentage of patients visiting their general practitioner were subsequently referred on in the latest period for which figures are available; [154365]

(2) what percentage of patients in each primary care trust area who visited their general practitioner were referred on in the last 12 months. [154549]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on the total number patients who visit their general practitioner is not routinely collected.

For the period 2006-07, the total number of commissioner based general practitioner referrals to first consultant outpatient appointment was 9,226,012. The following table provides a breakdown of this figure by primary care trust for the same period.

Department of Health monthly monitoring return

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in England are not registered with a GP surgery. [154559]

Mr. Bradshaw: These data are not collected centrally by the Department.

General Practitioners: Rents

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will revise the cost rent system used to reimburse GP practices accommodation costs to ensure that facilities are not reimbursed by a number of different agencies at the same time in cases of subletting space in GP surgeries. [154362]

Mr. Bradshaw: The "National Health Service (General Medical Services—Premises Costs) (England) Directions 2004" set out the arrangements for primary care trusts to make payments in respect of general practitioner (GP) premises' costs. Direction 48 provides for those payments to be offset by any rents GPs receive from third parties for areas of premises they occupy. There is therefore no need for a revision.

General Practitioners: Working Hours

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what percentage of GP practices hold (a) evening and (b) weekend surgeries. [153852]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is not collected centrally. However, the Department's quarterly Access to Primary Care Survey shows that over the last year an average of 5.5 per cent. of patients were offered an evening appointment and an average of 1.25 per cent. of patients were offered an appointment at the weekend by their general practitioner surgeries.

Gorlin Syndrome

Mr. Bruce George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment has been made of the standard of care provided to patients with Gorlin Syndrome; and if he will make a statement; [154740]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the level of implementation of National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidelines on improving outcomes for people with skin tumours; [154741]

(3) what representations his Department has received on patients with Gorlin Syndrome being unable to access treatment on the NHS; and if he will make a statement. [154742]

Ann Keen: The Department has received a very small number of representations about access to treatment on the national health service for Gorlin's Syndrome patients. No assessment has been made of the standard of care provided to patients with this syndrome.

However, in February 2006 the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence issued guidance on "Improving Outcomes for People with Skin Tumours including Melanoma".

This guidance highlights a number of genetic conditions, including Gorlin's Syndrome, which predispose a person to the development of skin cancer in later life and sets out recommendations for the management of people with this condition.

Specialised commissioning groups[1] have been asked to produce implementation summaries setting out how they would implement this guidance over the next three years. These plans have been submitted to the National Cancer Action Team and are being checked for compliance against the guidance.

[1] Specialised services, defined as those services provided in relatively few specialist centres to catchment populations of more than 1 million people, are either commissioned regionally by specialised commissioning groups (SCGs) or nationally by the National Commissioning Group (NCG) depending on the rarity of the condition or treatment. 10 new SCGs were established on 1 April 2007 to commission services on a regional basis, coterminous with the 10 strategic health authorities. (This succeeds a two tier arrangement of regional (eight SCGs) and local (25 local SCGs) commissioning groups.) Services commissioned at SCG level include haemophilia, blood and marrow transplantation, secure forensic mental health, spinal cord injuries, etc.

Health Protection Agency: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many press officers are employed by the Health Protection Agency. [154141]

Dawn Primarolo: There are 21.5 press officers employed by the Health Protection Agency. This includes:

nine regional communications managers (one per region) and three regional press officers (based in the London, eastern and west midlands regions);

five press officers based at the Centre for Infections, Colindale;

3.5 press officers based at the Centre for Radiation, Chemicals and the Environment, Chilton; and one Head of Strategic Communications Planning: Emergency Preparedness and Response based at the Centre for Emergency Preparedness and Response, Porton.

Health Services: Bedfordshire

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what sampling techniques were used in compiling statistical information on the health needs of Bedfordshire and Luton when allocating funds for (a) Bedfordshire Primary Care Trust and (b) Luton Primary Care Trust; and if he will make a statement. [155927]

Mr. Bradshaw: Funding is allocated to primary care trusts (PCTs) on the basis of the relative needs of their populations. A weighted capitation formula is used to determine PCTs' target shares of available resources, to enable them to commission similar levels of health services for populations in similar need.

The Advisory Committee on Resource Allocation (ACRA) oversees the development of the weighted-capitation formula. ACRA is an independent body which has national health service management, general practitioner, and academic members. It commissions research to measure the health needs of PCTs.

The health need element of the formula, which informs the revenue allocations to PCTs in 2006-07 and 2007-08, was based upon research carried out by the allocation of resources to English areas (AREA) research team in 2001-02 and by Warwick university. The AREA research modelled need for all areas in England, and as a result a national formula was developed. A detailed description of the research techniques and the formula are published on the Department's website[1, 2] at:

www.dh.gov.uk/allocations

Generally, the data used in this research were based on full population datasets (for example, the National Census). Statistical sampling was not required in those cases. The significant exception was the Health Survey for England (HSE). HSE data for 1994-2000 inclusive were used and this provided a national sample size of 122,488. More details of the techniques used are provided in the document listed at point 2 as follows.

[1] "Resource Allocation: Weighted Capitation Formula: Fifth edition" (Department of Health).

[2] Allocation of Resources to English Areas; Individual and small area determinants of morbidity and use of healthcare resources (Sutton M, Gravelle H, Morris S, Leyland A, Windmeijer F, Dibben C, Muirhead M) Report to the Department of Health. Health Services: East Midlands

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what contact his Department has had with (a) the East Midlands Strategic Health Authority (SHA), (b) primary care trusts within the East Midlands SHA area, (c) NHS hospital trusts, foundation trusts and mental health trusts within the East Midlands SHA area and (d) right hon. and hon. Members on the effects of immigration into the region, NHS services and budgets; and if he will make a statement; [156398]

(2) what contact his Department has had with (a) the East of England Strategic Health Authority (SHA), (b) primary care trusts within the East of England SHA area, (c) NHS hospital trusts, foundation trusts and mental health trusts within the SHA area and (d) right hon. and hon. Members on the effects of immigration into the region on NHS services and budgets; and if he will make a statement. [156399]

Dawn Primarolo: Ministers have regular meetings with hon. Members and other stakeholders about health services in England. There is also a regular flow of correspondence from across the country including the East of England and East Midlands areas.

The Department is supporting local national health service organisations engage within regional strategic migration partnerships which provide a single multi-sector, multi agency forum to consider the impacts of migration as they affect regional areas. Funding of £20,000 is available in both 2007-08 and 2008-09 to help with co-ordination arrangements.

Discussions are shortly to start with the East Midlands Government Office and the Local Government East Midlands about this. Also, this work is being taken forward in partnership with the East of England Regional Assembly, the East of England Government Office and Suffolk primary care trust.

Healthcare Commission: Information Officers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many press officers are employed by the Healthcare Commission. [154169]

Mr. Bradshaw: We understand from the Chairman of the Healthcare Commission that at present the Healthcare Commission currently employs three full-time press officers and one full-time media relations manager, all who are based at the Healthcare Commissions head office at Finsbury Tower, London.

Hearing Impaired: Tunbridge Wells

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the most recent average waiting time is for (a) audiology appointments and (b) the issue of a digital hearing aid in Tunbridge Wells constituency. [154473]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not held centrally in the format requested.

However, the following data show waiting times for audiological assessments in West Kent primary care trust and nationally as at July 2007 and published on 12 September 2007.

West Kent Primary Care Trust

Total waiting for an audiological assessment: 1,765 with 1,060 waiting over 13 weeks.

National

Total waiting for an audiological assessment: 116,915 with 63,161 waiting over 13 weeks.

Heart Diseases: Medical Treatments

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's preliminary recommendation of 7 August 2007 on percutaneous coronary intervention; and if he will make a statement. [156162]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) is reviewing its October 2003 guidance on the use of drug-eluting stents for the treatment of coronary artery disease. NICE is currently considering the responses it has received from stakeholders during the recent consultation on its draft recommendations. As NICE has not yet issued final guidance it would be inappropriate for us to comment further at this stage.

NICE expects to publish final guidance in March 2008.

Hepatitis: Drugs

Mr. Laxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total annual cost was of drug treatments for hepatitis C in 2005-06. [154357]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence has recommended three drugs used for the treatment of hepatitis C: pegylated interferons, interferon alfa and oral ribavirin. The estimated costs of these drugs dispensed in hospitals and in the community in the financial year 2005-06 was £24.4 million.

Pegylated interferon alfa-2a may also be used to treat chronic hepatitis B. Interferon alfa-2a and 2b may also be used to treat chronic hepatitis B and some malignant diseases, such as certain forms of leukaemia. It is not possible to identify these costs separately.

Notes:

1. These data have been collated by the Information Centre for Health and Social Care.

2. The source of data on hospital prescribing is © IMS HEALTH: Hospital Pharmacy Audit. The cost of the medicines is estimated at NHS list price and not necessarily the price that the hospital paid.

3. Data on community prescribing are taken from the Prescription Cost Analysis system, supplied by the Prescription Pricing Division of the Business Services Authority. Estimated costs are based on Net Ingredient Cost (NIC). NIC is the basic cost of a drug. It does not take account of discounts, dispensing costs, fees or prescription charges income.

Hospitals

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what district general hospitals there are in England; [154646]

(2) which hospitals are located in each parliamentary constituency. [154647]

Mr. Bradshaw: There is no current nationally agreed definition of what constitutes a district general hospital, although the term is in common use and is generally employed to describe large hospitals which are not teaching hospitals.

Information identifying individual hospital sites by parliamentary constituency is not collected centrally. However, a series of fact sheets on the Department's website does identify the headquarters' address of each national health service trust in this manner. The information is available at:

www.info.doh.gov.uk/nhsfactsheets.nsf

NHS organisations will decide locally what constitutes the best configuration of healthcare services for their populations. In some localities, services may be provided in large centralised hospitals, while others may offer the same services in the community.

Hospitals: Cleaning Services

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of wards in acute hospitals in England which will need to be temporarily closed to be deep cleaned. [156456]

Ann Keen: The delivery of any deep-clean process is entirely a matter for local determination and will be affected by a range of local factors and considerations. It is not therefore possible to provide any estimate of the number of ward closures which may be required. However, we would expect all trusts to organise this programme in such a way that it minimises impact on service delivery and inconvenience to patients.

Hospitals: Food

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will estimate the proportion of hospital food wasted in the most recent period for which figures are available. [154175]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected in the format requested. The latest figures (for England) on food waste in the form of untouched meals are as set out as follows:

	2005-06
Total number of untouched/unserved patient meals	13,053,065
Average percentage of untouched/unserved patient meals	9.42

Since 2004-05, the data provided have not been collected on a mandatory basis and therefore will not be complete.

Hospitals: Ministers of Religion

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 18th July 2007, Official Report, column 456W, on Hospitals: Ministers of religion, what guidance he has issued on the responsibilities of NHS trusts to provide for the spiritual care of patients; and when budgetary control was devolved to NHS trusts in relation to these matters. [154317]

Ann Keen: The Department issued guidance to national health service trusts in November 2003. "Meeting the Religious and Spiritual Needs of Patients and Staff" sets out a framework for the context and provision of chaplaincy and spiritual care services throughout the NHS that meet the needs of today's multi-cultural and spiritually diverse society.

NHS organisations have always been responsible for the provision of chaplaincy and spiritual care services. Funding for this is built into financial allocations to primary care trust, who commission hospital services on behalf of patients. "Shifting the Balance of Power", published in 2002, empowered NHS trusts to give front line staff more say in how resources are allocated and services are delivered locally.

Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority: Information Officers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many press officers are employed by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority. [154167]

Dawn Primarolo: I am informed by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority that, as of 28 August 2007, two people are employed to work full-time with the media, of which one has the job title of press officer.

Hyperactivity

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether clinical guidelines being developed by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence will take account of the possibility that attention deficit hyperactivity disorder is caused by (a) dietary and (b) environmental factors. [156510]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) is producing a clinical guideline on the diagnosis and management of attention deficit hyperactivity disorder in children, young people and adults. The guideline will provide recommendations for good practice based on the latest available evidence and will be developed through extensive consultation with stakeholders. The published scope of the guideline includes consideration of dietary elimination and supplementation, and makes reference to environmental risk factors. The full scope for this guideline is available on the NICE website at:

guidance.nice.org.uk/page.aspx?o=351276

NICE expects to publish final guidance in July 2008.

Independent Regulator of NHS Foundation Trusts: Information Officers

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many press officers are employed by the Independent Regulator of NHS Foundation Trusts. [154737]

Mr. Bradshaw: We are informed by the Chairman of Monitor, whose statutory name is the independent regulator of national health service foundation trusts, that Monitor employs two external relations officers, part of whose responsibilities include media handling.

Influenza: Vaccination

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 24 July 2007, Official Report, columns 982-3W, on Influenza: Vaccination, what form the ongoing programme of public engagement will take; whether criteria determining the priority in which different groups of people are offered (a) vaccines, (b) antivirals and (c) other clinical interventions will be subjected to formal consultation; how often he expects these criteria to be reviewed; and if he will make a statement. [154216]

Dawn Primarolo: Work continues on the design of a public engagement programme in accordance with the timetable set out in the previous written answer.

Between March and May 2007 the Government consulted on the draft 'Ethical framework for the response to pandemic influenza', which provides an ethical framework for policy and planning decisions relating to pandemic influenza, including the prioritisation of clinical countermeasures. The final version of this document will be published with the final 'National Framework for responding to an influenza pandemic' in the autumn. While the ethical principles underlying issues such as prioritisation can be considered in advance, their implications would have to be reviewed in light of emerging scientific developments and/or other information available at the time of a pandemic.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to ensure an adequate supply of seasonal flu vaccines for the winter 2007-08 flu immunisation programme; what discussions he has had with flu vaccine manufacturers on their capacity to supply adequate stocks of vaccine; which manufacturers are supplying vaccine to the UK; what information he has received about flu vaccine manufacturers encountering difficulties in (a) manufacturing and (b) delivering vaccines; and if he will make a statement. [156414]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department meets with representatives from UK Vaccine Industry Group (UVIG) each year to discuss flu vaccine requirements for the United Kingdom. On 24 July 2007, Professor David Salisbury, Director of Immunisation, wrote to the profession saying that over 15 million doses of seasonal flu vaccine would be available for distribution in the UK.

Suppliers of flu vaccine to the UK for 2007-08 are Sanofi Pasteur MSD, Novartis Vaccines, GlaxoSmithKline, MASTA, Solvay and Wyeth vaccines.

The profession were alerted to the minor delays in distribution of vaccine from GSK and Novartis in the August and September edition of "Vaccine Update" respectively. Supply of flu vaccine to surgeries has already commenced.

Information Officers

Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many press officers are employed by the National Clinical Assessment Service; [154463]

(2) how many press officers are employed by the National Patient Safety Agency. [154464]

Ann Keen: The National Patient Safety Agency (NPSA) is a special health authority that was established in July 2001 to undertake various patient safety functions.

Since 1 April 2005, following the Department's Review of Arms Length Bodies, the Agency has also taken on additional responsibilities including those for the National Clinical Assessment Service (formerly the National Clinical Assessment Authority).

As at April 2007, two full-time press officers are employed by the NPSA to provide support across all the areas of its responsibility.

Intensive Care

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many intensive care beds there were in each of the last 10 years, broken down by trust. [154272]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on the number of critical care beds was not collected before March 1999. The biannual adult critical care provision census started in March 1999 with the latest census in July 2007. The data from each census have been placed in the Library. National health service trust mergers have taken place between 1999 and 2007 but each census covers organisations current at the time.

Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency: Information Officers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many press officers are employed by the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency. [154166]

Dawn Primarolo: The Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency employs two press officers.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to reply to the letter to the Minister of State (Delivery and Quality) dated 21 May from the hon. Member for Hyndburn on Mrs. J. Hogan. [153790]

Dawn Primarolo: The reply was sent on 16 August 2007.

Meningitis: Vaccination

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the take-up rate of the pneumococcal conjugate vaccine Prevenar has been since 4 September 2006; [155841]

(2) what studies have been commissioned into the effectiveness of Prevenar since 4 September 2006. [155842]

Dawn Primarolo: Data on the pneumococcal vaccine uptake for children are currently being collected on behalf of the Department by the Health Protection Agency (HPA), and no robust analysis is available yet. Preliminary data from just over half of primary care trusts in England suggested that over 60 per cent. of children targeted in the catch-up campaign had received the vaccine. We do not yet know the level of uptake of the vaccine given as part of the routine childhood immunisation programme.

The impact of the vaccine has been very significant, with the number of cases of invasive pneumococcal disease in children, caused by any one of the seven serotypes contained in the vaccine, falling since the introduction of the new vaccine a year ago. The latest data are available on the HPA website at:

www.hpa.org.uk/infections/topics_az/pneumococcal/default.htm

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department has taken to increase awareness of the Prevenar vaccine. [155843]

Dawn Primarolo: A public awareness campaign ran in September 2006 in support of the introduction of the pneumococcal vaccine. The new vaccine was publicised through television, radio and press advertising and an information pack was available for parents and health professionals.

There is a section on the immunisation.nhs.uk website about pneumococcal vaccines, and a leaflet on the pneumococcal catch-up programme has been placed in the Library and is available at:

www.immunisation.nhs.uk/files/275877_Catch-upleaflet.pdf

The pneumococcal vaccine is now part of the routine immunisation programme and is described in the Guide to childhood immunisations leaflet, available from general practitioner surgeries. Information and advice is also offered on this and other vaccines by health professionals before immunisations are given.

Midwives: Manpower

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the estimated required number of midwives is in each of the next five years; [154475]

(2) what percentage of midwives are due to retire in each of the next five years; and how many new midwives are planned to be recruited in each year. [154477]

Mr. Bradshaw: We do not collect information on the estimated numbers of retirements for midwives, this is a matter for strategic health authorities to build into their local workforce plans as they are best placed to assess the midwifery needs of their local population.

As part of NHS Operating Framework for 2007-08, local organisations are reviewing their workforce capacity and may identify the need to invest in their maternity services and increase staffing levels.

National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence: Information Officers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many press officers are employed by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence. [154159]

Dawn Primarolo: Information on the number of press officers employed by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) is not held by the Department. NICE is an independent body and should be contacted direct for this information.

National Treatment Agency for Substance Misuse: Information Officers

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many press officers are employed by the National Treatment Agency for Substance Misuse. [154557]

Dawn Primarolo: There is one press officer employed at the National Treatment Agency.

Neurology: Manpower

Chris McCafferty: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans his Department has for the numbers of (a) adult neurologists, (b) paediatric neurologists, (c) learning disability specialists and (d) neuro-radiologists in the next 10 years; and whether there are targets for the number of consultants in each case. [153972]

Mr. Bradshaw: As part of the work force contribution to delivering the NHS improvement plan, we are moving away from an emphasis on centrally prescribed national targets to a reliance on credible local plans to maximise work force capacity to support delivery.

It is the responsibility of primary care trusts and strategic health authorities to analyse their local situation and develop plans, in liaison with their local national health service trusts and primary care providers, to deliver high quality NHS services and take action to recruit the appropriate staff required to deliver these services.

The following table shows the number of medical staff in neurology has increased by 372 or 59 per cent. since 1997.

NHS Connecting for Health

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 29 June 2007, Official Report, column 885W, on NHS Connecting for Health, which communications agency established the link; how much Connecting for Health has paid that agency; and which other communications agencies have had contracts with Connecting for Health, and at what value. [154652]

Mr. Bradshaw: The communications agency concerned is Good Relations. Payments made to the agency for services provided to NHS Connecting for Health from 1 April 2005, when NHS Connecting for Health came into being, to 26 September 2007, total £509,263 including VAT.

NHS Connecting for Health also holds, or has held, contacts with Fishburn Hedges, and with Porter Novelli, payments to whom, over the same period, total £2,881,595 including VAT.

NHS Connecting for Health recognises the need for clear and accurate communications with the public and other stakeholder groups, including national health service staff. A key priority for successful implementation of an effective, national information technology system—a central plank of national health service modernisation—is to ensure that the public and stakeholders are fully informed and have an awareness and understanding of the benefits. The agencies concerned were appointed to assist in this important communication process and to produce supporting materials.

The contracts have delivered value for money. Examples of outputs include videos to explain the new systems and services; exhibition stands and an outdoor exhibition trailer to support face-to-face engagement; millions of copies of associated guidance material, posters and information packs for NHS staff and patients; and implementation advice and case studies for local NHS bodies that demonstrate the value of the programme, how benefits can be realised and lessons learned from implementations.

NHS Institute for Innovation and Improvement: Information Officers

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many press officers are employed by the NHS Institute for Innovation and Improvement. [154668]

Dawn Primarolo: The NHS Institute for Innovation and Improvement employs two full-time press officers.

NHS Treatment Centres: Cambridgeshire

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has for the development of independent sector treatment centres in Cambridgeshire and Peterborough; and if he will make a statement. [154761]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department is working with the national health service to review the specifications of schemes in Phase 2 of the central procurement process, including the proposed scheme for the Norfolk, Suffolk and Cambridgeshire area, to ensure that future schemes best meet the needs of the local NHS and are responsive to the needs of the communities in which they will operate. This exercise is ongoing and is expected to be completed in October. Once this process is complete, and all parties involved in negotiations have been informed of the outcomes, further information will be made available.

NHS Treatment Centres: Essex

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many representations, and from whom, have been received in support of an independent treatment centre in mid-Essex. [156493]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not keep data on the precise number of representations received on the specific issues. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has said that he expects to approve further independent sector schemes in coming months, and that they will only go forward where the local national health service supports their introduction.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made on the establishment of an Independent Treatment Centre in mid-Essex; and if he will make a statement. [156527]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department is working with the national health service to review the specifications of the remaining schemes in Phase 2 of the central procurement process, including the proposed scheme for Essex, to ensure that future schemes best meet the needs of the local NHS, and are responsive to the needs of the communities in which they will operate. This exercise is ongoing, and expected to be completed in October. Once this process is complete, and all parties involved in negotiations have been informed of the outcomes, further information will be made available.

NHS Treatment Centres: Private Sector

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent establishing independent sector treatment centres. [154560]

Mr. Bradshaw: The costs of establishing Wave 1 and Phase 2 of the independent sector treatment centre programme are shown in the following table. Procurement costs cover all assessment, scoping, procurement and associated management, professional advisory and support costs.

Wave 1 and phase 2 procurement costs

£ million

	Wave 1	Phase 2
2006-07	2.2	38.6
2005-06	12.4	26.5
2004-05	34.9	8
2003-04	23.4	—

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library the analysis his Department has undertaken into the possible effects of the independent sector treatment centre programme on NHS facilities. [155865]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department has undertaken analysis of the prospective impact of proposed Phase 2 schemes, but considers that it is not reasonable to place this information in the Library at this time, because the analyses concerned are still contributing to procurement processes, the outcomes of which remain subject to ministerial decisions which have yet to be made.

NHS: Billing

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS trusts (a) paid and (b) did not pay 95 per cent. of undisputed invoices within contract terms or 30 days where no terms have been agreed in (i) 2005-06 and (ii) 2006-07; and what the total value was of those invoices in each case. [155867]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information has been placed in the Library.

NHS: DHL

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the value of the capital equipment was in the 10 prime categories signed over to DHL in the NHS supply chain contract. [154650]

Mr. Bradshaw: The national health service capital spend in the 10 prime categories has not been signed over to DHL.

The approximate value of NHS capital spend in the 10 prime categories managed by DHL in the NHS supply chain contract is £2 - £2.25 billion. This means that DHL has the opportunity to offer to manage this spend on behalf of individual NHS trusts and foundation trusts.

NHS: Exel Europe

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which of the key performance indicators contained within the master services agreement between Exel Europe Limited and the NHS Business Services Authority for the operation of the NHS supply chain will be published by or under the authority of his Department on an annual basis; and if he will make a statement. [154648]

Mr. Bradshaw: The chief executive of the NHS Business Services Authority (Nick Scholte) has written to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question and a copy of his letter has been placed in the Library.

NHS: Finance

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the capital and revenue costs of implementing the Healthy Futures and Making it Better proposals are over the next five years itemised by primary care trust. [156507]

Ann Keen: The consultation teams for Making it Better and Healthy Futures are currently in the early stages of planning and scoping their implementation programmes and activities.

As part of the planning stage of the implementation programme, capital and revenue costs of these changes, as well as taking into account any recommendations by the Secretary of State will be reviewed.

At present the costs have not been finalised.

NHS: Procurement

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the 10 prime categories of the NHS supply chain contract are. [154651]

Mr. Bradshaw: The prime categories of the NHS supply chain contract are:

Category
Medical supplies
Food and kitchen
Print and stationery
Laundry and cleaning
Bedding and linen
Dressings
Uniforms and clothing
Patient appliances
Laboratory equipment
Other equipment
Furniture/office and computer equipment

NHS: Standards

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many submissions were received during the evidence-gathering phase for the development of the Quality and Outcomes Framework for 2008-09; how many of these were received from (a) national societies, (b) patient groups, (c) pharmaceutical companies, (d) individuals, (e) primary care organisations and (f) others; and how many related to each type of disease. [156413]

Mr. Bradshaw: The team of experts appointed by NHS Employers and the British Medical Association (BMA) to inform the ongoing review and development of the Quality and Outcomes Framework (QOF) received 153 submissions in its latest round of evidence gathering. NHS Employers have announced that the breakdown of source of the submissions was as follows: national societies (27 per cent.), patient groups (25 per cent.), pharmaceutical companies (13 per cent.), individuals (15 per cent.), primary care organisations (10 per cent.), others (10 per cent.).

Any changes to the QOF depend on wider discussions between NHS Employers and the BMA about the General Medical Services contract. The advice given to the negotiating parties by the expert panel and further details of the submissions received, including the number related to each type of disease, are confidential to the negotiations.

Obesity: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his most recent assessment is of the (a) obesity and (b) smoking rate in each ward of the Peterborough city council area. [154067]

Dawn Primarolo: Estimated prevalence of obesity and smoking among adults aged 16 and over, along with associated confidence intervals are provided for the wards in the Peterborough local authority. These estimates are taken from the Synthetic Estimates of Healthy Lifestyle Behaviours and are published on the Neighbourhood Statistics website at:

www.neighbourhood.statistics.gov.uk/dissemination/Download1.do

Paediatrics: Doctors

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many junior paediatric doctors are working in the NHS by (a) headcount and (b) full-time equivalent. [154793]

Mr. Bradshaw: The number of junior doctors in the paediatric specialty is shown in the following table.

Patientline

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library the NHS's contract with Patientline. [155868]

Mr. Bradshaw: There is no single national health service contract with Patientline. Patientline's contracts are tailored to each NHS trust according to its specific needs.

Patients: Foreigners

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of patients treated by the NHS in each year since 2003 were foreign nationals resident in the UK. [156312]

Dawn Primarolo: Successive Governments have not required the national health service to provide statistics on the numbers of foreign nationals who are treated by the NHS, including those who are resident in the United Kingdom. It is therefore not possible to provide the information requested.

Pharmacy

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the prospects for local pharmacies to operate a minor ailments service; whether he expects primary care trusts to promote such a service; and if he will make a statement. [155788]

Dawn Primarolo: In "Building on the Best: Choice, Responsiveness and Equity in the NHS", which was published in December 2003, the Department said that it expected all primary care trusts to consider commissioning pharmacist-led minor ailments services so that patients, who would otherwise have gone to their general practitioner for a medicine for a minor ailment, could get that medicine on the national health service from their community pharmacy.

Primary care trusts assess the health needs their population and commission services to meet those needs, in accordance with local priorities and finite resources.

Princess Royal Hospital Telford

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many beds there are at the Princess Royal hospital at Telford. [155790]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not centrally available, as the Department does not collect bed data at hospital level. However, this data is available at national health service trust level.

In 2006-07, the latest period for which data is available, there was an average daily number of 853 available beds provided by Shrewsbury and Telford hospital NHS trust. These consisted of beds open overnight and day only beds.

Recombinant Factor VII

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 273W, on Recombinant Factor VII, what the service level is between his Department and each strategic health authority for the provision of Recombinant Factor VII. [154654]

Dawn Primarolo: The service level agreement between the Department and each strategic health authority is for the provision of recombinant clotting factors. This includes Recombinant Factor VII and Factor VIII. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 12 June 2007, Official Report, column 992W.

Ritalin

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to initiate research into possible (a) health and (b) psychological side effects associated with the use of the drug Ritalin. [156511]

Dawn Primarolo: The safety of the use of methylphenidate is kept under careful review by the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) in conjunction with other European regulatory authorities. In June 2007, at the request of the European Commission, a Europe wide review of the safety of methylphenidate products, including the risk of cardiovascular and cerebrovascular disorders, was initiated. As part of this review, the United Kingdom, on behalf of Europe, is in discussion with the pharmaceutical companies who manufacture methylphenidate products about the conduct of research to better characterise and further investigate the safety profile of methylphenidate. As new data emerge it will be carefully evaluated by the MHRA and where necessary current prescribing advice will be updated to reflect the new evidence.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to ensure the use of Ritalin only as part of a comprehensive programme including social, psychological and behavioural treatments as recommended by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence for the treatment of attention deficit hyperactivity disorder. [156512]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We fully support the advice given by the National Institute of Clinical Excellence (NICE) in England on the use of drug therapy in treating children and young people with attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD) and expect the national health service to take this guidance into account when treating patients.

NICE have advised that drug therapy to treat ADHD, of which Ritalin is but one option, should only be part of a comprehensive treatment programme that includes a range of social, psychological and behavioural interventions. These are mainly aimed at the child, but sometimes involve the parents and/or teachers. NICE has recommended that drug therapy should only be initiated by an appropriately qualified healthcare professional with expertise in ADHD and should be based on a comprehensive assessment and diagnosis. Continued prescribing and monitoring of drug treatment may be performed by general practitioners, under shared care arrangements.

Psychological interventions that may be helpful include behavioural management, parent training, family and/or individual therapy, social skills training, cognitive behaviour therapy and problem solving techniques, among others. Careful, informed clinical decision-making, involving the parents and child should involve discussion of the benefits versus the risks of all interventions.

We have also asked NICE to develop a clinical guideline on both the pharmacological and psychological interventions to treat ADHD. The guideline will cover the care provided by primary, community and secondary healthcare professionals who have direct contact with, and make decisions concerning, the care of children, young people and adults with ADHD. The guideline will include:

care in general practice and NHS community care;

hospital out-patient and in-patient care;

primary/secondary interface of care; and transition from childhood services to adult services.

Publication of the guideline is expected in July 2008.

Smoking: Health Services

Ms Barlow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funds have been made available for smoking cessation programmes; and how the allocations to individual funds are determined. [155948]

Dawn Primarolo: The total funding allocation for the NHS Stop Smoking Services is set out in the following table.

Financial allocations to the NHS for stop smoking services

	£ million
1979-98	0
1998-99	0
1999-2000	10 (HAZs only)

2002-03	[1]23
2003-04	41
2004-05	46
2005-06	51
2006-07	[2]56
2007-08	[2]56

HAZ= Health action zones.

[1] £3 million in 2001-02 and 2002-03 for smoking in pregnancy initiative.

[2] Including additional £5 million heavily weighted towards spearhead PCTs.

The 2006-07 and 2007-08 revenue allocations to Primary Care Trusts (PCTs) separately identify £211 million in 2006-07 and £342 million in 2007-08, around half of the £1 billion promised, to support implementation of the Choosing Health White Paper. For the two years covered by this allocation, a total of £10 million has been identified nationally to invest in the NHS Stop Smoking Services initiative.

Funding to support the NHS Stop Smoking Services has been allocated to PCTs on a weighted capitation basis, with the majority of the funding directed towards Spearhead PCTs.

Information on individual PCT allocations has been placed in the Library and is available at:

Surgery: Manpower

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many surgeons in the NHS were capable of carrying out (a) hepatobiliary, (b) renal, (c) cardiac and (d) ophthalmic surgery in each of the last 10 years; [154266]

(2) what plans the Government have to increase the number of (a) hepatobiliary, (b) renal, (c) cardiac and (d) ophthalmic surgeons in each of the next three years. [154267]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is not collected centrally.

It is the responsibility of primary care trusts and strategic health authorities to analyse their local situation and develop plans, in liaison with their local NHS trusts and primary care providers, to deliver high quality NHS services and take action to recruit the appropriate staff required to deliver these services.

Surgery: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients in Peterborough constituency have had their inpatient surgical treatment cancelled three times or more in the last year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [154691]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information is not available in the format requested. However, the following table shows the number of last minute cancelled operations for non-clinical reasons at Peterborough and Stamford Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust, for 2006-07 which are the latest data available.

Peterborough and Stamford Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust

	Number
Number of last minute cancellations for non clinical reasons	262
Number of urgent operations that were cancelled for a second or subsequent time for non clinical reasons	0

Notes:
1. A last minute cancellation is one that occurs on the day the patient was due to arrive, after they have arrived in hospital or on the day of their operation.
2. Some common non-clinical reasons for cancellations by the hospital include: ward beds unavailable; surgeon unavailable; emergency case needing theatre; theatre list over-ran; equipment failure; administration error; anaesthetist unavailable; theatre staff unavailable; and critical care bed unavailable.
3. Urgent operations are as defined by National Confidentially Enquiry into Perioperative Deaths. 'Immediate', 'Urgent' and 'Expedited' operations are included in the definition. However, 'Elective' operations are not included in the definition

Transplant Surgery: Manpower

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many surgeons in the NHS were capable of carrying out transplant surgery in each of the last 10 years. [154277]

Mr. Bradshaw: Transplant surgery is a sub-specialty of general surgery; the Information Centre for Health and Social Care does not collect information by sub-specialty.

The 2006 NHS workforce census showed there were 1,756 consultants working in the general surgery speciality, an increase of 578 or 49 per cent. since 1997.

University Hospital of North Staffordshire: Research

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what studies were undertaken at the University Hospital of North Staffordshire involving children from overseas in the 1990s. [154329]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not centrally held by the Department. The NHS West Midlands strategic health authority reports that University Hospital of North Staffordshire NHS Trust has recently written to the hon. Member following a similar request under the Freedom of Information Act.

Vaccines: Sleeping Contracts

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 24 July 2007, Official Report, column 985W, on vaccines: sleeping contracts, when negotiations with the vaccine manufacturers were completed; with which vaccine manufacturers negotiations were held; whether the provision of pre-pandemic vaccines was discussed as part of the negotiations; whether the negotiations have implications for the public purse; and whether he expects to make the statement referred to in the answer alongside publication of an updated pandemic influenza preparedness plan. [154215]

Dawn Primarolo: Negotiations for the advanced supply contracts for pandemic specific vaccine were completed with GlaxoSmithKline (GSK) and Baxter in May 2007 and the contracts became operational from 1 July 2007. The contracts are worth in total £155.4 million over four years, and are part of the continued work to prepare for and reduce the impact of a possible flu pandemic. Under these contracts GSK and Baxter are committed to supply a pandemic influenza vaccine to the United Kingdom as soon as the pandemic strain is identified and made available by the World Health Organisation.

Pre-pandemic vaccine did not form part of the negotiations.

A public announcement of the advanced supply agreements was made on 16 August 2007 and is reflected within the updated pandemic influenza preparedness plan which is due to be released shortly.

Westmorland Hospital: Mental Health Services

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the temporary closure of the adult mental health ward at Westmorland General Hospital could become permanent without a formal public consultation. [153651]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: National health service organisations currently have a duty to involve and consult patients, the public and their representatives in the planning and development of services, and to consult them on changes to the operation of services.

Kentmere Ward at the Westmorland General is the responsibility of the Cumbria Partnership NHS trust. NHS North West reports that the ward has been closed temporarily on clinical safety grounds due to problems around recruitment to key posts. A recruitment exercise is currently under way.

Wi-Fi: Health Hazards

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate he has made of (a) the number of people suffering health problems as a result of Wi-Fi communications and (b) the causes of sensitivity to Wi-Fi technology; [154577]

(2) what assessment he has made of the health implications of Wi-Fi communications; [154578]

(3) what representations he has received about the potential health implications of Wi-Fi communications; [154579]

(4) if he will set up an inquiry into Wi-Fi communications and their environmental and health impact. [154582]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department is advised by the Health Protection Agency (HPA) on Wi-Fi or similar wireless (WLAN) technology and health issues.

Current advice from the HPA is that "There is no consistent evidence to date that Wi-Fi and WLANs adversely affect the health of the general population. The signals are very low power, typically 0.1 watt (100 milliwatts) in both the computer and the router (access point) and the results so far show exposures are well within internationally accepted International Commission on Non-ionising Radiation Protection (ICNIRP) guidelines. Based on current knowledge and experience, radio frequency exposures from Wi-Fi are likely to be lower than those from mobile phones. Also, the frequencies used in Wi-Fi are broadly the same as those from traditional radiofrequency applications.".

On the basis of this advice the Department believes it is not feasible to conduct any further estimates of the numbers affected.

The HPA statement on Wi-Fi is available at:

www.hpa.org.uk/radiation/understand/radiation_topics/emf/wifi.htm.

In 2005 the HPA published a review of electrical sensitivity. This is a condition which some people attribute to exposure to electromagnetic fields associated with the electricity supply and electrical equipment. The review notes that although the symptoms are attributed to exposure to various types of electromagnetic fields, there is no proven scientific link between such exposures and symptoms. A number of studies have looked for diagnostic markers for electrical sensitivity but no consistent marker has been found. The HPA report entitled "Definition, Epidemiology and Management of Electrical Sensitivity" is available at:

www.hpa.org.uk/radiation/publications/hpa_rpd_reports/2005/hpa_rpd_010.htm.

From May to September this year the Department has replied to four parliamentary questions, four items of correspondence from organisations and twelve from members of the public that have cited Wi-Fi equipment as a cause of health problems including the disturbing symptoms referred to as electrical sensitivity.

The Department is not planning an inquiry into Wi-Fi but the HPA is announcing a programme of work on Wi-Fi and WLAN installations such as those used in schools and homes. Discussions are underway with partner agencies, especially those in the education sector. This project aims to systematically investigate the types of Wi-Fi equipment in use and produce information on exposures to radio signals from wireless computer networks.

An HPA fact sheet on Wi-Fi is available at:

www.hpa.org.uk/radiation/understand/radiation_topics/emf/wlans.htm.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Balen Report

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions he has had with the BBC on the publication of the Balen Report. [156720]

James Purnell: None. The decision on whether to publish the Balen Report is a matter for the BBC.

Betting

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether he plans to produce a response to the conclusions of the working group on regulation and administration of on-course betting before publication of the consultation document that he referred to in his speech in Westminster Hall on 4 July 2007, Official Report, column 259WH; and if he will make a statement. [153427]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My Department does not intend to produce a separate response to the conclusions of the working group, which are presently out to consultation on the National Joint Pitch Council's website www.njpc-ltd.co.uk. The future administrative arrangements for on-course bookmaking are for the bookmaking and racing industries to agree between themselves; it would not be appropriate for Government to favour one alternative above another. However, we understand the importance of those working in the bookmaking industry being able to comment on what is proposed, and so my officials have worked with the group to ensure that its conclusions are expressed in a logical and transparent format.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the effect of the Gambling Act 2005 on bookmakers' on-course pitch positions; what recent discussions he has had with the Racecourse Association on this topic; and if he will make a statement. [154441]

Mr. Sutcliffe: As I indicated during the Westminster Hall debate on this subject on 4 July 2007, Official Report, columns 237-60WH, and subsequently when I wrote on 25 July to hon. Members with an interest in this matter, the Government do not accept that the Gambling Act 2005 has had a direct effect on bookmakers' on-course pitch positions. No property has changed hands under the Act itself, nor does the Act abolish the National Pitch Rules or the National Joint Pitch Council. It remains open for racecourses, individually or collectively, to use the next five years to negotiate a commercial arrangement which is satisfactory to both sides.

I have had no discussions with the Racecourse Association on this topic, but intend to meet the Association and on-course bookmakers' representatives shortly.

Mr. Binley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) how many fixed odds betting terminals are currently in use in England; [156233]

(2) what Government policy is on the availability of fixed odds betting terminals; and if he will make a statement. [156234]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Under the Gambling Act fixed odds betting terminals have been classified as category B2 gaming machines. The Gambling Commission's annual report 2006-07 estimates that there are 24,500 such machines located in licensed betting premises.

As a result of the Gambling Act 2005 these machines are now strictly regulated alongside other gaming machines for the first time. They are required to abide by strict limits on stakes and prizes (£100 and £500 respectively). The machines also have to comply with regulations, set by the Department, controlling the circumstances in which they are made available for use, and with technical standards set by the Gambling Commission. These include requirements to display information about where customers may obtain advice about gambling problems and a minimum game cycle duration.

B2 gaming machines may only be made available in the heavily regulated environment of casinos and licensed betting premises, both of which may be accessed by adults only. Casinos may offer a maximum of 20 gaming machines of up to category B1 and licensed betting premises a maximumeof four gaming machines of up to category B2.

Big Lottery Fund

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what proportion of Big Lottery Fund grants went to statutory bodies in each year for which figures are available. [153314]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The following figures reflect the amount and percentage of grants awarded to statutory bodies in each year. They include awards under the Big Lottery Fund's new programmes introduced since June 2004 and legacy programmes inherited from the Community Fund and New Opportunities Fund.

Financial year (ending 31 March)	Amount awarded to statutory bodies (£)	Percentage of grants awarded to statutory bodies
2004	391,257,825	43.9
2005	406,007,513	57.1
2006	52,820,765	11.0
2007	33,695,507	10.6

The Big Lottery Fund was created in June 2004. The definition of Statutory Bodies used covers the European regional development fund, further or higher education or university, local government, non-departmental public bodies, parish councils, public corporations, state schools and statutory health bodies.

The Big Lottery Fund has given an undertaking that, under its new programmes, 60-70 per cent. of the funding will go to the third sector. Between June 2004 and March 2007, the figure for third sector awards under new programmes has been 77 per cent. 23 per cent. has gone to the statutory sector.

Big Lottery Fund: Wirral

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which projects were awarded funding by the Big Lottery Fund in each of the last five years in Wirral, broken down by constituency. [154799]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The figures reflect the amount awarded and the number of awards made by the Big Lottery Fund in each of the last five years in Wirral broken down by constituency.

Bookmakers: Licensing

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the average cost of a bookmaker's premises licence is in each local authority in England and Wales. [155610]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department does not gather information on the average cost of a bookmaker's premises licences in each local authority in England and Wales. The Secretary of State has set maximum fee levels for all classes and types of premises licence. The Gambling (Premises Licence Fees) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007 (SI No. 479) require licensing authorities in England and Wales to determine the fee for each type of licence on a cost recovery basis.

British Casino Association

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions he has had with the British Casino Gambling Association since the oral answer from the Prime Minister of 11 July 2007, Official Report, column 1438. [156016]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Ministers and officials from the Department meet regularly with representatives of the British Casino Association to discuss all aspects of casino policy.

I met representatives of the British Casino Association on 26 July 2007.

Casinos

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent by local authorities in preparing bids for (a) small, (b) regional and (c) super casinos. [155612]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The decision to apply to the casino advisory panel was a matter for the local authorities concerned. The Department for Culture, Media and Sport does not hold information about how much was spent by local authorities in preparing applications.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the Government's plans are for the establishment of super, large and small casinos as laid out in the Gambling Act 2005. [156019]

James Purnell: I set out the next steps in my written statement to the House on 16 July.

Climbing

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the number of people regularly using indoor climbing walls. [156637]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Data from the 2005-06 Sport England Active People survey showed that 37,710 adults (16 years and over) participated at least once in the last four weeks in indoor climbing.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the number of people who regularly take part in mountaineering, including rock climbing and fell walking. [156638]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Data from the 2005-06 Sport England 'Active People' survey showed that 146,600 adults (16 years and over) regularly participated in mountaineering including climbing and fell walking. 'Active People' regards participating at least once in the last four weeks as regular participation.

Community Development: Expenditure

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much public money was spent via the Community Investment Fund in each year for which figures are available. [156198]

Mr. Sutcliffe: In each of the following years, the value of commitments made by Sport England through the Community Investment Fund was:

	£ million
2004	2
2005	19
2006	20
2007	51

Culture

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will set out his Department's existing targets in the cultural area of its responsibilities. [156707]

Margaret Hodge: The Department's 2007 annual report sets out all of DCMS's existing targets (including those in the cultural area of its responsibilities) and progress against them.

The report is available on DCMS's public website, via the link as follows:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/Reference_library/Annual_Reports/ar_2007.htm

Hard copies of the annual report can also be found in the House Libraries.

The next formal statement of progress against the full set of DCMS targets will be published in December 2007 in the form of the Department's annual autumn performance report.

Digital Broadcasting

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what spectrum bands will be available for Programme Making and Special Events use following the switchover to digital television broadcasting; and if he will make a statement; [153652]

(2) when he expects Ofcom to provide the programme making and special events sector with the digital switchover map; and if he will make a statement. [154080]

James Purnell: Ofcom's consultation of 20 June 2007 on PMSE issues arising from the Digital Switchover (DSO), made proposals that would ensure access for the PMSE sector to the spectrum that will be interleaved with Digital Terrestrial Television after DSO. Although no decisions will be made until later in the year, Ofcom will provide as much information as possible on the frequencies that will make up this Digital Interleaved Spectrum as soon as it is available.

Digital Broadcasting: Multiple Occupation

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he made of the preparedness of landlords of (a) privately rented multi-dwelling units and (b) social multi-dwelling units who, in preparation for the digital switchover for the dwelling units for which they are responsible (i) have upgraded the television system, (ii) have specific plans to do so and (iii) are unaware of the technical options or actions they need to take to make the transition to digital; and if he will make a statement. [154897]

James Purnell: Responsibility for upgrading communal television systems is a matter for landlords in consultation with residents. Digital UK is responsible for communicating with landlords and property managers in order to increase awareness and understanding about what they need to do to prepare for switchover.

The Government published research in 2005 and 2007 which looked at the readiness of communal television systems provided by social landlords. The most recent research carried out by BMRB[1] and published in January 2007 showed an increase in the level of upgrade work since the 2005 survey with 32 per cent. of organisations in the process of completing the upgrade of all systems and nearly 50 per cent. having completed the upgrade of at least 30 per cent. of systems. Digital UK continues to map subsequent progress in the social sector through regional meetings and direct communications with social landlords.

Collecting information on private sector landlords is much more difficult given the diversity of the sector. Digital UK collects information on awareness of digital switchover and conversion to digital television through the quarterly tracker survey. The most recent tracker survey[2] reports that digital conversion for households who live in flats is around 74 per cent. compared to digital take up of 80 per cent. across all tenures. Digital UK is continuing a targeted information campaign aimed at residents' associations and flat-dwellers in the first four regions scheduled for switchover, as well as communicating directly with private landlords.

Digital Broadcasting: Sight Impaired

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many blind and partially-sighted people are able to use teletext without the assistance of others; whether he estimates this number will change following the digital switchover; and if he will make a statement. [156191]

James Purnell: We have not made any estimation of the number of blind and partially sighted people who are able to use Teletext without the assistance of others and it would be difficult to do so.

I recognise the impact that switching to digital television may have on those who rely on equipment that translates analogue written Teletext into audible speech as this piece of equipment will not work with digital text services. This should be balanced against the wider benefit that switchover brings of the provision of audio description services for blind and partially sighted people on terrestrial television.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representation he has received from Portset on digital switchover and assistance for blind people to access teletext services. [156193]

James Purnell: I have received no representations from Portset, which manufactures Talking Teletext equipment that translates written teletext into audible speech.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the impact of the digital switchover on blind and partially-sighted persons. [156194]

James Purnell: A regulatory impact assessment was published in September 2005 setting out a detailed assessment of the impact of digital switchover on consumers, particularly elderly people and those with a disability. We have taken steps to address the disadvantages that these groups face as a result of switchover, primarily through the digital switchover help scheme. The scheme includes all households where one person is registered blind or is registered partially sighted. Those who are not registered, but are 75 years or over will also be eligible for help.

We will continue to monitor and review the Government's policy on switchover for equality impact, including ongoing consultation with the RNIB and other organisations representing blind and partially sighted people, and are in the process of undertaking a full equalities impact assessment.

Digital Broadcasting: Weather

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what performance standards apply to the BBC with respect to ensuring continuity of service on the digital platform during extreme weather incidents; and what the contractual timeframe requirement is for achieving restoration of service following such weather incidents; [154191]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of residences which suffered sustained loss of the BBC digital signal (a) during and (b) in the week following the recent extreme weather conditions; and if he will make a statement. [154193]

James Purnell: This is a matter for the BBC. The BBC's charter specifies that the BBC must do all that is reasonably practicable to ensure viewers, listeners and other users are able to access the UK public services that are intended for them. The charter does not set specific performance standards in relation to continuity of service in the event of extreme weather incidents and Government have made no assessment of the number of residences which suffered loss of the BBC digital signal. I understand from the BBC that they work hard to restore transmission services in the event of any disruption as soon as possible.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the reliability of the digital signal transmitting both radio and television broadcasts in periods of and following extreme weather conditions; and what plans he has to ensure security of service following digital switchover. [154192]

James Purnell: This Department has not made any assessment of the aforementioned issues. However, there is extensive research available about digital broadcasting characteristics.

The technology used for broadcasting digital radio and television signals has been standardised by the European Standards body ETSI and allows broadcasters to strike a balance between robustness in adverse reception conditions against the number of services that can be broadcast.

Digital television signals are constrained at present so as not to cause interference to analogue services. This can lead to digital appearing to perform unfavourably. After switchover, power levels for digital signals will be boosted to their full capacity.

Gambling

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what mechanisms are in place to ensure that remote gambling operators operate legally with respect to the location of servers in advance of the implementation of the Gambling Act 2005 in September 2007. [154800]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Before 1 September 2007, under the Gaming Act 1968, it was illegal to provide gaming by remote means where the gaming operator was based in Great Britain.

From 1 September, offering remote gaming from Great Britain is permitted, and remote operators licensed under the Gambling Act 2005 (the Act) will be subject to requirements as to where they may locate their remote gambling equipment. Section 36(4) of the Act defines the types of equipment considered to be key equipment for the provision of gambling facilities. As part of the licence application process, the physical location of each piece of key equipment, including servers, must be stated and is then assessed by the Gambling Commission to ensure its location is acceptable and to enable effective regulation.

From 1 September 2007, the Gambling Commission will carry out compliance visits to the operator's premises to ensure the location of equipment, including servers, is in accordance with their licence.

It will be an offence under section 33 of the Act for an operator to provide facilities for gambling unless they hold the relevant licence.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether a working group was formed at the international conference on online gambling held at Ascot in October 2006. [155648]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Following the International Remote Gambling summit in 2006, the Department will continue to build on its work with European partners and other international regulators to ensure high regulatory standards and encourage the adoption of measures to protect children and vulnerable people, keep crime out and keep gambling fair.

We are considering with the Gambling Commission the option of an international working group to take this work forward.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what role his Department played in the Gambling Commission's 2007 Prevalence Survey on problem gambling. [155761]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The British Gambling Prevalence Survey 2007 is an independent study which was overseen by the Gambling Commission and undertaken by the National Centre for Social Research. Officials from the Department were members of the steering group which was set up to help contribute to the delivery of the report. Other representatives included the Department of Health, Responsibility in Gambling Trust and the National Lottery Commission.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what date his Department first received the Gambling Commission's 2007 Prevalence Survey on problem gambling. [155762]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Officials received the British Gambling Prevalence Survey on 10 September. Ministers received a copy of the survey on 17 September.

Gambling Commission

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Gambling Commission's enforcement powers with respect to breaches of regulations; and if he will make a statement. [154801]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The enforcement powers under the Gambling Act 2005 came into force on 1 September 2007 and it is too early to assess their effectiveness. The Gambling Commission has been given wide-ranging enforcement powers and I expect it to use them fairly and proportionately.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the running costs of the Gambling Commission are in 2007-08; and how many staff are employed at the commission. [156159]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 4 October 2007]: For 2007-08 the total running costs of the Gambling Commission are budgeted at £15.5 million. Currently the commission has 248 employees, but this is expected to fall to a steady state of around 200 by April 2008.

Gambling: Broadcasting

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representations he has received on the legality under the terms of the Gaming Act 1968 of the operation of LiveRoulette broadcast on Freeview and Sky and its website www.liveroulette.com. [154797]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department has recently received one representation on the legality of the operation of LiveRoulette broadcast and website under the terms of the Gaming Act 1968. LiveRoulette operated by virtue of a bookmaker's permit issued in accordance with the Betting, Gaming and Lotteries Act 1963.

Under the provisions of the Gambling Act 2005, LiveRoulette will require a remote casino operating licence from the Gambling Commission and be required to comply with the relevant licence conditions and codes of practice.

Gambling: Internet

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which countries (a) Ministers and (b) officials from his Department have met to discuss online gaming; and on what dates these meetings took place. [155763]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Ministers and officials from DCMS regularly meet their counterparts from other countries to discuss gambling issues, including online gaming. Ministers and officials met representatives from 31 other jurisdictions which attended an International Summit on Remote Gambling at Ascot Racecourse on 31 October 2006.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions his Department has had with representatives from the EU on internet gambling regulations. [155764]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Officials from my Department keep closely in touch with officials from other Departments, such as the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, and officials in the European Commission on developments affecting remote gambling. Officials from DCMS and the Gambling Commission are also represented on the Gaming Regulators European Forum (GREF) which includes representatives from most European Union member states.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans there are to introduce EU regulations for online gambling. [156017]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I am not aware of any plans by the European Commission to introduce regulations in respect of online gambling.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what criteria are applied in respect of the minimum age at which people are permitted to gamble using an online company when decisions are made about whether that company may advertise on British television. [156018]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government are not responsible for decisions about which individual companies may or may not advertise on British television. The only gambling operators that are permitted to advertise on television are those licensed by the Gambling Commission in Great Britain or licensed in the European Economic Area (EEA) or licensed in a jurisdiction that the Government has decided to treat as if it were in the EEA for the purposes of gambling advertising—this is known as 'white listing.'

All gambling operators licensed in Great Britain are subject to the Gambling Act 2005 which makes it an offence for operators to offer online gambling to children and young people under the age of 18. It is also an offence under the Act for a young person to gamble online. In addition, the Government have set strict criteria for 'white listed' jurisdictions about the protection of children and vulnerable people. All jurisdictions currently on the 'white list' have a minimum age for gambling of 18.

It is also an offence under the Gambling Act 2005 if a person brings to the attention of a child or young person information about gambling with a view to encouraging the child or young person to gamble. The Gambling Commission has powers under the Gambling Act to prosecute any person in respect of this offence.

The Advertising Standards Authority's (ASA) new codes of practice for gambling advertisers put in place strict controls to prohibit gambling advertising during or around children's programmes or programmes commissioned for, principally directed at or likely to appeal particularly to audiences below the age of 18. The gambling industry has agreed to abide by a voluntary ban on television gambling advertising before 9pm (with the exception of sports betting advertising during sports programmes).

Gambling: Licensing

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many applications have been received for remote gambling operating licences from companies (a) based in the UK and (b) from outside the UK. [156523]

Mr. Sutcliffe: By 4 October 2007, the Gambling Commission had received 175 applications for remote gambling operating licences. Of those applicants, 173 have a registered office in the UK, one in Dublin and one in Malta.

Gambling: Research

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what research his Department has commissioned into problem gambling in the last five years. [155767]

Margaret Hodge: The Secretary of State has asked Sir Brian to report by the end of 2007.

Margaret Hodge: The Secretary of State has asked Sir Brian McMaster to consider three main themes in his review:

How the system of public sector support for the arts can encourage excellence, risk taking and innovation;

Mr. Sutcliffe: This information is contained in distributor's annual reports and accounts, copies of which are laid before Parliament and available in the Library of the House.

National Lottery: Grants

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much has been allocated to statutory bodies from each National Lottery distributor in each year since 1994. [155769]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department's National Lottery Grants Database does not record the recipient status, whether statutory body, local authority or private sector, for every grant it records. The information requested could therefore only be provided by requesting a designation for every award from each distributor, which would incur disproportionate cost

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was received by each of the National Lottery good causes in each year since 1995-96 in constant 2007-08 prices. [156710]

Night Clubs: Body Searches

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will make it a mandatory licensing condition for nightclubs to operate a system of searching entrants for weapons. [154094]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The searching of entrants to nightclubs can help promote the licensing objectives of public safety and the prevention of crime and disorder but, as the Secretary of State's guidance to licensing authorities makes clear, such conditions should only be imposed where necessary, taking into account factors such as the location and type of venue. Where the police believe that a premises selling alcohol is associated with serious crime or serious disorder, such as the use of knives or guns, they can apply for a fast track review of the premises licence under new powers which came into force on 1 October 2007. In such cases, licensing authorities must also consider if it is appropriate to impose immediate extra conditions, such as a requirement to search for weapons, on the licence pending that review.

[156266]

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many public swimming pools have (a) closed and (b) opened in England since 1997; and how many of the pools that have opened since 1997 reopened after refurbishment or temporary closure rather than opened for the first time. [156445]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on pool closures across England was not collected centrally prior to 2004. However, the most recent information from Sport England indicates that a total of 37 pools (not sites) in local authority ownership were closed between 2004 and 2006.

The Active Places database of sports facilities across England (established in 2004) currently lists 211 pools (not sites) that have been newly built between 1997 and 2006, of which 56 were built between 2004 and 2006. In addition, the database lists a further 1,237 local authority owned pools built before 1997 but refurbished between 1997 and 2006.

Volunteers: Recruitment

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many (a) young volunteers trained to work in schools and community clubs and (b) trained adult mentors were recruited (i) before and (ii) since April 2004. [156435]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The 2005-06 Annual School Sport Survey indicates that 13 per cent. of pupils in years 10-13 are actively engaged in sports volunteering and leadership. This equates to 285,631 pupils. This is an increase of 4 per cent. on the numbers surveyed for the first survey in 2003-04 and an increase of 2 per cent. from last year.

This number includes participants in the Step into Sport Programme, one of the eight strands of the National School Sport Strategy. Through Step into Sport, the Government are providing a simple framework of co-ordinated opportunities at a local level in schools and local communities for young people to begin an involvement in leadership and volunteering through sport.

The Youth Sport Trust deliver the programme and advise that from its launch in 2002 until 2004 4,000 young people aged 14 to 19 registered as Community Volunteers and a further 2,000 young people volunteered to take part in the planning, organisation and delivery of sporting festivals for local primary schools Between 2004 and 2007, 29,720 young people have registered as volunteers in sport at school or communities.

As part of Step into Sport, there are now 973 Young Ambassadors aged 16 years in place, in 449 School Sport Partnerships (two in each Partnership), all helping to spread the Olympic and Paralympic message and ideals within School Sport Partnerships, as well as acting as advocates and role models to other young people. Of the two young people in each Partnership, one is also a gifted and talented athlete.

Between 2002-04 YST figures indicate that SiS developed 600 school based adult mentors and a further 1,068 from 2004-07.

Written Questions

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects to answer question (a) 148539 on civil servants and (b) 148535 on advertising: gambling, tabled by the hon. Member for Bath on 4 July 2007. [156248]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Both questions were answered on 3 October.

The accuracy of these statistics is thus as reliable as the postcode information supplied, which is subject to elements of missing and inaccurate data.

	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006

Barbara Thomas Judge

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent assessment he has made of the availability of Barbara Thomas Judge to undertake her functions as Chair of the UK Atomic Energy Authority. [155375]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 17 September 2007]: Lady Thomas Judge keeps BERR officials fully up to date with her non-executive, advisory and charity roles and provides a breakdown of the time involved. Ministers are briefed as appropriate and my right hon. Friend the Member for Barrow and Furness (Mr. Hutton) was most recently given advice in July soon after he became Secretary of State.

We continue to be fully satisfied that Lady Thomas Judge is performing the role of UKAEA chair highly effectively and with full dedication. As such the UK taxpayer is being well served and gets considerably more than the two days per week for which Lady Thomas Judge is contracted.

Bevin Boys

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many surviving Bevin Boys he estimates there to be. [156585]

Mr. Timms: Between the years 1943 and 1948 approximately 48,000 men served in the mines as ballotees, volunteers or optants under the Bevin Boys scheme. Based on the uptake for the Ministry of Defences' HM Armed Forces Veteran's Badge it is estimated that there might be in the region of 6,000 to 11,000 claims for the Bevin Boys Veteran's Badge.

The subsidiary businesses of BNFL, namely Sellafield, Nexia Solutions and Project Services, employ 7.5 full-time equivalent press officers.

Mr. Timms: No such assessment has been made.

The EU Commission is reviewing the scope and future of universal service in 2008 and we expect to consult widely with all stakeholders in preparing the UK's response.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions he has had with Ofcom and the communications industry about a universal service obligation which would include broadband as well as narrowband services. [156452]

Mr. Timms: No such discussions have taken place. Two UK telephone operators have a universal service obligation (USO); BT and Kingston Communications.

The EU Commission is reviewing the scope and future of universal service in 2008 and we plan to consult widely, including with Ofcom and the communications industry in preparing the UK's response.

Broadcasting

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the TG4 Group proposals for a pan-European sub band of spectrum for mobile use; and if he will make a statement. [154411]

Mr. Timms: The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Mr. Timms: Companies House has two press officers, neither of whom work exclusively on press issues.

Companies: Radioactive Materials

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether his Department has given advice to businesses on the storage of commercial radiological materials. [155405]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform does not give advice to businesses on the storage of radiological materials.

Regulatory guidance is provided on the respective websites of the Environment Agency (EA) (www.enviromnent-agency.gov.uk) and the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) (www.hse.gov.uk). Guidance can also be found on the environment agencies website for small businesses at www.netregs.gov.uk giving free environmental guidance to small businesses in the UK to help them comply with environmental legislation.

HSE has a statutory responsibility to provide advice and this would include advice on the storage of radiological materials. Businesses can therefore contact HSE for guidance and they can also contact the Environment Agency.

Competition Commission: Information Officers

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many press officers are employed by the Competition Commission. [154633]

Mr. Thomas: There are two press officers in the Competition Commission.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make a statement on the guidance issued to Government Departments on the steps to be taken to dispose of redundant information technology equipment. [154030]

Malcolm Wicks: The guidance on the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment (WEEE) Regulations which was published in February 2007, contained advice for both business and domestic users on the disposal of redundant equipment. Further advice specifically for Government procurement officers is to issue shortly.

Copyright: Consumers

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what assessment he has made of the level of protection afforded to consumers from copycat branding; and if he will make a statement; [153777]

(2) if he will introduce legislation to enable companies to address grievances relating to copycat branding through the civil courts; and if he will make a statement. [153778]

Mr. Thomas: The Consumer Protection from Unfair Trading Regulations, which implement the Unfair Commercial Practices Directive (UCPD), include provisions prohibiting copycat branding which is likely to confuse consumers into taking a transactional decision they would not have taken otherwise.

In response to the December 2005 consultation on implementation of the UCPD the Government said that they did not propose to allow businesses to take enforcement action for breaches of the directive. This is because it believed that existing arrangements are adequate for dealing with cases that result in real consumer detriment.

A number of responses to the May 2007 consultation on the draft regulations asked the Government to reconsider their decision not to allow companies to take civil (injunctive) action to enforce the provisions copycat branding. We are carefully considering all the responses received before coming to a final decision on how the regulations should best be enforced in the interests of consumers.

Departments: Departmental Coordination

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what (a) ministerial committees and (b) permanent groups involving senior civil servants have been set up by his Department to liaise with the Minister for Women. [155243]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 12 September 2007]: The Prime Minister announced the new Cabinet Committee structure on 23 July 2007. The Domestic Affairs (Communities and Equalities) Committee, chaired by the Minister for the Cabinet Office, was one of the new Committees. The terms of reference for DA(CE) are:

> "To consider policy relating to community issues, including community cohesion, equalities, wellbeing and public health; and report as necessary to the Committee on Domestic Affairs and the Committee on National Security, International Relations and Development".

This Department has not set up any committees or permanent groups involving senior civil servants specifically to liaise with the Ministers for Women.

As with all cross cutting issues, Ministers and officials in this Department liaise with the Minister for Women as necessary.

Departments: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what proportion of people employed by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies are disabled. [153596]

Mr. Thomas: The proportion of people employed by my department and its agencies who have declared a disability or long term health condition as at 1 September 2007 is shown as follows.

	Staff in post	Staff who have declared a disability/long-term health condition	Percentage of staff with a declared disability/long-term health condition
BERR Core	2,464	197	8
BERR including UK Trade and Investment and Office of Manpower Economics	2,958	237	8

	Staff in post	Staff who have declared a disability/long-term health condition	Percentage of staff with a declared disability/long-term health condition
National Weights and Measures Laboratory	54	0	0
The Insolvency Service	2,433	327	13
UK Intellectual Property Office	998	19	2

Departments: Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much was spent by his Department on staff away days in the last 12 months. [153124]

Mr. Thomas: Centrally held records do not distinguish between these events and other training and development activities and the information is therefore not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much was spent by his Department on (a) staff training and (b) communication training in the last 12 months. [153125]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has only been in existence since 28 June 2007. However, we have aggregated the training spend of the staff who now form BERR and for the 12-month period July 2006 to June 2007 it was £2,782,090.

Training budgets are devolved so it is not possible to calculate how much of this spend was on communications training.

Digital Broadcasting: Television

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many television signal reception installers had signed up to the registered digital installer scheme at 30 June 2007, broken down by ITV television region. [154084]

Mr. Timms: Information recorded at 30 June 2007 by the Registered Digital Installer-Licensing Body is set out in the following table.

ITV region	Enrolled/ registered for training	Registered digital installers (RDIs)	Associate RDIs
Anglia	137	0	4
Border	57	0	4
Central	269	13	20
Grampian	20	1	1
Granada	215	0	22
HTV Wales	97	15	10
HTV West	42	0	4
London	354	1	9
Meridian	166	0	15
Scottish TV	88	0	0
Tyne Tees	37	0	8
Ulster	13	0	0
West Country	56	0	5
Yorkshire	414	36	6
Total	1,965	66	108

The number of accredited installers is now increasing week-by-week and, as at 23 July 2007, there were 82 RDIs.

The associate RDI scheme, which is mentioned in the table, has been launched by the RDI Licensing Body as a temporary measure given the need for consumers to be able to identify honest and reliable aerial installers in the interim before significant numbers of installers gain full RDI qualification. Associate RDIs have met the following criteria:

have enrolled or given a commitment to enrol for relevant NVQ training; have undertaken and met the requirements of a suitable Working at Heights course; have a minimum of one years relevant work experience within the aerial industry; provided evidence of a satisfactory Basic Criminal Records Disclosure and Public Liability insurance.

Electrical Control Equipment: Waste Disposal

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what plans he has to raise awareness among householders about the safe disposal of waste electrical and electronic equipment. [154343]

Malcolm Wicks: Householders will get information about the disposal of waste electrical and electronic equipment in a variety of ways: through the media; from retailers, when they buy a new electrical item; and via their local council. Surrey county council for example has already updated its website to provide residents with information about waste electrical equipment.

Electricity Generation: Wind Power

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent estimate he has made of the stability risk threshold for the national grid in terms of (a) total measured output and (b) percentage of total electricity produced from wind turbines; and if he will make a statement. [155506]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 17 September 2007]: Advice from National Grid, the GB System Operator, is that the percentage of total electrical energy that can be produced by wind generation is likely to be limited by economic rather than technical considerations and that any limit will lie beyond the Government's current renewable targets or aspirations. This view is supported by evidence from abroad, with a number of countries having achieved, in percentage terms, the wind generation output that the UK currently aspires to.

Energy: Research

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much of the £500 million committed to capital grants and research and development in the field of emerging low carbon technologies has been spent, broken down by technology. [155489]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 17 September 2007]: Spend so far (to end March 2007) under the programmes listed as follows, which were introduced at different points over the period, totals £208.13 million. All of these programmes except the Major PV Demonstration Programme and Clear Skies are projected to continue to spend during the CSR period and in some cases well beyond.

Spend on the main programme activities is set out below. It has not been possible to provide a breakdown of the Clear Skies and R and D programme spend by technology.

Programme/Technology	Spend to end 2006-07 (£ million)
Off-shore Wind capital grant programme	76.35
Bioenergy capital grant programme	26.02
Major PV Demonstration Programme	30.1
Clear Skies (Micro wind, Biomass, Heat Pumps, Micro hydro, Solar Thermal Hot Water)	12.1
Marine Renewable Deployment Fund	1.62
Low Carbon Buildings Program Phase 1 (LCB)	4.0
Low Carbon Buildings Programme Phase 2 (LCB)	0.13
Hydrogen and Fuel Cells and Carbon Abatement Demonstration Programme (HFCAT)	0.11
New and Renewables R and D programme/Technology Programme	57.7
Total	208.13

Equal Opportunities Commission: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many press officers are employed by the Equal Opportunities Commission, including its Northern Ireland office. [154149]

Barbara Follett: I have been asked to reply.

There are four press officers employed by the Equal Opportunities Commission for England, Scotland and Wales. The Equal Opportunities Commission does not have an office in Northern Ireland.

EU Internal Trade: Yorkshire and Humberside

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many jobs in (a) Yorkshire and the Humber and (b) York he estimates are dependent on exports to or investment from other EU states. [152208]

Mr. Timms: No such estimates have been made.

In the year ended March 2007 HM Revenue and Customs recorded exports from Yorkshire and the Humber to the EU totalling £7.2 billion out of a total export figure of £12.3 billion for the region. Exports to the EU therefore accounted for 59 per cent. of the total. This excludes exports of services and lower value exports which are not recorded by HM Revenue and Customs.

On foreign direct investment, there are 595 EU owned companies in Yorkshire and the Humber of which 16 are based in York. Over 1,700 new or safeguarded jobs were generated by new companies investing in Yorkshire and the Humber during 2006-07. Of this figure, investment by companies based in other EU states contributed 202 jobs. However, none of the EU investments were in York.

Flexible Working

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what plans he has to introduce a duty on employers to provide flexible working arrangements. [154311]

Mr. McFadden: The Government encourage all types of flexible working across the workforce by providing detailed guidance, promoting the benefits and encouraging the sharing of best practice. We introduced the right to request flexible working, for parents of young and disabled children in April 2003. In April 2007 we extended this right to carers of adults. Over six million employees now have the statutory right to ask to work flexibly.

There is no evidence to suggest that we should place a duty on employers to provide flexible working arrangements. The right to request flexible working has been a huge success with four out of five requests accepted by employers. 87 per cent. of all employees are satisfied with their current working patterns and 90 per cent. of employees said that at least one flexible working arrangement was available to them if they needed it. We will continue to monitor the impact of the flexible working law.

Gas Distribution Price Control Review

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what information Ofgem took into account on the customer satisfaction performance indicators for the gas distribution networks in compiling its initial proposals for the Gas Distribution Price Control Review for 2008 to 2013; what steps Ofgem took to assess the implications of its proposals for the service provided to customers prior to their publication; and what factors

Ofgem took into account in assessing the implications of its proposals for customer satisfaction; [154289]

(2) what factors Ofgem took into account in assessing the safety implications of its proposals prior to developing its initial proposals for the Gas Distribution Price Control Review for 2008 to 2013; [154296]

(3) what factors Ofgem took into account on the safety performance indicators for the gas distribution networks in compiling its initial proposals for the Gas Distribution Price Control Review for 2008 to 2013. [154294]

Mr. Timms: The Gas Distribution Price Control Review is a matter for Ofgem. I am therefore asking the chief executive of the Gas and Electricity Markets, which heads Ofgem, to write directly to the hon. Member.

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what Ofgem considers to be the implications to the consumer of the gas distribution networks being unable to replace their ageing and highly-skilled workforces by recruiting and training a sufficient number of new employees to carry out vital emergency, repair and maintenance activities; [154293]

(2) what factors Ofgem took into account in compiling its initial proposals for the Gas Distribution Price Control Review for 2008 to 2013, with particular reference to the allowances granted to allow gas distribution network operators to recruit new employees to carry out emergency, repair and maintenance activities; [154292]

(3) how many gas distribution networks made representations to Ofgem prior to it publishing Document 125/07, initial proposals for the Gas Distribution Price Control Review for 2008 to 2013; and how many sought an additional allowance to allow them to recruit new employees to carry out emergency, repair and maintenance activities; [154291]

(4) what additional allowance Ofgem made in its initial proposals for the Gas Distribution Price Control Review for 2008 to 2013 to allow the gas distribution network operators to recruit and train new employees to carry out emergency, repair and maintenance activities; [154290]

(5) what steps Ofgem took to assess the safety implications of its proposals for (a) the consumer and (b) employees of the gas distribution networks prior to publishing Document 125/07, containing its initial proposals for the Gas Distribution Price Control Review for 2008 to 2013. [154295]

Mr. Timms: The Gas Distribution Price Control Review is a matter for Ofgem. I am therefore asking the Chief Executive of the Gas and Electricity Markets, which heads Ofgem, to write directly to the hon. Member.

Loans: Protection

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will take steps to prevent the exploitation of vulnerable people by home credit companies. [154386]

Mr. Thomas: The Competition Commission has been investigating the home credit sector and is now implementing remedies intended to make the market more competitive so that customers of home credit companies will get a better deal.

More generally, the Government have recently strengthened consumer credit legislation. A prime purpose of these reforms is to protect consumers from unfair treatment by lenders, whether in the home credit sector or by other credit providers.

Nuclear Decommissioning Authority: Information Officers

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many press officers are employed by the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority. [154667]

Mr. McFadden: The Nuclear Decommissioning Authority (NDA) does not employ a press officer as such, but the NDA's head of communications and three communications managers cover a range of duties which by their nature include press relations.

Ofcom: Information Officers

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many press officers are employed by Ofcom. [154665]

Mr. Timms: I am informed by the chief executive of the Office of Communications (Ofcom) that there are six members of staff in the regulator's media office, one of whom is part-time.

Office of Fair Trading: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many press officers are employed by the Office of Fair Trading. [154142]

Mr. Thomas: The OFT employs six press officers, one of whom is responsible for media handling for Consumer Direct—the Government's national consumer advice line.

Oil: Prices

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the average price of oil was in each of the last 15 years; and what assessment he has made of the effect of trends in oil prices on business. [154093]

Mr. McFadden: Oil is a globally traded commodity and the rise in oil prices over recent years has affected all countries, not just the UK. Moreover, while the Government recognise that in recent years higher and more volatile oil prices have created problems for UK businesses, by increasing production costs and adding pressure to profit margins, several factors have helped limit the impact. Firstly, in real terms (current prices), oil prices have remained below the peak levels reached in the late-1970s and early 1980s. Secondly, the rise in oil prices has in part been driven by strong global economic growth. Thirdly, UK businesses typically now have a lower intensity to use oil, given improvements in energy efficiency and the shift in the structure of the economy towards services. Finally, developments in financial markets have allowed businesses to hedge against the risks associated with fluctuations in oil prices more effectively.

The 2007 Energy White Paper (http://www.berr.gov.uk/energy/whitepaper/) sets out the measures the Government are putting in place to help improve the functioning of the global oil market, and to ensure that the UK's domestic market framework and supply infrastructure continue to deliver reliable supplies of oil-based energy at competitive prices, as they have done over the last 15 years.

Oil: Reserves

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 658W, on oil: reserves, from which countries he expects the UK to derive its future requirements for oil in the next (a) five, (b) 10 and (c) 15 years. [154350]

Mr. McFadden: Oil is traded in a global market where prices and availability are determined by global supply and demand conditions.

As domestic oil production declines, the UK will continue to rely on the global oil market to source its supplies, allowing companies to have access to a diverse range of suppliers. Commercial reasons, for example geographical proximity, mean that in addition to Norway, Russia and the Middle East, increasing supplies are also likely to be sourced, via the market, from producers in the Caspian region and Africa over the next 15 years.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 658W, on oil: reserves, what estimate he has made of the duration of future (a) oil and (b) natural gas supply from all known sources from UK-based extractive sources. [154351]

Mr. McFadden: The Department does not estimate the duration of remaining discovered recoverable reserves of oil or gas. Production from the UK Continental Shelf is expected to continue for many years, though at a declining rate.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 658W, on oil: reserves, if he will assess the merits of reviewing the analysis of those who promote a peak oil perspective of future oil supply. [154352]

Mr. McFadden: The Department will continue to keep abreast of, and to take into account, developing views and analysis surrounding future trends in the oil market, including in relation to future oil supplies.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 658W, on oil: reserves, what assessment he has made of the implications of recent increases in crude oil prices for his Department's calculations of oil supply. [154353]

Mr. McFadden: Global investment in oil production capacity has increased in recent years, resulting in an expected increase in future global oil production capacity. Higher oil prices—by increasing the finances available to oil companies and by improving the economics of higher cost projects—are one of the contributory factors but it is not possible to quantify the specific contribution. A range of other factors also interact to determine the level of investment and therefore future global oil supply, including technological developments, governments' policies, supply chain costs, and other energy prices.

Domestically, the Department publishes projections of UK oil production every six months or so (most recently at http://www.og.dti.gov.uk/information/bb_updates/chapters/Section4_17.htm) and these reflect operators' views of future oil prices. The projections change for a number of reasons and, once again, it is not possible to attribute a specific contribution from recent increases in crude oil prices.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 658W, on oil: reserves, what challenges he has assessed as representing the greatest impediment to affordable oil supply to the UK in the next (a) five, (b) 10 and (c) 15 years. [154354]

Mr. McFadden: The 2007 Energy White Paper:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/energy/whitepaper/

sets out the main international (chapter 1) and domestic (chapter 4) challenges facing the UK in ensuring its supplies of oil remain affordable and reliable.

Internationally, the main challenge lies in recovering and bringing oil reserves to market. A number of factors have the potential to defer or restrict the level of future oil sector investment, undermining the affordability and reliability of supplies:

resource nationalism;

inadequate oil market information;

regulatory uncertainty;

the threat of terrorism, accident and natural disaster; and labour, equipment and service sector constraints.

The Government are promoting international efforts to improve the functioning and transparency of the global oil market, and to tackle these barriers to investment.

Domestically, the main challenge is ensuring that UK oil infrastructure is able to cope with declining UK production and evolving trends in demand. Given the high volumes of oil the UK already imports, existing infrastructure is well placed to cope with higher volumes. However, UK refineries will need to respond to the challenges of:

rising demand for diesel and jet fuel and falling demand for petrol; declining availability of North sea crude oils; and evolving qualities of oil products, including the introduction of biofuels.

The Government will continue to work closely with UK refiners as they address these challenges. The Government have also established with industry an aviation fuel task group to analyse what supply infrastructure may be needed to meet future jet fuel demand at UK airports up to 2030. Finally, we have taken steps to ensure our oil emergency stocking system is better placed to deal with the increasing levels of oil import dependence we face.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 658W, on oil: reserves, how many years of oil supply the Government have estimated are available to (a) the international community and (b) the UK in the forthcoming (i) five, (ii) 10, (iii) 15 and (iv) more than 15 years at present rates of usage. [154355]

Mr. McFadden: The Department's view is that global oil resources are sufficient to sustain not only current rates of global usage but also the expected increase in usage for the foreseeable future. Supplies will be made available to the international community and the UK through the market mechanism, with the exact level depending on the complex interaction of a number of factors, including technological developments, economic growth, the policies of Governments, and relative energy prices.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 658W, on oil: reserves, what assessment he has made of the affordability of oil supplies to the UK in the next (a) five, (b) 10 and (c) 15 years. [154356]

Mr. McFadden: Global oil market tightness is expected to ease slightly over the next few years as new production and refining capacity is brought on-stream. However, given the complexity of contributory factors, the implications for international oil prices are uncertain. However, most analysts do not expect oil prices to make a sustained return to the average levels seen during the 1990s (around US$25 per barrel in today's prices), reflecting an expected increase in the market share of a relatively small number of producers, strong demand growth from developing countries, investment constraints, and a rise in marginal production costs outside OPEC.

One Northeast Communications Team: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many press officers are employed by the One Northeast communications team. [154148]

Mr. Timms: Five.

Post Offices

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether those served by outreach post offices and non-commercial post office outlets will count as part of the 90 per cent. of the population to be within one mile of their nearest post office outlet in the access criteria set by Post Office Ltd. [153868]

Mr. McFadden: In measuring compliance with the access criterion that 90 per cent. of the UK population be within one mile of their nearest post office outlet, proximity to all categories of post office including outreach sites will be taken into account.

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what minimum level of service provision will be required of post office outlets for the 90 per cent. of the population who are to be within one mile of their nearest outlet. [153896]

Mr. McFadden: Decisions about local service offerings and opening hours at post offices are a matter for Post Office Ltd. and local sub-postmasters, reflecting the needs and demand in local communities. It is not appropriate to seek to set national standards for matters which are best considered at local level.

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether Post Office Ltd is considering the use of church premises for new post offices to replace some of the post offices that are to be closed in rural communities. [153931]

Mr. McFadden: Post Office Ltd will consider any premises which are suitably located and accessible as prospective sites in areas where new or outreach post offices are to be established.

Post Offices: Closures

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will inform hon. Members, local residents and local authorities contemporaneously of consultations on post office closure plans; and if he will make a statement. [153780]

Mr. McFadden: Post Office Ltd will inform Members of Parliament of its area network change proposals in the week before the start of local consultation and local authorities will be invited to engage with the company on its proposals before local consultation commences.

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether any local authority or hon. Member has been formally contacted on the consultation on post office closure plans; and if he will make a statement. [153781]

Mr. McFadden: Post Office Ltd wrote to all Members of Parliament and to local authorities in July explaining the process they will be following in implementing the network change programme and giving the expected timetable for considering the area plan in each constituency or local authority area.

Post Offices: Disadvantaged

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions his Department (a) has had and (b) plans to have with (i) RNIB, (ii) RNID, (iii) Age Concern and (iv) Help the Aged on the implications of the transfer of Crown post office services to WH Smith branches for people with disabilities. [154534]

Mr. McFadden: The Department has held no such discussions. Under the Code of Practice agreed with Postwatch, Post Office Ltd. consults with a range of local representatives on the customer service implications of transferring the management of a specific Crown office to a franchise partner. In addition, Postwatch has a statutory duty to protect, promote and develop the interests of all customers of postal services in the UK and a special duty to represent vulnerable groups including the elderly and disabled. Postwatch therefore meets regularly with groups such as Help the Aged, RNIB, Age Concern etc. to understand the concerns affecting the network and report these to Post Office Ltd.

The Post Office Ltd. franchise agreement establishes a contractual obligation for WH Smith to comply with the requirements of Part III of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 and appropriate health and safety legislation.

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions his Department plans to have with the Post Office Ltd. and WH Smith on changes to chip and pin services in WH Smith branches to meet the needs of blind and visually impaired customers. [154535]

Mr. McFadden: Post office branches located within WH Smith will have the same pin pads as those found in all post office branches across the UK. To assist blind and visually impaired customers, these pin pads have a raised transparent dot on the 5 key, a plastic guard covering the function keys at the top of the pad and raised symbols alongside the clear, enter and cancel keys.

Post Office Ltd. have worked with the RNIB to produce a leaflet entitled "How to use the PIN Pad at a Post Office branch" which is available from RNIB, or from the Post Office on 0845 722 3344. The Post Office card account was one of the first cards in the UK to feature an RNIB recommended cut away indent on its trailing edge to help blind users orient the card. It also has a black arrow to help guide insertion, chosen as "easiest to see" by a group of visually impaired people.

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether the agreement between Post Office Ltd. and WH Smith involves WH Smith assuming a responsibility to publish a disability equality scheme and carry out a disability equality impact assessment. [154536]

Mr. McFadden: For the purpose of the Disability Discrimination Act 2005, Post Office Ltd. is not considered to be a public authority, does not have specific obligations under the Disability Equality duty and is not required to publish a disability equality scheme.

Disability access is a priority for Post Office Ltd., and they are working with WH Smith to ensure that appropriate measures are taken to ensure reasonable adjustments are made and that the Disability Discrimination Act is complied with. To meet the requirements of the Act, WH Smith carried out audits at all their sites to asses their accessibility for disabled customers and employees and have spent around £1.5 million on improving access to meet the regulations. In addition Post Office Ltd. and WH Smith are signed up to the website www.directenquiries.com--a register of the access available in all their stores. Customers are encouraged to give feedback on the standards of service and access in WH Smith stores. This feedback will be monitored to ensure that appropriate reasonable adjustments are put in place to ensure disabled access to post office services.

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make it his policy to ensure that alternative locations for post offices that Royal Mail propose for closure will not result in a deterioration in standards of access for people with disabilities. [155605]

Mr. Timms: Disability access to Crown post offices is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. acting in compliance with the requirements of the disability discrimination legislation.

Post Offices: Dorset

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make a statement on the planned location of new outreach post offices within West Dorset constituency. [153867]

Mr. McFadden: No proposals or decisions have yet been made on any new outreach post office locations in West Dorset. Post Office Ltd is now progressively developing proposals for network change in area plans based on groupings of parliamentary constituencies. These will then be subject to local public consultation after input from sub-postmasters, Postwatch and local authorities.

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what proportion of post offices planned for closure within West Dorset constituency are in (a) rural and (b) urban areas. [153870]

Mr. McFadden: No proposals or decisions have yet been made on post office closures in West Dorset. Post Office Ltd. is now progressively developing proposals for network change in area plans based on groupings of parliamentary constituencies. These will then be subject to local public consultation after input from sub-postmasters, Postwatch and local authorities.

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the timescale is for planned post office closures within West Dorset constituency in the period up to the end of 2009. [153871]

Mr. McFadden: Post Office Ltd. wrote to all Members of Parliament in July explaining the process they will be following in implementing the network change programme and giving the expected timetable for considering the area plan in their constituency. I understand from the company that it expects to engage with sub-postmasters in the process of developing specific proposals for West Dorset in April 2008.

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many outreach post offices will open in West Dorset constituency during the planned post office closure programme. [153872]

Mr. McFadden: No proposals or decisions have yet been made on how many outreach post office locations may be established in West Dorset. Post Office Ltd. is now progressively developing proposals for network change in area plans based on groupings of parliamentary constituencies. These will then be subject to local public consultation after input from sub-postmasters, Postwatch and local authorities.

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many post offices are planned for closure within West Dorset constituency. [153895]

Mr. McFadden: No proposals or decisions have yet been made on post office closures in West Dorset. Post Office Ltd is now progressively developing proposals for network change in area plans based on groupings of parliamentary constituencies. These will then be subject to local public consultation after input from sub-postmasters, Postwatch and local authorities.

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the (a) opening times and (b) services of the new outreach post offices will be, with particular reference to the post offices to be located in the West Dorset parliamentary constituency. [153932]

Mr. McFadden: Decisions about local service offerings and opening hours at outreach post offices are a matter for Post Office Ltd and local sub-postmasters, reflecting the needs and demand in local communities both in West Dorset and across the country. It is not appropriate to seek to set national standards for matters which are best considered at local level.

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the timescale is for the opening of new outreach post offices within the West Dorset parliamentary constituency; and if he will make a statement. [153933]

Mr. McFadden: The opening of any new outreach post offices in West Dorset will be integrated with the implementation of the wider network change programme for the area. I understand that under Post Office Ltd's planned timetable this would be in autumn 2008.

Post Offices: Tyne and Wear

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make a statement on the future of the post office network in Houghton and Washington East constituency. [154306]

Mr. McFadden: No proposals or decisions have yet been made on individual post offices in Houghton and Washington East. Post Office Ltd is now progressively developing proposals for network change in area plans based on groupings of parliamentary constituencies. These will then be subject to local public consultation after input from sub-postmasters, Postwatch and local authorities. Post Office Ltd wrote to all Members of Parliament in July explaining the process they will be following in implementing the network change programme and giving the expected timetable for considering the area plan in the constituency.

Postal Services

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether Post Office Ltd. has negotiated agreements with suppliers of goods or services which do not allow all branches to sell those products. [155444]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The negotiation of agreements with suppliers of goods and services is a matter for Post Office Ltd. and the suppliers, who will seek to determine the most effective way of delivering those products and services. Post Office Ltd. provide more than 170 different products and services and the vast majority are available across the national network of post office branches and many services are also now available through the internet or to order over the phone.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether the Post Office expects to publish information relating to the intention of sub-postmasters to leave the network during the local area plan consultation. [155445]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The Post Office network transformation programme is required to meet the Government's access criteria and ensure a sustainable national network for the future.

The programme will also consider the availability of public transport, alternative access to key services, local geography, local demographics and the impact on local economies. Closure decisions will not be determined by sub-postmasters' preferences though there will be cases where there is a strategic fit between a closure proposal and the sub-postmaster's wish to leave the network. As such, this will not form part of the information provided during the local area plan consultation. Information on branches proposed for closure will be provided by Post Office Ltd and this will be displayed on posters in branches and also available on the Post Office Ltd website.

Postal Services: Rural Areas

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the impact on the rural post office network of the decision to share the Network Subsidy Scheme with the urban post office network. [155443]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The proposed Network Subsidy Payments will be sufficient to underpin the whole of the non-commercial network without adverse impact on the support available for the rural part of the network. In particular, Post Office Ltd. will be making further significant savings through reductions in central costs and overheads, combined with more cost effective delivery of services and the strategically planned closure of up to 2,500 offices.

Postcomm: Information Officers

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many press officers are employed by Postcomm. [154730]

Mr. McFadden: I understand that Postcomm has one full-time press officer and one part-time media adviser who deals with the website.

Radioactive Materials: Waste Disposal

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how he plans to recover from the private sector the full costs of managing any new nuclear waste resulting from the operation of any new nuclear power stations. [153957]

Malcolm Wicks: If, as a result of the current consultation, the Government decide that nuclear should be one of the low carbon options available to investors, they will put in place a robust financing framework through statute to ensure owners or operators of new nuclear power stations set aside funds in a secure way to cover their full decommissioning costs and their full share of waste management costs.

Railways: Tees Valley

Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make an assessment of the likely effect on economic growth of an improved modernised rail network that serves Tees Valley from Darlington. [153375]

Mr. Timms: We understand that Network Rail is discussing a number of possible improvements to the rail network in Tees Valley. It will be for scheme promoters to develop business cases with any assessments of economic impact that may be nec[illegible]ry.

Regional Development Agencies National Secretariat: Information Officers

Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many press officers are employed by the Regional Development Agencies National Secretariat. [154466]

Mr. Timms: The RDA National Secretariat does not employ a full-time press officer. The Senior Communications Officer is responsible for press and media handling, which takes up around one third of that person's time.

Renewable Energy

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what percentage of the UK's energy supply he expects to come from renewable sources by 2020. [155416]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 17 September 2007]: Projections indicate that by 2020, on the basis of existing policies, renewables would contribute around 5 per cent. of the UK's energy consumption. (The proportion of electricity generated renewably would be much greater.)

The European Council agreed in March 2007 to a target for 20 per cent. of the EU's primary energy consumption to come from renewable sources by 2020. The Commission has been asked to bring forward detailed proposals—including for each member state's contribution to this target—by the end of this year. The proposal will then need to be agreed by member states and the European Parliament. After a decision has been reached, we will bring forward the appropriate measures to make our contribution.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representations he has received from non-governmental organisations on changes to the Merton rule; what discussions he held with ministerial colleagues ahead of the announcement of those changes; and what impact he expects the changes to have on the Government's microgeneration strategy. [155446]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 17 September 2007]: We are aware of the concerns that have been raised around proposed changes to the planning system. We are working closely with colleagues in the Department for Communities and Local Government developing policy in this area, to ensure that issues related to microgeneration are considered. No announcements have yet been made.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the obstacles to fulfilling targets for the proportion of energy to be produced from renewable sources. [155499]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The Energy White Paper identified the need both to create the right financial framework, and to lower practical barriers relating to planning and grid connection, in the light of our target of 10 per cent. electricity from renewables by 2010 and aspiration to double this by 2020. It also outlined proposals to band the Renewables Obligation, reform the planning regime and improve renewables grid connection in order to address these barriers. In the context of renewable energy use in transport, the White Paper referred to issues of sustainability, mechanical impact and costs.

The 2007 spring European Council agreed an overall target for 20 per cent. of the EU's energy to be from renewables by 2020. Decisions have not yet been taken on individual member states' contribution to the target, but we are already giving initial consideration to potential obstacles to further renewable deployment—such as cost, technical feasibility, planning constraints, grid infrastructure, sustainability, and impact on wider energy policy goals—and how these might be overcome. We will be consulting on these issues in more detail once the European Commission has issued proposals on how the EU 20 per cent. renewable energy target should be implemented.

Royal Mail: Cars

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many private cars or other non-liveried or dedicated vehicles are used by the Royal Mail in the dispatch of mail. [154194]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Royal Mail. Adam Crozier the Chief Executive has been asked to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the level of usage of private cars or other non-liveried or dedicated vehicles by the Royal Mail to relay mailbags to postmen and women in the course of their rounds; and what guidance applies to the Royal Mail in terms of the security of such vehicles. [154195]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Royal Mail. Adam Crozier the Chief Executive has been asked to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Solicitors: Misconduct

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether he intends to send an observer from his Department to the disciplinary tribunal misconduct hearings against (a) Wake Smith and Beresfords and (b) Raleys solicitors. [156576]

Mr. Timms: No. The Department is not aware of the dates of these hearings. We shall, though, monitor the outcomes.

South East England Development Agency: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many press officers are employed by the South East England Development Agency. [154121]

Mr. Timms: Five.

Sustainable Development: Northstowe

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what role his Department will play in ensuring the incorporation of sustainable energy and heat distribution in the development of the eco-town at Northstowe; and what plans he has to establish monitoring arrangements to assist other eco-towns to learn from the Northstowe experience. [152273]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have been asked to reply.

Northstowe predates the eco-towns programme and its planning is already progressing, but we see it as a green exemplar and it will be an advanced prototype for eco-towns. The Northstowe Masterplan is currently being reviewed ahead of submitting the planning application shortly, and the review includes consideration of sustainable energy and high energy efficiency.

In the Eco-towns Prospectus, published on 23 July which mentions the development of the eco-town at Northstowe, we have set out the outcomes we expect to see from eco-towns. These include incorporating renewable energy systems, not just for homes, but schools, shops, offices and community facilities. We have also asked the Town and Country Planning Association to undertake a study into the practical application of the key sustainability and development criteria for eco-towns, which will draw on case studies, such as Northstowe, and this will help us to learn from the experience of others and so inform the development of eco-towns.

Television

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what percentage of new television sets sold in the UK have a screen blanking feature; [153782]

(2) if he will make it his policy to ensure that all new television sets have a screen blanking feature. [153783]

Mr. Timms: The Government have no information on the percentage of television sets with a screen blanking feature and no plan to require television sets sold in the UK to include such a feature.

Televisions have been identified as a priority for European action under the Energy Using Products Framework Directive (EuP) which provides a forum for considering options and priorities for establishing energy efficiency standards for energy using products. The Commission expects to bring forward proposals later this year.

The Government are already working with business to promote and improve energy efficiency in televisions, recognising the need to respond to consumer demands in the global market, and to improve information for consumers to help them identify energy efficient products.

Trading Standards

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what rights of access trading standards officers have to (a) planning, (b) building control and (c) council tax data held by the departments of local authorities. [153517]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

The rights of trading standards officers to have access to personal data from local authority planning, building and council tax databases are determined by section 29 of the Data Protection Act 1998 and section 115 of the Crime and Disorder Act 1998. Section 29 of the Data Protection Act provides that disclosure of personal data may take place where such disclosure is for the purposes of preventing or detecting crime, or apprehending or prosecuting offenders. Section 115 of the Crime and Disorder Act provides that any person who would not otherwise have the power to disclose information to a police authority or a local authority has power to do so where the disclosure is necessary or expedient for the purposes of any provision of that Act.

UK Atomic Energy Authority: Information Officers

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many press officers are employed by the (a) UK Atomic Energy Authority, (b) North West Regional Development Agency, (c) Ofgem and (d) Small Business Service. [154481]

Mr. Thomas: The UK Atomic Energy Authority employ 4.5 press officers; North West Regional Development Agency five press officers; Ofgem four, and the Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform Department Communications Directorate provides support for its Enterprise Directorate (previously the Small Business Service). It is not possible to give a specific figure for the Enterprise Directorate since it is an integral part of the Department and Communications Directorate allocates resource based on level of demand.

VAT: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) how many new VAT registrations there were in the city of Peterborough in each year since 1997; [154689]

(2) how many VAT registered businesses there were in the city of Peterborough in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [154690]

Mr. Timms: The number of new VAT registrations and VAT registered businesses in the Peterborough unitary authority are shown in the following table for 1997 to 2005. Data for registrations and de-registrations in 2006 will be published autumn 2007.

Number of VAT registrations and start of year stock, Peterborough UA, 1997 to 2005

	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
Registrations	485	435	435	405	430	485	525	430	535	–
Start of year stock	3,580	3,740	3,815	3,945	3,980	4,070	4,155	4,255	4,305	4,475

Source:
Business Start-ups and Closures: VAT Registrations and De-registrations 1994-2005. Available at: http://stats.berr.gov.uk/ed/vat

Although the number of new registrations has fluctuated over the period, the total number of VAT registered businesses in Peterborough unitary authority has increased from 3,580 in 1997 to 4,475 at the start of 2006, an increase of 895 (25 per cent.).

VAT registration data provide the only accurate indicator of the level of start-up activity at the unitary authority level.

However, VAT registrations do not capture all business activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if they fall below the compulsory VAT threshold, which was £60,000 at the start of 2006. Only 1.9 million out of 4.5 million UK enterprises (41 per cent.) were registered for VAT at the start of 2006.

Yorkshire Forward: Information Officers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many press officers are employed by Yorkshire Forward. [154158]

Mr. Timms: Four.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what role the (a) academy sponsor and (b) local authority plays in deciding whether an academy should be a new-build or refurbishment project. [154104]

Jim Knight: We expect that most academy projects will be a mix of new build and refurbishment unless it is agreed, by the local authority and Partnerships for Schools (PfS), that none of the school buildings is capable of supporting the delivery of the sponsor's educational vision.

In order to determine the level of refurbishment or new build, surveys are carried out in the early stages of an academy project. In the case of projects to be delivered via the National Framework, PfS will take the lead role in carrying out these surveys with each academy being inspected and re-developed based on its individual needs. Where academies are delivered as part of BSF we would expect that LA to carry out these surveys as part of its review of school provision.

The sponsor will be consulted on the outcome of such surveys but the final decision will rest with DCSF as part of their project approval processes.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his policy is on establishing academies in areas where local authorities object; and if he will make a statement. [154706]

Jim Knight: The Office of the Schools Commissioner discusses any schools which meet academies criteria with the relevant local authority before any steps are taken to identify sponsors. Academies are, in effect, jointly commissioned by the Department and the relevant local authorities.

Local authorities are increasingly becoming engaged in the strategic planning of multiple academies in their localities, within their wider school rebuilding and transformational strategies. Academies exemplify the new role of local authorities as "commissioners" rather than "providers" of schools. The Government are ready to engage with local authorities who wish to consider multiple academy projects as part of their strategies for transforming educational standards and opportunity.

Academies: Admissions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of children in each English academy (a) were admitted on the basis of aptitude, (b) were entitled to free school meals and (c) secured five grades A-C at GCSE in the most recent period for which figures are available. [150909]

Jim Knight [holding answer 18 July 2007]: Academies can admit pupils on the basis of aptitude for certain specialisms on the same basis as other specialist schools. The Department does not collect data on how many pupils are admitted on the basis of aptitude. The proportion of children in each academy entitled to free school meals, and the proportion gaining five or more A*-C at GGSE in 2006 are included in the following table.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether it is his policy that academies should follow local authority admissions procedures; and if he will make a statement. [155982]

Jim Knight: Academies are required, by their funding agreements, to comply with admissions law and the Department's admissions codes as though they were maintained schools. This doesn't mean that they must adopt their local authority admission arrangements. Like voluntary-aided and foundation schools, academies are responsible for determining their own admission arrangements in consultation with the local school admissions forum, on which the local authority is represented, and other local admission authorities. They must also be part of the local coordinated application process. Unlike other state funded schools, academies are required to seek the approval of the Secretary of State for their admission arrangements and before making any changes.

Academies: Capital Investment

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of resources allocated to schools capital funding will go to academies in each year from 1999-2000 to 2015-16; and if he will make a statement. [150693]

Jim Knight: I refer the hon. Member to my reply of 26 July 2007, Official Report, column 1377W, which provided details of the capital provision for academies as a proportion of the corresponding figure for all schools up to and including 2007-08. This continues to be the position. There was no spend on academies prior to 2001-02 which is the first year mentioned in that reply, and allocations have not been made beyond 2007-08.

Academies: Curriculum

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families for what reasons his Department has decided to require academies to follow the national curriculum programmes of study in English, maths and IT; and if he will make a statement. [155983]

Jim Knight: The Secretary of State announced on 10 July 2007 that future academies will be required to follow the national curriculum programmes of study in English, maths and ICT. This is different to the previous model whereby academies had to teach English, maths, science and ICT to all pupils and the curriculum had to be broad and balanced. The change was made because the national curriculum as a whole has been made more flexible to accommodate the kind of innovation that academies have enjoyed.

Academies: General Certificate of Secondary Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of the improvement in GCSE results at academies, compared to their predecessor schools, is due to the increased uptake of GNVQ exams; and if he will make a statement. [155964]

Jim Knight: A response to this question could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Academies: Governing Bodies

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to require all academies to accept local authority governors on to their governing bodies; and if he will make a statement. [154526]

Jim Knight: All academies are required by their funding agreement to have at least one local authority representative on their governing body, and local authorities acting as co-sponsors of academies will usually have two governors.

Academies: Isle of Sheppey

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when the executive responsible for the federated academy on the Isle of Sheppey expects to publish its consultation plans on which specialism will be available for each school site. [155664]

Jim Knight: The September newsletter published by the Project Steering Group for this academy indicated that the dual specialisms of Business and Enterprise and Sport will be available for the whole academy on both of its sites. 10,000 copies have been circulated widely on the Island. The period of formal consultation will conclude in November at which point a Funding Agreement for the Sheppey Academy should be with us for approval. Full details of consultation and briefing events are included in the September newsletter, a copy of which has been placed in the Library of the House.

Academies: Sponsorship

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many sponsors of academies have (a) not paid and (b) delayed paying their full contribution; [153826]

(2) how much is owed to the Government by academy sponsors. [153827]

Jim Knight: The following table shows, in relation to those academies with a signed funding agreement the amount of sponsorship pledged together with the related confirmed capital contribution. Notes 1 and 3 to the table identify those academies where the sponsor contribution has not been paid in full because the total contribution is not yet due to be paid. Delayed building works that have slowed the rate of sponsor contributions are identified by note 4. Significant delays for any other reason, where the Department proposes to engage the trust with a view to bringing the confirmed capital contribution back on profile, are noted at 2.

The difference between the total amount of sponsorship pledged and the total confirmed capital contribution from sponsors, representing the amount due to be paid to Trusts over the remaining lifetime of building projects, is £64.415 million.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his assessment is of the new sponsorship arrangements for academies, with particular reference to co-sponsorship by local authorities; and to what extent academies will remain independent under such arrangements. [153831]

Jim Knight: Local authorities are increasingly becoming engaged in the strategic planning and co-sponsorship of academies in their localities within their wider school rebuilding and transformational strategies. The Government welcome this engagement.

All academies' funding agreements require them to have at least one local authority representative on their governing body, and local authorities acting as co-sponsors will usually have two governors. In order to determine the ethos and leadership of the academy, and ensure clear responsibility and accountability, the private sector or charitable sponsor always appoints the majority of the governors. This is the case even when a local authority is acting as co-sponsor for wider purposes. All academies are run on an independent basis.

Adult Learning Inspectorate Agency: Information Officers

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many press officers are employed by the Adult Learning Inspectorate Agency. [154725]

Jim Knight: As part of the move to a single inspectorate for education, children's services and skills within Ofsted, the Adult Learning Inspectorate ceased to operate on 1 April 2007.

Building Schools for the Future: Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2007, Official Report, column 91W, on Building Schools for the Future: private finance initiative, whether he plans to use PFI schemes for the procurement of academies. [154116]

Jim Knight: The academies building programme is an integral part of the Building Schools for the Future (BSF) programme. BSF is the Government's 15-year programme to re-build or refurbish every secondary school in England, and comprises a mix of PFI schemes and conventional capital funding. PFI may be used for the procurement of academies where it is proven to provide value for money and clear benefits.

Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service: Information Officers

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many press officers are employed by the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service [154677]

Kevin Brennan: This is a matter for the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service (CAFCASS). Anthony Douglas, the chief executive, has written to the hon. Member with this information and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Anthony Douglas, dated 26 September 2007:

I am writing to you in response to the parliamentary question that you recently tabled.

Cafcass has four staff members in its Communications Team, covering a range of functions. The press office function takes approximately the equivalent of 0.5 to 1 full time member of staff; this work of a press officer is however spread across the whole team.

A copy of this reply will be placed in the House Library.

Children: Abuse

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the incidence of physical violence against children by parents and carers was in each year since 1990; and if he will make a statement. [153939]

Kevin Brennan: The Government collect data on children who became the subject of a child protection plan. In the past this has also meant being placed on a child protection register, although these arrangements are now being altered. Figures are available for the years ending 31 March 1990 to 2001 under the category of physical injury and for years ending 31 March 2002 to 2007 under the category of physical abuse. This information is provided by local authorities and includes cases of children suffering, or at risk of suffering significant harm from parents and carers (though it will also include other cases such as those where parents are unable to protect children from others posing a risk of harm to them). This information is set out in the following tables.

Up until year ending 31 March 2001 physical injury was recorded and could also be identified in cases where concerns about children included a mix of different categories. After that point, local authorities ceased reporting mixed categories separately so figures from year ending 31 March 2002 onwards are only available for registrations and child protection plans that are attributed to physical abuse as a single category. In the same year, there was also a change to the registration category where physical injury was redefined as physical abuse. As a result of this change in definition, the figures reported in year ending 31 March 2002 onwards for physical abuse may not be wholly comparable to the figures reported for 'physical injury alone' in preceding years.

Table 1: Children who became the subject of a child protection plan[1] as a result of physical abuse during the year ending 31 March 2002 to 2007

	Number	Percentage[2]
2007	5,100	15
2006	5,100	16
2005	5,500	18
2004	5,700	19
2003	5,700	19
2002	5,300	19

[1] A child may be registered more than once during the year.
[2] Percentage of children who became the subject of a child protection plan as a direct result of physical abuse. Excludes children who are subject to multiple forms of abuse including physical abuse.

Table 2: Children who became the subject of a child protection plan[1] as a result of physical injury during the year ending 31 March 1990 to 2001

	Physical injury alone	Percentage[2]	Total physical injury[3]	Percentage[4]
2001	5,800	22	8,000	30

[2] Expressed as a percentage of the total children who became the subject of a child protection plan.
[3] Includes children who have suffered physical injury in conjunction with other categories of abuse. Children may be counted more than once in these mixed categories.
[4] Percentage of children who became the subject of a child protection plan as a result of physical injury alone or in conjunction with other reported forms of abuse.

Children: Databases

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the written statement on 25 July 2007, on the electronic common assessment framework, whether Criminal Records Bureau checks and other checks made to personnel authorised to use the system will also be applied to those who are commissioned to service and maintain the system. [154081]

Beverley Hughes: The Government will ensure that the electronic common assessment framework (eCAF) system is secure and that it will comply with stringent Government and international protective security standards. Access to it will be restricted to authorised users, who need to use it as part of their job. There are two types of authorised user: practitioners, who use eCAF to perform their professional roles relating to children; and system administrators, who perform IT-related tasks on the eCAF system itself, or on the data held by eCAF. Both types of user must pass CRB checks and will also be subject to the Vetting and Barring Scheme (VBS).

Children: Play

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what support his Department gives to the provision of opportunities for play for children. [152093]

Kevin Brennan: We recognise fully the benefits of play for children and we continue to take steps to support and promote the provision of opportunities for play. For example, from September 2008, it will be mandatory for all schools and early years providers in Ofsted registered settings to follow the Early Years Foundation Stage—a play-based approach to supporting and improving the wellbeing and development of children from birth to age five. Extended schools will offer additional opportunities for safe, supervised play out of normal school hours.

"Aiming High for Young People" published in July 2007 will support a major expansion of positive activities for young people over the next 10 years. The Department new has joint policy responsibility for play with the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) and will work closely with that Department and with Communities and Local Government and other Departments to build on the Government's support for play outlined in the "Time for Play" document published by DCMS in 2006. As a first step, the Minister for Sport and I will meet Play England later this month.

Class Sizes

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the pupil to teacher ratio was in English (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in (i) 2006 and (ii) 2007. [154710]

Jim Knight: In January 2006 the overall pupil to teacher ratio in local authority maintained primary schools was 22.0 and 16.6 in secondary schools for English. In January 2007 the provisional figures in primary schools was 21.8 and 16.5 in secondary schools.

This information is from the Department of Children, Schools and Families school census.

Academies and city technology colleges are not included in the figures.

Classroom Assistants: Training

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much was spent on training teachers' assistants in each year since 1997, broken down by local education authority. [154451]

Jim Knight: This information is not held centrally as the employment, deployment and training of support staff, including teaching assistants, is a matter for schools and local authorities to determine as their employers.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much his Department spent on (a) management consultants and (b) other external consultants and advisers in each year since 2000; and which of these consultants undertook work for the Department with a total contractual value in excess of £10 million over this period. [146338]

Kevin Brennan: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which private consultancy firms (a) his Department and (b) agencies which report to his Department engaged in each of the last three years; which programmes or projects each firm worked on; and what the approximate cost to the Department or agency concerned was of each engagement. [155877]

Kevin Brennan: This information could be collected only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of people employed by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies are disabled. [153578]

Kevin Brennan: The proportion of people employed in my Department and its agencies who have declared their disability is 5.9 per cent.

Departments: Families

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to support (a) families and (b) marriage through his policies; and if he will make a statement. [154712]

Kevin Brennan: We know from evidence that parenting and the quality of adult relationships in families are primary factors in improving children's outcomes; and family and relationship support are an integral part of DCSF family policy and vision. 'Every Parent Matters' and 'Aiming High for Children: Supporting Families' (both published in March 2007) signal our intent to continue to support families through our policies. This has been reinforced by the new Machinery of Government changes putting families in the title of the Department for the first time, moving us beyond arbitrary distinctions between services for children and adults. We are looking at how we should champion families across Government.

We recognise that the traditional family structure has evolved and not all children are born to parents who are married or are raised in a two-parent family. Emerging family policy recognises the personal choices of people in their family lives, and seeks to support and strengthen the relationships they choose to make. We continue to work in partnership with the third sector to deliver our policies and provide high quality services for families.

Departments: Manpower

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many civil servants are working for his Department. [150740]

Jim Knight: The Department has 2,800 full-time equivalent staff.

Departments: Official Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much was spent on overnight accommodation by civil servants within his Department's areas of responsibilities in the last 12 months. [149040]

Kevin Brennan: The amount spent on overnight accommodation for civil servants in the former Department for Education and Skills for the period July 2006 to June 2007 was £1,046,062.

Departments: Pay

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make a statement on his Department's submission to the Pay Review Bodies for 2008 to 2011. [151872]

Kevin Brennan: The Department has provided its evidence to the School Teachers' Review Body, covering teachers' pay for the period 2008-11, and this is currently being considered by the Review Body. In addition, the Department has also provided evidence jointly with its social partners, representing teacher unions, associations and employers. Both sets of evidence are available at the following link:

http://www.teachernet.gov.uk/pay.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the total cost was of performance related pay in (a) his Department and (b) schools in each year since 1990-91; how much it is expected to be in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [154531]

Jim Knight: The Department was created in June 2007 and will award all salaries on a performance related basis in 2008. Since 1995, when the predecessor Departments received delegated pay responsibility, all salaries have been fully performance related. The staffing levels and paybills for each year are published in the annual departmental reports available in the House of Commons Library.

It is not possible to estimate the cost of performance related pay in schools. Teachers undergo an annual review of performance which contributes to decisions that may be made by their school/employer about their progression on the pay scale or spine range for their grade. Non-teaching school staff are paid under local arrangements with varying discretions to recognise performance.

Departments: Pensions

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of staff in his Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions; and what steps he has taken in the last 12 months to encourage more people to make such contributions. [147528]

Kevin Brennan: 199 members of staff in the Department for Children, Schools and Families (6.9 per cent. of the total number of staff employed by the Department) currently make additional voluntary pension contributions through deductions from their pay.

Pension scheme members receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension built up to date, and also a projection of pension on retirement if the member continues in service to scheme pension age. The benefit statement provides details of the civil service pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including on options for making additional voluntary contributions to boost their pension.

Departments: Press

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families to which periodicals his Department subscribes. [153257]

Kevin Brennan: A list of periodicals subscribed to by the DCSF is shown in the following list. Individual teams within DCSF have the option to subscribe to periodicals if they wish, but to extract this information would involve disproportionate cost.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much was spent by his Department on newspapers and magazines in the last 12 months. [153258]

Kevin Brennan: Newspaper and magazine purchase is recorded under the general heading of Books and Newspapers.

Details of expenditure on books, newspapers and magazines incurred by the Department over the last financial year are as follows;

2006-07: £166,000

Departments: Public Transport

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what incentives he has considered to encourage staff in his Department to use public transport. [148794]

Kevin Brennan: The main incentive the Department offers are interest-free loans for season tickets for travel to work. Use of public transport is encouraged by departmental policies including limited car parking, free cycle parking with showers available for staff to use before starting work, flexible working, using public transport during the course of travel and making use of travel websites and information services, such as Transport Direct. Staff are also informed about local transport initiatives and promotions. Where the location or nature of the work makes public transport use impractical for staff, car sharing and the use of low emission vehicles is encouraged.

Departments: Redundancy Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much was spent by his Department on redundancy payments in the last 12 months. [153253]

Kevin Brennan: There have been no compulsory redundancies in the period.

Departments: Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much was spent by his Department on staff away days in the last 12 months. [153254]

Kevin Brennan: The information is not held centrally in the form requested and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The Department is committed to develop staff to reach their full potential and believe that staff away days and team building exercises are beneficial in helping them achieve that.

Departments: Tribunals

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much was spent by his Department on industrial tribunals in the last 12 months. [153256]

Kevin Brennan: In the 2006-07 financial year my Department spent £46,691 on legal fees in defending employment tribunal cases.

Education: Hearing Impaired

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what estimate he has made of the amount spent on the education of deaf children in Norfolk in each of the last five years; [150867]

(2) if he will assess the effectiveness of the process for (a) the education of deaf children and (b) the appeal process against allocation decisions. [150868]

Jim Knight: The Department does not collect information on the amount spent on the education of particular groups of pupils with special educational needs (SEN). However, the following table shows information relating to budgeted expenditure on the education of children with special educational needs in Norfolk since 2003-04:

2003-04	42,233,000
2004-05	44,946,000
2005-06	48,604,000
2006-07	51,472,000
2007-08	[1]60,953,000

Section 52 statements

We do not make a separate assessment of the effectiveness of the education of deaf children. All pupils both with and without SEN are assessed at the end of key stages of learning and pupils with a statement of SEN have their needs reviewed annually. The statutory framework and the SEN code of practice should ensure that all children with special needs have those needs identified and assessed and receive appropriate support. We are currently in discussion with deaf and hearing impairment organisations about school attainment data for this group of pupils.

We have no plans to review the effectiveness of the Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal (SENDIST), which provides an independent and impartial appeal process against local authority decisions about the education of children with hearing impairments and other special educational needs. In the tribunal year 2005-06 the tribunal decided 31 cases in which hearing impairment was identified as the children's primary difficulty. The tribunal upheld 20 of 26 cases relating to school placement.

Under part 4 of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 (DDA), schools must not discriminate against prospective disabled pupils in their admissions arrangements and should make reasonable adjustments to their admissions policies and procedures so that prospective disabled pupils are not disadvantaged by the school's admission arrangements. If a child is refused entry for other reasons, such as the school being full, then they have the same right to appeal as other children.

Local education appeals panels consider claims of discrimination in relation to admissions to, and permanent exclusions from, local authority maintained schools. SENDIST hears other claims about schools under the DDA.

Education: Voucher Schemes

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether he has made an analysis of the potential use of school vouchers in the primary and secondary school system; and if he will make a statement. [154613]

Jim Knight: The Government have not made any analysis of the potential use of school vouchers in the primary and secondary school system.

European Indicators Project

Ms Gisela Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what steps his Department is taking to ensure full participation in the European Indicators Project by official bodies and UK assessment organisations; [154220]

(2) what steps the Government are taking to ensure that the work under way in the UK in relation to language and social inclusion through the Asset languages programme and UK Languages Ladder initiative (a) is better known across the European Union and (b) is taken into consideration as arrangements are made to operationalise the European Indicators Project as agreed by the Council of Ministers in Barcelona (2002). [154196]

Jim Knight: The European Indicators Project is going through a competitive tender process, and any official body or UK assessment organisation could have submitted a bid on their own or as part of a consortium. We would expect that whoever wins the tender would work with appropriate organisations with relevant expertise as they develop the project.

The Languages Ladder/Asset languages scheme offers assessment in 25 languages, including a wide range of community languages. The Languages Ladder levels have been mapped against the Common European Framework.

The National Director for Languages and the Project Director for the Languages Ladder have made presentations at both Council of Europe and European Union events, promoting the Languages Ladder/Asset languages scheme, and will continue to do so. Cambridge ESOL—who have developed Asset languages qualifications with OCR as part of Cambridge Assessment—are members of the Association of Languages Testers in Europe and have made formal presentations on Asset languages at international conferences. The Languages Ladder and Asset languages also featured as an example of good practice in the VALEUR (Valuing All Languages in Europe) project which looked at language diversity in Europe and opportunities to gain qualifications in community languages.

Free School Meals

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of pupils were entitled to free school meals in each local education authority in 2006-07, ranked from highest to lowest; and if he will make a statement. [152142]

Jim Knight: Information on percentages of pupils entitled to free school meals in each local authority, ranked highest to lowest, in 2006-07 is shown in the following tables.

Further Education: Disadvantaged

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what information his Department collects on the proportion of pupils aged 16 to 18 years in (a) further education colleges and (b) school sixth forms from highly deprived groups. [154338]

Jim Knight: Information is available using matched administrative data and eligibility for free school meals at age 15 as a proxy for deprivation. Of those 16-18 year olds in further education colleges and maintained school sixth forms in 2005/06, 13 per cent. and 7 per cent. respectively were eligible for and claiming free school meals at age 15.

Further Education: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to bring funding levels for 16 to 18-year-olds in further education colleges up to the funding levels in schools; and if he will make a statement. [154008]

Jim Knight: The LSC has made a series of changes to funding arrangements which have already reduced the gap by 5 per cent. Further work is already in hand that will reduce the gap by a further 3 per cent. from 2008.

Changes made include increasing college funding rates by 1 per cent. more than school sixth form funding rates in 2004/05 and 2005/06; removing, from 2006/07, in-year adjustment for school sixth forms to bring them into line with college funding arrangements; and, from 2006/07, collecting pupil-level data from school sixth forms on retention and attainment.

GCE A-Level: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of whether absolute A-level standards have changed over the last 20 years, pursuant to the comments of the Chair of the Advisory Committee on Mathematics Education; and if he will make a statement. [154786]

Jim Knight: A-levels, like other qualifications, are tightly regulated and standards monitored by the independent Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA). The Committee on Examination Standards chaired by the Director for Education at the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) concluded in 2004 that no examination system at the school or other level is so tightly or carefully managed.

Claims that A-levels have got easier have been investigated and refuted on numerous occasions since the 1990s, first by Ofsted and then by QCA. It is not possible to make a simple comparison between exam papers from one or two decades ago with papers today: pupils learn different things today because the world is a different place, with employers demanding different skills. The improvements we have seen in success rates at A level are a result of record investment, 30,000 extra teachers, double the number of support staff and billions invested in rebuilding crumbling schools. The further improvements planned for A-level as part of our 14-19 reforms, to be introduced in 2008, will provide further stretch and challenge for the most able pupils and ensure A-levels remain robust qualifications that are respected internationally. Success at A-level today is no less demanding than it was in the past.

General Certificate of Secondary Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will set a target for 80 per cent. of pupils to pass five or more GCSEs at A-C grade by 2020; and if he will make a statement. [154714]

Jim Knight: Standards in secondary schools have risen dramatically. 2007 data are not yet available but in 2006 58.5 per cent. of pupils achieved five good GCSEs—an increase of 13.4 percentage points since 1997. Over 86,000 more pupils achieved five good GCSEs last year compared with 1997 and 62,000 more achieved five good GCSEs including English and maths compared with 1997. We are on track to meet the 2008 target of 60 per cent. of pupils achieving five good GCSEs and we expect that healthy trajectory to continue.

Targets are an essential part of the Government's commitment to raising educational standards. The existing set of public service agreement (PSA) targets linked to raising attainment covers the period up to 2008. We expect to be announcing shortly a new set of PSA targets for the spending review period up to 2011.

Home Education: General Certificate of Secondary Education

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the proportion of children educated at home who were entered for GCSEs/A-levels in each of the last three years; and what assessment he has made of how their results compared with those educated at school. [154756]

Jim Knight: We have not made any estimates of the proportion of children educated at home who were entered for public examinations nor how their results compared with those educated in school.

Literacy: Finance

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what funding (a) is and (b) is planned to be made available for initiatives that encourage parents to assist their children in learning to read. [154017]

Beverley Hughes: The Department is currently funding Booktrust £8.7 million to deliver Bookstart and £1.22 million to deliver Booktime in 2007-08.

Bookstart delivers book packs to babies aged between six to nine months, 18 months and three years. By encouraging parents and carers to become more actively involved with their child's learning and development through the sharing of books, Bookstart seeks to improve children's communication, language and literacy skills and to improve children's personal, social and emotional development.

The new Booktime initiative will enable every child entering a reception class in autumn 2007 to receive a free copy of FunnyBones by Janet and Allan Ahlberg. Booktime promotes reading for pleasure and encourages parents and carers to read aloud to their children and help foster a love of reading at this key stage in their child's education and development.

The new Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills is responsible for family literacy, language and numeracy which has been a national initiative since 1994. This initiative is designed to enable parents and their children to improve their literacy and numeracy skills together. That Department will be developing a family literacy, language and numeracy programme (with a focus on literacy and numeracy) for parents of children aged 0 to four, based on the early years foundation stage. It will also be developing information packs for use by parents with literacy, language and numeracy skills needs to help them maximise the potential of the free books to be given to five and 11-year-old children in the 2007 autumn term.

Ofsted: Information Officers

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many press officers are employed by Ofsted. [154556]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Library.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 17 September 2007:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for a response.

The Press Office currently has 5 staff in post: 1 Head of News, 1 Senior Press officer and 3 Press Officers.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools and Learners and will be placed in the Library of both Houses.

Parenting Orders

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many parenting orders were issued as a consequence of pupil non-attendance at schools in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [153970]

Kevin Brennan: The Department started to collect data regarding parenting orders (in cases of non-attendance and exclusion from school) from September 2004. Between 1 September 2004 and 13 April 2007, local authorities reported 1,183 parenting orders being made by the courts following a prosecution for failing to ensure regular school attendance. The data are collected in period three times a year as follows:

	Number
1 September 2004 to 31 December 2004	130
1 January 2005 to 1 April 2005	96
2 April 2005 to 31 July 2005	201
1 August 2005 to 31 December 2005	184
1 January 2006 to 21 April 2006	98
22 April 2006 to 1 September 2006	223
2 September 2006 to 31 December 2006	143
1 January 2007 to 13 April 2007	108
Total number of parenting orders issued	1,183

Additional data on parental responsibility measures are provided at local authority level and are published at:

www.dfes.gov.uk/schoolattendance/otherinitiatives/Data.cfm

Primary Education: Mathematics

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what criteria the review of primary and early years mathematics teaching led by Sir Peter Williams will adopt for giving weight to submissions received. [154606]

Jim Knight: It will be for Sir Peter Williams to determine what weight he gives to submissions to the review of mathematics teaching in primary schools and early years settings. However, Sir Peter Williams will consider all submissions received and there will be opportunities for a wide range of stakeholders to contribute. Specific focus will be given to those submissions which relate directly to the terms of reference for the review, which are as follows:

Through examination of the available evidence including international best practice and through engagement with the teaching profession, the Primary Maths Review will consider and make recommendations in the following areas:

What is the most effective pedagogy of maths teaching in primary schools and early years settings. That consideration should include instructional methodologies, teaching and learning strategies, and lesson designs that are most effective in helping children to progress in their learning.

What range of provision best supports children across the full ability range, including the most gifted. The highest priority should be given to those who are not progressing fast enough to reach national expectations. The review should specifically make recommendations to inform the development of an early (age 5 to 7) intervention programme for children who are failing to master the basics of numeracy—"Every Child Counts"—as recently announced by the Prime Minister.

What conceptual and subject knowledge of mathematics should be expected of primary school teachers and early years practitioners, and how should initial teaching training and continuing professional development be improved to secure that knowledge.

What is the most effective design and sequencing of the mathematics curriculum. Recommendations in this area should inform a future review of the primary curriculum as a whole.

How should parents and families best be helped to support young children's mathematical development.

Primary Education: Play

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what average length of time per week children at key stage 1 spend on free play. [153838]

Jim Knight: We do not collect information on the average length of time per week children at key stage 1 spend on free play.

Private Education: Fees and Charges

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what his latest estimate is of the level of inflation in private sector school fees; and if he will make a statement; [154617]

(2) what benchmarking analysis he has conducted of the average level of annual fees for schools in the private sector in England, broken down by (a) (i) primary and (ii) secondary schools and (b) (i) boarding and (ii) non-boarding schools in each year since 1990-91; and if he will make a statement. [154708]

Jim Knight: As part of the annual school census of independent schools my Department collects information related to the lowest and highest annual fee charged per pupil. We do not project inflation increases in school fees, nor have we undertaken any analysis of the historic level of independent school fees. These fees are a matter for individual schools and are just one of the factors parents consider when looking at which schools meet their particular circumstances.

Pupil Exclusions

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many fixed period exclusions there were per pupil in 2005-06. [154279]

Jim Knight: The readily available information is given in the table.

For the 2005-06 school year, information on fixed period exclusions was collected from secondary schools only. For the 2006-07 school year this coverage will extend to primary and special schools.

[1] Includes middle schools as deemed.

[2] Includes maintained special schools. Excludes non-maintained special schools.

[3] In 2003-04, information on fixed period exclusions was collected for the first time.

[4] Information on fixed period exclusions has been derived from Termly Exclusion Survey returns.

[5] For the 2005-06 school year, information on fixed period exclusions from secondary schools was collected via the School Census for the first time (the Termly Exclusions Survey has been discontinued). For exclusions during 2006-07, information on fixed period exclusions will also be collected from primary and special schools.

[6] The number of fixed period exclusions expressed as a percentage of the total number.

[7] The number of fixed period exclusions expressed as a percentage of the number (headcount) of all pupils (excluding dually registered pupils) in January each year.

Totals may not appear to equal the sum of component parts because numbers have been rounded to the nearest 10.

Termly Exclusions Survey and School Census

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will abolish the right of appeal to local education authorities in respect of pupils who have been permanently excluded from school; how many permanent exclusions were overturned on appeal in each year since 1996-97; and if he will make a statement. [154530]

Jim Knight: We have no plans to abolish independent exclusion appeal panels. We back head teachers' authority where pupils' behaviour warrants exclusion and have made it clear that, in cases where pupils are very disruptive or violent, appeal panels should not normally overturn head teachers' decisions. But we believe it is right that, in a matter as important as permanent exclusion from school, parents should have a right of appeal. Without that right there would be more court cases, with increased costs to all concerned. The information on the number of appeals determined in favour of the parent/pupil since 1996-97 is set out in the following table.

	Number of appeals heard	Number of appeals determined in favour of the parent/pupil

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which 20 secondary schools in England had the (a) most and (b) least funding per pupil in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [150836]

Jim Knight: The requested information for 2007-08 is shown in the following tables. Local authorities are responsible for determining the funding of the schools in their area through the local funding formula, in consultation with the Schools Forum. There are also a number of factors which can influence the per pupil funding of a school, including whether the school is about to open or close, its size and age-range. For this reason, additional contextual information has been included.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will publish the latest figures for funding per pupil in each English school; and if he will make a statement. [154524]

Jim Knight: The available information has been placed in the House Libraries.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) if he will take steps to allocate higher levels of funding to school pupils from deprived backgrounds; and if he will make a statement; [154612]

(2) if he will make a statement on his plans to reform deprivation-related funding for schools. [154525]

Jim Knight: Funding for local authorities within the Dedicated Schools Grant includes an element for deprivation as detailed in my previous response to the hon. Member's earlier question answered on 26 July 2007, Official Report, column 1405W.

A review is currently under way to look at how much funding each local authority is passing on to schools on the basis of deprivation and how this can be improved where necessary. As part of the process Departmental officials will be collecting baseline information regarding the distribution in 2007-08 in order that change can be tracked in future years.

Pupils: Work Experience

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many work experience schemes are run by schools in each (a) Government region and (b) local education authority. [153828]

Jim Knight: The Department does not routinely collect this information. Each year the vast majority of more than half a million key stage 4 (14-16) pupils in all areas go on work experience placements. Work experience is the single biggest, co-ordinated partnership between employers and schools. Surveys show that work experience is valued by employers, schools and—most importantly—learners. Ofsted reported that four out of five pupils are positive about their work experience, and that three quarters of placements are well matched to pupils' interests and capabilities.

Qualifications and Curriculum Authority: Information Officers

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many press officers are employed by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority. [154428]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority employs three full-time and three part-time press officers.

School Leaving

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will break down the public cost of raising the education leaving age to 18 years by main subheading. [154715]

Jim Knight: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 17 July 2007, Official Report, column 303W, in which the estimated costs of raising the participation age are set out by main category. The estimated costs of raising the participation age are also set out in the Regulatory Impact Assessment published alongside the Green Paper on 22 March. This can be accessed at:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/consultations/downloadableDocs/RIA%20[FINAL]%20word%20version.pdf

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his policy is on phasing the raising of the education leaving age to 18; and if he will make a statement. [154758]

Jim Knight: We said in the Green Paper "Rising Expectations: staying in education and training post-16", published in March, that we propose to introduce a new requirement for young people to participate in education or training post-16 in a phased way, moving first to a requirement to participate until age 17, before subsequently requiring participation until 18. We judge that the best moment to raise the participation age to 17 would be 2013, and we would then propose to raise the participate age to 18 in 2015.

School Meals

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools provide a school meals service; what estimate he has made of the number of pupils eating school meals; what assessment he has made of the financial viability of the school meals service in secondary schools; and if he will make a statement. [154785]

Kevin Brennan: The Department does not collect this information. However, the School Food Trust's (SFT) second annual survey of take-up of school meals in England (published in September 2007), which is based on responses from 104 local authorities, reports that, in 2006-07, 90.7 per cent. of primary schools and 57.6 per cent. of secondary schools offered school lunches; and that 41 per cent. of primary pupils and 38 per cent. of secondary pupils ate school lunches.

In addition, the Local Authority Caterers Association's (LACA) 'National School Meals Survey 2007' which is based on responses from 94 LACA member authorities, reports that 65 per cent. of local authority caterers forecast a deficit on 2006-07 trading; and that 51 per cent. forecast a deficit on 2007-08 trading.

Increasing take-up of school lunches is a priority for my Department and for the SFT.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) if he will list the planned changes to school meal standards in England in each year from 2007 to 2011; and if he will make a statement; [155979]

(2) how many school lunches were served in England in each year from 1996-97 to 2007-08; and if he will make a statement; [155980]

(3) if he will make a statement on the Government's progress towards their target of increased take-up of school meals. [155981]

Kevin Brennan: Standards for school food are being introduced to the following timetable:

September 2006: food-based standards for school lunches;

September 2007: food-based standards for all food provided in schools;

September 2008: nutrient-based standards for school lunches in primary schools; and

September 2009: nutrient-based standards for school lunches in secondary schools.

This Department does not collect information on the number of school lunches served annually. However, the National Audit Office report, 'Smarter food procurement in the public sector', published in March 2006, stated that the number of meals served annually was 617 million.

The School Food Trust (SFT) recently published its second annual survey of take-up of school meals in England. This showed that, between 2005-06 and 2006-07, school lunch take-up fell by one percentage point in primary schools (from 42.3 per cent. to 41.3 per cent.) and by five percentage points in secondary schools (from 42.7 per cent. to 37.7 per cent.).

The SFT has a target to increase take-up of school lunches, from the 2008-06 baseline, by four percentage points by March 2008; and by 10 percentage points by the end of 2009.

Increasing take-up of school lunches is a priority for my Department and for the SFT.

Schools

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools have been opened since 1997, broken down by local education authority. [154450]

Jim Knight: The number of maintained mainstream schools opened in since 1997, broken down by local authority, is given in the following table.

New schools can be established for a number of reasons including: to meet population growth; to replace schools that are amalgamating; as a Fresh Start school to replace a school in special measures; as a school with a religious character to replace a school without a religious character; or as part of another type of local reorganisation.

It was not mandatory to supply school opening dates prior to January 2002 and therefore the figures for these years may not be complete.

Schools: Admissions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) whether he has changed his policy on the promotion of parental choice in relation to schools; and if he will make a statement; [154611]

(2) what his policy is on greater diversity of school choice for parents and pupils; and if he will make a statement. [154713]

Jim Knight: We encourage every parent to take an active and informed role in their child's education and choice and diversity is a key driver behind our overarching aim of raising standards. Our policy is to give parents and children a genuine choice between schools that provide a good standard of education and offer a unique ethos and curriculum, so that every child can find a school place in which they are happy and can flourish.

Schools: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what funding his Department has allocated for a nationwide summer residential programme for school students in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and if he will make a statement. [153955]

Jim Knight: The Department has provided no funding for a nationwide summer residential programme in 2007. However, the Department has worked with the Big Lottery Fund in delivering its 'Do it 4 Real' summer residential programme since 2003. The Big Lottery Fund allocated £5 million for 'Do it 4 Real' in 2007. From 2008-11, my Department will make a further £15 million available to expand residential activities, building on the success of 'Do it 4 Real'.

Taking part in residential activity programmes, which take young people out of their immediate surroundings, can provide opportunities for young people to mix with peers from different backgrounds, helping them to understand and appreciate cultural differences, and develop new interests, ambitions and aspirations. In expanding the availability of residential opportunities, building on the success of 'Do it 4 Real', the Government will focus on creating subsidised opportunities for young people, particularly those from disadvantaged backgrounds, to mix with a wide range of peers.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to increase the share of national income spent on education from 2005 levels over the period 2007 to 2011; and if he will make a statement. [153956]

Kevin Brennan: The Government will increase spending in education as a proportion of GDP from 5.4 per cent. in 2005-06 to 5.6 per cent. in 2010-11. This compares to 4.7 per cent. of GDP spent on education in 1996-97. The exact figures for 2005-06 to 2010-11 are shown in the following table.

The table also shows total spend on UK education spend by the Government.

UK Government education spend

	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09	2009-10	2010-11
Total Government education spend as a proportion of GDP	5.4	5.5	5.6	5.6	5.6	5.6
Total UK education spend by Government (£ billion)	67.1	71.5	77.4	81.1	84.8	90

Following machinery of government changes, education spend on post-19 further education and skills and higher education is the responsibility of DIUS. My Department will continue to work closely with DIUS in relation to post-19 and higher education spending.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what assessment he has made of whether all the incentives created by the 5 per cent. levy on school budget surpluses are in line with the objectives of that policy; and if he will make a statement; [156274]

(2) what provisional costing he has made in relation to the redistribution of funding through the 5 per cent. levy on school budget surpluses; [156275]

(3) how many schools he expects to be liable for the 5 per cent. levy on school budget surpluses. [156278]

Jim Knight: The Government are taking action to reduce the total level of school balances which stood at £1.6 billion nationally at the end of the financial year 2005-06. We believe it right to ensure that some of this money is used to support the education of today's pupils. We propose therefore to require local authorities to redistribute locally 5 per cent. of all positive revenue balances which, on the basis of 2005-06 figures, would apply to around 20,500 or 90.4 per cent. of all schools. That will encourage these schools to think carefully about the level of their balances and to plan ahead for their use.

It will be for each local authority in consultation with its Schools Forum to decide how the redistribution will work in their area. Because the redistribution takes place within a local authority it will reward those schools who budget prudently for a small surplus at the end of each financial year, at the expense of those schools who maintain consistently high balances. As the resources will be redistributed there is no overall cost to the school system from this measure and we estimate that a 5 percent. annual redistribution would release around £75 million a year for wider use within schools.

Schools: Inspections

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average (a) duration and (b) cost of an Ofsted inspection of a (i) primary and (ii) secondary school was in the latest year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [154782]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Library.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 17 September 2007:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for a response.

The cost of an inspection is derived from the published inspection tariff, which is closely related to the size of the school. Inspector days are allocated to a school according to the following formula:

Number of pupils on roll	Inspector days in school
0-50	1
50-150	2
150-250	4
250-400	5
400-600	6
600-800	7
800-1,100	8
1,100-1,400	9
1,400+	10

No inspection involves inspectors being in a school for more than two days. Most inspections involve two days in school, except for very small schools. However the total cost of each inspection includes two extra days for the lead inspector to prepare and write up the inspection. Costs also include the administration of the inspection and quality assurance processes. As a result, the costs of inspection vary according to the size of the school. Some examples are:

A typical primary school of 241 pupils, with an inspection led by an additional inspector and the report quality assured by HMI, would be £6,018.

An inspection of a large primary school of 321 pupils, led by an HMI, would cost in the region of £8.704.

Most secondary school inspections are led by HMI. The cost of inspecting a small secondary school of 675 pupils would be £13,067; the cost of inspecting a large school of 1,465 pupils would be £15,645.

Higher Achieving Schools

Up to 30% of all schools are now considered for a reduced tariff inspection (RTI). These are schools which meet pre-defined criteria indicating that they are likely to be good or outstanding overall. In these inspections, one or two inspectors generally spend only one day in school though the inspections still require the two additional days for preparation and writing up of the report.

The tariff for each inspection is as follows:

	Inspector days in school
1-899 pupils on roll	1
900+ pupils on roll	2
Split-site school	2
Unit for pupils with special educational needs	2

An RTI inspection in a typical primary school with 259 pupils would cost approximately £3,376 including quality assurance by an HMI. Most of these inspections in primary schools cost between £3,300 and £3,800.

The majority of reduced tariff inspections in secondary schools cost between £4,000 and £5,000. These figures are based on costs in the current financial year 2007/08.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools and Learners and will be placed in the Library of both Houses.

Schools: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools have been placed in special measures since 1996; and how many of these have been in special measures for (a) less than one year, (b) more than one year, (c) more than two years, (d) more than three years, (e) more than four years, (f) more than five years and (g) more than six years. [150681]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 25 September 2007:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

The numbers of schools placed in special measures from 1996-97 to 2005-06 are shown in the following table. The table also shows the length of time that schools made subject to special measures in each year remained in the category. The data are based on academic years.

Number of schools still in special measures	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	3	67	70

[1] This figure includes nursery schools primary schools, secondary schools, special schools and pupil referral units. Of the total number of schools in the table, 54 have been in special measures more than once. [2] Details of the number of schools placed in special measures in 2006-07 will be published by Ofsted on 28 September 2007.

In 2005-06, a new inspection framework was introduced. Under the new arrangements, schools are inspected every three years rather than every six years, as was formerly the case. More schools are therefore inspected each year and the increase in the number of schools made subject to special measures in 2005-06 should be viewed in the light of this information.

Under the section 10 inspection framework, which was in operation before September 2005, schools in special measures were monitored on a termly basis by HMI until they were judged to be providing a satisfactory standard of education. At that stage, Ofsted removed them from the category and published an inspection report. Some remained in special measures for three years or, in a minority of cases, for even longer periods. Ofsted has no power to close such schools but informs the Department for Children, Schools and Families, as well as the relevant local authority, of the progress of all schools in special measures. Since September 2005, Ofsted has continued to monitor the progress of schools in special measures and has reinspected those which have been in the category for two years or more. A few schools have remained in special measures following these inspections.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools, and will be placed in the Library of both Houses.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools in special measures in each reporting period since 2003 had come from serious weakness or requiring significant improvement categorisation; and if he will make a statement. [150683]

Jim Knight [holding answer 10 September 2007]: The following table shows the number and proportion of schools that have moved from the serious weaknesses and significant improvement categories to special measures. The significant improvement category was introduced on 1 September 2005 as part of the revised Ofsted inspection framework. No schools were newly placed into the serious weaknesses category after this date.

Academic year	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
Number of schools placed in special measures from the serious weaknesses category	51	20	9	2
Number of schools removed from the serious weaknesses category (including closures)	215	142	167	106
Percentage of schools removed from the serious weaknesses category placed in special measures	23.0	14.0	5.0	2.0
Number of schools placed in special measures from the significant improvement category	n/a	n/a	n/a	9
Number of schools removed from the significant improvement category (including closures)	n/a	n/a	n/a	276
Percentage of schools removed from the significant improvement category placed in special measures	n/a	n/a	n/a	3.0

The number and proportion of schools moving from the serious weaknesses category to special measures has reduced considerably since 2003. Ofsted have reinspected the majority of schools that were placed in the significant improvement category during 2005-06 and over 90 per cent. have now been judged to be providing a satisfactory standard of education. The trends in the table suggest that local authorities are increasingly able to prevent such schools falling into more serious failure represented by special measures.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which schools in special measures have been in such a category for over two years, broken down by date of special measures declaration. [150684]

Jim Knight: The following table lists the schools that have been in special measures for more than two years. It also shows the schools' unique reference number, the relevant local authority and the date of the inspection when the school was placed in special measures. The list reflects the position on 1 October 2007.

URN	School name	Local authority	Date of inspection
107228	Usher Street Primary School and Nursery	Bradford	10 July 2003[1]
125272	Thomas Knyvet College (previously Ash Technology College)	Surrey	3 March 2005
107774	Birkdale High School	Kirklees	30 June 2005
117781	Berkeley Junior School	North Lincolnshire	7 July 2005

[1] Re-inspected November 2005

These schools represent only 1.6 per cent. of the schools currently in special measures and 0.02 per cent. of all schools. On average schools are spending less time in this Ofsted category. For example, primary schools are now spending an average of 16 months in special measures compared to 23 months in 1997. The equivalent figures for secondary show a reduction from 28 to 22 months.

Building on this progress, the Department's reforms to tackle failing schools in the Education and Inspections Act 2006 demand radical action from the school and local authority with a clear expectation that schools are turned around rapidly.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his policy is on the relationship between school standards and structural reforms; and if he will make a statement. [154757]

Jim Knight: Raising standards in education and narrowing the attainment gap are key priorities for the Department. Structural reforms, whether through changes in schools governance, partnering schools with business, HE or FE stakeholders, or greater collaboration between schools, can have an important role to play in tackling those priorities. Please refer to my reply dated 16 July 2007 PQ 149939, which provides more details about the links between structural reforms and school standards.

Secondary Education: Curriculum

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what consideration was given to the teaching of lessons in (a) child care and (b) parenting skills in the development of the new curriculum for secondary schools. [151512]

Jim Knight [holding answer 24 July 2007]: There has always been scope for including lessons on child care and parenting skills within Personal, Social and Health Education and this remains true in the new curriculum for secondary schools.

For example, discussion of the roles and responsibilities of parents, carers and children in families is included in aspects of both the Personal Well Being and Citizenship programmes of study. In addition, some schools also offer child care and health and social care qualifications to their 14-16 year olds. In 2005-06, 28,816 Key Stage 4 pupils were entered for GCSE examinations in these subjects.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority classifies the new secondary curriculum as (a) outcomes-based and (b) child-centred. [154335]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority classifies the new secondary curriculum as being the fundamental body of knowledge, skills and understanding to which every pupil has a statutory entitlement up to age 16.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families where the programmes of study for the new secondary curriculum reject (a) constructivism, (b) whole language teaching and (c) fuzzy maths as stated by the Chief Executive of the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority in his speech on the launch of the new secondary curriculum. [154340]

Jim Knight: The new secondary curriculum programmes of study set out the minimum subject content which must be taught to all pupils. No programme of study makes mention of constructivism. No programme of study requires whole language leaching. No programme of study requires the teaching of fuzzy mathematics.

Schools will continue to decide how they organise their curriculum, lessons and timetable to meet the requirements of the national curriculum.

Secondary Education: Science

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what experiments were banned in science lessons in secondary schools in each year since 1997. [153829]

Jim Knight: The science curriculum programmes of study do not list which experiments can and cannot be taught in the classroom. There is however legislation that restricts the kinds of experiments that can be undertaken. For example, under the Specified Risk Material (Amendment) Regulations 1997 bulls' eyes can only be taken from cattle of six months or younger; and under the Control of Substances Hazardous to Health Regulations 1988 (amended 1992 and 2002), benzene and genuine crude oil are banned nationally. The Consortium of Local Education Authorities for the Provision of Science Services publishes tables of materials which schools can and cannot use in science, and suggests appropriate alternatives. Further information on this can be accessed on the CLEAPSS website at:

http://www.cleapss.org.uk.

Secondary Education: Teaching Methods

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of children in secondary schools were taught in classes with (a) streaming and (b) setting in each year since 1996-97; and if he will make a statement. [153953]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Library.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 6 August 2007:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

Although I am unable to answer the particular question you have raised, I have set out in the following tables the data Ofsted has on the proportion of observed lessons in secondary schools from September 1996 to August 2007 which were taught in setted/streamed classes

The data are based on the use of streaming and setting in lessons observed during inspection. Some explanation of these figures may be helpful. Before September 2005, inspectors were usually informed about how classes were organised by means of pre-inspection documentation, discussion with headteachers or teachers' schemes of work or lesson plans. Under the inspection arrangements at that time, all full-time teachers were observed by inspectors. Since September 2005, the recording of class organisation has been based either on discussions with the headteacher or teacher by reference to the lesson plan at the time of observation. A much smaller number of lessons are observed than would have been seen under the previous inspection framework. Lessons seen may therefore not represent pupil grouping in the school as a whole.

From 2003-04 the distinction between streaming and setting was removed and instead data recorded on whether the class was mixed ability or setted/streamed.

Physical education classes have been excluded from the analyses as these are not usually setted for ability in the subject

A copy of this reply has been sent to Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools, and will be placed in the Library of both Houses.

Specialist Diplomas: Engineering

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools he estimates will offer (a) the level three engineering diploma and (b) the full range of additional and specialist learning within the level three engineering diploma. [155066]

Jim Knight [holding answer 10 September 2007]: By 2013, all schools will be required to offer access to the engineering diploma as part of the new entitlement to all 14 diploma lines, this will include access to the full range of additional and specialist learning, where appropriate. From September 2008, 38 consortia (groups of schools, colleges and work based learning providers) have been approved to offer an estimated 1,500 young people the Advanced Diploma (level 3) in Engineering.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make a statement on the additional and specialist learning options within the level three diploma in engineering. [155067]

Jim Knight [holding answer 10 September 2007]: Additional and specialist learning for all diplomas offers a range of vocational and general qualifications to support choice and progression into higher education or employment. In determining the additional and specialist learning options within the level 3 diploma in engineering, the Diploma Development Partnership, awarding bodies and QCA are working very closely with higher education institutions and employers to ensure clear progression routes for young people.

Physics, Modern Foreign Languages, Electronics, Advertising or Multi-media Software Skills are all examples of some of the choices available for young people studying the Engineering Diploma at level 3. Full details are set out in the Diploma Additional and Specialist Learning Catalogue which is available on the National Database of Accredited Qualifications www.accreditedqualifications.org.uk.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to ensure that the level three diploma in engineering complies with entry requirements for university engineering courses. [155068]

Jim Knight [holding answer 10 September 2007]: The level 3 diploma in engineering has been developed in full consultation with higher education institutions, professional institutions, leading employer representatives and major awarding bodies. Students successfully completing this Engineering Diploma will be well prepared for entry into higher education.

Specialist Schools and Academies Trust: Academies

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps are being taken to improve co-operation between academies and the Specialist Schools and Academies Trust; and what assessment he has made of those levels of co-operation. [153830]

Jim Knight: The Department has no evidence of lack of co-operation between academies and the Specialist Schools and Academies Trust (SSAT), and we receive many positive endorsements of the support given by the SSAT from academies.

Recent reports by the National Audit Office and PricewaterhouseCoopers have commented favourably on the support given to academies by the SSAT.

Specialist Schools and Academies Trust: Information Officers

Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many press officers are employed by the Specialist Schools and Academies Trust. [154467]

Jim Knight: The Specialist Schools and Academies Trust is an independent company with charitable status. The Department does not therefore collect information about the detailed composition of its work force.

Sports: Curriculum

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of curriculum time was devoted to (a) sport, (b) art, (c) music and (d) languages in secondary schools in each year since 1997. [153952]

Jim Knight: The Department does not hold this information. It is for schools to decide how much curriculum time to devote to each subject in order to fulfil the requirements of the national curriculum.

Information on the amount of time secondary schools in England devoted to physical education in 2006-07 will be available next month.

Teachers

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many teachers are qualified to teach (a) Mandarin and (b) Urdu; [153820]

(2) how many children were on the Child Protection Register in each local authority area in England in each year since 1985-86; and if he will make a statement; [153940]

Information on school workforce has been published in SFR15/2007: "School Workforce in England (including pupil: teacher ratios and pupil: adult ratios), January 2007 (Provisional)", which was released on 26 April 2007, This is available on the Department's website via the following link: http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000725/index.shtml and is also available in the Library. This is an annual publication, which includes tables for January 1997 to 2007 on teacher numbers, support staff numbers, teacher vacancies, pupil: teacher ratios (PTRs) and pupil: adult ratios (PARs), teacher ethnicity and teacher sickness absence.

Information from School Census has been published in SFR 16/2007: "Pupil Characteristics and Class Sizes in Maintained Schools in England, January 2007 (Provisional)", which was released on 26 April 2007. This is available on the Department's website via the following link: http://www.dfes.gov.uk./rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000726/index.shtml and is also available in the Library. This Statistical First Release (SFR) is based upon information collected in the 2007 School Census. It reports provisional findings for the number of pupils by age, gender, free school meal eligibility, ethnicity, first language and SEN (special education needs) together with a range of class size information. Information on Pupil Referral Units can be found in tables 7 and 8.

Information on looked after children has been published in volume: Vweb01 72007: "Children Looked After by Local Authorities, Year Ending 31 March 2006", which was released on 29 March 2007. This is available on the Department's website via the following link: http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/VOL/v000721/index.shtml. This statistical volume provides statistics on children looked after by local authorities. It includes details on overall numbers of looked after children at 31 March, the number of children adopted in 2005-06, the number and qualifications achieved by care leavers in 2005-06 aged 16 and over, the activity of 19-year-old former care leavers, the number of looked after girls who are mothers, information on the distance between home and placement and the method of participation used during the statutory reviews. National table E contains information on the number of looked after children in residential schools.

Information on children on Child Protection Registers can be found in SFR45/2006: "Referrals, Assessments, and Children and Young People on Child Protection Registers, England—year ending 31 March 2006", which was published on 16 November 2006. This is available on the Department's website via the following link: http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000692/index.shtml and is also available in the Library.

Teachers: Assessments

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2007, Official Report, column 126W, on teachers: assessments (1) what the unit cost per test taken was in each financial year since 1999-2000; [153573]

(2) how many of those who successfully passed each test in each year passed on their first attempt; [153574]

(3) what the highest number of attempts needed was for any successful student to pass (a) in each year and (b) for each test; [153575]

(4) to which part of key stage 4 of the national curriculum the qualified teacher status skills tests equate. [154103]

Jim Knight: The Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA) holds data on the number of skills tests attempted by teacher trainees who successfully passed the tests but not on those taken by trainees who have attempted but have not successfully passed the tests. The available data is collected on an academic, rather than financial year, basis.

	Approximate total number of tests sat by those who passed, by academic year	Approximate total cost of running the tests for year, by financial year	Approximate unit cost per test taken by those who passed their tests
2000/01	55,854	5,245,000	93.91
2001/02	94,821	5,972,000	62.98
2002/03	113,044	4,132,000	36.55
2003/04	121,390	5,349,000	44.06
2004/05	142,654	4,722,000	33.10
2005/06	136,559	4,262,000	31.21

The unit cost is higher in the early years because, while fewer trainees sat the tests, the development costs of the scheme are reflected in them.

The following table shows the number of candidates who passed individual skills tests on their first attempt. This, and further information, is available publicly on the TDA website.

The skills tests are broadly consistent with grade C at key stage 4 of the national curriculum but do not equate to any specific part of it.

Teachers: Elderly

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many teachers over the age of 50 years were awarded full-time teaching contracts in the (a) primary and (b) secondary school sector in (i) Leeds and (ii) West Yorkshire in each of the last three years. [154861]

Jim Knight [holding answer 10 September 2007]: The information is not available in the format requested. There are however estimates available which give the number of full-time regular appointments. This information is available at the Government office region level only.

The following table shows the number of teachers aged 50 or over appointed to full-time regular posts in local authority maintained nursery, primary and secondary schools in the Yorkshire and the Humber Government office region and England in each year from 2002-03 to 2004-05, the latest year for which information is available.

Teachers: Mandarin and Urdu

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what level of qualification teachers will need to teach (a) Mandarin and (b) Urdu; [153821]

(2) how much is planned to be spent on training of (a) Mandarin and (b) Urdu teachers in 2007-08; [153822]

(3) what steps are being taken to recruit speakers of Mandarin and Urdu into the teaching profession; [153823]

(4) how many new teachers of (a) Mandarin and (b) Urdu are expected to be recruited over the next five years; [153824]

(5) what new languages other than Mandarin and Urdu will be available in schools under the changes to the national curriculum. [153825]

Jim Knight: The level of qualification required to teach Mandarin and Urdu will be the same as for any other modern language and teachers will normally have a post A level qualification which will be built upon as part of their training. It is not possible to state how many new teachers of a particular language there will be over the next few years or therefore what the cost of training them will be. While the Government sets the Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA) a target for the number of training places for modern languages as a whole, it does not specify how this should be split between individual languages. This depends on the demand from schools and local authorities for teachers of a particular language, which will then be reflected in the number of training places offered by providers.

Following the review of the key stage 3 curriculum (11 to 14-year-olds), schools will be able to offer any major European or world language from September 2008. The new key stage 3 programme of study does not stipulate what languages should be taught, although suggests schools might offer major European or world languages such as Arabic, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Mandarin, Russian, Spanish and Urdu. It is a school level decision which languages they teach.

Teachers: Performance Related Pay

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effects of performance-related pay on (a) teaching quality and (b) pupil attainment; and if he will make a statement. [154602]

Jim Knight: All teachers undergo an annual review of performance and this contributes to any decisions that may be made about their progression on the pay scale or spine range for their grade. From September 2007 revised performance management arrangements will apply to teachers in England. These will ensure that every year those who manage teachers and head teachers agree objectives appropriate to the individual teacher and at the end of each year the teacher's performance will be assessed against those objectives and associated performance criteria. Our aim is that career progression and financial rewards should go to those who are making the biggest contribution to improving pupil attainment, those who are continually developing their own expertise, and those who are helping to develop expertise in others.

Teachers: Qualifications

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what minimum academic qualifications are required of school (a) teaching assistants, (b) technicians, (c) unqualified teachers and (d) other school support staff. [153878]

Jim Knight: The Education (Specified Work and Registration) (England) (Amendment) Regulations 2003 allow for the following to be employed as unqualified teachers and undertake specified work in maintained schools or non-maintained special schools in England:

Trainee teachers undertaking employment-based initial teacher training (ITT) who have a first degree or equivalent or have completed a minimum of two years in higher education;

Until 31 August 2008, those who have successfully undertaken ITT programmes but have not been awarded qualified teacher status (QTS) because they have not passed the skills tests. They will be qualified to first degree or equivalent;

Overseas trained teachers who have successfully completed a recognised programme of ITT in their home country are allowed to teach as unqualified teachers for four years in maintained schools in England, the four-year period starting on the first day on which they first taught in a maintained school in England;

Instructors, when there is no qualified or trainee teacher available, providing they have special qualifications or experience relevant to the post; and

Teaching assistants, technicians and other support staff, for whom there are no minimum academic qualifications to work in a school, providing the head teacher is satisfied the person has the suitability, experience and ability for each post and they work under the direction and supervision of a qualified teacher.

There are no national minimum entry level qualifications for school support staff as it is for head teachers to assess the suitability and experience of individual candidates against specific posts. However, there are a range of qualifications and training routes that teaching assistants, technicians and other support staff can access once employed by a school or local authority. The Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA) have recently completed a review of the National Occupational Standards for teaching assistants and professional standards for Higher Level Teaching Assistants (HLTAs) against which teaching assistants and HLTAs can be assessed. In addition, the TDA published a three-year strategy in 2006, "Developing people to support learning", to create a framework of standards and qualifications to enable schools to develop the potential of all support staff.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the minimum GCSE requirements to be a teacher are; what they were in each year since 1986-87; and if he will make a statement. [154002]

Jim Knight: Teachers in maintained and non-maintained special schools in England are required to have undertaken a programme of initial teacher training leading to the award of qualified teacher status (QTS). In order to enter any initial teacher training programme leading to QTS, whether undergraduate, postgraduate or employment-based, applicants must have at least a grade 'C' in GCSE English and mathematics or have reached the equivalent standard; this has been a requirement since before 1986/87.

This is in addition to the requirement to have a suitable degree qualification.

Additionally, those training to teach in primary schools will also need a GCSE grade 'C' in a science subject or to have reached the equivalent standard.

From 1 September 1998, all new entrants to primary courses who were born on or after 1 September 1979 were required to have attained a standard equivalent to a GCSE grade 'C' in a science subject. All trainees recruited to primary initial teacher training on or after 1 October 2006 must have attained a standard equivalent to a GCSE grade 'C' in a science subject regardless of their date of birth.

Teachers: Recruitment

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government are taking in relation to subject areas where there are teacher shortages; and if he will make a statement. [153946]

Jim Knight: The Government are committed to improving the supply of well-qualified teachers of shortage subjects and for the past few years has made financial incentives available to encourage people to train as teachers of shortage subjects. In mathematics and science we offer a training bursary of £9,000 to students taking a postgraduate certificate of education (PGCE) and, after successful completion of induction, a golden hello of £5,000. In other shortage subjects including modern languages, technology, music and religious education we offer PGCE students a bursary of £9,000 and a golden hello of £2,500.

We fund the Training and Development Agency for Schools to advertise for recruitment to particular shortage subjects, to provide help and advice telephone lines to potential teacher trainees, and to run pre-training enhancement courses in mathematics, physics and chemistry to enable people without a degree in the subject, but with post-A-level knowledge, to retrain as specialist teachers in these subjects. We have extended postgraduate teacher training courses to enable providers to offer significant chemistry, physics and mathematics subject knowledge training. The expansion of Teach First also gives high class graduates the opportunity to teach shortage subjects in challenging schools.

Teachers: Special Educational Needs

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent assessment he has made of the adequacy of the number of teachers with training in severe, profound and multiple learning difficulties. [154607]

Jim Knight: All teachers, as part of their initial teacher training and induction period, must demonstrate that they can differentiate their teaching to meet the needs of pupils, including those with special educational needs (SEN) or disabilities, and know how to seek advice from those with specialist knowledge.

Once qualified, all teachers are expected to discuss their own development needs in performance management reviews, and to address development priorities. This could include strengthening knowledge and understanding of a particular area or aspect of SEN, which could of course include severe, profound and multiple learning difficulties. Such children would normally be provided for in special schools because of the complexity of their needs. It would be for those schools to ensure that staff employed to support them had the necessary knowledge, skills and experience.

All schools receive a school development grant which they are able to use to support improvements in any aspect of teaching and learning. A wide variety of courses are available covering SEN, ranging from awareness-raising through to in-depth studies leading to specific qualifications. It is, however, a matter for individual teachers and their schools to determine their own particular training and development needs. Local authorities may retain a proportion of this grant, under certain conditions, to provide specific training and development of SEN.

The Department's published SEN strategy, 'Removing Barriers to Achievement', recognised the importance of training and committed us to work closely with the Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA) to ensure that initial teacher training and programmes of continuing professional development provide a good grounding in core skills and knowledge of SEN. We have commissioned the TDA to carry forward a range of initiatives designed to improve and strengthen the SEN skills and confidence of trained, newly qualified and established teachers. These initiatives are being implemented and evaluated over the period 2005-08 at a cost of approximately £1.1 million.

Training and Development Agency for Schools: Information Officers

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many press officers are employed by the Training and Development Agency for Schools. [154429]

Jim Knight: There are four press officers working at the Training and Development Agency for Schools.

Vocational Training: Sector Skills Councils

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make a statement on sector skills councils' targets to increase diversity. [154447]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

Sector Skills Councils have the lead role at the national level to identify the skills employers need and to raise investment in skills. Each SSC is required to produce an employer-led Sector Skills Agreement setting out an action plan to increase skill levels, including an analysis of the diversity of each sector SSCs identify the factors behind the gender, age, ethnicity and disability profiles of their industries. This analysis informs SSC strategies, targets and measures to redress imbalances. SSCs also have a more direct role in encouraging employers to consider recruiting non-traditional sources of labour. For example, the Women and Work Sector Pathways initiative is testing new career and recruitment routes, helping women into sectors and occupations where they are currently under-represented.

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how sector skills councils will ensure that young women who want to go into industry can gain entry to apprenticeships and skills training; and if he will make a statement. [154448]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

A quarter of a million apprentices, of whom 47 per cent. are female, are currently in learning. The number of female apprentices has steadily increased as more apprenticeships have been offered, including in more non-traditional sectors. The Learning and Skills Council has taken action to promote equality and diversity in apprenticeships, including equality-proofed promotional materials to attract apprentices from a wide range of backgrounds.

An internal review of apprenticeships is taking place to address the strategic challenges of delivering the entitlement to an apprenticeship place for every suitably qualified young person by 2013 and of reaching 400,000 apprenticeships in England by 2020. The review will also address the equality and diversity challenges for apprenticeships set out in recent reports from the Equal Opportunities Commission, Women at Work Commission and the House of Lords Select Committee on Economic Affairs. The review concludes in November.

Young People: Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to bring forward proposals to levy fines on 17 and 18-year-olds who are not in education or training; and if he will make a statement. [154527]

Jim Knight: In the Green Paper "Raising Expectations: staying in education and training post-16" we proposed that, if a young person continued to refuse to participate in education or training, despite the efforts of providers and the local authority to help and support them onto a programme of learning, they could be issued with a new type of civil Order called an Attendance Order. We proposed two options for ensuring that if Attendance Orders are made they are followed: that criminal sanctions could be pursued if the terms of an Attendance Order are breached, or that civil / administrative sanctions could be pursued. We intend to publish further proposals in the autumn.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether he plans to bring forward proposals to use criminal sanctions against (a) parents and (b) children who do not stay in education in the future to age 18 years; and if he will make a statement. [154538]

Jim Knight: We said in the Green Paper "Raising Expectations", on raising the participation age that we would expect parents to encourage and facilitate their child's participation, and that if there is evidence that a parent of a young person is helping them break the law it should be possible to hold them accountable as well. We are considering what appropriate sanctions would be in order to do this effectively. We proposed that if a young person continued to refuse to participate in education or training, despite the efforts of providers and the local authority to help and support them onto a programme of learning, they could be issued with a new type of civil Order called an Attendance Order. This would be initiated by the local authority. We proposed two options for ensuring that if Attendance Orders are made they are followed: that criminal sanctions or civil/administrative sanctions.

These proposals can be accessed at:

We intend to publish further proposals in the autumn.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether he plans to bring forward proposals to withhold driving licences from people below the age of 18 years who do not participate in education or training; and if he will make a statement. [154541]

Jim Knight: We said in the Green Paper 'Raising Expectations: staying in education and training post-16' that some other countries have withheld driving licenses from young people not participating in education or training and that we would explore whether they may be similar incentives that could work in this country. I will set out more detailed plans in relation to raising the participation age later in the autumn.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what sanctions he plans for children over the age of 16 who fail to attend school or take up training should the education leaving age be raised to 18; and if he will make a statement. [154759]

Jim Knight: In the Green Paper "Raising Expectations: staying in education and training /post-16" we proposed that, if a young person continued to refuse to participate in education or training, despite the efforts of providers and the local authority to help and support them onto a programme of learning, they could be issued with a new type of civil Order called an Attendance Order. The process of issuing an Attendance Order would be initiated by the local authority. We proposed two options for ensuring that if Attendance Orders are made they are followed: that criminal sanctions could be pursued if the terms of an Attendance Order are breached, or that civil/administrative sanctions could be pursued. These proposals can be accessed at:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/consultations/downloadableDocs/6965-DfES-Raising%20Expectations%20Green%20Paper.pdf

We intend to publish further proposals in the autumn.

Young People: Public Transport

Mr. Simon: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what means local authorities have used to finance public transport discount schemes for those aged 18 years and under; and at what cost. [153758]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I have been asked to reply.

This information is not centrally held as such schemes are offered entirely at an authority's discretion based on their assessment of local need and their overall financial priorities.

Young People: Vocational Guidance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much was spent on careers advice for those under 19 years of age in each of the last 10 years. [153839]

Jim Knight: In April 2001, responsibility for providing careers advice passed from the Careers Service to the Connexions Service. Connexions provides services to 13 to 19-year-olds and to people with learning difficulties and/or disabilities up to the age of 24. The following table shows the amount of central Government funding allocated to the Connexions Service and the Careers Service in each of the last 10 years. Information on the amount spent on careers advice is not collected centrally. However, an independent study undertaken in 2006 concluded that, on average, around 42 per cent. of a Connexions Partnership's expenditure was on information, advice and guidance.

Young People: Vocational Training

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department plans to take to ensure that all 16 to 19-year-olds in employment have access to training; and if he will make a statement. [153971]

Jim Knight: The Department has a number of initiatives already in place to ensure that 16 to 19-year-olds in employment have access to training.

Government-funded apprenticeships offer the opportunity for young people to earn as they learn. There are over 200 apprenticeships designed by employers, available to 16 to 19-year-olds in 80 different sectors with 130,000 employers taking part. These apprenticeships give employees the opportunity to learn on the job and also through off the job training.

Train to Gain gives employers the opportunity to access publicly-funded support to train their low skilled workers. Whilst apprenticeships are the most appropriate route for 16 to 19-year-olds in employment, 19-year-olds are also eligible for funding through Train to Gain. 16 and 17-year-olds who are in employment, and who have not yet attained NVQ level 2 or equivalent, are entitled to reasonable paid time off during normal working hours to study or train for a qualification which will improve their future employment prospects.

The Department is also piloting Learning Agreements to help 16 and 17-year-olds in employment get back into education and training. Young people will agree personal contracts to return to education or vocational training in return for financial support.

From 2013, when all young people are required to continue in education or training until the age of 18, we are proposing that where employers are employing a 16 or 17-year-old for more than 20 hours a week and are not providing or arranging accredited training for them, the employer will be required to release the young person from work for a day a week to attend training elsewhere. Where employers want to offer training themselves, we will encourage and support them to do so. We will work with employers to seek flexible and low burden ways for them to get existing good quality training accredited.

Engagement in learning, and educational attainment, are critical if young people are to achieve good outcomes, and fulfil their potential. Our 14 to 19 reforms will ensure that all young people have the opportunity to choose a learning pathway which suits them and which can be the basis for progression to further learning, higher education and employment. This is essential if our young people are to have the skills they need to compete in our increasingly global economy.

And our initiatives are having an effect. The number of 16 to 18-year-olds participating in education and training increased to 1.55 million at the end of 2006, the highest number ever. And, the percentage of 19-year-olds achieving at least level 2 was 71.4 in 2006. This is an increase of 5.1 percentage points since 2004.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMISSION

National Audit Office: Information Officers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chairman of the Public Accounts Commission how many press officers are employed by the National Audit Office. [154218]

Mr. Alan Williams: The National Audit Office employs one head of press office and three press officers.

JUSTICE

House of Lords: Reform

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent discussions he has had with Cabinet colleagues on proposals for legislative reform of the House of Lords. [156074]

Mr. Straw: I outlined the Government plans on the immediate next steps on House of Lords reform in my statement on 19 July 2007, Official Report, column 449. I hope to be able to publish a further White Paper around the turn of the year, with the aim of producing draft clauses that would form elements of the final draft Bill. My intention through the work of the cross-party working group on Lords reform is to formulate a comprehensive reform package that we would put to the electorate as a manifesto commitment at the next general election. All proposals have been and will continue to be the subject to clearance with Cabinet colleagues in the normal way.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Electoral Commission: Information Officers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission how many press officers are employed by the Electoral Commission. [154162]

Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it employs three media relations officers and a media relations manager.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

School Visits

Ian Lucas: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if the Commission will consider making funding available for school visits to the Houses of Parliament. [156076]

Nick Harvey: In its report on Improving Facilities for Educational Visitors to Parliament in April this year the Administration Committee recommended that consideration should be given to subsidising school visits to Westminster from more remote constituencies. The Commission is interested in this possibility and the Administration Committee has agreed to the introduction of a pilot scheme to assess the merits of alternative approaches. The pilot is planned to take place early in the next financial year.

Members: Proof of Identity

John Battle: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many hon. Members' staff passes were valid on the dates of 1 July (a) 1987, (b) 1997 and (c) 2007. [152165]

Nick Harvey: The earliest information on Members' staff passes is from 1998 and then each year from 2002 to 2007. The numbers show a 16 per cent. increase since 1998 and a 10 per cent. increase since 2002.

Refreshment Department: Consultants

Janet Anderson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what the cost will be to the House of Commons Refreshment Department of the research being undertaken by the Russell Partnership. [153627]

Nick Harvey: The Russell Partnership is currently undertaking two research projects for the House of Commons Refreshment Department:

an operational and financial benchmarking review of catering and retail services; and, customer research to provide qualitative input for the benchmarking review.

Further to my reply to the hon. Member for Hammersmith and Fulham (Mr. Hands) on 26 June 2007, Official Report, column 658W, the tendered price to interview a sample of around 35 MPs and to conduct a survey among staff of the House and Members' staff was £6,950. The cost of the benchmarking review will be up to £26,250.

Both contracts were awarded following competitive tendering exercises under the House of Commons consultancy framework agreement. The research is being carried out in response to recommendations made by the Administration Committee in their report on Refreshment Department Services (HC 733) published on 14 February 2006.

Speaker: Legal Opinion

Mr. Burns: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if he will make a statement on the matter of legal advice recently given to the Speaker and its cost. [156789]

Nick Harvey: During July and August, the House administration endorsed the Speaker's use of the firm Carter Ruck to counteract a series of articles that were published in the media which questioned the impartiality of the Speaker in his official role. The cost of this advice was £18,696.06.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Burma: United Nations

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what information his Department has about reports that UN Development Programme (UNDP) project staff in Burma have had to pay up to two months salary to UNDP national staff to retain their jobs. [155617]

Mr. Malik: DFID has raised this matter with the UN Development Programme (UNDP). UNDP has carried out an investigation which failed to reveal any evidence to support that allegation. Subsequently, UNDP invited all its staff in Burma to complete a detailed confidential questionnaire on transparency, accountability and conflict of interest issues. UNDP is currently analysing the responses.

UNDP take incidents and allegations of misconduct extremely seriously, and continue to seek ways to ensure that transparency and accountability are a priority of their programme in Burma. UNDP has reviewed the operational procedures of their programmes and have begun to put in place additional safeguards to ensure the efficient, effective and appropriate use of resources. An internal oversight unit is now being established and a more robust grievance mechanism set up to deal with issues raised by staff, beneficiaries, various other stakeholders and the general public. A code of conduct training for all UN staff in Burma is due to begin soon, focusing on, among other things, transparency, accountability, conflict of interest, abuse of authority and harassment.

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's projected spending is on advertising and promotional campaigns for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, broken down by cost relating to (i) television, (ii) radio and (iii) print media. [155890]

Mr. Malik: For the period 2007-08:

(i) DFID has not to date advertised or run promotional campaigns on television, and has no current plans to do so.

(ii) DFID has not to date advertised or run promotional campaigns on radio, and has no current plans to do so.

(iii) DFID has not to date run any promotional campaigns in print media, and has no current plans to do so. DFID's advertising spend is for recruitment and procurement purposes, and is estimated at £260,000.

A projected figure for the overall period cannot be supplied as budgets for promotional activities and advertising in 2008-09 have yet to be put in place, and it is yet to be determined what promotional activity or advertising will take place.

India

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether he classes India as a low-income country or a middle-income country; and if he will make a statement. [155727]

Mr. Malik: DFID currently classes India as a low-income country. This is in line with the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) classification, recognised and used by the international donor community.

The OECD bases its classification on the World Bank's World Development Indicators report. This currently states that India is a low-income economy because its Gross National Income (GNI) per capita was calculated as $730 in 2005, well under the $875 per capita or more that would mean graduation to middle-income country status.

India and China: Overseas Aid

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's long-term expenditure strategy is for (a) India and (b) China; and if he will make a statement. [155726]

Mr. Malik: DFID's bilateral expenditure in India is £266 million for 2007-08.

DFID's bilateral expenditure in China is £33.4 million for 2007-08.

For future years we are awaiting the outcome of the Comprehensive Spending Review which will determine our long-term expenditure in both countries. However, we expect to terminate our bilateral programme in China by the end of 2011.

International Assistance

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the main proposed budget headings are for the £20 million funding announced on 5 April for activities in emergency and post-crisis countries over the next five years; and how much of this funding will be provided for the first global roster for education in emergencies. [155635]

Mr. Malik: The programme of work to be covered by the £20 million announced on 5 April is currently being discussed by DFID and UNICEF. It has not yet been finalised.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department plans to take to implement the UK's contribution to the new global roster for emergency humanitarian education services. [156256]

Mr. Malik: UNICEF and Save the Children Alliance (SCA) share responsibility for the provision of education in emergencies, and DFID is closely following the progress that they are making in establishing a global roster of education experts to be deployed in emergencies. DFID has provided UNICEF with £4 million per year from 2006 to 2009 to support their role in responding to emergencies, which includes building education response capacity.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when the first global roster for emergency humanitarian education services announced on 5 April will be operational. [156257]

Mr. Malik: UNICEF and Save the Children Alliance (SCA), who share responsibility for education provision in emergencies, are currently working on establishing the global roster of education experts. It is too soon to say when this roster will be operational. DFID is closely monitoring progress.

Iraq: Overseas Aid

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what sectoral priorities the Government is supporting through aid in Iraq. [156354]

Mr. Malik: Iraq is a wealthy country, with Government revenues expected to be around $33 billion this year. Our priority is helping the Iraqi Government to unlock the potential of its human and financial resources to enable growth and deliver better public services to its own people. We also aim to internationalise the aid effort by leveraging a more effective role for key players such as the World Bank and IMF and we support the most vulnerable Iraqis through contributions to humanitarian agencies.

Since March 2003, the UK Government have provided £744 million for these reconstruction and development priorities in Iraq. This includes £90 million for infrastructure projects and £125 million for humanitarian agencies. Current programmes include: an Economic Reform Programme advising the Iraqi Government on macro-economic, fiscal and public financial management issues; our Support of Centre of Government programme to help build key Government institutions of central Government including the Prime Minister's office; and work through the Provincial Reconstruction Team in Basra to promote public and private investment. We are also supporting the establishment of institutions including the Basra Investment Promotion Agency and Basra Development Fund designed to promote private sector development and credit for small and medium enterprises. This work is already serving as a model for assistance elsewhere in Iraq.

Maldives: Overseas Aid

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid the Government has given to help develop the Maldives in each year since 1997. [156568]

Mr. Malik: Details of the UK's bilateral assistance and imputed multilateral assistance to the Maldives since 1997 are laid out in the following tables.

Table 1: UK total bilateral gross public expenditure on development in the Maldives 1997-98 to 2006-07

Peru: Overseas Aid

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what financial and other commitments the Government has made following the earthquake in southern Peru; and what steps he is taking to ensure that aid is received by those in need. [156296]

Mr. Malik: DFID contributed £750,000 to the Peru earthquake response to help provide sanitation and washing facilities for those affected; to assist in planning for longer-term rebuilding; and to ensure that buildings in the area are better able to withstand earthquakes. We also paid for the British leader of the UN's disaster assessment and coordination team. Our assessment of the people affected by the earthquake showed that funding in this way was the best way for DFID to support those most in need. We will monitor progress.

The United Nations Central Emergency Response Fund (UN CERF) has allocated US $9.6 million. The United Kingdom is the largest donor to the UN CERF, contributing 25 per cent. of its budget this year based on current calculations (the UK has provided $83.7 million of $329 million so far contributed).

The European Community Humanitarian Office (ECHO) provided €8 million. DFID's share via ECHO was approximately £970,000—17.4 per cent.

Philippines: Overseas Aid

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much aid the UK Government gave to the Government of the Philippines in the last year for which figures are available. [155791]

Mr. Malik: In 2006-07 the UK gave £143,000 in bilateral aid to the Government of the Philippines.

South East Asia: Overseas Aid

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid has been given to help those affected by the recent flooding in South East Asia. [156072]

Mr. Malik: DFID responded to the floods in South Asia and the Democratic People's Republic of Korea. We did not receive requests for assistance from South East Asian states.

In the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, DFID contributed £650,000

£500,000 through WFP to provide food, clean water and safeguard people against water borne diseases.

£149,422 to Save the Children for essential health care support.

We have also offered support to the UN if required to assist with co-ordinating the relief effort.

In South Asia DFID contributed over £5 million to help the worst affected countries.

In Bangladesh we contributed £2.1 million through the Chars Livelihood Programme, United Nations Development Programme and the International Centre for Diarrhoeal Disease Research, Bangladesh (ICDDR,B) to provide food, water, emergency shelter and medicines to help more than 1 million people in the worst-affected districts.

In Pakistan, we contributed £2.2 million through the Pakistani Rural Support Programme Network, the United Nations, the International Federation of the Red Cross (IFRC) and international non-governmental organisations (INGOs) providing multi-sectoral immediate relief as well as livelihoods assistance.

In India, DFID gave Save the Children £750,000 to provide general relief items, healthcare and livelihood support, children's education and protection to 13,341 families (including 31,660 children).

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Children's Centres: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of children's centres in targeting the most disadvantaged children and families; and if he will make a statement; [153832]

(2) what steps his Department is taking to ensure children's centres are father friendly; and if he will make a statement; [153833]

(3) what assessment he has made of children's centres' effectiveness in working with community organisations. [153834]

Beverley Hughes: We now have over 1,400 children's centres up and running providing services to, predominantly, the most disadvantaged communities. The National Evaluation of Sure Start (NESS) findings on the early impact of 150 of the first Sure Start Local Programmes (SSLPs) (November 2005) identified that of those families in the most disadvantaged areas served by SSLPs, 86 per cent. of the parents in the sample were benefiting from Sure Start. However, this evaluation also found that some of the most socially excluded groups could not be shown to be benefiting from living in a SSLP area. Although the NESS methodology could not identify whether any of the children in the sample had actually attended a Sure Start centre or not, we have taken a number of steps to ensure that the most excluded partners benefit.

In November 2005 the Department issued 'Practice Guidance' to encourage greater use of outreach and home-visiting services by children's centres to reach the most disadvantaged families, which we then updated in November 2006.

To encourage better monitoring and a more systematic approach we issued Planning and Performance Management Guidance in November 2006 which contains a framework for centres to assess their progress in reaching excluded groups in their area.

We also commissioned Together for Children (TfC) to produce a toolkit, issued in December 2006, to complement our Practice Guidance and support centres in gathering information about their area and recording how they engage with excluded groups.

In August, we announced significant additional funds for children's centres for 2008-11 including funding to enable local authorities to add two outreach workers to centres serving the most disadvantaged communities, with a particular emphasis on reaching out to and supporting more fathers.

Research evidence shows that the impact a father's early involvement has on their child is long-lasting. Our revised Practice Guidance therefore emphasises the crucial role fathers have to play in giving their children the best start in life. It provides advice about how children's centres can tailor their services to meet the needs of fathers, including non-resident parents, how staff should be encouraged to engage proactively with fathers and specific areas where fathers may require additional support. The Planning and Performance Management guidance recommends that children's centres assess how well they engage with fathers and the TfC toolkit includes advice on working with fathers.

We have not made an assessment of how well children's centres work with organisations from the community sector. However, an early survey of Phase 1 children's centres showed that 82 per cent. of children's centres had contracts with the voluntary sector for services. The Practice Guidance makes clear that local authorities must work with those organisations that have a track record of understanding local needs and delivering services that improve children's outcomes. In addition, we require local authorities to consult and consider using all private, voluntary and community sector organisations in the area when planning and developing children's centres services. In 2008, local authorities must review all centres developed in 2003-06 to ensure that maximum use has been made of good quality local private, voluntary and community sector suppliers and repeat this exercise every two years. We expect local authorities to keep evidence that they have carried out the required reviews.

Children's Commissioner for England: Information Officers

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many press officers are employed by the Children's Commissioner for England. [154553]

Beverley Hughes: This is a matter for the Children's Commissioner for England. Rob Williams, the chief executive of the Office of the Children's Commissioner, has written to the hon. Member with this information and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Rob Williams, dated 5 October 2007:

I am writing to you in response to the parliamentary question that you recently tabled 154553. To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, how many press officers are employed by the Children's Commissioner.

11 MILLION is a national organisation led by the Children's Commissioner for England, Professor Sir Albert Aynsley-Green. Our mission is to use our powers and independence to ensure that the views of children and young people are routinely asked for, listened to and that outcomes for children improve over time. We aim to do this in partnership with others, by bringing children and young people into the heart of the decision-making process to increase understanding of their best interests.

Our two long-term goals are that children and young people see significant improvements in their wellbeing and can freely enjoy their rights under the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC), and that children and young people are more highly valued by adult society.

In the financial year 2007/08, 11 MILLION has the equivalent of 2.5 staff members spread across two full-time press officers and other communications staff.

A copy of this reply will be placed in the house library.

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his Department's projected spending is on advertising and promotional campaigns for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, broken down by cost relating to (i) television, (ii) radio and (iii) print media. [155885]

Kevin Brennan: The Department's advertising spend in 2007-08 is as follows:

£ million

	Spend to date	Projected spend
Television	1.519	1.546
Radio	0.944	1.432
Print	0.180	0.470

Departmental spend on all promotional campaigns is not held centrally. This is funded from policy programmes and from within the central Advertising and Publicity (A and P) budget.

The A and P budget for 2007-2008 is £13.5 million. In addition to funding promotional campaigns, this covers a wide variety of publicity activities (e.g. the Children's Plan consultation, magazines for teachers and governors and attendance at events like The Education Show), as well as marketing infrastructure support (e.g. paying for the Department's mailing house).

It is not possible to provide figures for 2008-09. Budgets for individual campaigns will not be agreed until communications priorities and objectives for 2008-09 have been finalised and planning (informed by evaluation of 2007-08 activity) has been completed.

Health Education: Sex

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what representations he has received from the Youth Parliament on sex and relationships education in schools; and if he will make a statement. [152369]

Beverley Hughes: The Minister of State for Schools and Learners attended the launch on 4 July of the UK Youth Parliament's report "Sex and Relationships Education - Are You Getting It?"

He commended the members of the Youth Parliament for their efforts in producing the report and said that the Department would consider it in more detail.

Play: Facilities

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what advice he has issued to local authorities on the commercial sponsorship of children's play facilities. [154788]

Kevin Brennan: We recognise fully the benefits of play for children and we continue to take steps to support and promote the provision of opportunities for play. We have not issued guidance on the commercial sponsorship of children's play facilities: funding for such facilities is a matter for each local authority to determine.

Pupils: Foreigners

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of (a) primary and (b) secondary school children in England are foreign nationals. [156311]

Beverley Hughes: The Department does not hold the requested information as schools are not required to separately identify pupils from overseas.

Pupils: Speech Therapy

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the supply of speech therapists for pupils in schools; [154760]

(2) what the average waiting time was for a speech therapy assessment in each English local education authority in the last period for which figures are available. [150803]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I have been asked to reply.

No assessment has been made centrally. It is for primary care trusts in partnership with local stakeholders to determine how best to use their funds to meet national and local priorities for improving health, outlined in the national service frameworks, and to commission services accordingly. This process provides the means for addressing local needs within the health community, including the provision of speech and language therapy (SLT).

A major review into the provision of services for children and young people with speech, language and communications needs was announced on 11 September by my right hon. Friends the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families and the Secretary of State for Health. The review will report by summer 2008 and will build on the investment and improvements to SLT and resources in the last 10 years.

Information about waiting times for SLT provided by the national health service (NHS) are not collected centrally. The Department of Health collects waiting times information by consultant led specialties. SLT is not a consultant led speciality. Our objective is to balance the need for data against the burden that data collection places on the NHS.

Respect Budget: Bournemouth

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding has been provided to Bournemouth through the Respect budget; and for what purposes. [156190]

Kevin Brennan: The total Respect grant allocated to Bournemouth between 2006-08 is £387,307.

In 2006-07 the Respect Task Force provided Bournemouth borough council with a total grant of £48,860.

This funding allocation contributed to Bournemouth council's wider effort to tackle antisocial behaviour and contributed towards the initial set up costs of its Family Intervention Project.

In 2007-08 the Respect Task Force has made available a total Respect grant allocation of £338,447. This represents:

£50,000 for a parenting expert, based in or linked to the antisocial behaviour team, to deliver additional parenting support to families. This funding was announced on 21 November 2006 and is available in 77 areas across England.

£125,000 to improve Bournemouth's parenting services for families whose children are at risk of or involved in antisocial behaviour. The Respect Task Force announced this funding on 22 January 2007 as part of a wider announcement highlighting the commitment of 40 areas to become Respect areas, of which Bournemouth were announced as one. All Respect areas were invited to apply for £125,000.

£128,447 allocated for the set-up and operation of its Family Intervention Project, one of 53 projects being established across the country.

£35,000 Respect grant contribution has been allocated to Bournemouth's Local Area Agreement pot which can be used flexibly to deliver the Respect programme.

In addition to direct Respect grants, Bournemouth can flexibly use other funds, pooled through Local Area Agreements to tackle antisocial behaviour and implement the Respect programme.

Young People: Expenditure

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the planned extra expenditure on services aimed at young people will be ring-fenced; and if he will make a statement. [155733]

Beverley Hughes: Aiming High for Young People: A Ten Year Strategy for Positive Activities was launched on 26 July 2007. The strategy announced the DCSF comprehensive spending review (CSR) settlement in relation to services for young people, which provides an additional £184 million alongside continuing funding of £495 million for positive activities over the three year period 2008-09 to 2010-11.

A relatively large proportion (around two thirds) of this proposed £679 million expenditure will be ring-fenced for specific purposes including for: centrally managed schemes; participatory budgeting by young people themselves; and initiatives within the third sector. The remainder of the monies will be pooled within the new area based grants and negotiated via local area agreements.

Youth Clubs: Finance

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many youth clubs are funded by his Department. [154790]

Beverley Hughes: Youth centres are delivered locally by local authorities through their youth provision and national and local voluntary youth organisations. Information is not held centrally on the number of youth centres at local, regional or national level.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much has been spent on youth clubs by his Department in the last 12 months. [154792]

Beverley Hughes: Youth centres are delivered locally by local authorities through their youth provision and national and local voluntary youth organisations. Information is not held centrally on how much has been spent on youth centres at local, regional or national level.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Birds: Conservation

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will hold discussions with the Royal Society for Protection of Birds on increasing the number of marine wildlife reserves. [155945]

Jonathan Shaw: As I indicated in a letter of 30 September 2007 to the Royal Society for Protection of Birds' (RSPB) chief executive, I would welcome an opportunity to hold discussions with the RSPB. These discussions could include consideration of marine wildlife reserves and the possibility of increasing their number.

Conservation: Solent

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the adequacy of measures to protect the marine environment of the western Solent; whether he has plans to make legislative provision for those measures in a Marine Bill; and if he will make a statement. [156382]

Jonathan Shaw: Marine waters in England and Wales are assessed regularly by DEFRA and the Environment Agency. The most recent assessment of the state of the UK seas, "Charting Progress—an Integrated Assessment of the State of the UK Seas" (2005), contains a regional assessment of the Eastern English Channel which includes the Western Solent. Measures in place to protect the marine environment in the western Solent include 100 management plans and initiatives, covering all or part of the Solent, that address issues such as nature conservation, coastal defence and emergency planning.

The Marine Bill will enable us to take a significant step forward in the way we plan for and manage activities in the marine area. It will provide us with the tools to deliver better protection for marine life, and integrated planning and management of our seas, coasts and estuaries. DEFRA officials are working closely with organisations in the western Solent to ensure that the Marine Bill proposals are developed in a way that can be beneficial for that, and other, local areas.

Dredging

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the process of applying for and being granted a licence to dredge off the coast of England; and if he will make a statement; [156546]

(2) how many licences were (a) granted and (b) refused for dredging off the coast of (i) England and (ii) the East Riding of Yorkshire in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement; [156547]

(3) how much was received for dredging licences in respect of sites off the coast of (a) England and (b) the East Riding of Yorkshire in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [156549]

Jonathan Shaw: The hon. Member's questions appear to concern the dredging of marine minerals (the extraction of sand and gravel from the seabed to be landed for use in construction or beach maintenance) rather than dredging more generally. I will therefore confine my answer to this area.

The Crown Estate, as landowner up to 12 miles offshore and the owner of the rights to non-energy minerals within the UK continental shelf and beyond, issues licences to dredge for marine minerals. Thirteen licences were issued in the last 10 years. The numbers issued in each year are set out in Table 1. No licences were issued for dredging off the coast of the East Riding of Yorkshire in this period and no marine minerals dredging is currently licensed there. The closest that any such dredging currently takes place to this coast is to the south of Spurn Head and some 10 kilometres off the coast of Lincolnshire which the Crown Estate refers to as the Humber region for administrative purposes. Two licences were issued in this area, in 2000.

No licences were refused during this period. Licence proposals that were likely to be refused were either abandoned by the prospective applicant before submission as applications, or withdrawn before any formal decision was made.

The Crown Estate receives royalties from operators for every tonne of aggregate that is dredged from the seabed that it either owns or controls. Table 2 shows the royalties it has received from English dredging operations over the past 10 years. Net income received by the Crown Estate is paid into the consolidated fund. As there is no aggregate dredging there, no royalties have been received from dredging off the coast of the East Riding of Yorkshire.

The Crown Estate only issues a licence when it has received the consent of central Government to the proposal. In the period in question, Government consent was delivered through the Government View system.

Until 1 April this year, the Department for Communities and Local Government was responsible for keeping the effectiveness of the process for giving Government's consent under review. Since then DEFRA has been responsible.

As a result of ongoing assessment and regular dialogue with stakeholders, the Government concluded that the existing process needed updating to make the system more transparent and efficient, and to reflect relevant European legislation. A new system to do this was introduced by the Environmental Impact Assessment and Natural Habitats (Extraction of Minerals by Marine Dredging) (England and Northern Ireland) Regulations 2007 which came into force on 1 May this year.

The Government are committed to ensuring that decisions on applications are made on the basis of the best possible scientific evidence. In recent years much research has been carried out on understanding coastal processes and the potential impacts of aggregate dredging. DEFRA has recently published a report on this work, funded by the Aggregate Levy Sustainability Fund (which was set up by DEFRA), entitled 'Marine Aggregate Dredging: Helping to Determine Good Practice', published 9 July 2007. This work supports the Government's increasingly sophisticated management of aggregate extraction integrated with the protection of resources of conservation and heritage significance. We are not aware of any scientific evidence to indicate that marine minerals dredging, as controlled by the Government since 1968, has had any effect on the coast or significantly affected the marine environment. The Government are satisfied that the regulation of marine minerals dredging is both effective and adequate.

Farms: Mushrooms

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what action is being taken under the latest statutory guidelines to control emissions from mushroom farms. [156539]

Mr. Woolas: Statutory guidance note PG6/30(06) specified various improvements to mushroom substrate manufacturing installations for completion in most cases before 1 March 2007. Local authorities are required to have regard to such guidance, but must ultimately decide on pollution control standards in each individual case, taking account of site-specific factors.

I understand that the TunnelTech mushroom composting plant regulated by Bassetlaw district council has been served with an enforcement notice requiring improvements to be made by 30 June 2008 and that the improvements go beyond those specified in the guidance.

Fisheries: Closures

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which fisheries have closed in each month during 2007; and if he will make a statement. [155905]

Jonathan Shaw: UK Fisheries Administrations have closed, in-year, a total of six fisheries to all UK registered vessels. These are set out in the table as follows:

Fishery	Month of closure
North Sea Sandeels	May
Herring VII	July
Deep Sea tusk V, VI, VII	July
West of Scotland herring	September
Irish Sea haddock	September
Bluefin tuna Atlantic Ocean, east of 45, and Mediterranean	October

These closures are kept under review and, if quota becomes available from outside the UK, it is possible that they may be re-opened. Further fishery closures at a UK-level will be undertaken if the UK quota for particular stocks is taken in full.

Fisheries: Quotas

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has for quota swaps to increase fishing opportunities for the under-10 metre fleet; and if he will make a statement. [155736]

Jonathan Shaw: The Marine and Fisheries Agency (MFA) is exploring all options for acquiring additional fishing opportunities for 10 metre and under vessels, including through quota swaps. This work has been under way throughout 2007 and will continue, particularly for those stocks for which the 10 metre and under vessels have the greatest need. The opportunity to undertake such swaps is limited as those stocks are, in may cases, those under most pressure from other sectors of the UK industry and the fishing industry in other EU member states. A number of swap options are currently being considered. However, it is not possible to provide details at this time as to do so might prejudice the ability of the MFA to bring the negotiations to successful conclusions.

Flood Control

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of flood defences and structures owned and maintained by the Environment Agency were in a good or better condition in April 2007. [153850]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency does not own all of the flood defence assets that it maintains for the benefit of the general public.

The proportion (by length) of flood defences such as raised walls and embankments, maintained by the Environment Agency that were in good or better condition in April 2007 was 55 per cent., with a further 40 per cent. in fair condition.

The proportion (by number) of flood defence structures such as sluices and outfalls, maintained by the Environment Agency that were in good or better condition in April 2007 was 69 per cent., with a further 26 per cent. in fair condition.

These assessments are based on visual inspections.

Flood Control: Climate Change

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to re-examine the planned levels of spending on the flood protection and water drainage infrastructure to meet the effects of climate change. [154574]

Mr. Woolas: Funding for flood and coastal erosion risk management will increase from the current £600 million a year to £800 million a year by 2010-11. This reflects the evidence prepared for the comprehensive spending review and is consistent with the rate of increase suggested by the Foresight Future Flooding study, which took a long-term view of national flooding and coastal erosion risks to 2100.

Floods: Broadcasting Reception

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what contingencies are in place for the rapid relaying of flood warnings by the Environment Agency in the event of the sustained breakdown of the BBC digital signal on radio and television broadcasts; and if he will make a statement. [154190]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency uses a range of methods for communicating flood warnings, which include automated telephone warnings. Radio and television broadcasts are also used and in the event of the sustained breakdown of these, the Environment Agency will use loudhailers (speakers mounted on Environment Agency vehicles) that can broadcast a pre-recorded warning message in the affected areas.

In the event of severe flooding, gold command operations would be utilised.

Housing: Floods

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many properties will be protected each year by the recently announced additional proposed expenditure for flood defences. [154113]

Mr. Woolas: DEFRA introduced new outcome measures for flood and coastal erosion risk management and will be setting targets using them shortly. This will include the number of properties moving between probability bands. In setting targets, we will consider the funding levels we are able to set following the announcement of the Department's formal comprehensive spending review settlement. It is not yet known how many extra properties will be protected.

Institute for Animal Health: Waste Disposal

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) when the last inspection of the effluent pipes at Pirbright took place; and if he will list the dates of the effluent pipe inspections at Pirbright since 2001; [155477]

(2) when Ministers were first informed that the effluent pipes at the Pirbright Institute for Animal Health were deficient and likely to leak effluent; [155531]

(3) when Ministers were first informed of requests to replace or renew the effluent pipes at Pirbright. [155544]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The drainage systems of laboratories licensed by the Department to handle specified animal pathogens under the Specified Animal Pathogens Order (SAPO) 1998 are not routinely inspected. The responsibility for the integrity of the buildings and infrastructure rests with the licensee and the owners of the site. No specific concerns that would have suggested that the integrity of the effluent pipe system at Pirbright was at risk, were raised with DEFRA as licensor and regulator. DEFRA was not asked by the Institute for Animal Health (IAH) for money to replace or renew the drainage system because of concerns about the risk of effluent leakage. Any issues relating to funding of the effluent drainage system, whether remedial or replacement, would be a matter for the IAH and Merial (as the occupants of the Pirbright site), the Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council (BBSRC) (which owns the land and buildings on the Pirbright site) and the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) (as the IAH's and BBSRC's sponsoring Department).

Until the investigation by the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) into potential biosecurity breaches at Pirbright was under way, there was no indication that there was a risk of effluent escaping from the drainage system; although there had been some concerns over the possibility of water leaking into the drains via the manhole covers, that was brought to DEFRA's attention. However, it had been recognised that the system was old. The HSE informed DEFRA Ministers, on 17 August, that leaks could have occurred from the system. On the same day, DEFRA contacted the IAH, which that afternoon put into effect a plan controlling access and strengthening biosecurity measures for movement of people and vehicles. The report from the HSE investigation contains a detailed inspection of the drainage system, and is available from the DEFRA website and the Libraries of the House.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice Ministers received about the implications for bio security of the decision not to fund the repair of deficient pipework at the Pirbright Institute for Animal Health site. [155532]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 17 September 2007]: DEFRA is the licensor and regulator of the Institute for Animal Health (IAH) under the Specified Animal Pathogens Order (SAPO) 1998. Prior to the Health and Safety Executive's advice in August 2007, neither the IAH, the Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council (BBSRC), as owners of the site, nor anyone else raised concerns with DEFRA about possible biosecurity issues relating to the effluent drainage system.

Any issues relating to funding of the effluent drainage system, whether remedial or replacement, would be a matter for the IAH and Merial (as the occupants of the Pirbright site), BBSRC (as the IAH's funding body) and the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) (as the IAH's and BBSRC's sponsoring Department). In its role as licensor and regulator, DEFRA was consulted about the requirements and specifications of a replacement effluent drainage system to meet extra capacity demand and to address concerns about water getting into the drains via the manhole covers, and was kept informed of progress in relation to instigation of the work. At no stage was any indication given to DEFRA, that there might be possible implications for biosecurity resulting from delays in agreeing funding between the parties concerned.

Utilities: Meters

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect of differences in recent trends in charges by energy companies to customers with prepayment meters compared to those paying by direct debit on the achievement of fuel poverty targets. [153359]

Mr. McFadden: I have been asked to reply.

The amount a customer is paying for their energy is one of the key determinants of whether such a household might be in fuel poverty, and we acknowledged in the Energy White Paper that the gap between direct debit and other payment methods has been increasing. I am encouraged by the work of Ofgem to highlight the savings prepayment customers can make by switching to a cheaper supplier. However, use of prepayment meters is not wholly synonymous with fuel poverty, and the majority of fuel poor customers pay for their gas and electricity by direct debit or standard credit. We will publish shortly our annual Fuel Poverty Progress Report which will include the latest data and projections on fuel poverty levels and a full examination of the factors driving the levels of fuel poverty, including energy market issues.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Armed Conflict

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what discussions officials in his Office have held with officials from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office regarding supporting of conflict resolution programmes overseas. [155829]

Mr. Woodward: The Government are always ready to share their experience of the Northern Ireland peace process where this might be of assistance to others. My officials have from time to time discussed with the FCO where such assistance might be offered, although no central record is kept of this.

I can, however, confirm a number of recent instances of engagement by former NIO Ministers and officials in supporting conflict resolution. One of my predecessors as Secretary of State, my right hon. Friend the Member for Torfaen (Mr. Murphy), accompanied by a senior official in the Northern Ireland Office, visited Sri Lanka from 14-16 November 2006. One of my officials visited Tanzania from 5-8 July 2007 to share lessons from the Northern Ireland peace process which might help efforts to address political polarisation in Zanzibar. An NIO official also met with representatives of the Provisional Institutions of Self-Government of Kosovo at a private conference in New York in April 2007 organised by the Rockefeller Brothers Fund. In each case these engagements were discussed in advance with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Drugs

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people in Northern Ireland who were released from prison after serving a sentence for drug-related offences subsequently re-offended in each of the last five years. [154010]

Paul Goggins: Re-offending data are not available and reconviction data are only available for those released from prison in 2001, 2002 and 2003.

The following table gives the number of offenders that were released from prison for drug-related offences who were subsequently reconvicted for any offence within a two year period. Data are collated on the principal offence rule; thus only the most serious offence with which an offender is charged is included.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average sentence handed down by the courts in Northern Ireland for (a) possession of and (b) dealing in drugs was in each of the last five years. [154012]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is contained in the following tables.

Tables 1 and 2 give the number of disposals and the average sentence length for each disposal type for unlawful possession of drugs and unlawful dealing in drugs respectively.

Data cover the calendar years 2001 to 2005, the latest available years, and are collated on the principal offence rule; so only the most serious offence with which an offender is charged is included.

Northern Ireland Police Authority; Information Officers

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many press officers are employed by the Northern Ireland Police. [154720]

Paul Goggins: The PSNI currently employ 16 personnel, filling 13 Press Officer positions (one of whom is part-time) and three Senior Press Officer positions.

Rates and Rating: Northern Ireland

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland where responsibility lies for making changes to the system of local taxation in Northern Ireland. [154688]

Mr. Woodward: Local taxation in Northern Ireland is the responsibility of the devolved Administration in Northern Ireland. The UK Government remain responsibility for taxes that apply to the United Kingdom as a whole.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the UK Government are making a submission to the Northern Ireland Executive's review of domestic rates. [153890]

Mr. Woodward: Local Taxation in Northern Ireland is the responsibility of the devolved Administration in Northern Ireland. The Government have no plans to make a submission to the review of domestic rates in Northern Ireland.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 15 January 2007, Official Report, column 955W, on valuation and rating, if he will place in the Library a copy of the letter sent by the Rate Collection Agency's Chief Executive. [153893]

Mr. Woodward: A copy of the Chief Executive's letter has now been placed in the Library of the House.

Sexual Offences

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the (a) shortest sentence, (b) shortest suspended sentence and (c) lowest fine handed down by the courts in Northern Ireland was following conviction for (i) rape, (ii) attempted rape, (iii) indecent assault on a female, (iv) indecent assault on a male, (v) indecent assault on a female child, (vi) indecent assault on a male child, (vii) gross indecency with a child, (viii) buggery with a boy under 16 years of age, (ix) buggery with a girl, (x) unlawful carnal knowledge of a girl under 14 years, (xi) unlawful carnal knowledge of a girl under 17 years, (xii) permitting a girl under 17 years to use premises for intercourse, (xiii) incest by man, (xiv) indecent exposure with intent to assault a female, (xv) exposure, (xvi) voyeurism, (xvii) sex offender failing to notify police of change of address, (xviii) breach of interim sex offender's prevention order, (xix) bigamy, (xx) distributing indecent photographs of children, (xxi) possessing indecent photograph of a child, (xxii) taking indecent photograph or pseudo photograph of children and (xxiii) making indecent photograph or pseudo photograph of children in each of the last three years. [154009]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is contained in the following tables.

Tables 1-3 give the number sentenced to immediate custody and the minimum sentence length (in months) handed down by the courts for those convicted of specific sexual offences for the calendar years 2003 to 2005 (the latest years available). Tables 4-6 provide similar information for those given a suspended sentence.

The number of defendants disposed of by a fine and the minimum fine amount given over the same period are documented in tables 7-9.

Data are collated on the principal offence rule; thus only the most serious offence with which an offender is charged is included.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people in Northern Ireland previously convicted of (a) rape and (b) other sexual assault have subsequently committed other sexual offences in each of the last five years. [154011]

Paul Goggins: Re-offending data are not available and reconviction data are only available for those released from prison in 2001, 2002 and 2003.

It is not possible to break reconviction data into individual sexual offence types. The following table gives the numbers that were released from prison for sexual offences who were subsequently reconvicted for other sexual offences within a two year period. Data are collated on the principal offence rule; thus only the most serious offence with which an offender is charged is included.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Children: Day Care

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what financial implications in terms of (a) rewards for fulfilment and (b) penalties for failure will be introduced on local authorities following the introduction in April 2008 of the duty to secure sufficient childcare for working parents. [154312]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 8 October 2007]: I have been asked to reply.

We are determined that local authorities should have the resources they need to fulfil the statutory duty to secure, so far as is reasonably practicable, sufficient childcare to meet the needs of working parents. Accordingly, from April 2008 the Sure Start, Early Years and Childcare Grant will include an appropriate allocation. Successive sufficiency assessments conducted by local authorities will indicate their success in closing gaps in provision; and the Government offices for the regions will also monitor authorities' progress in securing sufficiency. It will be open to anyone who believes they have been the victim of maladministration by local authorities in relation to the sufficiency duty to seek redress through various means, including the Local Government Ombudsman.

The Government do not consider that it would be appropriate to introduce a system of financial rewards and penalties in relation to fulfilment of this statutory duty.

Children: Maintenance

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the reason is for the further delay in dealing with the case of Mr. and Mrs. Beardsmore of Paignton and responding to the hon. Member for Totnes' letter of 4 July and subsequent letter of 13 August to the chief executive of the Child Support Agency. [155458]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 9 October 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what the reason is for the further delay with the case of Mr and Mrs Beardsmore of Paignton and responding to the hon. Member for Totnes' letter of 4 July 07 and subsequent letter of 13 August 07 to the Chief Executive of the Child Support Agency. [155458]

As details about individual cases are confidential I have written to you separately about this case.

Departments: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of people employed by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies are disabled. [153581]

Mrs. McGuire: The latest figures based on the position at 31 March 2007 are that 6,854 staff across the department have declared that they are disabled. As a proportion of staff who have declared a disability status of 115,525, this equates to 5.93 per cent. of staff. Individual agency figures are contained in the following table.

The figures are based on the proportion of staff who have voluntarily declared themselves as being disabled. However, we are aware that not all disabled staff declare their disability for departmental records, and the true figure may be higher than the figures shown. For example, the 2006 DWP Staff Survey (which is completed anonymously), showed that 13 per cent. of respondents considered themselves to have a long standing health condition or disability.

The roll out of a new computer system by the end of April has meant a more accurate assessment of the numbers of disabled people working within the Department. As we roll out we are asking each member of staff to check the personal information we hold about them and to declare whether they consider themselves to be disabled. A further joint communications exercise with departmental trade unions to highlight the importance of individuals providing this information is also planned.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have been appointed to his Department outside civil service grades in the last 30 days. [153179]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department engaged 36 non-civil service contractors to fill interim posts during this period.

In addition, my Department publishes information annually on appointments to the public bodies for which it is responsible. Data for 2006-07 are available at:

www.dwp.gov.uk/ndpb/DraftPublicBodies.pdf.

Departments: Pension Service

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what systems are in place to ensue accurate information-sharing between his Department and the Pension Service; and if he will make a statement. [156659]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Pension Service is part of the Department for Work and Pensions and accordingly there is a free flow of information and data across the organisation. The exchange of information takes place both clerically and via interfacing IT systems.

One of the major features of the Department's IT is a core system (customer information system), which holds a record for each national insurance number holder and a comprehensive range of personal details as a minimum. By linking all of the main benefit application services (e.g. income support computer system, pensions Strategy computer system) to CIS, the Department is able to keep customer records fully updated and is able to provide immediate notification of change of circumstances when they occur.

The IT systems links across DWP, including the Pension Service through CIS, and include the transition from working age to pensions.

Employment: Lone Parents

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how may work-focused interviews have been booked with lone parents whose youngest child is aged 11 or over in the last 12 months; how many lone parents whose youngest child is 11 or over (a) moved into work and (b) came off benefits in each of the last 12 months; how many sanctions for failing to attend a work-focused interview were applied to lone parents whose youngest child is aged 11 or over in each of the last 12 months. [155938]

Caroline Flint: 374,000 work-focused interviews were booked for lone parents with a youngest child aged 11 or over between April 2006 and March 2007.

The remaining available information is in the following table.

Lone parents with youngest child aged 11 and over

Notes:
1. Employment data relate to lone parents who had claimed income support and were recorded as entering work during the period. Data may include some lone parents who continued their income support claim after finding work.
2. Employment data under-represents lone parents entering work during the period as it excludes some job entries e.g. people with earnings below the tax threshold and those entering self-employment.
3. Data for people moving off benefits in the period are for people who stopped claiming income support and did not continue claiming any other benefit. Those who ended their income support claim, but were in receipt of a different benefit immediately after ending their claim, are not included.
4. Sanctions data only include those who were in receipt of or entitled to income support.
5. Latest available data for all requested information are to March 2007.

Pensioners: Poverty

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the impact on pensioner poverty of raising the level of the basic state pension to the level of the guarantee credit; and what assumptions he has used about the take-up of income-related benefits in coming to this estimate. [155947]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: We have made good progress in tackling pensioner poverty. Since 1997 the number of pensioners living in relative poverty, based on a threshold of 60 per cent. Of contemporary median income after housing costs, has fallen by 1.1 million, from 2.9 million to 1.8 million in 2005-06.

Raising the level of the basic state pension to the level of the guarantee credit is estimated to reduce the number of pensioners below 60 per cent. median income after housing costs by around 200,000 based on 2007-08 benefit rates.

This figure is based on the Department's policy simulation model. Take-up of income related benefits are modelled and lie within the range of published National Statistics estimates.

Pensions: Females

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many married women aged (a) 60, (b) 61, (c) 62, (d) 63, (e) 64, (f) 65, (g) 66, (h) 67, (i) 68 and (j) 69 are (i) one year, (ii) two years, (iii) three years, (iv) four years, (v) five years, (vi) six years, (vii) seven years, (viii) eight years and (ix) nine or more years short of the number of qualifying years that would be necessary to exceed the 25 per cent. threshold for entitlement to any payment of basic state pension. [155042]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 10 September 2007]: The information is not available for married women only. The information that is available is in the following table.

It shows the number of UK women aged between 60 and 69 in 2003-04 who did not satisfy the '25 per cent. rule' for entitlement to a basic state pension on their own contribution records. It also shows the number of additional qualifying years that would be necessary to satisfy this rule.

Some of these women may be eligible to receive a basic state pension based on their husband's contribution record.

Notes:
1. Figures refer to women living in the UK.
2. Figures refer to entitlement based on women's own contribution records.
3. The information is based on the data held on the national insurance record up to and including the 2003-04 tax year at May 2005. It therefore excludes any national insurance contributions paid after that date.

Lifetime Labour Market Database 2, 2003-04

Additionally, pursuant to my answer to PQ/07/155043, Official Report, vol. 463, column 2377, the numbers given in that answer now need revising to mirror the same methodology used to determine the numbers for the above answer.

The error arose because the method used to select the data was incorrect in that complete work histories were looked at instead of the national insurance record at the specific ages. This therefore meant that too many people were included in the answer because people would have less than 25 per cent. entitlement in their earlier years but they would have improved their entitlement over their working lives.

The revised table is set out in the following table:

Social Security Benefits: Telephone Services

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the (a) efficacy and (b) fairness of requiring applicants for income support, jobseekers allowance and incapacity benefit to use a telephone; if he will review the requirement that an emergency crisis loan cannot be made from a Jobcentre Plus office customer phone; what estimate he has made of the number of claimants who applied on pay-as-you-go mobile phones that do not give free calls to the 0800 number in the latest period for which figures are available; what estimate he has made of how often applicants did not complete the journey through the automated menu options; and what estimate he has made of how often staff offered applicants alternative means to claim. [155271]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 12 September 2007]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie dated, 9 October 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about applications for benefits and emergency Crisis Loans by telephone. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Contact Centres were introduced partly in response to the Government's desire to offer a modernised service and partly to respond to customer feedback that Jobcentre Plus services should be handled by phone.

Contact Centres:

are generally more convenient for customers to access (i.e. removes the need to visit a local office); can offer services over longer opening hours more cost effectively; and can deliver services more efficiently (e.g. through the more efficient use of space and the better utilisation of staff time).

We take new claims over the telephone as this ensures that we have all the necessary information to complete the claim, therefore minimising any potential delay. However, customers who have difficulty using the telephone for whatever reason can request a face-to-face interview or, where appropriate, a home visit. They can also choose to claim using a clerical claim form.

Customers are not currently permitted to use customer access phones in Jobcentres to make claims for crisis loans. This decision is being reviewed following a request from the Work and Pensions Select Committee and because it is appropriate to keep under review the risks associated with customer reaction to negative decisions. Consultation with relevant parties is underway with specific attention being paid to the issue of access to customers, particularly those who only have the use of mobile phones.

Information is not available regarding the type of telephone used by customers to contact us, as we cannot identify and do not record whether the customer is using a mobile (pay-as-you-go or other) or landline.

We have recently introduced management information to assess disconnected calls during the automated menu options. The months with complete data are June and July 2007 when we received in total 1,197,960 calls to the First Contact Interactive Voice Response. Of these, 155,466 have been disconnected by the customer before being transferred to the queue. Indications for this point to the fact that customers do not have all the information required to make a claim when going through the Interactive Voice Response.

Information is not available on how often customer service agents offer alternative means to claim benefits. However, staff have clear guidance on the circumstances in which customers should be offered different options.

State Retirement Pensions: Widowed People

Mr. Ian Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many widows in receipt of widow's pension prior to their 60th birthday have failed to claim their state retirement pensi[illegible] [155750]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: A woman in receipt of widow's pension has various options on reaching State pension age (currently 60). She can choose to continue receiving her widow's pension up to the age of 65, she can choose to claim her state pension in place of the widow's pension, or she can give up her widow's pension and not draw her state pension in order to earn a higher state pension or lump sum when she does claim it.

Our records show that just over 20,000 women aged 60 to 64 are receiving widow's pension.

DWP Information Directorate: Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study

Mr. Ian Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps the Pension Service takes to provide information to widows to claim state retirement pension at 60 years. [155751]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Four months and four days before a person reaches age 60/65, the National Insurance Recording System (NIRS) passes personal and contributions details to the Pensions Strategy Computer System (PSCS) which will set up a pension account if a current address is held and:

(a) the first contribution condition for basic State Pension is satisfied with entitlement of at least 25 per cent. basic State Pension.

(b) there is entitlement to Additional State Pension, Shared Additional State Pension or GRB;

(c) the person is a widow, widower or divorcee (including an annulled marriage), regardless of entitlement in their own right; or

(d) PSCS issues a claim package.

The claims package consists of:

1. leaflet BR33 SPIB that invites the customer to contact the Pension Service to make a claim over the phone, request claim form BR1 over the phone or return a tear-off for claim form BR1 to be issued;

2. a BR33R which contains:

(a) identity details;

(b) the choices on how to claim State Pension;

(c) details of the information the customer needs to have close to hand when contacting the Pension Service by telephone.

Unemployment

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of trends in the level of worklessness among the under 25s since 1997 . [156440]

Caroline Flint: Claimant unemployment is now falling for 18-24 year olds. This is the result of our successful employment policies, including the new deal. Almost three quarters of a million 18-24 year olds have been helped into work through new deal for young people.

Unemployment Benefits: Elderly

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the total value of attendance allowance and disability living allowance payments to people over retirement age living in the City of York local authority area was in (a) 1996 and (b) 2006-07. [155277]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 12 September 2007]: The available information is in the following table.

Total value of attendance allowance and disability living allowance payments to people aged 60 and over in City of York local authority

£ million

	Attendance allowance	Disability living allowance
Cash terms
1996-97	5.8	2.2

HOME DEPARTMENT

Border and Immigration Agency

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases of lost documentation have the Border and Immigration Agency recorded in the last 12 months. [156340]

Mr. Byrne: Statistics for the numbers of documents lost in the Border and Immigration Agency (BIA) are not kept. However the majority of passports held by BIA are in connection with managed migration casework. In the 12 months ending August 2007, 176 passports were lost from managed migration casework. Case working units in Croydon alone retain between 70,000 to 100,000 passports in their possession at any given time.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of letters sent by hon. Members to the Border and Immigration Agency have received a substantive reply within (a) three, (b) four, (c) six, (d) eight, (e) 10 and (f) more than 10 weeks; and if she will make a statement. [156288]

Mr. Byrne: In the period 1 January to 30 June 2007, the last period full data is available, the Border and Immigration Agency received 22,636 letters from hon. Members.

Of these:

(a) 12,713 (56.2 per cent.) were answered in three weeks or less

(b) 18,866 (83.3 per cent.) were answered in four weeks or less

(c) 20,917 (92.4 per cent.) were answered in six weeks or less

(d) 21,426 (94.7 per cent.) were answered in eight weeks or less

(e) 21,910 (96.8 per cent.) were answered in 10 weeks or less

(f) 643 (2.8 per cent.) took more than 10 weeks to answer.

Animal Experiments

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the reasons are for the increase in the number of scientific procedures carried out on (a) goats and (b) sheep between 2004 and 2006; which establishments accounted for the greatest amount of that increase; and if she will make a statement. [154410]

Meg Hillier: The number of scientific procedures carried out under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 using goats and sheep for the past three years is shown in the following table.

As the table shows, the principal increase in procedures involving both goats and sheep in 2006 arose in connection with the study of fundamental biological disease.

It is Home Office policy not to publish the names of designated establishments licensed under the 1986 Act for health and safety reasons.

	Procedures
	2004	2005	2006	Purpose

Animal Experiments: Licensing

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to assess the effectiveness of legislation on licensing of animal experimentation. [154382]

Meg Hillier: The use of animals in experiments and other scientific procedures is regulated by the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986, which puts into effect, and in some ways exceeds, European Union Directive 86/609/EEC. The 1986 Act provides a strong regulatory framework balancing the need to protect animals from unnecessary suffering with the legitimate requirements of the scientific community, and the public, for medical and other essential research and testing.

The operation of the 1986 Act has been regularly reviewed since it first came into force. Full-scale reviews have been carried out by the Animal Procedures Committee which published its 10 year review of the operation of the Act in 1998, and by the House of Lords Select Committee on Animals in Scientific Procedures which reported in July 2002. In addition, specific aspects of the operation of the 1986 Act have been reviewed at various times by the Animal Procedures Committee, which is required under section 20 of the Act to advise the Secretary of State on matters concerned with Act and her functions under it. The Animal Procedures Committee has, for example, in the last five years, reviewed the use and acquisition of non-human primates, the cost benefit assessment of the use of animals in research, the Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals published under section 21 of the Act, modular training for licence applicants and schedule 1 to the Act dealing with appropriate methods of humane killing

In due course, the current revision of Directive 86/609 will provide a further opportunity to review the regulation of animal experiments.

Asylum: Sri Lanka

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when her Department last reviewed the safety of returning Tamil asylum claimants to Sri Lanka. [154571]

Jacqui Smith: Each asylum and human rights application made by a Sri Lankan national is, as with all other nationalities, considered individually against the background of current information from a wide range of well-recognised sources about the situation in Sri Lanka. Those who are found not to be in need of international protection and have no legal basis of stay in the UK, may return voluntarily to any region of Sri Lanka. Where an individual does not return voluntarily, removal may be enforced. Enforced removals will only be undertaken where we are satisfied the individual has no protection needs.

Bicycles: Confiscation

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many bicycles have been confiscated from offenders under the provisions of the Police Reform Act 2002. [156465]

Mr. Coaker: None: the Police Reform Act allows the seizure, in appropriate circumstances, of motor vehicles only.

British Transport Police

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which Government Departments provide funding for the British Transport Police. [156353]

Mr. Tom Harris: I have been asked to reply.

Revenue funding for the force is provided by the industry. The Department for Transport is providing £7.5 million for capital expenditure this financial year and the force receives money from the Home Office for specific initiatives.

Community Support Officers: Young People

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effectiveness and suitability of under-18 year olds serving as police community support officers; and if she will make a statement. [155645]

Mr. McNulty: Police community support officers (PCSOs) are employed as police staff and as such are bound by standard employment regulations. It is for individual chief officers in each force to determine whether a person is suitable, capable and adequately trained to undertake the role of PCSO.

The Home Office will be working with senior colleagues in the service to make sure current guidance is sufficient to ensure that only those who are capable of performing the role serve as PCSOs.

Crime: Yorkshire

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of crimes reported to the police in (a) Yorkshire and the Humber and (b) North Yorkshire in (i) 1997 and (ii) the most recent year for which figures are available were cleared up. [155493]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 17 September 2007]: Detection statistics at police force area level for 2006-07 were published on 20 September 2007. They show a clear up rate of 28 per cent. for Yorkshire and the Humber region and 33 per cent. for North Yorkshire. Changes to the offence coverage in 1998, the detections guidance in 1999 and the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard in 2002 mean that data for 1997 are not directly comparable with that for 2006-07. In 1997, the clear up rate was 26 per cent. for both Yorkshire and the Humber region and North Yorkshire.

Crime: South West Region

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many recorded crimes of each type there were in (a) Devon and Cornwall, (b) the south-west and (c) England and Wales in 2006-07. [156358]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is published in Table 6.05 of 'Crime in England and Wales 2006-07'. A copy is available on the Home Office website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs07/hosb1107chap2.xls

Crimes of Violence: Suffolk

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the figures were for (a) violent crime and (b) gun crime in Suffolk in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2007. [155779]

Mr. Coaker: A number of changes have been made to recorded crime in response to suggestions in the two reviews of crime statistics. Once such change is that the term 'violent crime' is no longer used in connection with the recorded crime statistics and we now provide figures for violence against the person.

There were 2,448 offences of violence against the person recorded in Suffolk in 1997 and 10,190 offences recorded in 2006-07, the latest year for which statistics are available. The introduction of expanded coverage in 1998 and the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard in 2002 resulted in an artificial increase in recorded offences of violence against the person and figures for the two years are therefore not directly comparable.

There were 17 firearms offences (excluding air weapons) in Suffolk in 1997 and 58 in 2005-06, the latest year for which data are available.

Driving Offences

Mr. Binley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent steps the Government have taken to tackle the incidence of driving off without payment offences in relation to petrol retail. [156232]

Mr. Coaker: It remains an offence under the Theft Act 1978 to make off without paying for goods with intent to avoid payment. However, changes were made in April 2005 to Home Office counting rules reflecting concerns expressed by police forces about the lack of consistency among forces in recording allegations of making off without payment offences.

Many police forces continue to work with industry to reduce this type of problem and initiatives such as 'Forecourt watch' and self-reporting packages have proved very successful in terms of improving security and reducing crime.

The British Oil Security Syndicate (BOSS) continue to make a valuable contribution in partnership with local police and petrol retailers to reduce this type of offence.

Forced Marriage

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases of offences related to forced marriage were investigated in each of the last five years by each police force in England and Wales. [155517]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The Home Office does not collect this information and it is not routinely collected by the police, as there is no specific offence of forced marriage. Offences related to forced marriage can range from common assault, false imprisonment and kidnapping, to murder.

The Association of Chief Police Officers has published guidance for police forces on identifying, assessing and managing risk in domestic violence cases, and separate guidance on dealing with cases of forced marriage. In addition, the Crown Prosecution Service is currently undertaking pilots in four areas (Lancashire, London, West Midlands and West Yorkshire) to investigate the prosecution of forced marriage and so-called honour-based violence cases. All cases in these pilot areas will be flagged and monitored from July 2007 to March 2008.

Foreign Workers: Care Homes

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many work permits were issued to senior care workers in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [149343]

Mr. Byrne: The following table shows the number of work permit applications which were approved for overseas nationals for senior care workers from non-EU states in period 2005 -2006. Data prior to 2005 are not available.

	Approvals
2005	1,870
2006	5,690

Note:
Figures are rounded to the nearest 5.

The figures quoted are not provided under national statistics protocols and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

Foreign Workers: Health Professions

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many work permits were issued for (a) doctors and (b) nurses and auxiliary nurses from non-EU states in (i) 2006 and (ii) each of the preceding 10 years. [149263]

Mr. Byrne: The following table shows the number of work permit applications which were approved for overseas nationals for (a) doctors and (b) nurses from non-EU states in the period 1999 to 2006. Data prior to 1999 are not available. There have been no approvals for auxiliary nurses.

	Doctor	Nurse	Total
1999	170	2,430	2,600
2000	580	15,130	15,710
2001	1,805	24,355	26,160
2002	3,120	28,740	31,855
2003	3,820	29,590	33,410
2004	4,690	29,180	33,875
2005	4,070	22,670	26,740
2006	3,830	13,685	17,520
Total	22,090	165,780	187,870

Notes:
1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 5.
2. Because of rounding figures may not add up to the totals.

The figures quoted are 'not' provided under National Statistics protocols and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

Genetics: Databases

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to update the national DNA database to include full postal addresses of every person who has been added onto the database. [154364]

Meg Hillier: None. The purpose of the National DNA Database (NDNAD) is to hold a record of a person's DNA which can be matched against DNA taken from crime scenes. If there is a match the police are notified and make further inquiries. The NDNAD holds the person's name, date of birth, ethnic appearance, gender, a link to any record on the police national computer, and information about the police force which took the sample. This is sufficient for the police to be able to contact the person if required. It is not necessary for the NDNAD itself to hold the person's postal address.

The address someone is living at when a DNA sample is taken from them will of course become outdated when they move, so adding this address would impose extra work on the police for the sake of information which in many cases would soon become out of date. In order to keep address information accurate, it would be necessary to monitor changes of address of the 4 million people on the database. This would be expensive and intrusive without adding anything useful to police operations.

Genocide: Rwanda

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what discussions she has had with her French and Belgian counterparts on the search for and prosecution of suspected Rwandan genocidaires residing in those countries; [153428]

(2) what steps she is taking to encourage other EU Governments to arrest suspected Rwandan genocidaires residing in their countries; [153429]

(3) what discussions she has had with EU counterparts about procedures for extradition to Rwanda of suspected Rwandan genocidaires residing in Europe. [153430]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 8 October 2007]: It is for each member state to determine, in accordance with its own laws, what action might be appropriate in particular cases. Regular discussions, however, are held with EU counterparts, both at ministerial and official level, about a range of judicial cooperation issues including, from time to time, about bringing to justice alleged genocidaires from Rwanda. No one fleeing prosecution in that country should expect to find safe haven or to enjoy impunity within the EU. That is why the Government have entered into special extradition arrangements with Rwanda in respect of four cases currently before the courts.

Identity Cards: Channel Islands and the Isle of Man

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether compulsory identity cards will be introduced in (a) Jersey, (b) Guernsey and (c) Isle of Man simultaneously with the United Kingdom; and if she will make a statement. [155808]

Meg Hillier: There are no provisions in the Identity Cards Act 2006 to make it compulsory to have an identity card and to do so would require further primary legislation.

As with previous legislation on identity cards, the Government would consult the Administrations of Jersey, Guernsey and the Isle of Man as and when further primary legislation on identity cards was being prepared.

Lisbon Agenda

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what policies her Department has adopted to assist the United Kingdom's fulfilment of the Lisbon Agenda criteria. [155839]

Meg Hillier: The Government fully supports the aims of the Lisbon Strategy for Growth and Jobs. Reforms across EU member states consistent with the Strategy to boost productivity and skills, expanding participation in the labour market and increasing social inclusion, are key parts of the response to the challenges and opportunities of globalisation.

In line with the aims of the Lisbon Strategy, the Government are pursuing a comprehensive programme of long-term structural reform to deliver strong and sustainable economic performance and employment growth, including addressing specific skills shortages through its managed migration policy. This is set out in the UK National Reform programme, progress against which the Government reports on annually. The most recent progress report was published in September and is available in the Library of the House and on the website of HM Treasury.

Official Visits: European Union

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what official visits she is planning to European Union member states in the next six months. [155840]

Meg Hillier: The Secretary of State for the Home Department has recently returned from Portugal where she attended the informal meeting of the Justice and Home Affairs Council. Over the coming months she plans to visit Poland for a meeting of the G6 Interior Ministers to discuss cooperation in the areas of counter terrorism, organised crime and immigration; and Germany for a G6 counter terrorism symposium. She is also currently considering a visit to France.

In addition, the JHA Council will be meeting in Brussels in November, December and February 2008, and in Slovenia in January 2008. Ministerial attendance at those meetings will be determined in the light of the individual agendas. Home Office Ministers are also planning visits to Ireland, Germany and Belgium before the end of the year. There may be other visits or EU meetings, attendance at which will be considered against the pursuit of Home Office aims.

Police

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has for a Royal Commission on policing; and if she will make a statement. [156697]

Mr. McNulty: The Government have no plans to set up a Royal Commission on policing.

Police: Complaints

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers in (a) Essex and (b) Southend have been the subject of complaints in each year since 1997; how many of these have been the subject of local resolution. [156569]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not collected by the Home Office. This is a matter for the Independent Police Complaints Commission.

Police: Finance

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much extra funding will be provided by the Government for policing provision during the Labour Party conference in Bournemouth. [156022]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office provide special grant to police authorities to pay for the additional costs of policing the main annual party conferences.

Dorset police submitted a bid of £4.5 million (revenue) plus £80,000 (capital) for the additional costs of policing the 2007 Labour Party autumn conference which has been approved.

Police: Pay

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make a statement on the current formula for determining the annual pay of police officers. [156698]

Mr. McNulty: It is important that pay arrangements for the police are both fair and affordable, for the taxpayer as well as the police service. This is why the Government asked Sir Clive Booth to conduct a review of police pay. His recommendations were published in a written ministerial statement on 21 February 2007, and they recommended an interim index linking increases in police officer pay to increases in the public sector. This was the basis of the 2007 pay offer to police officers. The Government made clear in their ministerial statement of 21 February that Sir Clive Booth's recommendations would be taken forward through the Police Negotiation Board (PNB). We are disappointed that the PNB failed to reach agreement. The matter has now been referred to the Police Arbitration Tribunal. Before my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary makes her decision on the police pay award for 2007, she will consider very carefully the recommendations that result from this process.

Police: Security

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many security alerts were dealt with by police in each police force area in each of the last 10 years? [156476]

Mr. McNulty: This information is not held centrally by the Home Office and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Police: South West Region

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers there were (a) in total and (b) per 100,000 of the general population in (i) Devon and Cornwall, (ii) the South West and (iii) England in (A) 2006 and (B) 2007. [156316]

Mr. McNulty: The requested data are published annually in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin series "Police Service Strength, England and Wales", copies of which are available online and are in the Library of the House.

The available data are given in the tables.

Total police officers (FTE)[1] for Devon and Cornwall force, South West region and England as at 31 March 2006 and 2007

As at 31 March each year	Devon and Cornwall	South West	England
2006	3,540	11,024	133,924
2007	3,523	11,006	134,265

Total police officers per 100,000[1] population for Devon and Cornwall force, South West region and England as at 31 March 2006 and 2007

As at 31 March each year	Devon and Cornwall	South West	England
2006	219	219	267
2007	216	217	266

[1] Based on full-time equivalent strength figures that have been rounded to the nearest whole number.

Ports: Immigration Officers

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many of the 35 main ports of entry to the UK were staffed 24 hours a day by immigration officials in (a) 2003 and (b) 2006. [156308]

Jacqui Smith: Of the 35 main ports of entry, there are 19 ports in the UK and in juxtaposed locations which are staffed 24 hours a day. A further 16 have staff based there during operating hours. Other ports are staffed on a regular basis to cover scheduled services with all remaining points of entry attended on a risk assessed basis or in response to specific intelligence.

Terrorism Act 2000

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what (a) assessment has been made of and (b) guidance her Department has issued on the use of section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 by the Metropolitan Police Service. [156011]

Mr. McNulty: In spring 2007, the Metropolitan Police Service (MPS) carried out a review of its use of stop and search powers under section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000. One of the recommendations was to continue to apply appropriately for the authority. Another recommendation was to raise public awareness about the powers. As part of that commendation, the MPS are publishing stop and search figures for each London borough on a monthly basis. Lord Carlile of Berriew also assesses the use of section 44 in his capacity as Independent Reviewer of Terrorism Legislation.

National guidance for the police on the use of section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 was published in July 2006 by the National Centre for Policing Excellence. One of the key aims of the guidance was to set out a framework for the use of section 44 powers to ensure that they are used appropriately by officers on the ground. In August 2006, the Home Office produced a circular for the police on the use of section 44. This included a requirement for the authorising officer to provide details of the community impact assessment made prior to authorising the powers.

Vehicles: Insurance

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many vehicles were seized as uninsured vehicles in each of the last three years for which figures are available; and how many of those were subsequently destroyed or scrapped. [156320]

Mr. Coaker: The police power is to seize vehicles driven by someone without appropriate insurance. Information on the number of vehicles seized is not recorded centrally.

Wiltshire Constabulary

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the costs were of (a) interpretation and (b) translation in connection with police work by the Wiltshire Constabulary in each of the five most required foreign languages in each of the last five years. [156721]

Mr. McNulty: This is an operational matter for the Chief Officer and the Police Authority.

Work Permits

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications from employers for work permits were waiting for processing to be completed on (a) 1 March and (b) 1 September; and what the average time was between (i) initial receipt of the application and despatch from the payment processing facility and (ii) completion of the payment processing and approval of the work permit on each of those dates. [155639]

Mr. Byrne: The number of work permit applications awaiting an initial decision was 4,658 on 1 March 2007 and was 3,508 on 1 September 2007.

Work permit applications received at the payment processing centre before 1.30 pm are delivered to the Border and Immigration Agency the same day. Those received later are delivered the next working day.

For the six- month period prior to 1 March 2007 it took an average eight calendar days from receipt at the Border and Immigration Agency to complete a work permit application and for the six-month period prior to 1 September 2007 it took an average of 10 calendar days.

All the above figures exclude those applications that had been initially refused but which were being reconsidered on review at these dates.

he figures quoted are not provided under National Statistics protocols and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of people who were granted a UK work permit in 2000 subsequently (a) applied for and (b) were granted settlement. [156305]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested could be obtained by the detailed examination of individual records only at disproportionate cost.

Although information on both work permits and grants of settlement are provided in the Home Office Command Paper "Control of Immigration: Statistics United Kingdom 2006", it is not possible to directly cross reference between the data as the basis for calculation is different.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Overseas Trade: Yorkshire and the Humber

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the value was of international trade in (a) goods and (b) services for the Yorkshire and the Humber region in (i) 1996-97 and (ii) the latest year for which figures are available; and what percentage of gross domestic product in each year each figure represents. [155273]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 12 September 2007]: HM Revenue and Customs publishes a regional breakdown for trade in goods going back to 2000. Their figure for 2000 for exports of goods from Yorkshire and the Humber was £8.8 billion compared with £12.7 billion in 2006; the 2006 figure may have been affected by transactions associated with missing trader VAT fraud. In 2000 this was about 14.5 per cent. of regional gross value added; regional GVA figures for 2006 are not yet available, but the comparable figure is likely to be about 15.4 per cent. For imports of goods, equivalent figures are £10.7 billion and 17.6 per cent. in 2000, and £14.1 billion and 17.1 per cent. in 2006. Similar data for regional trade in services are not available.

Post Offices: Disadvantaged

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether alternative locations for post offices that Royal Mail propose for closure will be required to comply with disability discrimination legislation; and if he will make a statement. [155604]

Mr. McFadden: Disability access to Crown post offices is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. acting in compliance with the requirements of the disability discrimination legislation.

Supermarkets: Ethics

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will ask the Competition Commission to inquire into whether practices of UK supermarkets involve significant exploitation of workers in developing countries; and if he will make a statement. [152605]

Mr. Thomas: The Government do not request the Competition Commission to undertake inquiries except in certain, limited circumstances. Ensuring that markets operate freely and fairly is not a matter for the Government, but is for the independent competition authorities.

The Office of Fair Trading (OFT) has asked the CC to investigate if any features of this market prevent, restrict or distort competition and if so, what action might be taken to remedy these. The CC has a statutory requirement to report within two years of a reference to them by the OFT. It is required to publish its final report by 8 May 2008, but is aiming to do so by October 2007. The CC expects to publish its emerging thinking for consultation on 23 January. The current timetable for the inquiry can be found at:

www.competition-commission.org.uk/inquiries/ref2006/grocery/core_timetable.htm

The CC investigation is not limited to considering only the issues that the OFT has identified, and any issues should be raised direct with them.

Wind Power: Greenbelt

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many domestic wind turbines were granted planning permission on land designated as green belt for each of the previous three years for which figures are available. [156572]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have been asked to reply.

This information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts: North East Region

Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many arts organisations in (a) Stockton on Tees and (b) the North East received Arts Council England North East funding in each of the last 10 years. [149968]

Margaret Hodge: The table shows the amount of arts organisations in Stockton on Tees and the North East in receipt of Arts Council funding for each of the last 10 years.

Figures for the North East prior to 1999-2000 relate to arts organisations receiving lottery funding distributed by the Arts Council. From 1999-2000 the figures for the North East include regularly funded organisations. This is because prior to the merger of the Regional Arts Boards in 2003-04 to create Arts Council England, each region managed its funding records independently.

	Stockton on Tees	North East

BBC Trust: Public Appointments

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will consider introducing (a) pre-appointment parliamentary scrutiny and (b) confirmation hearings for future appointments to the BBC Trust. [156454]

James Purnell [holding answer 8 October 2007]: BBC Trust appointments are among those regulated by the Commissioner for Public Appointments. We believe the scrutiny afforded by existing arrangements, which include the involvement of an OCPA trained independent assessor throughout, is sufficient. We do not therefore plan to consider introducing pre-appointment parliamentary scrutiny or confirmation hearings for future appointments to the BBC Trust.

This is consistent with proposals set out in the Government Green Paper "The Governance of Britain" (July 2007), which accepts there are a number of positions in which Parliament has a particularly strong interest because the office holder exercises statutory or other powers in relation to protecting the public's rights and interests. The Government believe that Parliament, through its Select Committees, may play a valuable role where such appointments are not subject to oversight by the Commissioner for Public Appointments or other form of independent scrutiny.

Big Lottery Fund: Voluntary Organisations

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many voluntary organisations which were formerly funded from single regeneration budgets have bid for Big Lottery funding in each year for which figures are available; and how many have been successful in each year. [155793]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Culture: Expenditure

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the Government spent on (a) the arts, (b) sport and (c) heritage in each year since 1997. [155768]

James Purnell: The following table shows how much the Department for Culture, Media and Sport spent on the arts, sport and heritage from 1997 to 2007-08.

	Sector
	Arts	Sport	Heritage
1997-98	196.4	50.1	155.8

2006-07	430.2	168.7	188.4
2007-08	420.3	186.4	190.7

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which private consultancy firms (a) his Department and (b) agencies which report to his Department engaged in each of the last three years; which programmes or projects each firm worked on; and what the approximate cost to the Department or agency concerned was of each engagement. [155879]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many civil servants are employed by his Department, broken down by policy area. [148539]

Margaret Hodge: The requested information is in the following table:

Policy area	Number of staff	Number of staff (FTE)
Architecture, Historic Environment	31	30.4
Sports	35	34.6
Arts	21	20.8
Creative Industries Division	19	18.8
Active Generation Team	5	4.5
Tourism	30	29.9
Lottery, Communities and International	27	25.6
Museums, Libraries and Cultural Property Unit	31	31

Humanitarian Assistance Unit	7	7
Government Art Collection	14	13.5
Government Olympic Executive	46	44.8
Olympic Games Board Secretariat	6	6
Total	322	316.9

Notes:
1. The remaining 205 staff work in Human Resources, Finance and Planning, Strategy, Private Office, Communications and Directorate support.
2. The department is planning to reduce its headcount by around 70 FTE by 2011.
3. The Culture, Creativity and Economy Group deals with a range of subjects; Arts, Architecture, Heritage, Creative Industries, Sports, Museums, Libraries, Broadcasting Policy, Tourism, National Lottery and Gambling Licensing and Tourism.
4. Corporate Services covers Human Resources, Finance and Planning, Strategy and Private Office.

Digital Broadcasting: Broadcasting Reception

Mr. Alan Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the number of households which are capable of receiving a high quality and reliable analogue television signal but will not be capable of receiving a fully reliable digital television signal after digital switchover in (a) Argyll and Bute, (b) the STV region and (c) the UK. [152466]

James Purnell [holding answer 24 July 2007]: At the time of switchover (which will be in 2010 for the STV region) digital terrestrial coverage across the whole of the UK should substantially match that which the present analogue service achieves—that is, 98.5 per cent. of households. Although we do not have information on coverage for individual constituencies, Ofcom estimates that around 97 per cent. of households in the STV North region and around 99.4 per cent. in STV Central region will be capable of receiving a high quality and robust signal after digital switchover. Unfortunately, estimates of analogue coverage are not available.

Digital Broadcasting: Sight Impaired

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether his Department will be making any funds available to blind and partially-sighted persons to purchase new equipment to enable them to use teletext once the analogue signal has been switched off. [156192]

James Purnell: The Digital Switchover Help Scheme will ensure that households where at least one person is registered blind or registered partially-sighted will be provided with the appropriate equipment to convert one TV set and, where necessary, the relevant help to install and use such equipment and an aerial installation. Help will be free to eligible households in receipt of income support, jobseeker's allowance or pension credit. Other households will be asked to contribute £40 towards the cost of support.

Where the eligible household opts for the digital terrestrial platform, the scheme will provide a set top converter box which meets the scheme's core receiver requirement. This incorporates a number of features, such as audio description, which will be of benefit to blind and partially sighted people. There is no requirement for the scheme to enable audio access to digital text services. The Consumer Expert Group, which includes the RNIB and SENSE were consulted on the scheme requirements. The core receiver requirements, which take costs into account, will be kept under regular review.

Digital Switchover Help Scheme

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the requirements for set-top boxes provided by the Digital Switchover Help Scheme include an on/off button; and if he will make a statement. [151255]

James Purnell [holding answer 24 July 2007]: The Core Receiver Requirements for digital switchover Help Scheme equipment state that any digital receiver provided as part of the scheme shall have a power switch in an easily accessible position with which the receiver can be placed into its lowest possible consumption mode (e.g. standby). The requirements also require that a corresponding function should be included in the design of the remote control for such receivers.

Set-top boxes remain on low power standby rather than being switched off completely when not in use, in order to allow them to receive important over-the-air downloads (for example, to rescan for frequency changes), in a way which causes minimum disruption for the viewer, at very low levels of energy consumption.

Gambling: Advertising

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether advertising of gambling-related activities at televised sports events during children's television viewing hours will be permitted under the proposed Committee of Advertising Practice and Broadcast Committee of Advertising Practice gambling advertising rules. [148535]

James Purnell: Under the Committee of Advertising Practice (CAP) and Broadcast Committee of Advertising Practice (BCAP) new codes of practice, which came into effect on 1 September, there are strict controls in place about the content and scheduling of gambling advertisements and restrictions on advertising during and around children's programmes or programmes commissioned for, principally directed at or likely to appeal particularly to children.

In addition to the CAP and BCAP codes, the gambling industry has introduced a voluntary 9 pm watershed on all broadcast gambling advertising, with an exception for bingo and lottery advertisements which are already permitted and sports betting advertising around sports events, as part of their social responsibility code on gambling advertising.

National Lottery: Manpower

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people are employed by each of the National Lottery distributors. [155766]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This information is not held centrally and it has not been possible to collate the data requested in the time available. Some of the information requested is already in the public domain, in distributor's annual reports.

National Lottery: Public Relations

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much each National Lottery distributor spent on public affairs and public relations activities in the last period for which figures are available. [155765]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This information is not held centrally and it has not been possible to collate the data requested in the time available. Some of the information requested is already in the public domain, in national lottery distributor's annual reports.

Sports: Manpower

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the 10,000 voluntary community sports coaches announced on 24 September are (a) additional to and (b) distinct from the young volunteers trained to work in schools and community clubs and trained adult mentors announced as part of the Game Plan strategy in 2003; and if he will make a statement. [156279]

James Purnell: The 10,000 voluntary Community Sports Coaches announced on the 24 September will be additional to and distinct from the young volunteers and leaders supported by the Step into Sport scheme which is part of the National School Sport Strategy.

Game Plan was published as a strategy document in December 2002. The Government have used it to inform their policy on sport where appropriate.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) from which areas the 10,000 voluntary community sports coaches, announced on 24 September, will be recruited; [156280]

(2) when he expects the 10,000 voluntary community sports coaches, announced on 24 September, to (a) be recruited and (b) begin their coaching activities; and what steps his Department plans to take to (i) encourage, (ii) monitor and (iii) audit and account for progress with this initiative; [156281]

(3) which national governing bodies will be responsible for recruiting the 10,000 voluntary community sports coaches announced on 24 September; how much each such body will receive; how much of the £5 million announced for the initiative will be allocated to (a) Sports Coach UK and (b) Sport England; and when the funding will be made available to each responsible body. [156282]

James Purnell: We are working on detailed plans with Sport England, Youth Sport Trust and sports coach UK to start the recruitment of 10,000 volunteer sports coaches from April 2008, in the most deprived areas.

Written Questions

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects to answer question (a) 148539 on civil servants and (b) 148535 on advertising: gambling, tabled by the hon. Member for Bath on 4 July 2007. [156248]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Both questions were answered on 3 October.

TRANSPORT

A1: Nottinghamshire

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made on the removal of six roundabouts on the A1 in Nottinghamshire and Lincolnshire. [156690]

Mr. Tom Harris: Construction work has commenced at all six roundabout junctions, with the most significant progress being made at Blyth, Apleyhead and Gonerby Moor.

Overall project completion is expected in early 2009. This is slightly later than originally programmed due to the effects of the wet weather during the summer and refocusing traffic management to minimise the impact of the works on the travelling public.

Biofuels

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) volume and (b) proportion of biofuels used in England was (i) imported and (ii) produced domestically in each of the last five years; what the equivalent estimated figures are for each year up to 2010; and what impact this had upon reducing carbon emissions from vehicles. [154745]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The total quantities of biofuels released for consumption in the UK are available via the HM Revenue and Customs website at http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=bulloil. Annual figures are summarised in the following table. Information on the carbon savings associated with these biofuels is not available.

Annual quantities of biofuels released for consumption in the UK and estimated carbon savings

Millions of litres

	Biodiesel	Bioethanol
2003	19	0
2005	33	85

Provisional figures suggest that the total quantity of biofuel released for consumption over the first eight months of 2007 amounted to some 318 million litres, or around 1 per cent. of total road transport fuel sales. The Government do not hold precise data on the origin of these fuels, and information on the carbon savings associated with them is not available. All of the bioethanol over the period in question was imported, whereas a significant amount of the biodiesel was produced in the UK. During 2006 and 2007, however, imports of biodiesel rose sharply.

The Government are due to introduce a Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation (RTFO) in April 2008. This should create a demand for around 1 billion litres of biofuel in 2008, rising to around 1.75 billion litres in 2009 and 2.5 billion litres in 2010. We anticipate that this demand will be met by both imported and domestically produced biofuels. The carbon savings will depend on a number of factors, including the carbon intensity of the biofuels transport fuel suppliers choose to source. The RTFO's reporting requirements are designed to provide a strong incentive for transport fuel suppliers to source sustainable, low-carbon biofuels.

The Government have also announced that from 2010-11 they aim to reward biofuels under the RTFO according to the amount of carbon they save. This should provide greater certainty over the level of carbon savings that the biofuels should deliver. Further details are set out in an informal policy paper which is available via this Department's website at http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/roads/environment/rtfo/.

British Transport Police: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many press officers are employed by the British Transport Police. [154134]

Mr. Tom Harris: This information is not held by the Department for Transport but by the British Transport Police who can be contacted at:

British Transport Police, 25 Camden Road, London NW1 9LN

E-mail: general.enquiries@btp.pnn.police.uk

Departments: Accountancy

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what accounts directions were issued by her Department in financial years (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [156645]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Under the Government Resource and Accounts Act 2000, HM Treasury issue accounts directions to Departments, pension schemes and agencies and under the Government Trading Fund Act 1973 to trading funds.

For the years 2005-06 and 2006-07 Department for Transport has issued accounts directions for the form and content of resource and other accounts to the following sponsored bodies:

2005-06

Civil Aviation Authority
British Transport Police
Trinity House
Northern Lighthouse Board
Commissioners of Irish Lights
Passenger Focus

2006-07

East Coast Railway Line: Franchises

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she has taken to ensure that the successful bidder for the Inter City East Coast franchise includes in their operations a major commitment to environmental sustainability; and what measures have been taken to ensure that such a commitment is an objective when awarding other new rail franchise contracts. [155729]

Mr. Tom Harris: Bidders for the Inter City East Coast franchise were required to set out plans for measuring and reducing the environmental impact of their rail activities. They also had to address the main environmental impacts of rail operation, (carbon emissions, air quality and noise); to take account of the need to conserve resources; and to reduce waste and the contamination of water and land. The winning bidder committed, among other initiatives, to reduce fuel consumption per passenger kilometre by 28 per cent. over the franchise term and to invest £400,000 to reduce energy use at stations and depots.

Great Western Trains

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many extra carriages First Great Western will receive out of the recently announced national total of 1,300; and what change there has been in the number of carriages on the First Great Western franchise since 1997. [155787]

Mr. Tom Harris: It is too early to provide details on the nature and deployment on the balance of the new rolling stock. The bulk of this will be agreed with the rail industry following publication in November of the industry proposals to deliver the high level output specification. The Department for Transport will publish a rolling stock plan in January 2008.

Details on the number of carriages operated by individual franchises in the past are not held by the Department.

Lorries: Safety

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many heavy goods vehicle annual safety tests were conducted by VOSA in each financial year since 2000-01; and what percentage of heavy goods vehicles failed (a) initial and (b) final safety test in each financial year. [155985]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) publishes figures of how many heavy goods vehicle annual safety tests were conducted by VOSA in each financial year since 2000-01; and what percentage of heavy goods vehicles failed (a) initial and (b) final safety test in each financial year in its Effectiveness Report. This is available on-line at www.vosa.gov.uk or in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport Section.

Motor Vehicles: Safety

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) private cars and light vehicles, (b) motorcycles, (c) public service vehicles, (d) trailers for heavy goods vehicles and (e) heavy goods vehicles were recalled on safety grounds in each financial year since 2000-01. [156052]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) was formed in April 2003. VOSA is responsible for the publication of vehicle safety recalls. Its records indicate:

	Private cars and light vehicles	Heavy goods vehicles	Commercial, trailers	Motorcycles	Public service vehicles
2003	134,407	62,513	726	13,775	2,800
2004	764,336	80,030	4,134	36,708	2,384
2005	1,007,345	71,681	4,311	45,650	12,843
2006	923,867	53,692	195	45,108	4,026

Please note, although the above number of vehicles have been recalled, they may not have proved to be defective. VOSA's figures are recorded by calendar year not financial year. To break these figures down into financial year would result in disproportionate costs.

Motor Vehicles: Testing

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) class 3 and 4 vehicles and (b) goods vehicles between 3 tonne and 3.5 tonne gross weight took an MOT test in each financial year since 2001; and how many and what percentage failed in each year. [156051]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) publishes figures of how many (a) class 3 and 4 vehicles and (b) goods vehicles between 3 tonne and 3.5 tonne gross weight took an MOT test in each financial year since 2001; and how many and what percentage failed in each year in its effectiveness report. This is available on-line at www.vosa.gov.uk or in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport Section.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) grade 7 equivalent and above managers, (b) testers, (c) vehicle inspectors and (d) vehicle examiners were employed in (i) the Vehicle

Inspectorate and (ii) the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency in each financial year since 2000-01. [156053]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) was formed in April 2003. The following table indicates the number of posts it had for the roles requested, as at 1 April of each year.

	Grade7+	Tester	Vehicle inspector	Vehicle examiner
2003	40	121	401	494
2004	43	110	427	542
2005	46	94	424	556
2006	53	80	417	524
2007	55	66	397	502

Figures prior to 2003 for the Vehicle Inspectorate could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Similar information on staff numbers was published in the Vehicle Inspectorates Annual Reports, a copy of which was placed in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport section.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many MOT vehicle testing stations are in operation. [156057]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of approved MOT garages at 1 October 2007 was 18,950.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many MOT vehicle testing stations were routinely inspected (as opposed to having a targeted inspection) to ensure that they complied with safety and other requirements in each financial year since 2000-01. [156058]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) publishes figures of how many MOT vehicle testing stations were routinely inspected (as opposed to having a targeted inspection) to ensure that they complied with safety and other requirements in each financial year since 2003 in its Effectiveness Report. This is available on-line at www.vosa.gov.uk or in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport Section. Any figures prior to 2003 can be found in The Vehicles Inspectorate report in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport Section.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the MOT Enforcement Transformation programme is; how MOT vehicle testing stations will be classified in the future; what safety checking regimes are for each class of MOT vehicle testing station; and how it was determined that the new checking regimes will work effectively. [156059]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) MOT Enforcement Transformation programme supports the delivery of a number of its strategic objectives to improve the quality and consistency of the private vehicle testing service to the public. Focussing on non-compliant MOT garages, the risk based programme aims to improve MOT testing standards and operational efficiency.

Similarly to the existing Operator Compliance Risk Score (OCRS) system, MOT garages will be classified as Red, Amber or Green.

VOSA monitor MOT garage safety through:

analysis of the MOT database,

intelligence received,

MOT Appeals,

random and targeted re-inspection of vehicles, and mystery shopper exercises.

VOSA trialled the risk based approach for 100 MOT garages in the Midlands area from June—October 2006. Analysis of the trial results demonstrated that the risk scoring mechanism is an effective method of predicting actual non-compliance by an MOT garage.

Office of Rail Regulation: Information Officers

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many press officers are employed by the Office of Rail Regulation. [154430]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Office of Rail Regulation has 1.5 full-time equivalent press officers.

Public Service Vehicles: Safety

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many public service vehicle (PSV) annual safety tests were conducted by VOSA in each financial year since 2000-01; and how many PSVs failed their (a) initial and (b) final safety test in each financial year. [155986]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) publishes figures of how many public service vehicle (PSV) annual safety tests were conducted by VOSA in each financial year since 2000-01; and how many PSVs failed their (a) initial and (b) final safety test in each financial year in its Effectiveness Report. This is available on-line at www.vosa.gov.uk or in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport Section.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many public service vehicles (PSVs) failed their final safety test for a reason relating to their (a) steering mechanisms and (b) braking systems; and what percentage of the number of tests conducted by VOSA on PSVs in each financial year each figure represents. [155987]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) publishes figures of how many public service vehicles (PSVs) failed their final safety test for a reason relating to their (a) steering mechanisms and (b) braking systems; and what percentage of the number of tests conducted by VOSA on PSVs its effectiveness report. This is available on-line at www.vosa.gov.uk or in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport Section.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many heavy goods vehicles failed their final safety test for a reason connected to their (a) steering mechanisms and (b) braking systems; and what percentage each figure represents of the number of tests conducted by the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency on heavy goods vehicles in each year. [155988]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) publishes figures of how many heavy goods vehicles failed their final safety test for a reason connected to their (a) steering mechanisms and (b) braking systems; and what percentage each figure represents of the number of tests conducted by the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency on heavy goods vehicles in each financial year in its effectiveness report. This is available on-line at www.vosa.gov.uk or in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport Section.

Railway Stations: Catering

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions she has had with Network Rail on the provision of Fairtrade coffee at rail stations following the discontinuance of AMT's contract with Network Rail; and if she will make a statement. [156407]

Mr. Tom Harris: None. This is a commercial matter for Network Rail, as the owner and operator of the national rail network.

The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's chief executive at the following address for further information relating to his question.

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive
Network Rail
40 Melton Street
London NW1 2EE

Railways: Safety

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what recent assessment she has made of safety at (a) manned and (b) unmanned mainline rail stations; [154743]

(2) what recent assessment she has made of the merits of manned mainline rail stations during operating hours. [154744]

Mr. Tom Harris: Staffing levels at stations are a matter for the station operator to determine.

The Department has not made any recent assessments of safety and/or personal security at manned and unmanned mainline rail stations or on the merits of manned stations during operating hours. However, a national passenger survey is undertaken twice a year by Passenger Focus to assess how safe passengers feel at stations and on trains. In the most recent survey of over 21,000 passengers most people were satisfied with the level of safety and security provided at stations. Also, as part of the Secure Stations scheme accreditation process, a passenger survey is required to be undertaken to assess how safe passengers feel at the station.

Railways: Security

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on how many occasions UK railway lines have been closed because of security alerts in each of the last 10 years. [156478]

Mr. Tom Harris: This information is not held by the Department for Transport but by the British transport police who can be contacted at: British Transport Police, 25 Camden Road, London NW1 9LN, E-mail: general.enquiries@btp.pnn.police.uk.

Road Traffic Control: A249

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what the average waiting times are during rush hour of vehicles on the A249 going to Maidstone from the Sittingbourne or Sheppey direction at the Junction 5 roundabout; [155917]

(2) how much the re-design and signalling of the Stockbury roundabout at Exit 5 of the M2 cost; [155918]

(3) what assessment the Highways Agency has made of the safety of Exit 5 of the M2. [155919]

Mr. Tom Harris: Through its watchman role, the Highways Agency continues to monitor the observed queues at junction 5 of the M2 during peak times but does not currently have a record of the average waiting times. Queuing is generally restricted to the A249 rather than the M2.

As a consequence of earlier monitoring, the Agency invested £252,626 between 2000-01 and 2003-04 in the re-design and signalling of the Stockbury roundabout.

Following this investment and further improvements in 2005, safety improved and the junction is now a relatively low priority in safety terms. The Agency continues to monitor the situation.

Roads: Repairs and Maintenance

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the current backlog of road maintenance is for strategic roads; what the estimated costs of removing the backlog are; and what the estimated time for removing the backlog is, broken down by region. [156520]

Mr. Tom Harris: There is no backlog of road maintenance for the strategic road network i.e. the English trunk roads. The network is maintained by applying whole life cost principles, and takes account of the fact that it is not practical or sustainable to maintain the whole network in an as new condition.

Roads: Safety

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what STATS19 returns are; and how they are used to generate road accident casualty figures. [155924]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The national collision statistical reporting form (commonly known as STATS19) is used to collect standard information, when a personal injury road accident is reported to the police. The information is collected by the police at the scene of the accident or in a minority of cases it is reported on by a member of the public at a police station. Some 50 data items are collected for each accident, including the time, location and circumstances of the accident, the vehicles involved and some information on each casualty. After processing this information is then forwarded by each police force (via local processing authorities in the case of some forces) to the Department electronically and entered into a database. The data are checked, analysed and detailed results published annually in "Road Casualties Great Britain". In addition quarterly estimates of casualties are published, based on provisional data returns.

The current data collection system was set up in 1979 following a wide ranging review. The statistics are used to inform public debate on matters of road safety and to provide the basis for determining and monitoring road safety policy at the local and national level. National and local government and local police forces work closely to achieve an agreed national reporting standard. The form is subject to quinquennial reviews which consider any amendments that may be required. Changes are agreed by the Steering Committee on Road Accidents Statistics (SCRAS) which was set up in 1977 to oversee the process for road accident data collection. The membership of the committee is drawn from a wide range of bodies and includes representatives of central government, local government and the police.

A copy of the current form used by the police (introduced January 2005) can be found on page 173 in "Road Casualties Great Britain: 2006 annual report", published on 27 September 2007. Copies of this report have been deposited in the Libraries of the House.

Shipping: Oil

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will take steps to ban ship-to-ship oil transfer in the Firth of Forth; what recent assessment the Government has made of the risks to the environment of spillage from such transfers; what contingency plans are in place for such circumstances in the area; and if she will make a statement. [156265]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department has no plans to introduce legislation banning ship-to-ship oil transfer in the Firth of Forth.

The Department has not made any recent assessment of the risks to the environment of spillage from ship-to-ship transfers. However, when a ship-to-ship transfer is being considered, we expect the responsible authority to carry out an assessment which takes account of the risks involved.

The following relevant contingency plans are in place for the Firth of Forth:

Oil Spill Preparedness, Response and Co-operation Convention Oil Spill Contingency Plan for Ship-to-Ship Transfer (approved August 2006)

Clearwater Forth Plan (approved August 2006).

Stretch Limousines

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her timetable is for the introduction of policy guidelines for stretch limousines; and if she will make a statement. [155747]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department intends to publish guidance on stretch limousines by January.

Taxis

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what projections have been made of the number of taxi drivers that will be operating in London for each of the next five years. [153877]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There are currently 24,500 licensed taxi drivers in London. Transport for London indicates that, assuming the upward trend in the number of taxi drivers continues, this is likely to rise to 25,500 by 2012.

Transport Direct

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the (a) original estimated and (b) outturn cost was of Transport Direct. [154749]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The original budget for the Transport Direct Programme, which included the development and operation of the Transport Direct Portal among other things, was for the period of spending review 2002 (April 2003 to March 2006). Subsequent budgets for Transport Direct were allocated on an annual basis in spending review 2004 (April 2005 to March 2008) and will be allocated in comprehensive spending review 2007 (April 2008 to March 2011). The estimated and outturn cost of Transport Direct to March 2007 was:

Period	Estimate	£ million Outturn
2003-04 to 2005-06	57	45
2006-07	11	10

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the (a) estimated and (b) outturn cost of the (i) development and (ii) running of the Transport Direct portal was in the last year. [154750]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In April 2006, Transport Direct became an operational business unit of the Department for Transport, with the budgets revised to reflect the maturity of the Transport Direct Portal and the reduced need for capital investment. The Transport Direct Portal Service encompasses the Transport Direct Portal Design, Build and Operate (DBO) contract, which covers both development and operation, and the data and services provided by other third parties that underpin the Transport Direct Portal. The estimated and outturn costs for the Transport Direct Portal Service for FY 2006-07 were:

Period FY 2006-07	£ million
Estimate	6.1
Outturn	5.9

These figures represent the total sums paid to the Atos Origin Consortium (the DBO contractor) for all aspects of the DBO contract and to other third-party providers of data and services to the Transport Direct Portal.

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the value for money of the Transport Direct portal over the last 12 months. [154751]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The original business case for Transport Direct recorded three key value for money measures:

Achieve 1 million user sessions in the first year of service.

Achieve 10 million user sessions by the end of 2006.

10 per cent. of users reassess their travel habits as a result of the information provided by TD.

Of these measures:

The 1 millionth user session was achieved 10 months after soft-launch of the service (soft-launched in July 2004, achieved in May 2005)

The 10 millionth user session was recorded on 1 December 2006

On changing habitual behaviour the portal service includes a self-completion feedback questionnaire. The responses to the questionnaire suggested that for individuals who had made the journey before (about a third of the 2,034 respondents):

17 per cent. claimed they would change their route,

24 per cent. would change when they intended to travel.

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many user sessions Transport Direct recorded in each month since June 2006; and what the weekly rate of user sessions was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [154753]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Since June 2006 the following user sessions have been recorded on the Transport Direct portal. This includes user sessions generated by end-users accessing the portal using PC, DigiTV and mobile phones, and those generated by other systems accessing Transport Direct via a web service call. The use of web services to access Transport Direct was introduced in August 2006:

Month	Total
July 2006	697,000
August 2006	778,000
September 2006	746,000
October 2006	802,000
November 2006	951,000
December 2006	893,000
January 2007	983,000
February 2007	855,000
March 2007	954,000
April 2007	829,000
May 2007	940,000
June 2007	985,000
July 2007	1,082,000
August 2007	1,126,000
Total	12,621,000

The average weekly number of user sessions recorded during the six weeks ending 16 September is 254,000.

Vehicle Number Plates: Fraud

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate the Government have made of the numbers of cloned or false number plates being used on British roads. [156560]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of vehicles that are, or may have been, subject to vehicle cloning or fitting of false plates is not known. There is no estimate available.

Vehicle Number Plates: Theft

Mr. Binley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the potential contribution of mandatory use of tamper-proof number plates to the reduction of vehicle registration plate theft; and if she will make a statement. [156231]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In February 2006 the DVLA adopted a voluntary standard for theft resistant number plates to provide consumers with an assurance that products meeting the standard had been subject to rigorous testing. The standard is supported by the Home Office and the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO).

Officials from the Department have been in discussion with representatives of ACPO and the leading number plate manufacturers about the possibility of making theft resistant plates mandatory. It is recognised that the higher cost of theft resistant plates would impose a financial burden on industry and the general public and it will be necessary to draw up and evaluate an impact assessment before making a decision on whether to proceed further. There would also be a public consultation before any decision was made.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what measures have been implemented to improve casualty reporting in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq; and if he will make a statement. [154257]

Derek Twigg: The casualty reporting and notification process has been co-ordinated by the Joint Casualty and Compassionate Centre (JCCC) at RAF Innsworth since 2005 and all information is routed through it. Casualty reporting from Afghanistan and Iraq has been further streamlined by the introduction of the Joint Personnel Administration system into these theatres in March 2007.

Casualty figures for Afghanistan and Iraq are now published twice-monthly a fortnight in arrears (previously monthly a month in arrears) and, in conjunction with JCCC, the Defence Analytical Services Agency (DASA) has conducted an exercise to validate historical operational casualty data from January 2001 onwards. The results of their analysis, together with current Aeromedical Evacuation and hospital patient data, have been published on the internet at:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/FactSheets/OperationsFactsheets/OperationsInAfghanistanBritishCasualties.htm

and

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/FactSheets/OperationsFactsheets/OperationsInIraqBritishCasualties.htm

Furthermore, as I announced to the House on 25 July 2007, MOD has moved from a system of recording and reporting mental health statistics relating solely to Operation TELIC (Iraq) to a new system covering all in-service personnel assessed with a mental health disorder at our out-patient Departments of Community Mental Health (DCMH). The report also includes a return for new in-patient admissions under the MOD's contract with the Priory Group. These are published quarterly by the Defence Analytical Services Agency (DASA), and the first report, for the period January—March 2007, is available on their website at:

http://www.dasa.mod.uk/publications/pdfs/mentalHealth/report_JanMar07.pdf

Aircraft Carriers

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when (a) HMS Illustrious and (b) HMS Ark Royal are planned to be withdrawn from service with the fleet. [154397]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 8 October 2007]: Our present planning assumption is that HMS Illustrious and HMS Ark Royal will be withdrawn from service in 2015 and 2012 respectively.

Aircraft Carriers: Procurement

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the intended in-service dates are of the new aircraft carriers. [154022]

Des Browne: As I announced to the House on 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 865, the future aircraft carriers are expected to enter service in 2014 and 2016.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many and what type of helicopters will be made available for use on the UK's new aircraft carriers; and if he will make a statement; [154023]

(2) how many and what type of aircraft will be made available for use on the UK's new aircraft carriers; and if he will make a statement. [154049]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The new aircraft carrier has been designed to support, operate and sustain a Joint Force Air Group of up to 40 aircraft, including up to 36 Joint Combat Aircraft (JCA) supported by four Maritime Airborne Surveillance and Control (MASC) aircraft, with the option of other helicopters (for example Merlin Mkl) embarked.

We are currently planning to acquire the Joint Strike Fighter (JSF) to meet the JCA requirement. We are assessing the options to fulfil the MASC requirement and will make the decision when the programme achieves sufficient maturity; we currently expect the main investment decision to be around the end of the decade. We will continue to ensure our plans for JCA and MASC remain coherent with the CVF programme.

al-Yamamah Project

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 362W, on the al-Yamamah project, what the costs were for which his Department received a management fee from the Saudi Arabian government in respect of the al-Yamamah programme; in which years since 1985 a management fee was paid; whether the fees were retained by the Government; and if he will make a statement. [154618]

Des Browne: The Department has been paid a management fee in every year since 1986 to cover the cost of its participation in the al-Yamamah Project. The fee is held by the Department to cover in full expenditure as it arises on such items as the salaries and salary-related costs of the staff of the Saudi Armed Forces Project, office and domestic accommodation charges, travel and subsistence, IT and telecommunications, training and professional fees, and utilities.

Armed Forces: Coroners

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his oral answer of 16 July 2007, Official Report, column 16, on military inquests, how many military coroners inquests are outstanding; on what dates he held meetings with ministerial colleagues to discuss outstanding coroners' inquests since he came into office; what discussions he has had with the (a) Leader of the House and (b) the Secretary of State for Justice on military inquests since 12 July 2007; and what his definition is of backlog. [151600]

Des Browne [holding answer 23 July 2007]: The scheduling of inquests touching on the deaths of Service personnel is a matter for the relevant coroner across England and Wales. As at 28 September 2007, 120 inquests had been completed on Service personnel killed on operations since 2001, 80 of which have been held since the Government took steps to speed up the process on 5 June 2006. 131 inquests remain open: 45 within the jurisdiction of the Oxfordshire Coroner; 44 for the Swindon and Wiltshire Coróner; and 42 for other coroners.

Of the original backlog of 59 inquests identified in the joint Written Ministerial Statement on 5 June 2006, Official Report, column 4WS, two remain open within the Oxfordshire Coroner's jurisdiction, one of which has been scheduled. There is one inquest into the deaths of the 10 service personnel killed in the Hercules crash in January 2005 open within the Swindon and Wiltshire Coroner's jurisdiction.

I regard a backlog as having arisen when the volume of inquests makes it difficult for a coroner to conduct the necessary investigations and inquests in a timely manner. Additional resources have been made available by the MOD and the Ministry of Justice to meet the needs of the Oxfordshire and Wiltshire Coroners. We will keep the need for any further resources under close review.

Defence Ministers have engaged closely and regularly with colleagues in the Department for Constitutional Affairs/Ministry of Justice and there have been five joint Written Ministerial Statements to update Parliament on this issue and the additional resources made available. The most recent joint Written Ministerial Statement was made by myself and the Minister for Justice on 20 June 2007, Official Report, column 97WS).

Armed Forces: Housing

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to respond to the Defence Select Committee report on the state of military housing in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [155743]

Derek Twigg: We are looking in detail at the points raised in the report and will respond fully in due course.

Armed Forces: Pensions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will estimate the cost of extending pro rata services pensions to all those who served in the armed forces, including those who served before 1975. [155780]

Derek Twigg: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the then Minister for the Armed Forces during an adjournment debate on 31 January 2007, Official Report, columns 337-40, which clearly set out the legislation and policy background to the issue. The situation has not changed and there is no real prospect that this or any Government could afford the billions of pounds that would be needed to address public sector pensions legacy issues.

Chad: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what role UK armed forces will play in the EU military mission to Chad. [154222]

Des Browne: Following the agreement of United Nations Security Council Resolution 1778, the EU are discussing a military mission to Chad/Central African Republic. The UK supports the mission as a key means of contributing to regional stability and helping to resolve the Darfur crisis, but we have made it clear that the role of the UK Armed Forces in any mission will be very limited given the extent of our commitments elsewhere.

Defence Export Services Organisation: Manpower

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Defence Export Services Organisation staff were employed in project offices dealing with exports of government to government contracts in April 2007; and how many had duties covering commercial and financial matters. [156338]

Des Browne: In April 2007, almost 200 Defence Export Services Organisation staff were employed in project offices dealing with government-to-government export contracts. Of these, 30 were mainly concerned with commercial and financial aspects of the projects.

Defence Export Services Organisation: Saudi Arabia

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many people were employed in project offices by the Defence Export Services Organisation in (a) Saudi Arabia and (b) Kuwait in (i) April 2006 and (ii) April 2007; [156336]

(2) how many staff there were in Defence Supply Secretary Offices overseas employed by the Defence Export Services Organisation in (a) April 2006 and (b) April 2007. [156337]

Des Browne: The numbers of Defence Export Services Organisation (DESO) staff employed in project offices and in other offices overseas in April 2006 and April 2007 are shown in the table as follows.

	Staff
Office [1]	April 2006	April 2007
Kuwait Project Office	3	2
Saudi Arabia Project Office	62	73
Other overseas offices	40	39

[1] Figures include locally employed staff. Part-time staff are counted as whole.

Defence Procurement Agency: Information Officers

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many press officers are employed by the Defence Procurement Agency. [154593]

Derek Twigg: In April 2007 the Defence Procurement Agency was merged with that of the Defence Logistics Organisation to become Defence Equipment and Support (DE and S). DE and S employs six press officers.

Defence: Procurement

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his estimate is of the costs incurred as a result of (a) the procurement of the new carriers, (b) the procurement of the Joint Strike Fighter, (c) the Trident replacement programme, (d) procurement of the type 45 destroyers, (e) the Future Rapid Effect System, (f) upgrading naval bases for the new carriers and (g) replacing assets lost, damaged or prematurely worn out by the conflicts in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan in each of the next five years. [154019]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Current estimates of the costs incurred over the next five years for the programmes are as follows.

Carriers

The overall estimated costs to be incurred as a result of the procurement of the new carriers in the next five years will total £2,415 million.

Disclosure of the detailed estimated annual costings over the five-year period for the procurement of the new carrier would likely prejudice the commercial interest of the project and cannot be provided.

Joint Strike Fighter

Current estimates of the costs incurred for Joint Strike Fighter are shown in Table A.

Table A: Joint Strike Fighter

UK Nuclear Deterrent Programme

The costs provided in Table B are the estimated costs that the MOD expects to incur over the next three years to implement the decisions to maintain the UK's nuclear deterrent capability beyond the life of the current Vanguard class submarines as set out in the December 2006 White Paper, 'The Future of the United Kingdom's Nuclear Deterrent' (Cm6994) and endorsed by Parliament on 14 March 2007.

The main part of the programme has not passed business case initial gate approval. Detailed spending plans for future years are therefore not set at this stage.

Future Rapid Effect System

The estimated costs for the assessment phase of the Future Rapid Effect System project as set out in the National Audit Office Ministry of Defence Major Projects Report 2006 is £649 million.

Disclosure of detailed estimated annual costings over the five year period for the procurement of FRES would likely prejudice the commercial interest of the project and cannot be provided.

Upgrading Naval Bases

The estimated costs to be incurred as a result of upgrading the naval bases for the new carriers in the next five years will total £67 million.

Disclosure of the detailed estimated annual costings over the five year period for the upgrading of the naval bases would likely prejudice the commercial interest of the project and cannot be provided.

Replacement of Assets

Due to the unpredictable nature of operations in Iraq and Afghanistan it is not possible to predict an estimate of the costs of replacing assets lost, damaged or prematurely worn out by the conflicts.

Departments: ICT

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department received from the disposal of information technology equipment in the last year for which figures are available; and what avenues were used for such disposal. [154031]

Derek Twigg: In the last financial year, the net sales revenue generated by the sale of information technology equipment was £120,000. The MOD disposes of this equipment through its Disposal Services Authority (DSA), using incentivised contracts of sale where returns are divided between MOD and the contractor, to encourage maximum revenue generation. Additionally, DSA runs a contract for the disposal of IT equipment classified as hazardous, for which a fee is paid.

Departments: Pay

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff in his Department received bonus payments in each of the last five years for which information is available; what proportion of the total work force they represented; what the total amount of bonuses paid has been; what the largest single payment was in each year; and if he will make a statement. [152714]

Derek Twigg: The MOD civilian staff numbers, taken from the departmental end of year accounts, is 90,650 (excluding trading funds). Figures for the 2006-07 financial year are not yet available, we are only able to supply four years of data. The number and value of annual appraisal related bonuses paid to members of the senior civil service (SCS), to fixed term appointees and to civil servants below the level of the SCS covered by the MOD main pay deal (excluding trading funds and agencies), over the past four years are listed in the following tables one to three. The Ministry of Defence also awards special bonuses to individuals and teams for exceptional performance in a specific task or for the achievement of professional qualifications which benefit MOD and the individual; these are shown in table four. The final table (five) shows the total value of all bonuses paid: in cash terms and as a percentage of the civilian work force.

Ex-Servicemen: Military Decorations

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many veteran badges have been distributed in each East Midlands constituency. [156535]

Derek Twigg: The information is not held in a format that identifies how many Veterans Badges have been issued in each parliamentary constituency and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However Service Personnel and Veterans Agency records have identified that a total of 20,967 badges have been issued in the East Midlands area during the period since 18 April 2005 to date 30 September 2007. The numbers have been identified by the applicants' East Midlands post codes and are broken down as follows:

	Number
Derbyshire	3,689
Leicestershire and Rutland	5,250
Warwickshire	3,770
Nottinghamshire	8,258

Veterans Badges were issued by the Veterans Policy Unit between May 2004 and 17 April 2005. During this period 82,000 badges were issued, however, detailed records in the format required are not held for this period.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence why Multi-National Division-South East personnel have reassumed air traffic control responsibility for commercial flight services at Basra International Airport. [153653]

Des Browne [holding answer 8 October 2007]: UK personnel reassumed Air Traffic Control (ATC) responsibility for commercial flight services at Basra International Airport pending the award of a new US-funded ATC training contract. Training to allow Iraqi personnel to take on this task across the country is expected to re-commence later this year, and Multi National Division (South-East)'s ATC responsibilities will be reviewed accordingly.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many attacks there have been on British forces stationed at Basra airport in Iraq in each of the last 12 months; how many British personnel were injured or killed as a result of these attacks; and if he will make a statement. [155317]

Des Browne [holding answer 12 September 2007]: The number of indirect fire attacks on UK forces stationed at Basra air station in Iraq in each of the last 12 months is broken down in the following table:

Month	Number of indirect fire attacks
2006
October	6
November	8
December	16
2007
January	18
February	12
March	10
April	64
May	77
June	76
July	74
August	32
September	5

There have been three UK service personnel killed as a result of indirect fire attacks on Basra air station over this period. They were killed in a single incident on 19 July 2007. It is not possible to break down the number of persons injured as a result of each of these attacks, as this would contravene operational security and be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Further information on the number of UK military and civilian personnel killed and injured between March 2003 and August 2007 is provided on the MOD website at:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/FactSheets/OperationsFactsheets/OperationsInIraqBritishCasualties.htm

The information on the website does not include UK civilians employed or contracted by other Government Departments or by civilian contractors. This information is not held by the MOD.

Military Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many aircraft there are in the RAF, broken down by aircraft type. [154234]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The numbers of aircraft planned to be in service with the RAF on 31 March 2008 are contained in the following table:

Aircraft type	Fleet number
Typhoon	49
Tornado GR	137
Tornado F3	68
Harrier	78
Nimrod[1]	18
Tristar	9
VC10	16
Sentry	7

Islander	2
BAe 146	2
BAe 125	6

Dominie	9
Hawk	112
Tucano	95
Vigilant	64

[1] Includes Nimrod MR2 and R1.
[2] Does not reflect the loss of one C130K in Iraq on 23 August 2007.
[3] Figure does not include the sixth C17 announced by Secretary of State on 26 July 2007. This will be delivered later in 2008.

These figures include Sentinel, Typhoon and C17 aircraft that are continuing to be delivered during the current financial year. Three Typhoon aircraft remain to be delivered in this financial year. The last of these aircraft is expected to be delivered in the first quarter of 2008. Two Sentinel aircraft are to be delivered, one in the last quarter of 2007 and one in the first quarter of 2008. One C17 is due to be delivered from the Lockheed production line in the first quarter of 2008.

Ministry of Defence Police: Arrests

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many arrests were made by the Ministry of Defence police in each of the last five years; and how many of these resulted in successful prosecutions. [156348]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence police do not routinely record the total number of arrests that they make. Not all arrests result in prosecution. Some arrests are made on suspicions that later prove to be unfounded. Other arrests are made to prevent a potential offence being committed which result in subsequent de-arrest when the threat posed is removed.

Ministry of Defence Police: Finance

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what funding was allocated to the Ministry of Defence police in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [156346]

Derek Twigg: The budgetary allocation for the Ministry of Defence Police and Guarding Agency is shown in the following table:

Financial year	£ million
2006-07	291.020
2005-06	283.116
2004-05	255.480
2003-04	250.826
2002-03	142.268

The figures in the table are included in the chief constable's annual report and accounts. The figures quoted from financial year 2003-04 also include the budgetary provision for the Ministry of Defence Guard Service.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which Government Departments contribute to the funding of the Ministry of Defence police force. [156347]

Derek Twigg: The funding for the Ministry of Defence police is included in the overall Defence budget. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the Treasury and the Home Office reimburse the Department for Ministry of Defence policing commitments overseas, at the Royal Mint (an Executive Agency) and at gas installations in the United Kingdom, respectively.

RAF Cosford

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to make a statement on future military uses for RAF Cosford in Shropshire. [155976]

Derek Twigg: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 18 June 2007, Official Report, column 1442W, and the statement made by the Minister for the Armed Forces on 12 September 2007, Official Report, column 122WS. The Department is exploring a number of proposals for the future defence use of DCAE Cosford and no decision has yet been made. These proposals include the possibility of basing troops returning to the UK from Germany at Cosford, and further announcements will be made once this work has been completed.

Warships

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) destroyers and (b) frigates are scheduled to (i) leave and (ii) enter service with the Royal Navy in each of the next 10 years. [154393]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 8 October 2007]: On present planning assumptions, which are routinely reviewed and updated, we expect to withdraw destroyers and frigates from service as follows:

	Destroyers	Frigates
2010	1	0
2013	1	0

It is departmental policy to release in-service dates only for those warships for which the main investment decision has been taken. Over the period in question, in-service dates for new destroyers and frigates have been established as follows:

	Destroyers	Frigates
2010	1	0
2013	1	0
2014	0	0

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the scheduled out-of-service dates are of each (a) destroyer, (b) frigate and (c) submarine in service with the Royal Navy. [154394]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 8 October 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply that I gave on 3 September 2007, Official Report, column 1632W, to the hon. Member for Woodspring (Dr. Fox).

Warships: Shipbuilding

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent on shipbuilding for (a) the Royal Navy and (b) the Royal Fleet Auxiliary in each year since 1992. [154250]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not held centrally, on a year by year basis, nor is it held to the level of detail requested. Estimates detailing how much has been spent on total shipbuilding and repairs in UK industry and commerce can be found in the latest edition of the UK Defence Statistics. The information is in the table.

The figures for 2006-07 are still being finalised and will be released in the future. Programmes such as the new Future Carriers, the Type 45 and the Astute will lead to further investment in this area.

HEALTH

Care Homes: Dementia

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the decent homes standards are for late stage dementia sufferers in residential accommodation. [156584]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have been asked to reply.

In June 2006 the Department for Communities and Local Government published 'A Decent Home: Definition and Guidance for implementation'. This publication makes it clear that:

"The decent homes standard does not apply to Care Homes providing nursing care and regulated by the Commission for Social Care" (paragraph 4.8).

However, the Department of Health has published national minimum standards under section 23 (1) of the Care Standards Act 2000 which form the basis on which the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) registers, inspects and reports on adult social care services, and councils who arrange these services, in England. These standards set out, among other things, the minimum level for residential accommodation for care homes regulated by the CSCI.

Care Homes: Fees and Charges

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many older people he expects to have to sell their homes to cover the cost of residential care in (a) 2010, (b) 2020, (c) 2030 and (d) 2040. [155732]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information about the sale of property to pay for residential care is not collected centrally. Nor is this information automatically collected locally where a person arranges their care privately. It is not, therefore, possible to estimate the number of homes that are, or may be, sold for this purpose.

It is the Government's policy to support people in their own homes for as long as possible, where it is safe to do so and when it accords with their wishes and assessed needs, which is where most people want to be.

For those people entering residential care, the Government have taken steps to help people avoid selling their homes to pay for residential care. Since October 2001, councils have been able to enter into deferred payments agreements with residents. Under this, the council place a legal charge on the resident's former home which is not collected until the end of the contract. This gives people more options for meeting care home fees.

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome

Ms Barlow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to provide Government support specialist NHS centres for those affected by chronic fatigue syndrome in England. [156702]

Ann Keen: We have no current Government plans to provide support for further specialist national health service centres for those living with chronic fatigue syndrome.

Chronically Sick: Health Services

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department has issued on the implementation of the National Framework for Long-term Conditions. [155638]

Ann Keen: The Department has published a number of documents to support implementation of the national service framework (NSF) for long-term conditions. These include an audit tool, evaluated examples of good practice, an information strategy, a summary of the evidence on savings and performance indicators within the better metrics project.

Primary care trusts are expected to work towards implementing the NSF over a 10-year period.

Community Hospitals

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost has been to recipient community hospitals of each scheme approved to date under the expenditure programme of up to £750 million in community hospitals and services announced in July 2006, broken down by constituency; and what the total cost of approved schemes under the programme is. [155737]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 8 October 2007]: Capital allocations from the community hospitals and services programme are made to primary care trusts. £94.5 million has been allocated for 14 schemes. The total estimated cost of these schemes is £140 million. No scheme has been allocated less than the amount requested. We do not hold figures broken down into parliamentary constituencies.

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many schemes and at what total cost had been approved by the end of financial year 2006-07 from the five-year expenditure programme of up to £750 million in community hospitals and services announced in July 2006. [155738]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 8 October 2007]: We announced four schemes in December 2006. A new primary care centre in Washington; the redevelopment of the Gosport War Memorial Hospital; the development of a new community health centre in Yate, Bristol; and the establishment of a Healthy Living Park in Minehead, West Somerset. The total amount allocated to these schemes is £44.6 million. All schemes are subject to the business case approval process.

Contraceptives

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will take steps to increase access to advanced training in contraceptive services. [155925]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department is working with the Faculty of Family Planning and Reproductive Health Care, the Royal College of Nurses and others to look at improving access to training in contraception at all levels.

In particular the FPA, at the request of the Department, will hold a specialist working group on nurse training in contraception in November 2007.

Departments: Public Bodies

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1630-4W, on Departments: public bodies, what changes were made to the NHS Information Centre's responsibilities in each year since 2004-05; to which bodies any such responsibilities were transferred; and what the budget of the Centre was in each year. [154014]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Health and Social Care Information Centre, now known as The Information Centre for health and social care (IC), was created by statutory instrument as a special health authority on 1 April 2005.

The Information Centre's revenue resource limit from the Department is set out in the following table.

Revenue resource limit for The Information Centre 2004-05 to 2007-08

	Revenue Resource Limit (£ million)
2004-05	[1]0
2005-06	53.1
2006-07	41.5
2007-08	[2]37.2

[1] No funding allocated in 2004-05 because the IC was only established on 1 April 2005.

[2] The 2007-08 figure is subject to change because the revenue resource limit for 2007-08 will only be finalised in January.

The IC took over some of the functions of the earlier NHS Information Authority, which it replaced, together with most of the activities of the former Department of Health Statistics Division and the Prescribing Support Unit of West Yorkshire Health Authority, from which staff were transferred into the IC. These areas of work have been reviewed, integrated and further developed within the remit of the IC.

There have been no changes to the responsibilities of the IC since its establishment in April 2005. As part of the process of integration and consolidation since this date, every opportunity has been taken to ensure that the work undertaken by the IC has been delivered in the most effective and efficient manner. Changes in processes and ways of working have ensured that the IC has delivered efficiencies since it was established, while ensuring that priorities are still delivered.

Doctors: Career Structure

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 18 July 2007, Official Report, column 452W, on doctors' training, how many junior doctors in the first round of applications were told in error that they had received a training place; and what actions were taken by deaneries to ensure that this did not occur. [154214]

Ann Keen: The number of applicants told in error is not held centrally. The Department understands that it was a small number and that deaneries contacted the doctors to notify them of the situation. It is a matter for deaneries to manage the appointment process.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many doctors did not receive job offers in the first round of medical training applications; and what percentage of applicants this represented. [154275]

Ann Keen: In England, there were 27,800 eligible applicants for 15,554 training posts. At the end of Round 1, 85 per cent. of posts were filled. 13,168 applicants had accepted posts, leaving 14,632 who had either not received an offer or had not accepted an offer. The information held centrally does not distinguish between those who received an offer but did not accept it and those who did not receive any offer.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what support will be offered to doctors who do not receive a training place in either the first or second round of recruitment in order to safeguard their future careers. [154276]

Ann Keen: We have prepared a package of support for those doctors who are appointable to a training post, but who are not successful in finding one by the end of round 2. This package of support includes additional training and educational opportunities. This comprises:

Access to career information about future training options via local deaneries. Applicants who are already in national health service employment will also be able to access career support from their employer.

About 1,000 extra one-year and general practitioner training posts which will become available for unsuccessful applicants at the end of round 2.

Educational bursaries, so that appointable but unsuccessful applicants who are in NHS service posts can pursue their clinical education and improve their chances of successfully applying for specialty training next year.

In addition, we have agreed that all foundation programme graduates (F2) who are unsuccessful at the end of round 2 will receive a formal career interview which will determine their eligibility for the extra one-year posts and educational grants offered in 'clearing'.

Also, we have opened up discussions with the British Medical Association, the Academy of Royal Colleges and other representatives of the medical profession to discuss whether there is any risk that high academic achievers may be missed by the end of the recruitment process, and if so, how we can avoid that happening.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of junior doctor training posts, unfilled after the first round of job offers, have been temporarily filled by doctors on short-term contracts. [154318]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not held centrally. It is for the local national health service to fill any vacant posts appropriately.

Dr. Bhattacharyya

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the redundancy of Dr. Bhattacharyya. [156704]

Ann Keen: Staff redundancies in the local national health service is a local matter.

Fibromyalgia

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent steps his Department has taken to raise awareness of fibromyalgia among (a) the general public and (b) health professionals; [156505]

(2) what progress is being made in improving NHS (a) diagnosis and (b) treatment of fibromyalgia; [156506]

(3) what recent representations he has had and received on fibromyalgia. [156544]

Ann Keen: We have made no assessment of the progress being made by the national health service into improving the diagnosis and treatment of fibromyalgia.

We have taken no recent steps to raise awareness of fibromyalgia among the general public and health professionals.

We have received three recent Downing Street e-petitions on fibromyalgia, as well as correspondence from individuals and their Members of Parliament.

Health Professions: Employment

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he plans to take to assist newly qualified nurses to find employment; and what recent discussions there have been between his Department and the Health Ministers in (a) Wales and (b) Scotland on placing newly qualified (i) nurses, (ii) physiotherapists and (iii) consultant doctors in employment. [155613]

Ann Keen: In April 2007 the Social Partnership Forum, a partnership between the Department, unions and NHS employers, launched an action plan for maximising the opportunities for newly qualified health care professionals in England. This sets out actions to deliver a demonstrable improvement in graduate employment. NHS employers are undertaking a review of progress against the action plan.

Officials in the Department, the Scottish Executive and the Welsh Assembly will continue to discuss issues affecting the national health service workforce.

Health Services: Bedfordshire

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations his Department has received on the funding of NHS primary care trusts in Bedfordshire and Luton; and if he will make a statement. [155633]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Ministers have answered letters from both the hon. Member for Luton, South (Margaret Moran) and the hon. Member for Luton, North (Kelvin Hopkins) about the allocations made to both Bedfordshire and Luton primary care trusts. There have also been a number of letters from the local patient and public involvement forums as well as members of the public on the same issue.

Horton Hospital: John Radcliffe Hospital

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health at what times patients were admitted to the Horton general hospital from the John Radcliffe hospital on (a) 2 May, (b) 3 May, (c) 24 May, (d) 18 June, (e) 2 July, (f) 5 July, (g) 7 July, (h) 13 July, (i) 18 July, (j) 19 July, (k) 20 July and (l) 21 July. [156171]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not held centrally.

Hospitals: Admissions

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many acute hospitals in England rapid screen elective admissions. [156455]

Ann Keen [holding answer 8 October 2007]: Information on rapid methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) screening is not available centrally but we believe that it is used in a small number of hospitals.

However, on 4 October, in his interim report 'Our NHS, Our Future', Lord Darzi announced the introduction of MRSA screening for all elective admissions from next year, and for all emergency admissions as soon as practicable within the next three years.

Incontinence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to publish guidance on continence services as part of the planned high-level report on developing services for older people with complex needs. [156217]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The key messages for developing services for older people with complex needs were outlined in the National Clinical Director for Older People's reconfiguration report "A Recipe for Care" published in January of this year. There are no plans to issue further guidance on continence services but the National Clinical Director continues to advise Ministers on developing services for older people with complex needs and will continue to publish evidence-based information to support service development.

The management of continence is a key issue for the care of older people, as highlighted in Standard 2 of the National Service Framework for Older People and is one of the conditions for which early intervention is recommended, as outlined in "A Recipe for Care".

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the results of the second survey of continence care for older people undertaken by the Royal College of Physicians. [156219]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We have made no assessment of the results of the second survey of continence care undertaken by the Royal College of Physicians.

Incontinence: Children

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what specific measures are in place to deliver an incontinence service for younger people and disabled children. [156215]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The assessment of paediatric continence services is for local primary care trusts (PCTs), with a view to compliance with standard six of the national service framework for children. This standard includes a specific section on paediatric incontinence. The provision of continence services for younger people and disabled children is the responsibility of local PCTs, with a view to compliance with standard six of the national service framework for children. This standard includes a specific section on paediatric incontinence.

Incontinence: Home Care Services

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans he has to carry out a review of the impact on elderly people of changes to the home delivery service of incontinence products; [156216]

(2) how many health authorities provide an integrated incontinence service; [156218]

(3) what powers are available to the Government to oblige health bodies to comply with the guidelines contained in Good Practice in Continence Services; and whether sanctions are available for non-compliance; [156220]

(4) whether the Government plans to carry out research to ascertain how many people suffer from incontinence, broken down by (a) the age and sex of those affected and (b) the form of incontinence. [156222]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We have no plans to carry out research into the number of people living with incontinence.

Information on the number of strategic health authorities (SHAs) proving an integrated continence service is not collected centrally.

We currently have no plans to review the impact on older people of the changes to the home delivery service of continence products.

Health bodies are expected to have regard for the guidance contained in the document "Good Practice in Continence Services". SHAs have a duty to ensure that primary care trusts provide acceptable continence services. The Healthcare Commission may intervene where health bodies fail to provide an adequate level of service.

Maternity Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2007, Official Report, column 176W, on maternity services, on what evidential basis the figure for live births in England in 2006 was estimated; and what percentage change this figure represented from live births in England in 2005. [154274]

Ann Keen: In 2005 there were 613,028 live births in England. In 2006 there were 635,748 live births. This was a 3.7 per cent. increase on live births in England in 2005. The figure for live births in the original reply was for England and Wales whereas these figures are England only. This information is given in the table. Table 6 of the "Office for National Statistics Births (Provisional), Selected Background Data, England and Wales" and is published on the ONS website at:

www.statistics.gov.uk/downloads/theme_population/Table_6_Area_Health.xls

The figure for the number of live births in England 2006 comes from the details collected when births are registered. Registering a birth is a legal requirement and must be done within 42 days of the birth. Births to residents of England which are registered elsewhere are excluded, while births registered in England whose usual residence is elsewhere, are included.

[2] The general fertility rate (GFR) is the number of live births per 1,000 women aged 15 to 44.
[3] The total fertility rate (TFR) is the average number of children that would be born per woman if women experienced the age-specific fertility rates of the year in question throughout their childbearing lifespan.

Midwives: Pay

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on progress on implementing the pay rise for midwives payable in financial year 2007-08. [154476]

Ann Keen: Discussions continue between the Department, the NHS Employers organisation and the national health service unions about this year's pay award. We are hopeful the outcome from these talks will enable the award to be implemented shortly.

Musculoskeletal Disorders

Patrick Hall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions his Department has had with the Department for Work and Pensions on the implementation of the Musculoskeletal Services Framework as a method of reducing (a) long-term sickness and (b) the number of people claiming incapacity benefit. [154697]

Ann Keen: We are not aware of any discussions between departmental officials and the Department for Work and Pensions on the implementation of the musculoskeletal services framework as a method of reducing long-term sickness and the number of people claiming incapacity benefit.

The framework was published as good practice guidance and it is for local organisations to decide how best to implement it.

Patrick Hall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information the National Clinical and Health Outcomes Database captures on musculoskeletal system problems; and how much expenditure this covers within that category of expenditure within the National Programme Budgeting Database. [154698]

Ann Keen: The clinical and health outcomes knowledge base contains comparative data from over 700 health and local government organisations. Databases capturing information on musculoskeletal problems include:

The United Kingdom pain database;
The national spinal injuries centre medical research database,
The national joint registry;
Norfolk arthritis register;
National total hip replacement outcomes study; and
Trent and North West arthroplasty registers.

Information on the expenditure covered by these databases is not available.

Patrick Hall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans there are to extend the clinical and health outcomes data collected in relation to musculoskeletal system problems (excluding trauma). [154783]

Ann Keen: We are not aware of any specific plans to extend the clinical and health outcomes data collected in relation to musculoskeletal problems.

NHS: Alcoholic Drinks

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS staff were given time off for treatment for either alcohol or drug abuse in each of the last five years. [156672]

Ann Keen: Data are not collected centrally on how many national health service staff are given time off for treatment for either alcohol or drug abuse. It is the responsibility of NHS employers to support their staff with any health related problems, ensuring that patient safety is also taken into consideration.

NHS: ICT

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the annual survey of NHS information management and technology expenditure is expected to be published. [155864]

Mr. Bradshaw: Full results and analysis from the 2006 survey were published in January 2007. A copy of the survey results has been placed in the House Library and can also be found online at:

www.connectingforhealth.nhs.uk/resources/funding.

Information from the 2007 survey is expected to be published in January 2008.

NHS: Internet

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total set-up costs were for the Our NHS, Our Future consultation website; what was the total cost to his Department of the COI Communications video presented via the website; and what ongoing costs will be incurred by his Department for the upkeep of the website. [156389]

Ann Keen: The success of the review depends on good communication and the involvement of patients, public and staff. The set-up costs of the communications website are expected to total around £6,000, and the film about £20,000. The ongoing costs of the upkeep of the website will relate to the content as it develops over the course of the review.

Organs: Donors

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps the Government are taking to increase the number of people on the organ donor register; [154268]

(2) how many people were on the organ donor register in each of the last 10 years; [154269]

(3) what proportion of families refused consent to donate relatives' organs in the case of (a) all deaths, (b) deaths where the individual was on the organ donor register and (c) deaths where the individual was not on the organ donor register in the latest period for which figures are available. [154270]

Ann Keen: The number on the organ donor register in each of the last 10 years is shown in the following table.

	Added in year	Million Total at end
1994	0.14	0.14
1995	2.21	2.35
1996	1.39	3.74
1997	0.92	4.66
1998	0.87	5.53
1999	1.51	7.04
2000	1.23	8.27
2001	0.74	9.01
2002	1.08	10.09
2003	0.87	10.96
2004	0.96	11.92
2005	1.01	12.93
2006	1.04	13.97

Information on family refusal is only collected in the case of deceased potential heartbeating donors for whom solid organ donation was considered and whose family were approached for consent to donation.

In these cases, the overall refusal rate was 39.9 per cent. In cases whereby the potential donor was known to be on the organ donor register, the family refusal rate was 6.5 per cent. In cases where it was known that the potential donor was not on the organ donor register, the family refusal rate was 36.6 per cent.

The Department launched "Saving Lives, Valuing Donors: A Transplant Framework for England" in 2003 and the National Service Framework for Renal Services in 2004. These set out the Department's key aims for organ and tissue transplantation over the following 10 years. Government investment in hospital-based funding has helped increase donor rates and an organ donor taskforce will report to Ministers in autumn 2007 on how organ donor rates can be further improved. Following the publication of the chief medical officer's annual report in July, the taskforce will also examine the potential impact on organ donation of introducing an 'opt out' or presumed consent scheme.

Paediatrics: Foreign Workers

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many international medical graduates were excluded from applying for paediatrics because they did not have highly skilled migrant programme status on 5 February 2007. [154796]

Ann Keen: No candidates have been excluded from applying for programmes in the specialty training recruitment process because they were not on the highly skilled migrant programme on February 2007.

However the applications of applicants who do not meet the right to work criteria should only be considered if there are no suitable United Kingdom or European economic area applicants.

Paediatrics: Training

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what proportion of total training posts in paediatrics in England have been filled with junior doctors in training programmes for (a) paediatricians and (b) general practice; [154794]

(2) what proportion of paediatric training posts were unfilled on (a) 26 July and (b) 8 October 2007. [154795]

Ann Keen: The answer is as follows:

89 per cent. of posts in paediatrics have been filled as at 26 July 2007.

91 per cent. of posts in paediatrics have been filled as at 2 September 2007.

100 per cent. of posts in general practice have been filled.

Round two is still ongoing.

The proportion of paediatric training posts that will be unfilled at 8 October 2007 is not available yet.

Peterborough and Stamford Hospital NHS Foundation Trust: Agency Nurses

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on agency nurses providing temporary cover in the Peterborough and Stamford Hospital NHS Foundation Trust area in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [154762]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 8 October 2007]: Information on how much was spent on agency nurses at Peterborough hospital prior to the trust attaining foundation trust status are shown in the following table.

Non-NHS staff (agency, etc.) (by national health service classification) salaries and wages—nursing, midwifery and health visiting

Secure Psychiatric Units

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of whether there is sufficient capacity in existing regional medium secure units to meet the need for such places in each region; in which regions there is an assessed shortfall; what the extent is of the shortfall in each case; and what plans are in place to address the shortfall. [156082]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Data on capacity for medium secure services are not routinely collected by the Department. The Department works to support local commissioners, as it is the responsibility of local commissioners to assess service needs in their area and plan accordingly. A capacity review of high and medium secure services was completed in January 2006 in order to inform policy on this issue and to help support commissioners. This capacity review took into consideration historical utilisation, changing legislation (e.g. draft Mental Health Bill and public protection orders), court sentencing trends, prison transfers and the needs of different patient groups (e.g. women, learning disabled men, patients with dangerous and severe personality disorder and deaf patients).

The review concluded that the need for medium secure capacity was gradually rising and robust local commissioning plans were necessary to ensure that there was strategic planning on a regional basis to deliver additional medium secure capacity in a co-ordinated way and to ensure that commissioning delivered good value for money. As at January 2006 when the review took place, there were 29 national health service medium secure units providing around 1,972 beds, with a further 1,500 beds provided by the independent sector. This has now increased and there are 32 NHS medium secure units.

The capacity review set out three projections for increases in medium secure capacity, based on variations in trends. The low projections were the lowest capacity increase likely and the high projections were the highest capacity increase likely. The medium projections were the most likely and, in subsequent discussions with stakeholders, the medium projections were thought to be reasonable. An extract from the review with a breakdown of capacity and projections by catchment areas is shown in the following tables. In total, the medium projections in the capacity review predicted an increase in capacity of 614 beds for men and 85 beds for women between 2005-06 and 2010-11, so a total of 699 beds. The NHS is on course to exceed this projected increase in capacity in medium secure services, as long as outlined local plans are followed.

The NHS have been working on local commissioning plans to ensure strategic planning on a regional basis. These local commissioning plans are under constant review by local commissioners and are updated to take account of changing local circumstances.

Smoking: Public Houses

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the change in revenues of public houses in England since the introduction of the ban on smoking in public places; and if he will make a statement. [156172]

Dawn Primarolo: While it is still too early to make any definitive statement about the economic impact of the law which came into operation on 1 July 2007 in England, based on our regulatory impact assessment (RIA) we are not expecting a significant positive or negative impact on the industry.

The RIA is available in the Library and at:

Social Services: Per Capita Costs

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the spending per head was on social services in (a) Cornwall, (b) the South West and (c) England in each year since 1979. [156315]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: There would be disproportionate costs incurred to produce this information across the whole time period requested. The following table shows the average per capita social services spending from 2000-01 to 2005-06 for England, the South West and Cornwall.

	England total	South West	Cornwall
2000-01	222	182	167

Notes:
1. The table shows total net cost of social services per head of population, this is the total spend excluding capital charges minus income received from client contributions and other income which includes income from the national health service.
2. In 2003-04 the Supported People Grant was introduced which should be taken into consideration when making comparisons over time. The expenditure information is actual spend and has not been adjusted for inflation.

Teenage Pregnancy

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department is on course to meet the 2010 target for halving the conception rate of under 18s. [152182]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

2005 under-18 conception rate data—published by the Office for National Statistics in February 2007—showed that since the 1998 baseline year, the under-18 conception rate in England fell by 11.8 per cent., to its lowest level for over 20 years. The under-16 rate fell by 12.1 per cent. over the same period.

Notwithstanding these achievements, we need to see faster progress in order to achieve the challenging target of halving the under-18 conception rate by 2010. Consequently, we have issued guidance to local authorities and primary care trusts, setting out the key features of local strategies in areas where teenage conception rates have fallen fastest. All areas have been asked to review their strategies against this guidance, with a view to raising all areas' performance to the levels of the best. If all areas had performed as well as the top quartile, the national reduction would be 26 per cent.—more than twice the 11.8 per cent. reduction that has actually been achieved.

Transplant Surgery

Mr. Laxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps are being taken to improve the rate at which human organs become available for transplant. [154358]

Ann Keen: The Department launched 'Saving Lives, Valuing Donors: A Transplant Framework for England' in 2003 and the National Service Framework for Renal Services in 2004. These set out the Department's key aims for organ and tissue transplantation over the following 10 years. Government investment in hospital based funding has helped increase donor rates and an organ donor taskforce will report to Ministers in autumn 2007 on how organ donor rates can be further improved. Following the publication of the Chief Medical Officer's annual report in July, the taskforce will also examine the potential impact on organ donation of introducing an opt out or presumed consent scheme.

Warrington Hospital

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) outpatient appointments and (b) operations there were at Warrington hospital in each of the last five years. [147388]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information is not available in the format requested. The tables show the number of out-patient appointments and the number of finished consultant episodes with an operation at North Cheshire Hospitals NHS Trust.

Count of finished consultant episodes (FCEs) with an Operation (OPCS-4 codes between A01-X59 or and (operation code not known)) as reported by the North Cheshire Hospitals NHS Trust (RWW). Note that this excludes procedures performed as outpatients.

NHS Hospitals England

Data year	Count of FCEs with an operation
2001-02	40,885
2002-03	39,433
2003-04	38,578
2004-05	31,312
2005-06	30,684

Notes:
1. The NHS Information Centre has investigated with North West Strategic Health Authority and North Cheshire Hospitals NHS Trust the reason for the reported decrease in the number of FCEs with an operation. The main cause of this decrease is that between 2002-03 and 2004-05 the trust stopped recoding certain procedures as being performed in a day case setting and started recording them as being performed in outpatients. Information is not available centrally on total procedures performed in outpatients. Data reclassification issues are being picked up by the Information Centre and the Audit Commission. From April 2007 onwards the trust will revert to counting this activity as a day case.
2. Finished Consultant Episode (FCE)
An FCE is defined as a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Please note that the figures do not represent the number of patients, as a person may have more than one episode of care within the year.
3. Finished Consultant Episode (FCE) with an Operation
A count of FCEs with an operation is the number of episodes with at least one coded procedure field. Please note that more procedures are carried out than finished consultant episodes with an operation. For example, patients undergoing a cataract operation would tend to have at least two procedures—removal of the faulty lens and the fitting of a new one—counted in a single finished consultant episode.
4. Data Quality
Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS Trusts and Primary Care Trusts (PCTs) in England. The Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.
5. Ungrossed data
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).

Wheelchairs

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what representations he has received from wheelchair users groups in relation to proposed changes to wheelchair provision and other community equipment services; [155953]

(2) what steps the Government are taking to prepare for future demand for wheelchair provision; [155954]

(3) if he will make a statement on proposed changes to the provision of wheelchairs and other such equipment for the disabled, currently being considered. [155955]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Prime Minister launched the Transforming Community Equipment and Wheelchair Services Programme in June 2006 to work collaboratively with stakeholders to develop a radical new model for delivery of community equipment and wheelchair services in England, which has users and carers at its heart. The intention was to look at the two services in parallel, but this has not been feasible.

Two potential models were developed for wheelchair services. However, without robust data it was not possible to make recommendations for the way forward. This is of particular concern in view of the successive reports over the last 20 years which have consistently argued for modernisation and investment in the wheelchair services. A further data gathering exercise was agreed, this will report back to the Ministers in December 2007.

The programme has engaged with users, carers and organisations that represent them since the beginning. This continues through the user representative group and a user and carer questionnaire.

We have been working with individual wheelchair users and carers of people who use wheelchairs as well as representatives of:

Action for Kids;

Muscular Dystrophy Campaign;

Multiple Sclerosis Society;

Spinal Injuries Association;

Em Power;

Whiz-Kidz;

Limbless Association;

National Forum Wheelchair User Groups; and

Motor Neurone Disease Association.

The questionnaire offers users and carers an opportunity to comment on the chairs they currently have and make suggestions for change. It is available on the CSED website at:

www.csed.csip.org.uk/workstreams/transforming-community-equipment-wheelchair-services/wheelchair-services/wheelchair-services-user-questionnaire.html

and through the third sector organisations both through their publications and websites. Wheelchair services are also helping reach those users and carers who are unable to access the web.

The analysis of the questionnaires will continue u til the end of November and the results will feed into the development of the business case.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departments: Aviation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent by his Department on (a) business and (b) first class flights in the last 12 months. [153286]

Edward Miliband: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my predecessor my right hon. Friend the Member for North-West Durham (Hilary Armstrong) to the hon. Member for Hertford and Stortford (Mr. Prisk) on 21 June 2007, Official Report, columns 2048-49W. Information relating to Ministers overseas travel for 2006-07 was published on 25 July 2007 and is available in the Libraries of the Houses for the reference of Members.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what the (a) purpose and (b) cost was of each payment by the Cabinet Office to Opinion Leader Research in 2005-06; [146862]

(2) what the (a) amount and (b) purpose was of each payment made by his Department to Opinion Leader Research in the last 12 months; [147031]

(3) pursuant to the answer of 13 June 2007, Official Report, column 1038W, how much his Department has paid to Opinion Leader Research since 1997. [147040]

Edward Miliband: The Cabinet Office made three payments to Opinion Leader Research in 2005-06; for £14,100, £15,098.02 and £32,900.

These payments were made by the Office of Public Sector Reform for the "Provision of services to deliver two Policy Collaborative events to collate views of victims of volume crime and gain an understanding of what victims of volume crime want from the criminal justice system and compare their perceptions of a 'quality service' with existing plans to reform the criminal justice system".

Since 1997, the Cabinet Office has made 17 payments to Opinion Leader Research at a total value of £194,000. All contracts were awarded following a competitively tendered process. None of these payments were made in the past 12 months.

Departments: Press

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) to which periodicals his Department subscribes; [153289]

(2) how much was spent by his Department on newspapers and magazines in the last 12 months; [153290]

(3) what magazines, newspapers and periodicals his Department subscribed to before 27 June; and which one his Department has subscribed to since that date. [153530]

Gillian Merron: The information requested is not held centrally and therefore is available only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Redundancy Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent by his Department on redundancy payments in the last 12 months. [153283]

Gillian Merron: The Cabinet Office has not had any redundancies in the last 12 months.

Departments: Taxis

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent by his Department on taxis in the last 12 months. [153294]

Gillian Merron: This information is only available at disproportionate cost.

All travel is undertaken in accordance with the Civil Service Management Code and the Ministerial Code.

Departments: Tribunals

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent by his Department on industrial tribunals in the last 12 months. [153288]

Gillian Merron: The Cabinet Office has not incurred any Industrial (Employment) Tribunal costs in the last 12 months.

Departments: Vacancies

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) of 2 July 2007, Official Report, columns 901-02W, on departments: vacancies, whether the Government Communication Network website previously listed on its public website jobs for Government communicators and other civil servants that were not open to the public. [153638]

Edward Miliband: The Government Communication Network website only ever listed jobs which were open to the public on the public part of the website. Vacancies which were only open to Government communicators and other civil servants were listed on the password protected part of the site—which was only open to civil servants. Therefore there has been no change to what job vacancies members of the public can see.

Emergencies: Facilities

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) bowsers and (b) portaloos the public sector has access to for utilising in a national emergency situation; whether there are plans to increase those numbers; and if he will make a statement. [154345]

Edward Miliband: The Public sector does not have access to a specific number of bowsers and portaloos but each water company holds a stock of emergency equipment. Mutual aid arrangements exist between water companies to provide bowsers and other equipment to a water company that is dealing with an emergency. These arrangements can be further augmented, if necessary, with equipment from the public and private sectors. Portaloos and other sanitary equipment can be sourced by a variety of means including local authorities and private contractors when necessary.

Capability in these areas can be further increased by requesting assistance through established mutual aid arrangements with EU partners.

The review announced by Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on 12 July will consider whether or not the existing arrangements for the provision of such items are adequate and make recommendations for improvement where necessary.

FutureBuilders England

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the cost was of redesigning the FutureBuilders logo. [154604]

Phil Hope: The redesign of the Futurebuilders logo cost £6,500. The redesign was part of a wider strategy by Futurebuilders England to improve brand awareness and understanding of the fund to its key audiences. It was launched by Futurebuilders England on 1 January 2007.

NHS: ICT

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will place in the Library all papers concerning the seminar at Downing Street in February 2002 to discuss the future of IT in the NHS. [155034]

Edward Miliband: It is not normal practice to place copies of the Prime Minister's internal working papers in the Library of the House.

Smith Institute

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what meetings Cabinet Office ministers have held with representatives of the Smith Institute since May 2005. [155628]

Edward Miliband: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 22 March 2007, Official Report, column 1100W.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Constitutional Treaty

12. Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the changes between the EU constitutional treaty and the proposed EU reform treaty are. [156135]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The constitutional treaty is now defunct. The Inter-Governmental Conference Mandate agreed by the June European Council states that

"The constitutional concept has been abandoned."

While all member states have moved away from the constitution, the UK has a specific treaty deal which means we have moved further than anyone else from the constitution.

15. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in negotiations in the intergovernmental conference on the proposed EU reform treaty. [156139]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The legal group producing the draft treaty finished their work on 3 October.

We believe that the UK red lines will be achieved and we are confident that we can persuade our European partners that this is the right deal for the UK and EU.

19. Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what Government policy is on the conduct of a national referendum on the proposed treaty changing the constitutional arrangements of the European Union; and if he will make a statement. [156144]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The UK has only ever held one national referendum, which was in 1975. We will seek parliamentary ratification of this Reform Treaty. In doing so we shall adopt a similar approach to that adopted by the Governments of Tony Blair, Sir John Major and Baroness Thatcher.

Portugal: British Citizens

13. Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he last met his Portuguese counterpart to discuss issues relating to British holiday-makers in that country. [156136]

Mr. Jim Murphy: UK Ministers have regular contacts with Portuguese counterparts to discuss a range of issues.

Foreign and Commonwealth Office Ministers also discuss consular specific cases with Portuguese Ministers when necessary.

Iran

14. Sir Malcolm Rifkind: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the Iranian nuclear programme. [156137]

David Miliband: I refer the right hon. and learned Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for North Essex (Mr. Jenkin) today (UIN 156131).

Iraq

16. Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in Iraq. [156140]

Dr. Howells: Political progress, particularly on national reconciliation, is critical to improving the situation in Iraq. I welcome the agreements reached at the leaders' conference in Baghdad in August and the emphasis Prime Minister Maliki gave to reconciliation in his recent speech at the UN General Assembly. We are urging the Iraqis to maintain positive momentum and ensure practical follow-up.

Tibet

17. Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he is taking to ensure journalists have free access to Tibet. [156141]

Meg Munn: We welcome the regulations implemented by the Chinese Government on 1 January to relax restrictions on foreign journalists in China. At the last round of the UK-China Human Rights Dialogue, the Chinese Government confirmed the regulations applied in Tibet. We are concerned, however, that like all visitors to Tibet, journalists must still seek permission to enter the region from the local authorities and will continue to raise this with China.

Zimbabwe

18. Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the political situation in Zimbabwe. [156142]

Meg Munn: The situation in Zimbabwe is appalling. That is why my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister is clear he will not attend an EU-Africa summit in Europe with President Mugabe. That is also why we are working for change by giving up to £40 million in humanitarian aid a year; maintaining international pressure on the regime; and supporting those working in Zimbabwe for democratic change.

Middle East Peace Process

20. Dr. Palmer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the Middle East peace process. [156145]

Dr. Howells: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for South Staffordshire (Sir Patrick Cormack) today (UIN156128).

21. Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the progress made in the Middle East peace process. [156146]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for South Staffordshire (Sir Patrick Cormack) today (UIN156128).

UK and US Relations

22. Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the US Administration on the UK's special relationship with the US. [156147]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has a regular dialogue with his American counterpart. As both my right hon. Friends the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary have said repeatedly, our relationship with the United States will continue to be the single most important bilateral relationship for the United Kingdom. Our discussions with the US Administration take place within this very clear context.

Afghanistan: Drugs

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what assessment the Government have made of heroin and poppy production in areas of Afghanistan (a) not controlled by the Taliban and (b) under the control of the Allies; [156014]

(2) what recent assessment the Government have made of poppy and heroin production from the areas of Afghanistan under the control of the Taliban. [156015]

Dr. Howells: The Government do not carry out independent assessments of the heroin and poppy production in Afghanistan. Poppy cultivation figures are measured by the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime. The figures do not take into account the control of land on which poppy is cultivated. Nor has there been a study defining locations of heroin laboratories on land inside or outside of government control. But there is a clear link between poppy cultivation and insecurity, shown by the fact that over 75 per cent. cultivation takes place in the least secure southern provinces. In the more secure central and northern regions, cultivation generally appears to be decreasing or stabilising. The number of "poppy free provinces" has increased from six in 2006 to 13 in 2007, demonstrating that where the integrated approach set out in the government of Afghanistan's national drug control strategy can be brought to bear, it is delivering results.

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs who represented the UK at the conference held in Afghanistan on 29 August 2007 on counternarcotics; whether there will be any change in the ISAF counternarcotic strategy as a result of the conference; and if he will make a statement. [156431]

Dr. Howells: The UK was represented at the 3rd National Counter Narcotics Conference in Kabul by our ambassador in Afghanistan, Sir Sherard Cowper-Coles.

The International Security Assistance Force is providing increasing support to the Afghan Counter Narcotics effort. Recently this has included help with this year's pre-planting campaign and support to Afghan law enforcement and interdiction operations.

Afghanistan: Politics and Government

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on associations between members of the Afghanistan parliament and al-Qaeda. [156013]

Dr. Howells: We have not received any reports and are not aware of any associations between members of the Afghan parliament and al-Qaeda.

Bermuda Housing Corporation

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the outcome of the Metropolitan Police inquiry initiated by John Verveker, Governor of Bermuda, into the leak of Bermuda police documents relating to the Bermuda Housing Corporation. [155816]

Meg Munn: Two senior officers (one recently retired) from Kent Constabulary visited Bermuda in June 2007, at the request of the Commissioner of Police, to review the conduct of the Bermuda Police Service investigation into the leak of confidential police files. They concluded that the investigation was being managed in a competent and professional manner.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will appoint a senior United Kingdom police officer to conduct an inquiry into allegations of impropriety in the conduct of the Bermuda Housing Corporation's affairs. [155817]

Meg Munn: These allegations were fully investigated at the time by the appropriate authorities in Bermuda with support from New Scotland Yard.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the findings of the fraud squad investigation concluded in August 2004 into the Bermuda Housing Corporation. [155822]

Meg Munn: A thorough investigation, assisted by officers from New Scotland Yard, resulted in criminal proceedings leading to a custodial sentence.

Bermuda: Armed Forces

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent inspection of the Royal Bermuda Regiment has been conducted to ensure that deficiencies identified in the report submitted in November 2005 following the inspection conducted by Colonel Baxter have been remedied and his recommendations implemented; and if he will make a statement. [155804]

Meg Munn: Colonel Fairclough, Assistant Military Attache at our embassy in Washington, assessed the Bermuda Regiment's capability in November 2006. Good progress has been made on implementing recommendations from Colonel Baxter with regard to training and in particular on improved training for junior commanders. In terms of equipment replacement—namely vehicles, communications, weapons and boats—bids for funding have been submitted to the Bermuda government and are to be addressed over a five-year period.

Bermuda: Police

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what response the Governor of Bermuda has made to the request of Senator Burch, Minister of Public Safety, on 14 August 2007 that he help address Bermuda's policing difficulties; and if he will make a statement. [156332]

Meg Munn: Under the Bermuda Constitution, the Governor has overall responsibility for the police. He has made it clear on several occasions that there will be no change in this. The Governor discusses policing issues on a regular basis with both the Premier and the Minister of Public Safety.

Bermuda: Territorial Waters

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what financial contribution has been made by the Government towards the cost of law enforcement and national security in and around the territorial waters of Bermuda; and if he will make a statement. [156334]

Meg Munn: The security of the UK Overseas Territories is the responsibility of the Government. Consequently, Bermuda benefits from assistance provided by Regional Law Enforcement and Maritime Training Advisers funded by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. Bermuda is also visited on a regular basis by Royal Navy ships. The Government of Bermuda, however, meets the cost of its own law enforcement, including within its territorial waters.

British Council: Information Officers

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many press officers are employed by the British Council. [154634]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The British Council has two press officers working in London. In addition there are two members of staff who spend half their time on press office work.

In most of the 110 countries where the British Council operates, there is a member of staff who has responsibility for press office work although, particularly in smaller operations, this only forms part of their duties.

British Overseas Territories

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on which dates over the past three years governors of overseas territories who were retiring from the Diplomatic Service have despatched valedictory e-grams or telegrams; and if he will make a statement. [155809]

Meg Munn: The Governors of the British Virgin Islands, the Cayman Islands and the Falkland Islands have retired from the Diplomatic Service in the past three years. Their valedictory e-grams were despatched on 26 October 2005, 7 April 2006 and 15 August 2006.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the GDP per head of population is in (a) pounds sterling and (b) US dollars of each of the UK overseas territories, listed in descending order of population size. [155812]

Meg Munn: Gross domestic product (GDP) per head calculations rely on information about economic activity (GDP) and population. All GDP calculations are made by the overseas territories (OTs), who employ either specialised statisticians or analysts. The accuracy of GDP depends on the analytical input that such small offices are able to devote to calculating it. Population data are based on a census, which is usually carried out every few years, as in the United Kingdom. Population estimates have to be made for intermediate years.

Therefore GDP per capita figures will vary in accuracy, and it is not unusual for estimates to be revised after they have been published. The varying populations of the OTs compound this—a small change in population can have a bigger effect on GDP per capita.

The following table lists the OTs best estimates of GDP per capita for 2005 (or 2004 in the case of the Falkland Islands).

	Population	GDP per head (sterling)	GDP per head ($US)
Bermuda	63,571	42,636	76,403
Cayman Islands	48,353	27,179	48,704
Turks and Caicos Islands	30,602	8,752	15,683
Gibraltar	28,779	20,511	36,756
British Virgin Islands	27,000	21,205	38,000
Anguilla	13,638	5,419	9,711
Montserrat	4,785	4,295	7,696
St. Helena	4,100	3,137	5,622
Falkland Islands	2,955	25,350	46,124
Pitcairn Islands	45	1,889	3,385

These figures are based on £/$US exchange rate at 1 July in the relevant year. The St. Helena figure does not include the dependencies of Ascension Island and Tristan da Cunha, for which data are not available.

The other OTs—British Indian Ocean Territory, South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands, Sovereign Base areas on Cyprus, and the British Antarctic Territory—have no settled populations.

Burma

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the UN Secretary-General regarding Burma. [155719]

Meg Munn: We have kept in regular contact with the UN Secretary-General and his staff during the recent events in Burma. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister wrote to the UN Secretary-General on 25 September and spoke to him on 26 September. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed Burma with the UN Secretary-General on 28 September.

Burma: Armed Forces

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what estimate the UK Government have made of the number of forcibly conscripted child soldiers in the Burma Army; and what reports he has received on the conditions in which they are held; [155672]

(2) what steps he has taken to raise the issue of the forced conscription of child soldiers with the Burmese regime. [155673]

Meg Munn: We receive regular reports about forced recruitment and the use and ill treatment of child soldiers in Burma. We are unable to estimate the number of forcibly recruited soldiers.

On 2 October, the Human Rights Council (HRC) passed a resolution sponsored by the EU, with the strong support of the UK, which expressed deep concern about the situation in Burma. In our statement to the HRC, we drew attention to the regime's persistent violations of human rights, including the use of child soldiers.

We have repeatedly raised the issue with the Burmese regime. My right hon. Friend the Member for Makerfield (Mr. McCartney), the then Minister for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs, raised our concerns with the Burmese Foreign Minister in Hamburg on 28 May.

Our ambassador in Rangoon takes every opportunity to raise human rights with the regime, most recently when he met the Burmese Deputy Foreign Minister and the Burmese Minister for Labour on 25 September.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the UN Special Representative for Children and Armed Conflict following his visit to Burma. [155674]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no discussions with the UN Special Representative for Children and Armed Conflict, Ms Coomaraswamy, following her visit to Burma. However, Ms Coomaraswamy did meet our ambassador in Rangoon during her visit.

Burma: Defence Equipment

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the sale of military helicopters to Burma by India containing parts manufactured or designed by (a) EU and (b) UK companies. [154330]

Meg Munn: We are aware of the report published by non-governmental organisations saying that the Indian Government is planning to transfer advanced light helicopters to Burma.

On 27 July, the EU Troika in New Delhi delivered a demarche on the Indian Government about the reported transfer of the helicopters to Burma. They reminded the Indian Government of the long-standing common position on Burma, which includes an arms embargo, and the EU's deep concern about the situation there. The Indian Government reiterated that no such deal was under consideration.

Burma: Politics and Government

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the National Convention and constitution drafting process in Burma. [155717]

Meg Munn: We have repeatedly called on the regime to make progress towards genuine national reconciliation by involving all political and ethnic groups in the National Convention process. Many of these groups did not participate in the National Convention and have not been consulted on the constitutional drafting process. We therefore believe the process lacks all credibility.

Burma: Religious Freedom

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the UN Special Rapporteur for Freedom of Religion and Belief on violations of religious freedom against Christians, Muslims and Buddhists in Burma. [155718]

Meg Munn: There are severe restrictions on the freedom of all religions in Burma, including towards members of the majority Buddhist faith, particularly if they are perceived as anti-government. We condemn all instances where individuals face persecution or discrimination because of their faith or belief, wherever they happen and whatever the religion of the individual or group concerned.

We have had no discussions with the UN Special Rapporteur for Freedom of Religion and Belief about Burma.

We regularly raise our concerns about human rights in Burma with the regime and in international forums. The UN Secretary-General discussed Burma with my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 26 September and my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary on 28 September.

On 2 October, the Human Rights Council (HRC) passed a strongly worded resolution sponsored by the EU, with the full support of the UK, which expressed deep concern about the situation in Burma. In our statement to the HRC, we drew attention to the regime's violations, including restrictions on the freedom of religion.

Chad

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he had with his European counterparts on a European Union military mission to Chad during the meeting of Foreign Ministers in Viana do Castelo, Portugal, 7 to 8 September 2007; and if he will make a statement. [156603]

Meg Munn: The EU General Affairs and External Relations Council on 23 July approved a European Security and Defence Policy mission to Chad as a bridging force until the UN itself is able to deploy a peacekeeping mission there. The UK strongly endorsed this proposed deployment. The meeting of Foreign Ministers in Viana do Castelo, Portugal, on 7 to 8 September, discussed the implementation of this decision.

On 25 September the UK co-sponsored UN Security Council Resolution 1778, which authorised the deployment of an EU military mission to Chad and the Central African Republic and approved a UN multi-dimensional mission to operate in co-operation with the EU force. The UK hopes that both the EU mission and the UN multi-dimensional mission will be able to deploy before the end of the year.

Chad: Internally Displaced Persons

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he has taken to ensure that the EU peacekeeping force in Chad will have a mandate to protect internally displaced people within Chad as well as refugees from Darfur; and if he will make a statement. [153880]

Meg Munn: On 25 September the UK co-sponsored UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1778, which authorises the deployment of a European Security and Defence Policy (ESDP) force to Chad and the Central African Republic and approves a UN multi-dimensional mission to operate in co-operation with the ESDP force.

As stated in UNSCR 1778, the ESDP force's 12 month mandate is to contribute to protecting refugees and displaced persons in eastern Chad, facilitate the delivery of humanitarian aid and contribute to protecting the UN operation. The UN operation is intended to build the capacity of the Chadian police to protect refugees from Darfur and the Central African Republic and internally displaced persons and help create a more secure environment in eastern Chad. The overall aim of the joint operation is to create the conditions necessary for voluntary, secure and sustainable return of refugees and internally displaced persons.

China: Human Rights

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the Government will urge the Chinese Government to release unconditionally Pastor Hua Huiqi and his mother Ms Shuang Shuying from detention. [154406]

Meg Munn: Pastor Hua Huiqi was released in July this year after serving his six-month sentence. We raised the case of Shuang Shuying, through the EU, at the most recent round of the EU-China Human Rights Dialogue, which was held in Berlin in May. We continue to monitor her case.

China: Sudan

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what work is being undertaken with the People's Republic of China to combat the conflict in Darfur. [155941]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friends the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary have asked their Chinese counterparts to use their influence in Sudan in support of the UN and African Union efforts to resolve the Darfur conflict, and to support implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement between north and south Sudan. My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, reinforced this message during his visit to China on 28-29 August when he said that

"we want China to be a major international player in the world; there is no alternative for the world but to have a responsible China sitting at the global table, helping to solve global issues".

We are working with Chinese officials on preparations for the peace talks for Darfur planned to start on 27 October and on early recovery efforts in Darfur.

Defence Attache Network

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect on the UK's relationship with those countries affected by the review of the Defence Attache Network; and what responses he has received from such countries on the review. [153742]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Government continue to place a high value on their international defence relations. In announcing the results of the Defence Attaché review, my right hon. Friend the Defence Secretary made clear in his written ministerial statement on 17 September 2007, Official Report, column 125WS our belief that this rebalancing of resources, which involves strengthening our representation in some countries and reducing it in others, including through non-resident accreditation, will ensure a network which is effective and relevant to our international interests. We have not received any formal responses from countries affected by this review.

Departments: Accountancy

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what accounts directions were issued by his Department in financial year (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [156679]

Mr. Jim Murphy: No accounts directions were issued by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in these financial years.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which private consultancy firms (a) his Department and (b) agencies which report to his Department engaged in each of the last three years; which programmes or projects each firm worked on; and what the approximate cost to the Department or agency concerned was of each engagement. [155869]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Annual expenditure on external consultants is published in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Department's annual reports, copies of which have been placed in the Library of the House. The two most recent annual reports also contain details of expenditure on the top five consultancy suppliers. The vast majority of work undertaken for the FCO by consultants is associated with its major Information Communication Technology and Estate construction programmes.

I also refer the hon. Member to the reply my right hon. Friend the Member for Ashfield (Mr. Hoon), the then Minister for Europe gave to the right hon. Member for Maidenhead (Mrs. May) on 24 May 2007, Official Report, column 1474W and the reply my right hon. Friend the Member for Derby, South (Margaret Beckett), the then Foreign Secretary gave to my right hon. Friend the Member for Leicester, East (Keith Vaz) on 16 May 2006, Official Report, columns 893-94W.

Diplomatic Relations: Members

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) hon. Members and (b) peers have been appointed special envoys to other nations since 1997. [156125]

Dr. Howells: Special representatives are appointed to show commitment and to drive progress on particular issues, or to gain access which would not otherwise be forthcoming. No central record of such appointments since 1997 is held. However, I understand that five right hon. and hon. Members and four Peers have been appointed as either special representatives or special envoys to other nations since 1997.

Entry Clearances

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many visa application processing centres have been outsourced; and what proportion of such applications are dealt with by such centres. [156486]

Dr. Howells: As at the end of September 2007, there were 85 outsourced Visa Application Centres. In September 2007, 57 per cent. of global UK visa applications were received and processed in Visa Application Centres.

EU Reform: Armed Forces

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment has been made of the likely impact of the EU Reform Treaty on UK military operations. [154255]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The current arrangements for UK military operations will not be affected by the EU Reform Treaty. The Treaty maintains the inter-governmental nature of the European Security and Defence Policy. It will not affect the UK's ability to undertake military operations, whether national or in a multilateral framework. The UK will continue to make forces available for EU-led operations on a voluntary and case-by-case basis. The launch of any EU operation requires unanimity among member states, therefore UK consent and any decision to deploy UK troops for an EU-led operation rests with the Government.

EU Reform: Climate Change

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of how changes to qualified majority voting in the European reform treaty would affect the ability of the UK and the EU to promote the environment and fight climate change. [156138]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Energy policy will move to qualified majority voting (QMV) in the reform treaty, making it easier to liberalise energy markets and improve energy security. More open markets will promote energy efficiency and allow consumers greater choice—which should reward green technologies.

This will make it easier to achieve targets agreed at the spring European Council.

Energy is an example of where the reform treaty moves to QMV can unlock decision-making in Britain's interests.

EU Reform: Treaties

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the UK Government will seek any modifications to the revised European Constitution. [154586]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to him on 10 September 2007, Official Report, column 2006W.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs in how many policy areas vetoes will be given up by the UK if the constitutional treaty comes into force; and what those areas are. [156473]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Shipley (Philip Davies) on 26 July 2007, Official Report, columns 1468-69W.

European Union: UK Delegation

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs for what reasons the office of the UK Permanent Representative to the EU, Strasbourg and UK Delegation to the Council of Europe Strasbourg do not share offices; and what the (a) cost of each office, (b) numbers of staff in each office and (c) floor space of each office was in the latest period for which figures are available. [156009]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The UK Permanent Representation to the EU does not have an office in Strasbourg. The office space used by UK officials is owned by the European Parliament and this is made available to the UK at no cost.

The UK Delegation to the Council of Europe occupies a building of 327 square metres in a residential area of Strasbourg. The office staff consists of five UK based staff and three locally recruited full-time staff plus one part time. The rental of the office in financial year (FY) 2006-07 was £31,181. The office running costs (utilities, rates, repairs and refurbishments) were £33,199 in FY 2006-07.

Iraq: Casualties

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many Iraqi (a) child and (b) adult civilian casualties there have been since March 2003. [156671]

Dr. Howells: The Government do not collate figures for civilian casualties in Iraq. The Government of Iraq is best placed to monitor the numbers of Iraqi civilian casualties, but we continue to believe that there are no comprehensive or reliable figures for deaths since March 2003 as estimates vary according to the method of collection.

Iraq: Oil

Michael Jabez Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the UK Government have made to the Iraqi government on the proposed Iraqi oil law; what advice has been given in relation to the partners with whom the Iraqi government should deal and the terms on which it should do so; and if he will make a statement. [156703]

Dr. Howells: We have encouraged the Iraqi government to consider a full range of options in formulating the hydrocarbons law and to consult widely. We have made no representations on specific structures or production contracts nor have we provided advice on whom the Iraqi government should deal with.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether (a) coalition forces and (b) the international community are to be involved in the investigation by the Iraqi authorities into neglect and abuse of children in Iraqi orphanages and other institutions; and if he will make a statement. [156086]

Dr. Howells: The Government are aware of US military reports in June that they discovered a number of abused and neglected children at an Iraqi orphanage in Baghdad. In response to these reports, the Iraqi Prime Minister announced an Iraqi Government investigation into the conditions at the orphanage. The UK has had no direct involvement in this investigation, nor are we aware of direct coalition or wider international involvement.

The UK is committed to supporting the Government of Iraq in its efforts to strengthen respect for human rights, with a particular focus on protecting the rights of the most vulnerable groups in society. In a country emerging from over three decades of dictatorship and which currently faces continued violence, this process will take time. We are working with the Government of Iraq and international partners to develop the infrastructure essential for promoting and protecting human rights, including a legislative framework and oversight bodies as well as the judiciary, courts, and independent civil society organisations. This will help ensure that the human rights of all Iraqis, including vulnerable groups such as women, children and minorities, are protected in the future.

Irian Jaya

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what steps he is taking to facilitate dialogue between the Indonesian government and representatives of the West Papuan Freedom Movement; [156434]

(2) what assessment he has made of the prison conditions of West Papua independence campaigners, with particular reference to (a) Filep Karma and (b) Yusak Pakage; [156459]

(3) what recent assessment he has made of the situation in West Papua; [156466]

(4) what representations he has made to the Government of Indonesia on the humanitarian situation in West Papua; [156467]

(5) what recent discussions he has had with the British Embassy in Jakarta on the situation in West Papua; [156468]

(6) what discussions he has had with the UN Special Representative, Hina Jilani, following her recent visit to West Papua; and what recent reports he has received from the UK Mission to the UN following the visit; [156469]

(7) what assessment he has made of the situation for environmental activists in West Papua. [156471]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not made representations about Papua to the Government of Indonesia.

Our embassy in Jakarta regularly discusses Papua with the Indonesian authorities and pushes for greater EU engagement on human rights issues including those related to Papua. The human rights situation in Indonesia has improved considerably in recent years and we assess that President Yudhoyono is sincere in his attempts to push through reforms, including in the security sector. The current peace process in Aceh is an indication of his willingness to be flexible in trying to address some of the long-running conflicts in Indonesia, and success here will make it easier for him to address the Papuan question effectively.

We believe that the best way to resolve the complex issues in Papua is through promoting peaceful dialogue between Papuan groups and the Indonesian government. We are in contact with Papuan activist groups in the UK and encourage dialogue between them and the Government of Indonesia.

We are not aware of any specific issues concerning environmental activists in Papua.

Officials from our embassy in Jakarta have raised the cases of Filip Karma and Yusak Pakage with the Indonesian Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Their defence lawyer told embassy officials that prison conditions were adequate and the two men were treated reasonably.

We have urged the Government of Indonesia to uphold the rights guaranteed through the International Conventions on Civil and Political Rights and Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, ratified by Indonesia in September 2005.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary is aware of the visit to Indonesia by UN Special Representative, Hina Jilani, but has had no direct discussion with her on the issue of Papua. Ms Jilani has received no reports from the UK Mission to the UN following her visit.

The UK, with our EU partners, is working towards greater engagement with the Indonesian government in support of human rights defenders. The EU presidency is in the process of discussing the EU Guidelines on Human Rights Defenders with the Indonesian Ministry of Foreign Affairs and hopes to work with them on this important issue in the near future.

North Korea: Political Prisoners

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will hold discussions with his North Korean counterpart on prisoners being held in prison camps for their (a) political and (b) religious beliefs. [155975]

Meg Munn: Foreign and Commonwealth Office Ministers and officials raise human rights issues—including arbitrary detention of prisoners for political and/or religious reasons—with members of the North Korean government at every reasonable opportunity. We do so through our embassy in Pyongyang and through contact with the North Korean embassy in London, as well as through the EU and UN.

We and EU partners have also been instrumental in creating—and retaining—the position of UN Special Rapporteur on Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK) human rights, and have sponsored a number of UN resolutions calling on the North Korean government to honour its UN commitments on human rights. The UN has also lobbied the government on specific individuals' cases.

The Government will continue to press the North Korean authorities on human rights abuses at every opportunity, urging them in particular to cooperate with UN mechanisms and to allow international monitors access to the country to verify or disprove reports of human rights abuses. It is deeply frustrating that the DPRK government has not responded to these requests.

Northern Cyprus

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many official visits by members of the British High Commission in Cyprus to northern Cyprus were made in each of the last three years; and what reports were received by the Department in London following each such visit. [156207]

Mr. Jim Murphy: It would incur disproportionate cost to collate the information requested by my hon. Friend on the number of official visits from staff at our High Commission in Nicosia to northern Cyprus. However, the High Commission's operation in Cyprus covers the whole territory of the Republic of Cyprus, providing services and engaging with Cypriots on both sides of the Green Line on a daily basis. Reports of their discussions are reported to the Department as necessary.

Northern Cyprus: Churches

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when a senior official from the British high commission in Cyprus last visited the Greek Cypriot churches and cemeteries in the villages of Patriki and Ayios Theodoros in the Karpas Peninsula; what reports were made and to whom after the last such visit; if he will make it his policy for such a visit to be conducted on a regular basis and reports published; and if he will make a statement. [156209]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Our high commissioner in Nicosia last visited the Greek Cypriot community in the Karpas region on 22 June and reported to the Department. This included visiting the church in Ayios Theodoros and was part of a regular pattern of visits which supplement the UN's humanitarian and monitoring activity. Since the opening of the Green Line in April 2003, Greek Cypriots resident in the south have also been able to travel to the area.

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what responsibilities the British Government have as one of the guarantor powers for Cyprus to seek to ensure the preservation of churches and cemeteries that belong to the Greek Cypriot community in northern Cyprus; and if he will make a statement. [156210]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Treaty of Guarantee only relates to the independence, territorial integrity and security of the Republic of Cyprus. However, we do call on the Turkish Cypriots to show sensitivity to Greek Cypriot churches and cemeteries in the north of Cyprus. Our high commissioner in Nicosia visited the Karpas region on 22 June and raised such issues with his Turkish Cypriot interlocutors.

Northern Cyprus: Property

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on the advice given to British citizens seeking to purchase a property in northern Cyprus; what steps the Government have taken to promulgate that advice; and if he will make a statement. [156202]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Through Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Travel Advice, the Government offers comprehensive guidance on the risks involved in purchasing property in northern Cyprus. This advice is regularly updated to reflect developments. We also provide advice over the phone to members of the public calling both the FCO and our High Commission in Nicosia.

We believe that the difficult and complex issue of property is only likely to be fully resolved in the context of a comprehensive settlement and we urge both sides to engage constructively with the United Nations to enable settlement negotiations to start as soon as possible. In our contacts with the Turkish Cypriot leadership, we recognise the Turkish Cypriots' need for economic development in support of reunification. But we urge them to ensure that any property development which does take place does so in a manner that is both environmentally sustainable and does not complicate an eventual solution.

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of properties (a) built and (b) under construction by property developers in northern Cyprus in each of the last five years which are available for purchase. [156204]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Government have not estimated the number of properties which have been built or which are under construction in northern Cyprus. However, significant property development in northern Cyprus has taken place over the last five years resulting in large numbers of new properties being built. We believe that the difficult and complex issue of property is only likely to be fully resolved in the context of a comprehensive settlement and we urge both sides to engage constructively with the United Nations to enable settlement negotiations to start as soon as possible. In our contacts with the Turkish Cypriot leadership, we recognise the Turkish Cypriots' need for economic development in support of reunification. But we urge them to ensure that any property development which does take place does so in a manner that is both environmentally sustainable and does not complicate an eventual solution.

Occupied Territories: Peace Negotiations

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the likely effectiveness of the Mecca agreement as a basis for peace between Israel and the Palestinians following the break down of the Palestinian Unity Government. [156344]

Dr. Howells: The Mecca agreement of 9 February 2007, was drawn up by Palestinian parties to end their political deadlock. The outcomes of the agreement were:

cessation of intra-Palestinian violence;

formation of a National Unity government;

reformation of the Palestine Liberation Organisation; and the need for political co-operation within the laws of the Palestinian National Authority.

The agreement was focused on intra-Palestinian relations and as such has no direct impact on Israeli-Palestinians relations. However, we welcome any progress towards a negotiated, lasting solution.

Pakistan: Taliban

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he is holding with the Pakistan Government to co-ordinate border control between Pakistan and Afghanistan to stop Taliban activists entering Afghanistan. [156297]

Dr. Howells: Afghanistan-Pakistan border security issues feature prominently in our dialogue with the Government of Pakistan at both ministerial and official levels. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary last raised the subject with Pakistan Foreign Minister Kasuri in Islamabad on 26 July.

Russia: CFE Treaty

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the reasons for Russia's suspension of its obligations under the Conventional Forces in Europe Treaty; and if he will make a statement. [153754]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 8 October 2007]: With North Atlantic Treaty Organisation Allies, we have noted Russia's statement of its intention to suspend its obligations under the Treaty on Conventional Armed Forces in Europe (CFE treaty) from 12 December. We would regret any threat to the CFE regime from such unilateral action. We believe the concerns expressed by Russia would be addressed by entry into force of the adapted CFE treaty. We are pursuing constructive proposals for parallel action by Allies and Russia to overcome the outstanding issues related to ratification of that adapted treaty.

Sri Lanka

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he next plans to meet (a) the President and (b) the Prime Minister of Sri Lanka. [155836]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has no current plans to meet the President or Prime Minster of Sri Lanka. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister may have an opportunity to meet President Rajapakse or Prime Minister Wickramanayake at the Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting in Kampala, Uganda in November.

Sri Lanka: Human Rights

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Sri Lankan Government regarding human rights abuses in Sri Lanka. [155837]

Dr. Howells: We raise human rights issues regularly in our contact with the Government of Sri Lanka. Most recently, my noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, expressed our concern on 27 September during a bilateral meeting with the Sri Lankan Minister for Foreign Affairs, Rohitha Bogollagama, in the margins of the UN General Assembly.

The situation in Sri Lanka was also highlighted by the UK and the EU at the 6th Human Rights Council in September. We look forward to the report of the visit to Sri Lanka by Louise Arbour, UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, which is due to take place later this month.

Sudan: Asylum

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of Ethiopian and Eritrean asylum seekers and refugees at risk of being forcibly returned to their country of origin from Sudan following their detention in Khartoum in July. [153879]

Meg Munn: Amnesty International (AI) reported on 20 July the arrest and risk of forcible return of Ethiopian and Eritrean asylum seekers in Sudan. According to AI, many of those detained could be asylum seekers or recognised refugees.

The UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) has been seeking access to, and intervene on the behalf of, refugees who have been detained by the Sudanese authorities. Some of these refugees were handed over to the Commissioner for Refugees in August, but 25 Ethiopians and Eritreans were reportedly sentenced to deportation and removed before UNHCR had a chance to appeal.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the treatment of refugees in Sudan, in particular those from Eritrea. [154565]

Meg Munn: According to reports from the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), refugees arriving in Sudan undergo a refugee status determination process at one of the recognised refugee camps near Kassala in the border area with Eritrea. Refugees should remain in the camps and are not normally granted the right to travel from a designated area.

Sudanese law enforcement bodies carry out periodic round-ups of migrant workers whom they deport, although some of them have recognised refugee status. UNHCR has a legal team to attend cases where recognised refugees have been arrested.

Some of these refugees were handed over to the Commissioner for Refugees in August, but 25 Ethiopians and Eritreans were reportedly sentenced to deportation and removed before UNHCR had a chance to appeal.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the government of Sudan about (a) the treatment of refugees and (b) abiding by UNHCR protocols and commitments. [154566]

Meg Munn: Ministers have not discussed the treatment of refugees with the government of Sudan.

However, officials from our embassy in Khartoum have raised the status of refugees in Sudan with the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) to whom we give strong support. As a result of UNHCR's lobbying, the government of Sudan has set up a committee to revise domestic legislation on asylum. We continue to monitor the progress of asylum law reform through UNHCR.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received that the government of Sudan has in the past month begun to move to return Eritrean refugees. [154568]

Meg Munn: The UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) in Sudan reported in August that Ethiopians and Eritreans were arrested and detained in Khartoum and various towns in eastern Sudan and threatened with expulsion.

As a result of legal assistance from UNHCR, several individuals were handed over to UNHCR to determine their refugee status. But 25 Eritreans and Ethiopians were sentenced to deportation, which was carried out before UNHCR could intervene.

The UK supports UNHCR to ensure refugees are afforded protection and treated equitably in their countries of refuge according to international human rights law.

Sudan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what financial and other support he is making available to resolve the problems in Darfur. [155863]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has made resolution of the Darfur conflict a priority for the Government. In his joint initiative with French President Sarkozy, he offered further development assistance dependent on progress on security, cessation of hostilities, political process and humanitarian access.

Meanwhile, the UK is helping diplomatically, politically and financially.

The UK co-sponsored UN Security Council Resolution 1769, which mandates the African Union (AU)/UN peacekeeping mission (UNAMID) for Darfur. UNAMID costs will be met through UN assessed contributions. The UK has committed £73 million to support the AU Mission (AMIS) in Darfur since it deployed in July 2004.

To support the political process, the UK has committed £2 million of funding since July 2006 to the AMIS Information Advisory Team which will support communication activities for the peace talks. We will also provide financial and technical support to the AU-UN Joint Mediation Support Team who are leading the peace process.

The UK, through the Department for International Development (DFID), is working with UN, non-governmental organisations (NGOs) and other partners to resource community-level peace and confidence-building activities to complement the political process. The UK has committed £2.18 million to a UN programme to address livelihoods and environmental challenges—key drivers of the conflict.

Finally, DFID's programme makes the UK the second largest bilateral donor to Sudan, spending some £145 million in humanitarian funding in Darfur since the start of the crisis in 2003. We also have a bilateral programme with NGOs (£12 million per annum) to provide water, sanitation and health care to some of the four million people in need.

Sudan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the African Union and UN have taken to ensure that rebel groups in Darfur receive training to develop the skills required to take part in peace process negotiations. [153881]

Meg Munn: The African Union-UN Joint Mediation Support Team (JMST) has developed a mediation plan and is appointing mediators who will support rebel groups in negotiations.

The UK and international partners are supporting the JMST's preparations for negotiations. The UK has given the JMST papers on lessons learned from previous peace talks, including the Comprehensive Peace Agreement security negotiations, and has recommended mediation experts.

Sudan: Politics and Government

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government have taken to ensure participation of the people of eastern Sudan in the national executive, legislature, judiciary organs, civil service and other institutions and commissions at both national and state levels in accordance with Chapter 1 of the Eastern Sudan Peace Agreement; and what progress has been made in this regard. [153882]

Meg Munn: The government of Sudan has appointed Eastern Front (EF) representatives to posts including an assistant to the President, a presidential adviser and a Minister of State. The EF's candidates took up their positions in August. In June 2006, eight government members of the National Parliament resigned to make way for the EF Members of Parliament. EF representatives have also been appointed to state level governments both in the east and in Khartoum state.

The Civil Service Commission called for by the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA) was only formed in August this year. The EF have not yet provided nominations to this and other CPA Commissions.

Our embassy in Khartoum discussed implementation of the Eastern Sudan Peace Agreement (ESPA) with assistant to the President ,Musa Muhammad Ahmad of the EF, on 1 October. They made clear our support for the ESPA and the need to see both sides fully to implement its provisions, including those on power-sharing.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of whether the implementation of the Eastern Sudan Peace Agreement has ensured transparency in appropriate sharing of financial resources across all states through the fiscal and financial allocation and monitoring commission. [153883]

Meg Munn: The Eastern Sudan Peace Agreement does not include any provisions on wealth sharing between Khartoum and the eastern states, although it has established a Reconstruction and Development Fund for Eastern Sudan.

Fiscal relations between the federal and state governments in Sudan are covered in the Wealth Sharing Protocol of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA). The UK monitors the implementation of the Protocol, and the activities of the Fiscal and Financial Allocation and Monitoring Commission (FFAMC) set up to carry this out, through its participation in the Wealth Sharing Group of the CPA Assessment and Evaluation Commission.

The FFAMC proposed a revised formula for the allocation of revenue which was adopted for the 2007 federal budget. This new formula should result in the more equitable allocation of resources, although evidence to date shows that there are still some discrepancies between budgeted and actual transfers.

The UK continues to monitor the new arrangements for wealth sharing and to work with others, including the World Bank, to bring about fiscal reform across Sudan.

Ukraine: Entry Clearances

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what rationale supported the decision to require applications from Ukraine for settlement in the UK to be submitted by appointment only. [154508]

Dr. Howells: The visa section in Kiev took the decision to introduce an appointment system for settlement visa applications in order to manage more effectively the number of applications received per day.

The number of settlement visa appointments has been set at seven per day from 1 October. This will improve customer service by providing pre-arranged appointment times for applicants who will no longer be subject to unpredictable waiting times at the visa section.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what minimum notice period may be given of appointments to submit applications for settlement in the UK from Ukraine. [154509]

Dr. Howells: There is currently a minimum six-day notice period for appointments to submit an application for settlement in the UK from Ukraine.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what consideration is given to the distances that have to be travelled to attend appointments, when giving notice of appointments to submit applications for settlement in the UK from Ukraine. [154510]

Dr. Howells: If an applicant for a settlement visa to the UK from the Ukraine is unable to attend their appointment due to the distance they need to travel they are able to book a new appointment. This will not affect the outcome of their visa application.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund: Grants

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what investigations took place into the activities of the (a) Friends of the Western Buddhist Order, (b) the New Kadempa Tradition and (c) Soka Gakkai International before the Department took the final decision to grant funds to each organisation from the Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund. [156700]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department considered information received from the Information Network Focus on religious movements who provide objective information to Government relating to minority religious groups before agreeing that the funding could be released.

Audit Commission: Teammate International Forum

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) cost and (b) purpose was of the Audit Commission attending the Teammate International Forum in Tampa, Florida in November 2006. [155716]

Mr. Iain Wright: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission and I will ask the Chief Executive of the Audit Commission to write to the hon. Member directly.

Letter from Steve Bundred, dated 4 October 2007:

I am writing in response to your parliamentary question asking what the (a) cost and (b) purpose was of the Audit Commission attending the Teammate International Forum in Tampa, Florida.

The Audit Commission sent two delegates to the TeamMate International Forum at a total cost of £1,912.

TeamMate is the Commission's electronic working paper software and is fundamental to our core business. It is a proprietary product marketed around the globe by PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC). The Commission is the single largest user of this application worldwide. Every two years PwC organises an international users' conference.

The principal purpose of our attendance at the conference was to maintain up-to-date knowledge of how the product is being used elsewhere and planned future developments of the software. The secondary purpose was to network with other users to learn from them and ensure we keep our audit tools as efficient as possible. Attendance at the event also gives us an opportunity to influence the future development of the product to meet our developing business needs.

A copy of this letter will be placed in the House of Commons Library.

Buildings: Energy

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued on whether the forthcoming requirement for buildings over 1,000 square metres to display an energy certificate and advisory report applies to (a) churches and places of worship, (b) train stations, (c) venues licensed under the Licensing Act 2003 for the sale of alcohol and (d) care homes; and if she will make a statement. [153817]

Yvette Cooper: The Display Energy Certificate requirement will apply to buildings over 1,000 sq m that are occupied by a public authority or an institution providing a public service to a large number of persons. We are continuing to work with key stakeholders and will publish further guidance in due course.

Buildings: Standards

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what assessment she has made of the merits of changing the building regulations to require all new build homes to be built to lifetime home standards; [155968]

(2) what assessment she has made of the merits of requiring 10 per cent. of all new build housing to be wheelchair accessible throughout. [155969]

Mr. Iain Wright: The costs and benefits of lifetime homes, which include wheelchair accessibility, are set out in the Department's consultation document "The future of the Code for Sustainable Homes—making a rating mandatory" published on 23 July 2007 with a closing date for comment of 23 October 2007. The document proposes making lifetime homes standards mandatory within the code at progressively lower levels of the code over time.

There is currently no proposal to change the building regulations to require all new build homes to be built to lifetime home standards. However, the Government have stated, in its response to Kate Barker's report on Housing Supply, that > "It is very important that there is progress on increasing take up of the lifetime homes standard. The Government will monitor take up and review the future need for regulation if appropriate."

Casinos: Planning Permission

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many planning appeals relating to casinos or with a casino element have been considered by (a) the Planning Inspectorate and (b) the First Secretary of State since November 2005. [155686]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Secretary of State has not decided any planning applications that have included a casino element since November 2005. In the same period, the Planning Inspectorate have decided eight appeals for developments with a casino element, of which five have been allowed and three dismissed. Details of these can be found in the following tables.

Appeals involving casinos decided since 1 November 2005 by The Planning Inspectorate

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether concerns over problem gambling may be considered as a material factor when assessing a planning application for a casino. [155697]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend, the Minister for Housing and Planning (Yvette Cooper) on 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 268W.

Community Development

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what individuals and organisations have been invited to discussions and meetings with her Department on community integration and cohesion issues in the last 12 months. [156425]

Mr. Dhanda: Communities and Local Government (CLG) is responsible for coordinating and delivering work to build community integration and cohesion in local areas. We do this by meeting with and consulting a wide range of stakeholders both within Whitehall, and the regions.

We also meet routinely with local authorities, LGA and the IDEA, to discuss the important work of building community cohesion and promoting integration.

In order to ensure we deliver real life policy, CLG also meets and consults with a wide range of grass roots individuals and organisation involved in delivering cohesion at the sharp end.

The Commission on Integration and Cohesion, which ran from August 2006 to June 2007, was supported by a small CLG secretariat, which undertook research on their behalf, and co-ordinated an outreach programme that meant they engaged with over 2000 people through round tables, regional visits, and user forums.

A comprehensive list of all individuals and organisations met could only be produced at disproportionate cost, but to inform its approach to developing and promoting integration and community cohesion, CLG has met:

Groundwork UK
HACT
CLG's Neighbourhood Renewal Advisors
National Community Forum (NCF)
Race Equality Action Group (REAG)
Community Security Trust
Board of Deputies of British Jews
Chief Rabbi's Office
Jewish Leadership Council
Skillsforce
Institute of Community Cohesion (ICOCO)
Muslim Safety Forum
MCHC Muslim Cultural Heritage Centre
The Participation Works
Representatives of the South Asian Development Partnership
ACPO National Community Tensions Team
Citizenship Foundation
Serious Organised Crime Agency
LB Barking and Dagenham
Welsh Assembly
Parliamentary Committee Against Anti-Semitism
Mosques and Imams National Advisory Board

Officials in CLG have on occasion also met with representatives from overseas seeking to exchange good practice on integration and cohesion.

Departments: Berkeley Group

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 23 July 2007, Official Report, column 735W, on Departments: Berkeley Group, whether the right hon. Member for Kingston upon Hull, East (Mr. Prescott) met with (a) directors, representatives or lawyers acting for and (b) employees of (i) Berkeley Group Holdings plc, (ii) St George plc, (iii) Berkeley Homes plc, (iv) St James Group Ltd, (v) Berkeley First Ltd, (vi) Berkeley Commercial Development Ltd and (vii) Berkeley Strategic Land Ltd in a Ministerial capacity in the last three years; and whether any officials in her Department attended such meetings. [156240]

Mr. Iain Wright: Ministers and civil servants meet many people as part of the process of policy development and advice. As a general point of principle, information relating to such meetings is not normally disclosed.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which private consultancy firms (a) her Department and (b) agencies which report to her Department engaged in each of the last three years; which programmes or projects each firm worked on; and what the approximate cost to the Department or agency concerned was of each engagement. [155898]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the right hon. Member for Maidenhead (Mrs. May) on 14 June 2007, Official Report, column 1170W, which lists those 10 Communities Programmes which accounted for the most consultancy spend.

Departments: Private Finance Initiatives

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list the signed local authority private finance initiative projects for which her Department is responsible. [154457]

Mr. Iain Wright: Details of all signed PFI projects are recorded on HM Treasury's website which is maintained through returns provided by each Government Department on a twice yearly basis during budget reporting periods.

A list of signed local authority private finance initiative projects which are sponsored by Communities and Local Government is available from HM Treasury's website on the following link:

Fire Services: Perfluoro Octane Sulphanate

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on how many occasions in each of the last 10 years fire-fighting operations involved the use of materials containing perfluoro octane sulphanate. [155722]

Mr. Dhanda: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Fire Services: Working Time Directive

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether there is a derogation from the Working Time Directive for retained firefighters who have other employment. [155699]

Mr. Dhanda: Retained duty system firefighters are able to work beyond the 48 hours a week set by the working time regulations provided they have signed a waiver for their primary and secondary employment.

Flood Control

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's definition is of the probability of (a) low, (b) medium and (c) high flood risk in terms of the frequency in years at which an area is likely to flood. [156578]

Mr. Iain Wright: The definitions of (a) low, (b) medium and (c) high risk probability are defined in Table D.1. of Planning Policy Statement 25 (PPS25) 'Development and Flood Risk', which Communities and Local Government published in December 2006.

The definitions are as follows:

(a) Low Probability (Flood Zone 1)

This zone comprises land assessed as having a less than one in 1,000 annual probability of river or sea flooding in any year (<0.1%)

(b) Medium probability (Flood Zone 2)

This zone comprises land assessed as having between a one in 100 and one in 1,000 annual probability of river flooding (1 per cent. to 0.1 per cent. or between a one in 200 and one in 1,000 annual probability of sea flooding (0.5 per cent. to 1 per cent.) in any year.

(c) High probability (Flood Zone 3a)

This zone comprises land assessed as having a one in 100 or greater annual probability of river flooding (>1%) or a one in 200 or greater annual probability of flooding from the sea (>0.5%) in any year.

These flood zones refer to the probability of river and sea flooding, ignoring the presence of defences as these can be breached, overtopped and may not be in existence for the lifetime of the development.

Green Belt

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many hectares of designated Green Belt land lost their Green Belt designation in each Government Office Region in England in each year since 1997. [155705]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table shows the net amount of designated green belt land lost by Government office region in hectares for the years for which data is available.

Net area loss of designated green belt by Government office region

	Net losses in hectares between:

[1] The 2004 to 2006 figure includes 47,300 hectares of designated green belt land in New Forest DC and Test Valley DC which was designated as New Forest National Park in 2005.

Excluding the 47,300 hectares of green belt land which was designated as National Park in 2005, the total amount of green belt increased across England by 27,850 hectares over the nine-year period 1997 to 2006.

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance has been produced for local authorities on the enforcement of the home information pack regulations. [152384]

Yvette Cooper: The Department has produced procedural guidance for the home information pack regulations, including guidance on the enforcement provisions within the regulations. The Department has also produced guidance for enforcement authorities, following consultations with Local Authorities Coordinators of Regulatory Services (LACORS) and the Trading Standards Institute (TSI).

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the maximum time is that a local authority and water search in a home information pack can remain in place before it must be renewed. [156562]

Yvette Cooper: The HIPs (No. 2) Regulations 2007 do not specify how long a search report should remain in place before it must be renewed but require that a search must not be older than three months at the first point of marketing.

Home Information Packs: Finance

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 26 June 2007, Official Report, column 633W, on home information packs: finance, by what mechanism funding is being provided to trading standards officers in Wales. [152684]

Yvette Cooper: Funding for trading standards officers in Wales is provided through the annual revenue settlement. Responsibility for the revenue settlement in Wales rests with the Welsh Assembly Government. In 2007-08 the settlement amounted to £3.7 billion.

Home Information Packs: Trading Standards Institute

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to trading standards officers on the enforcement of home information pack regulations. [152517]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given today (UIN 152384).

Home Information Packs: Valuation

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government under what circumstances mortgage lenders and automated valuation suppliers may use information from the Energy Performance Certificate register for automated valuations. [153816]

Yvette Cooper: The disclosure of Energy Performance Certificates and information obtained from them, whether obtained directly from the register or otherwise, is limited to the purposes set down in the Energy Performance of Buildings Regulations 2007.

Homelessness: Expenditure

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent in London on rough sleepers by (a) central Government and (b) local authorities in each of the last five years. [156718]

Mr. Iain Wright: Homelessness grant is paid to local authorities to tackle homelessness, which includes rough sleeping. It is also paid direct to several voluntary sector agencies in London to help them tackle rough sleeping. Supporting People, introduced in 2003, also funds rough sleeper services. The following table indicates the amount of funding.

In addition to the moneys outlined in the table, an extra £63 million has been made available under the Hotels Capital Improvement Programme in the last three years to improve hostels and day centres used by rough sleepers in London.

Housing

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of the housing stock in England is made up of three bedroom homes. [155696]

Yvette Cooper: The Survey of English Housing reported that 45 per cent. of households in England lived in three-bedroom dwellings in the financial year 2005-06.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what proportion of her Department's target of building 240,000 new dwellings a year in England she expects to be built by (a) local authorities as council housing stock, (b) housing associations for social tenure and (c) the private sector for private sale. [155858]

Yvette Cooper: The Government are committed to tackling the problems of housing affordability and have announced plans to raise the annual housing supply target for 2016 from 200,000 to 240,000 additional homes a year.

The recent Housing Green Paper "Homes for the future: more affordable, more sustainable" sets out further details of our proposals, including Government's plans for the level of affordable housing to be delivered in the years covered by the Comprehensive Spending Review, supported by investment of at least £8 billion. We are increasing outputs of new affordable housing to at least 70,000 by 2010-11 of which 45,000 will be for new social rented homes—50 per cent. more than this year, 2007-08.

The detail of where additional housing of various types will be located is a matter for regional and local planning processes and functions.

Housing: Disabled

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many local authorities with housing responsibilities in England have an adapted homes register; [155970]

(2) what assessment she has made of the merits of requiring all local authorities with housing responsibilities to maintain an adapted homes register; [155971]

(3) what assessment she has made of the merits of the creation of a nationwide adapted homes register. [155972]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department does not collect information about social landlords who hold adapted homes registers (otherwise known as accessible housing registers).

The Government want to see social landlords make the best use of housing stock, including accommodation which is accessible or has been adapted. We recognise that accessible housing registers can be useful and the current statutory guidance to local authorities on the allocation of accommodation encourages their use.

The Department's Disability Equality Scheme published in December 2006 includes a commitment to establish whether and what the role is for accessible housing registers (AHRs) within the context of our choice-based lettings policy[1] and the development of the National Register of Social Housing (NROSH).

NROSH will be a central record of each individual unit of social housing (local authority and housing association stock). This includes property referencing, size type and age of dwelling, category of provision, decent homes standard, accessibility, tenure, rent, service charges and vacancy status. The Data Standards document describing these fields is on the Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/housingresearch/housingstatistics/housingdataprojects/nationalregister

Data collection is not yet complete.

In addition, the Department is providing support (£760,000 over two years 2006--08) to develop a pan-London choice-based lettings scheme ('Capital Moves') including the development of a London-wide accessible housing register.

[1] CBL schemes are about advertising available social housing for which applicants can bid. We have set a target for all local authorities to have implemented CBL by 2010.

Housing: Energy

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether an energy performance certificate will need to be commissioned for a new build domestic dwelling for sale. [152411]

Yvette Cooper: Energy Performance Certificates (EPC) will be required on the sale of all new dwellings. Where an EPC has been obtained on construction, it can be reused if the property is resold within the certificate's validity period.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what definition she uses of overcrowding in relation to social housing. [153695]

Mr. Iain Wright: Under the standards set out in Section 324 of Part 10 of the Housing Act 1985 a dwelling is overcrowded when the number of people sleeping in the dwelling is such as to contravene either the 'room standard' or the 'space standard'.

The room standard is breached if the number of people sleeping in a dwelling, and the number of rooms available as sleeping accommodation, are such that two people of opposite sexes who are not living together as husband and wife must sleep in the same room. Children under 10 do not count.

The space standard specifies the maximum number of people who may sleep in a dwelling, and in the available rooms within it, having regard to (i) the number of available rooms of 50 square feet or more and (ii) the floor area of each room. Two calculations are required and the lower number applies. Babies under one year old do not count, and children between one and 10 count as half.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether National Register of Social Housing is maintained in-house or by an external company. [153910]

Yvette Cooper: The National Register of Social Housing is a database containing information on the individual dwellings which make up the stock of social housing in England. It is under development and currently contains records of 30 per cent. of the stock. The database is maintained in house by the Department for Communities and Local Government.

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many council-owned houses have been built for rent in each West Midlands metropolitan district since 1997. [156717]

Mr. Iain Wright: The number of council-owned houses built for rent for the period 1996-97 to 2006-07 as reported by the seven West Midlands metropolitan districts is shown as follows:

	Permanent dwellings completed by local authorities
Birmingham	0
Coventry	0
Dudley	0
Sandwell	66
Solihull	0
Walsall	0
Wolverhampton	0

Local Government

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what adopted local plans and unitary development plans are in force for each local planning authority, broken down by (a) region and (b) county; and what the month of adoption was in each case. [152746]

Yvette Cooper: Adopted local plans and UDPs are in force for all local planning authorities. Those plans which were adopted before September 2004 are "saved" until September 2007. Those adopted after September 2004 are "saved" for three years after adoption. Where local authorities have adopted development plan documents these will replace the local plans/UDPs in whole or in part. A table has been placed in the Library of the House showing the adoption dates of local plans and UDPs.

Mayor of London

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) of 11 December 2006, Official Report, column 898W, on the Mayor of London, what recent estimate she has made of the cost to the public purse, including the costs incurred by the Mayor, which will be met by the Standards Board. [156376]

John Healey: The Standards Board's own costs in respect of the case against the London Mayor amount to £64,000. The costs payable by the board to the Mayor in connection with the case are estimated to be £120,000. The cost to the Adjudication Panel in respect of the case is £14,000.

Ordnance Survey: Government Departments

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which Government departments, agencies and non-departmental public bodies have purchased licences to use the Ordnance Survey Pictometry product. [156580]

Mr. Iain Wright: Pictometry® is not an Ordnance Survey product.

BLOM Aerofilms Ltd., a private sector company, has the rights to market a Pictometry product in the United Kingdom. The product combines BLOM Aerofilms's oblique aerial imagery with viewing software patented by an American company, Pictometry International Corp.

Ordnance Survey has a non-exclusive commercial agreement with BLOM Aerofilms to act as an authorised reseller of Pictometry of Great Britain. Information on sales of licences to use Pictometry within the United Kingdom is commercially sensitive to BLOM Aerofilms Ltd., given that there are other commercial providers of potentially competing products.

Ordnance Survey: Map Watch Initiative

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the purpose is of the Ordnance Survey's Map Watch initiative. [155679]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Ordnance Survey 'Map Watch' initiative is an internal departmental initiative, started in 2000, to encourage Ordnance Survey staff to identify potentially unlicensed extracts of Ordnance Survey mapping contained within third party publications, so that infringements of Crown copyright may be investigated and resolved.

Planning Permission: Purfleet

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what period and with whom she will consult consequent on the decision of the High Court in respect of her decision to reject the planning application submitted by George Wimpey for 571 residential units on former industrial land at Cory's Wharf, Purfleet; and if she will make a statement. [156391]

Mr. Dhanda: The Secretary of State will shortly write to George Wimpey, Thurrock borough council, Thurrock Thames Gateway Development Corporation, and other interested persons who appeared at the public inquiry, to invite them to submit written representations in respect of any material changes in planning circumstances that may have occurred since the close of the inquiry. Parties will be asked to submit any representations no later than three weeks from the date of the Secretary of State's letter. Alternatively, parties may ask for the inquiry to be re-opened. In deciding whether the inquiry should be re-opened, the Secretary of State will consider all views that may be expressed to her on this matter.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what factors and whose advice she took into account in deciding to call in the planning application made by George Wimpey for 571 residential units at the former industrial land at Cory's Wharf, Purfleet; and if she will make a statement. [156392]

Mr. Dhanda: In line with the then current policy on recovering planning appeals, set out in the statement to the House of Commons on 25 July 2000 by my right hon. Friend the Member for Greenwich and Woolwich (Mr. Raynsford), the appeal was automatically recovered by the Secretary of State for her own determination in December 2004, rather than being decided by one of her Planning Inspectors, because it raised issues relating to residential development of more than 5 hectares or 150 or more houses.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons she rejected the inspector's findings made in respect of the planning application by George Wimpey for 571 residential units at the former industrial land at Cory's Wharf, Purfleet and issued an alternative determination; and if she will make a statement. [156393]

Mr. Dhanda: The reasons for the Secretary of State's decision are set out in the decision letter of 2 October 2006, which is available on the Department's website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/planning-callins/pdf/195158

Copies of the decision letter have been placed in the Library of both houses. Since this decision has now been quashed and falls to be redetermined by the Secretary of State, it would not be appropriate to comment further on the reasons for the decision.

Planning Permission: Vauxhall Tower

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the ruling of the Information Tribunal regarding the consideration of the planning application by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister for Vauxhall Tower in South London. [155683]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department for Communities and Local Government accepted the Information Tribunal Judgment in the particular case of the Vauxhall Tower planning application. Copies of the submissions by officials are available on the DCLG website. However, we consider each request for information on the particular facts of each case, in accordance with the provisions in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 and the Environmental Information Regulations 2004.

Urban Areas: Trees

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) if she will place in the Library a copy of the Trees in Towns II report commissioned by her Department; [156513]

(2) what research her Department and its predecessor commissioned into trees in urban areas over the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [156581]

Mr. Iain Wright: We have commissioned one research project on trees in urban areas over the last five years, namely Trees in Towns II.

Copies of the Trees in Towns II final report will be placed in the Library when it is published towards the end of November 2007.

TREASURY

Average Earnings

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the increase in average earnings in (a) the whole labour market, (b) the private sector and (c) the public sector has been since 1997. [155940]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 9 October 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what increase in average earnings in (a) the whole labour market, (b) the private sector and (c) the public sector has been since 1997. I am replying in her absence. (155940)

Growth in earnings is estimated from the Average Earnings Index (AEI). The AEI figures for Great Britain are collected and published monthly. The AEI does not cover the self employed and people who do unpaid work.

The monthly changes to the index and growth are published on the National Statistics website at: http://www.statistics.gov.uk/statbase/tsdtablesl.asp?vlnk=emp. Calendar year comparisons are available on request.

Each month 8900 companies are surveyed for the AEI, covering 12.8 million employees, which is just under half of all GB employees.

I attach a table showing the average earnings index seasonally adjusted from 1997 until 2006 for the whole economy, public and private sectors.

Child Tax Credit

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many recipients of child tax credits receive child support agency payments or child maintenance payments which are not taken into account in assessing the recipient's income. [155725]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is not available.

Customs Officers: Manpower

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many customs officers were employed

by HM Revenue and Customs in each English region in each of the last five years. [155847]

Angela Eagle: In April 2005, HM Customs and Excise was merged with the Inland Revenue to form HM Revenue and Customs. Numbers of staff in HM Customs and Excise are not available from that date. Previous numbers of HM Customs and Excise staff within the Government office regions, as well as those of the combined Department, are published annually in 'Civil Service Statistics' and at http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/management/statistics/reports/index.asp.

The following table shows the number of staff in the Detection directorate, which is mainly engaged in anti-smuggling work, in each of the Government office regions. The substantial numbers of staff in other directorates engaged partly or wholly on work in the customs area are not identifiable from HMRC records.

Customs Officers: South West Region

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many Customs officers were permanently attached to (a) seaports, (b) airfields in (i) Cornwall, (ii) Devon, (iii) Dorset, (iv) Isle of Wight and (v) Hampshire in (A) 2001 and (B) 2007; and if he will make a statement; [156682]

(2) what plans he has to increase the permanent presence of customs officers at (a) seaports and (b) airfields in (i) Cornwall, (ii) Devon, (iii) Dorset, (iv) Isle of Wight and (v) Hampshire, with particular reference to land-based officers doing uncanalised work; and if he will make a statement. [156694]

Angela Eagle: HMRC do not release the numbers of front line Customs staff that they deploy at a local level as this would provide information of value to those seeking to circumvent HM Revenue and Customs' controls, thereby prejudicing the prevention and detection of crime.

Debts

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what proportion of personal debt is (a) secured and (b) unsecured; and if he will make a statement; [156261]

(2) what the level of (a) total, (b) secured and (c) unsecured personal debt in the UK is as a percentage of gross disposable income; and if he will make a statement; [156262]

(3) what the level of (a) total, (b) secured, (c) average secured, (d) unsecured and (e) average unsecured personal debt is in (i) the UK and (ii) each region; and if he will make a statement. [156263]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 October 2007:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent questions on what proportion of personal debt is secured and unsecured, what these are as percentages of gross disposable income and what the average levels of these are in the UK and in each region of the UK. (156261, 156262, 156263)

The information requested is given in the tables below. Statistics on personal debt by region of the UK are not available.

Debts: Cornwall

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the level of personal debt incurred by people living in Cornwall was in each year since 1979. [156666]

Angela Eagle: HM Treasury does not hold data concerning the information requested.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which private consultancy firms (a) his Department and (b) agencies which report to his Department engaged in each of the last three years; which programmes or projects each firm worked on; and what the approximate cost to the Department or agency concerned was of each engagement. [155880]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury group's spending on consultancy since 2001-02 is set out in table 7.4 on page 91 of the 2006-07 annual report and accounts, available from http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/about/departmental_reports/annual_report07.cfm. The further details requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Official Cars

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what visits he has made involving a mix of political and official engagements where Government Car Service vehicles were used in 2007; and whether the Government was reimbursed a proportion of the cost in each case. [142600]

Angela Eagle: All travel is undertaken in accordance with Travel by Ministers and the Ministerial Code, copies of which are available in the House Library.

Departments: Public Bodies

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list his Department's (a) executive agencies, (b) executive non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations for each financial year since 2005-06. [156678]

Angela Eagle: In the financial year 2006-07, the Treasury had one Executive agency, the Debt Management Office and two NDPBs, the Public Services Productivity Panel, and the Statistics Commission. The abolition of the PSPP was announced in the 2006 pre-Budget report. The Statistics Commission will be replaced by a new Statistics Board, independent of the Treasury, under the Statistics Bill.

The Office of Government Commerce, part of the HM Treasury Group, has one trading fund, OGCbuying.solutions.

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his Department's projected spending is on advertising and promotional campaigns for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, broken down by cost relating to (i) television, (ii) radio and (iii) print media. [155897]

Angela Eagle: The only form of advertising spending planned by the Treasury for 2007-08 is recruitment advertising, in print and electronic media. The Treasury's budget for recruitment costs (including other costs besides recruitment advertising) for 2007-08 is £116,000. Line by line budgets for 2008-09 have not yet been set.

Disabled

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people were registered as disabled in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since 1997; and how many of those registered were in employment in each case. [156714]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about how many people were registered as disabled and how many of those registered were in employment in each year since 1997. (156714)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles employment statistics for local areas from the annual local area Labour Force Survey (LFS) and the Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation (ILO) definitions. ONS does not have data on registered disabled people but the above surveys do collect information on the disability status of respondents, based on the respondents' self-assessment.

The table attached, shows the number of disabled people and of those the number who were in employment in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK, for the 12 month period ending in February for 1999 to 2004 from the local area LFS and for the 12 month period ending in March for 2003 to 2006, from the APS. The table also shows employment rates which allow changes to be seen in the context of changing population numbers. Annual estimates are not available prior to 1999.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the annual Labour Force Survey and the Annual Population Survey are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Domicile: Taxation

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many investigations his Department instigated into claimants of non-domicile tax status in the last 12 months for which information is available; and if he will make statement; [153860]

(2) how many investigations instigated by his Department into claimants of non-domicile tax status resulted in claimants being (a) fined and (b) imprisoned for wrongfully claiming non-domicile status in the last year for which information is available; and if he will make a statement; [153861]

(3) how many people (a) successfully and (b) unsuccessfully applied for non-domicile tax status in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [153864]

(4) how many investigations were undertaken into the income and assets held overseas by non-domiciled UK taxpayers in the last year for which information is available; and if he will make a statement; [153936]

(5) what estimate his Department has made of the number of people claiming non-domicile tax status in each of the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [153937]

Jane Kennedy: Information on investigations relating to and applications for non-domicile status are not held centrally and could be collated only at disproportionate cost.

Claims for non-domicile status are not all processed separately from the overall tax assessment and are, therefore, not recorded separately. However, HMRC does know the number of taxpayers who have indicated non-domicile status through self-assessment. The following table shows the number of taxpayers who have done so through the SA return over the past 10 years. These figures cannot be broken down by month.

Tax year	Number of non-domicile claims
1996-97	68,000
1997-98	83,000
1998-99	91,000

Drug Seizures

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what account is taken of past quantities of heroin and cocaine seized by HM Revenue and Customs in setting targets for future seizures; for what reason equivalent seizure targets are not set for (a) ecstasy and (b) cannabis; and if he will make a statement [156607]

John McDonnell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what quantities of (a) heroin, (b) cocaine, (c) ecstasy and (d) cannabis were seized as a result of HM Revenue and Customs operations in each of the last four years; [156024]

(2) what the seizure quantity targets were for (a) heroin, (b) cocaine, (c) ecstasy and (d) cannabis in each of the last four years. [156025]

Angela Eagle: Seizure quantity targets for 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 for the Concerted Inter Agency Drugs Action group (CIDA) are as follows:

Financial year	Heroin	Kilograms Cocaine
2005-06[1]	5,300	13,200
2004-05	4,600	12,600
2003-04	4,000	12,000

[1] The targets set for each of the years 2005-06, 2004-05, 2003 -04 were joint targets for the agencies that formed the Concerted Inter-agency Drugs Action group (CIDA). The individual agencies that formed CIDA, including HMRC did not have their own specific targets.

No seizure targets were set for ecstasy or cannabis.

HM Revenue & Customs was one of the contributing agencies to CIDA's overall seizure target quantities. HMRC seized the following quantities of drugs in each of the last four years.

Financial year	Heroin	Cocaine	Ecstasy	Kilograms Cannabis
2006-07[1]	527	2,368	1,212	62,966
2005-06	1,057	5,798	468	41,611
2004-05	1,613	8,606	740	57,504
2003-04	1,626	[2]20,727	1,245	57,617

[1] When the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) became operational on 1 April 2006, primacy for, and the resources associated with the investigation of Class A drugs cases transferred to SOCA.

[2] The large quantity of cocaine seized in this year is due to the culmination of several long running operations.

HMRC's seizure target for 2006-07 was 700kgs for heroin and 2,600kgs for cocaine. In setting the targets for 2007-08 for heroin and cocaine, HM Revenue & Customs used their 2005-06 results and stripped out those seizures that were generated by the area of the Department that transferred to the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA).

Drug Seizures: South West Region

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what quantity of (a) heroin, (b) cocaine, (c) ecstasy, (d) cannabis and (e) firearms has been seized by Customs officers in (i) seaports and (ii) airfields in (A) Cornwall, (B) Devon, (C) Dorset, (D) Isle of Wight and (E) Hampshire in (1) 2001, (2) 2002 and (3) in the last year for which records are available; and if he will make a statement. [156693]

Angela Eagle: National information on seizures made by HM Revenue and Customs since 2003 is contained in their annual reports.

Information of seizures by location cannot be disclosed as this would provide information of value to those seeking to circumvent HM Revenue and Customs' controls, thereby prejudicing the prevention and detection of crime.

Financial Services: Bermuda

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of whether the banking and financial sector of Bermuda is (a) sufficiently transparent and (b) regulated and subject to oversight that meets European and other international norms designed to combat financial and white collar crime; and if he will make a statement. [155823]

Kitty Ussher: In 1999 the United Kingdom and the Caribbean Overseas Territories and Bermuda jointly commissioned an in-depth independent review of financial regulation in those territories. This review, carried out by KPMG and published on 27 October 2000, assessed the extent to which these Overseas Territories comply with international standards and good practice in the way they regulate their financial services sectors.

Bermuda is a member of the Caribbean Financial Action Taskforce and of the Offshore Group of Banking Supervisors, which are both observers bodies to the Financial Action Taskforce. Bermuda is also a member of the Egmont Group, the organisation for sharing information between Financial Intelligence Units. The Bermuda Monetary Authority is a member of the International Organisation of Securities Commissions, which requires members to enter into a memorandum of understanding to mutually share information.

The International Monetary Fund conducted a review of Bermuda's financial sector regulation and supervision in early 2003 which is publicly available at www.imf.org/external/pubs/ft/scr/2005/cr0598.pdf and www.imf.org/external/pubs/ft/scr/2005/cr0599.pdf. This describes the financial, regulatory, and supervisory framework as well developed in banking, the key areas of securities regulation, and Anti-Money Laundering/ Counter Financing of Terrorism. The Caribbean Financial Action Task Force and the International Monetary Fund are currently undertaking a further assessment of regulation and supervision in Bermuda.

Financial Services: Pay

Ben Chapman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact of City bonuses on (a) London's housing market and (b) increases in housing prices in London in the last five years. [155607]

Jane Kennedy: HM Treasury has made no explicit assessment of the impact of City bonuses on London's housing market. Prospects for the housing market are examined as part of the usual Budget and pre-Budget report forecasting process.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will undertake an evaluation of the adequacy of the tax rate on City bonuses. [155608]

Jane Kennedy: The Government keep all aspects of the tax system under review as part of the Budget cycle

HM Revenue and Customs: Correspondence

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Chairman of HM Customs and Revenue expects to reply to the letter of 19 July from the hon. Member for Aylesbury on the tax credit case of Mr. and Mrs. D. of Aylesbury (ref. JE875300A); and if he will make a statement. [156223]

Jane Kennedy: The Chairman of HM Revenue and Customs recently replied and apologises to the hon. Member for the delay in doing so.

HM Revenue and Customs: Travel

John McDonnell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the travelling and subsistence costs for mobile detection teams within the detection directorate of HM Revenue and Customs were in each of the last four years. [156026]

Angela Eagle: All frontline detection staff are deployed on flexible, mobile basis. Total travel and subsistence expenditure for the detection directorate is shown in the following table.

2006-07	6,537,486
2005-06	6,378,546
2004-05	5,713,698
2003-04	5,931,342

Inheritance Tax

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many estates in 2006-07 were not liable to inheritance tax as a consequence of the exemption available for (a) spouses and (b) civil partners. [155724]

Jane Kennedy: No such estimates are available for 2006-07, because the supporting information is not complete.

Insolvency: Football

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which professional football clubs have gone into administration leaving an unpaid debt to HM Revenue and Customs since 2000. [155598]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs are not in a position to provide such information about individual businesses, to do so would breach taxpayer confidentiality.

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) tax and (b) national insurance revenue has been (i) lost and (ii) written off in relation to each professional football club which has entered into administration since 2000. [155599]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs are not in a position to provide information about individual businesses, as to do so would breach taxpayer confidentiality.

International Monetary Fund: Public Appointments

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment his Department has made of the suitability of (a) European and (b) non-European candidates for the post of Managing Director of the International Monetary Fund; and if he will make a statement; [155773]

(2) what discussions his Department has held on nominating a non-European candidate for the post of Managing Director of the International Monetary Fund; and if he will make a statement; [155774]

(3) what criteria his Department uses to assess candidates for nomination for the post of Managing Director of the International Monetary Fund; and if he will make a statement. [156317]

Kitty Ussher: The UK supports an open, transparent and meritocratic process for the selection of the Managing Director of the IMF, with the best candidate for the job selected regardless of nationality. The Chancellor has made this clear to other Finance Ministers both publicly and privately, including at the 9 July meeting of ECOFIN.

In selecting the successor to Rodrigo de Rato, the IMF's Executive Board put in place for the first time a selection process designed to deliver the UK's preferred objectives. This included a clear job description, a public timetable, a month-long nominations period, an interview stage—and an invitation for applications from all member countries. All of these steps were followed and by the close of nominations on 31 August two highly credible candidates had been put forward: Dominique Strauss-Kahn of France and Josef Tosovsky of the Czech Republic.

Before determining which of the two candidates to support, the UK compared their qualifications and experience to the job description set out by the Executive Board, available on the IMF website at www.imf.org/external/np/sec/pr/2007/pr07159.htm and concluded that Dominique Strauss-Kahn would be best able to succeed in pushing forward significant reform at the Fund. For this reason, the UK Executive Director supported his candidacy and the UK welcomed Mr. Strauss-Kahn's appointment on 28 September.

The UK will in future continue to support a similarly open and transparent process for all senior appointments at both the IMF and the World Bank.

Landfill Tax

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much landfill tax was paid by (a) waste disposal authorities and (b) other local authorities in each of the last 10 years. [156502]

Angela Eagle: It is not possible using landfill tax receipts data to determine how much revenue is received from local authorities. This is because registered landfill site operators pay the tax to HM Revenue and Customs and pass on the cost to their customers through the disposal charges they set. The origin of the landfilled waste is not recorded on the tax return.

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much landfill tax was hypothecated to local authorities via the Revenue Support Grant Settlements in each of the last four financial years. [156503]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 2 July 2007, Official Report, column 936W.

National Income: Cornwall

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the gross value added was for Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly in each year since 2004. [156667]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 9 October 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning Gross Value Added (GVA) for Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly in each year since 2004. I am replying in her absence. (156667)

Regional Gross Value Added (GVA) data are produced using the official statistical geographies known as NUTS (Nomenclature of Units for Territorial Statistics). GVA data exist for the NUTS2 region of Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly for the time period 1995-2004. These data were provided in the PQ response Official Report of 16 July 2007, Volume 463, Col 62, which requested Gross Value Added in Cornwall in each year since 1979.

ONS plan to publish regional GVA data up to and including 2006 for NUTS1 regions and 2005 for NUTS2 and NUTS3 regions in December 2007.

National Insurance Contributions

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what percentage of people in (a) Cambridgeshire and (b) the United Kingdom who have been informed that their National Insurance contributions do not meet the required level to qualify for the basic state pension in each of the last 10 tax years have made voluntary Class 3 National Insurance contributions up to the level required to qualify for the basic state pension; [156499]

(2) what percentage of people in (a) Cambridgeshire and (b) the United Kingdom who hold National Insurance numbers have made National Insurance contributions during each of the last 10 tax years. [156501]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 8 October 2007]: HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) maintains National Insurance records but does not hold the precise data requested by the hon. Member. In particular data are not held by county of residence.

Each year HMRC tells certain customers where their annual National Insurance contributions do not meet the qualifying level for basic state pension purposes for a tax year and how to pay the amount of voluntary contributions needed to make good the shortfall.

The following table gives detail for each year on a national basis.

	1996-97 to 2001-02 year breakdown not available	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05
Number of deficiency notices issued[1]	10,021,682	3,785,747	3,664,485	4,719,208
Number of receipts by end of March 2007 i.e. voluntary contributions made.	329,046	129,411	105,774	60,031

[1] The tax years shown are the years in which the shortfall occurred as opposed to the year in which the notice was issued.

The percentage of people with National Insurance numbers who make a contribution in any year is not available.

Northern Rock

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the guarantee announced for deposits in Northern Rock covers unlimited new deposits into existing accounts; and for how long it is expected to continue. [155740]

Mr. Darling: On 17 September I announced that, should it be necessary, the Government, with the Bank of England, would put in place arrangements that would guarantee all the existing deposits in Northern Rock Plc. These arrangements would continue during the current instability in the financial markets.

The Government have today announced that these arrangements will be extended to cover all new retail deposits in Northern Rock Plc. The arrangements will cover all retail deposits taken since 19 September. Northern Rock Plc will pay an appropriate fee for the extension of the arrangements, which is designed to ensure that the company does not receive a commercial advantage.

Office for National Statistics: Directories

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the latest version of the National Statistics Postcode Directory. [156003]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question requesting that a copy of the latest version of the National Statistics Postcode Directory be placed in the House of Commons Library (156003).

The quarterly Directory is a database file, available in a number of formats, which is used primarily for data processing. The Directory has not been developed for searches of individual postcodes and so does not have a user interface.

A free postcode searching facility is available through the GIGateway website: http://www.gigateway.org.uk/areasearch/default.html which contains all of the data available on the latest August '07 version of the Directory. This will provide you with direct access to the information held on the Directory.

The Parliamentary Constituencies held on the Directory are the current constituencies.

If you require any further information please contact Alistair Calder (alistair.calder@ons.gsi.gov.uk or 01329 813562).

Personal Income

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average (a) annual incomes and (b) annual gross disposable household incomes were in (i) each parliamentary constituency in Cornwall, (ii) the South West, (iii) England and (iv) the UK in 2006. [156664]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning annual incomes and gross disposable household income (GDHI) in Cornwall, the South West, England and the United Kingdom in 2006. (156664)

Estimates of income are available back to 1995 and the latest year available is 2005. These data were provided in the PQ response Official Report of 5 June 2007, Volume 461, Col 474. ONS plan to publish regional GDHI for 2006 in April 2008.

Smuggling: Boats

John McDonnell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many uncanalised yacht and pleasure craft are estimated to have entered the UK in each year since 2003; and how many interventions or challenges have been made on yacht and pleasure craft by HM Revenue and Customs or other UK authorities since 2003. [156028]

Angela Eagle: HM Revenue and Customs have not made any estimate of the number of yacht and pleasure craft arrivals to the UK.

We do not record centrally the number of challenges made on such craft.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what border controls HM Revenue and Customs exercise on (a) uncanalised yachts and (b) pleasure craft traffic, (i) entering and (ii) leaving the UK; and how many seizures of articles subject to an import prohibition have been made by HM Revenue and Customs in each year since 2003, broken down by category of item; and if he will make a statement. [156377]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs challenge, board and search yachts and pleasure craft on an intelligence-led basis. We do not centrally record seizures from such craft separately from other modes of transport.

National seizure figures are available in the HM Revenue and Customs Annual Report.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) records and (b) estimates have been made of the number of uncanalised yacht and pleasure craft entering the UK each year since 2003; and how many challenges have been made in respect of such craft by HM Revenue and Customs or other UK authority since 2003. [156608]

Angela Eagle: HM Revenue and Customs have not made any estimate of the number of yacht and pleasure craft arrivals to the UK. No record is kept of the number of such vessels entering the UK.

We do not record centrally the number of challenges made on such craft.

Tax Yields: Cornwall

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much money was received into the public purse from people in Cornwall by (a) Pay As You Earn, (b) national insurance, (c) VAT, (d) corporation tax and (e) road tax in each year since 1979. [156665]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 October 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning the amount of tax revenue raised in Cornwall per annum. (156665)

The Office for National Statistics publishes regional estimates of Gross Disposable Household Income (GDHI) which include data for taxes on incomes and wealth paid by households. Data are available from 1995-2005. Regional estimates for expenditure based taxes and duties, for example VAT, are not available. Taxes paid by corporations are also unavailable on a regional basis.

Table A contains estimates of household taxes paid by residents of Cornwall and the Isles of Stilly from 1995 to 2005.

Table A: Taxes generated per annum millions[1,2]

	Cornwall and Isles of Scilly[3]
1995	549
1996	518
1997	523
1998	608
1999	627
2000	673
2001	717
2002	729
2003	764
2004	841
2005	909

[1] These data are at current prices. They are not deflated to account for increases in prices over time. Regional data are not available on a constant price (deflated) basis.
[2] These estimates are taken from the most recent release of regional GDHI data, published in March 2007.
[3] Data are presented for Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly combined. These data cannot be disaggregated into the two constituent areas.

Taxation: Gambling

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assumptions his Department has made regarding the behavioural changes necessary in order for receipts from remote gaming duty to equal those anticipated in the 2007 Financial Statement and Budget Report; [156521]

(2) how much revenue he expects to receive from remote gaming duty in each of the next five years. [156522]

Angela Eagle: Receipts from Remote Gaming Duty were forecast on the basis that existing Remote Gaming providers are located in tax havens and would not choose to relocate in Great Britain under any rate of taxation. Even at 0 per cent. Remote Gaming Duty, we expected the presence of irrecoverable VAT alone to prevent these companies choosing to relocate in Great Britain.

Revenue estimates of the Budget changes to gambling taxation were published in the 2007 Financial Statement and Budget Report.

Taxation: National Lottery

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Treasury has raised in duty from the sale of National Lottery tickets in each year since the Lottery was established; and if he will make a statement. [156264]

Angela Eagle: Revenues from gambling taxes are published in the HM Revenue and Customs Betting, Gaming and Lottery Duties Statistical Factsheet, available at http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=facbetting

Taxation: Pensioners

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the tax changes announced in the 2007 budget due to be implemented in 2008 on a woman pensioner aged between 60 and 65; and if he will make a statement. [156453]

Kitty Ussher: Tax changes announced in Budget 2007 were part of a package of reforms to support work, families and pensioners. The exact impact of the reforms on individuals including women pensioners aged between 60 and 64 will depend both on their own incomes, and also the circumstances of the household in which they live, for example the income and age of any partner, and family eligibility for tax credits and benefits.

Unemployment: Young People

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many 18 to 24-year-olds were not in full-time education, employment or training in each (a) local authority area and (b) parliamentary constituency in the latest period for which figures are available; and what proportion of the population of 18 to 24-year-olds this represented in each case. [155992]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 9 October 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about young people not in employment, full-time education or training. I am replying in her absence. (155992)

Tables 1 and 2 attached, show the numbers of 18 to 24 year olds not in full-time education, employment or training, resident in Great Britain, parliamentary constituencies and local authorities, for the 12 months ending in March 2007 from the Annual Population Survey. The tables also show these numbers as percentages of the 18 to 24 year old populations in the areas.

Estimates for a subset of the population in a small geographical area, are based on very small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty.

As the information is extensive, copies of these tables have been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Valuation Office Agency: ICT

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what purpose the Valuation Office Agency joined PISCES; on what date; and at what cost. [156598]

Jane Kennedy: In January 2006 the VGA joined PISCES (Property Information System Common Exchange Standards) to enable it to contribute to the development of common standards for the holding—and where authorised—transfer of information relating to commercial properties. Executive membership costs £10,000 plus VAT per year.

VAT: Helmets

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reasons VAT is charged on child cycling helmets. [155636]

Jane Kennedy: VAT is not chargeable on any pedal cycle helmet which satisfies the requirements of the Personal Protective Equipment Directive (Directive 89/686/EEC).

Welfare Tax Credits

Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what advice is given to claimants when there is a significant delay in amending a claimant's award notice following a change in their circumstances to enable them to calculate their tax credit entitlement when payments continue. [155749]

Jane Kennedy: Tax credits award notices and accompanying guidance notes, together with the guidance notes that accompany claim forms, all explain that changes in income can affect entitlement and encourage claimants to tell HM Revenue and Customs as soon as their income changes. Where a customer has not received a new award notice following a change in their circumstances, they can ring the Tax Credits Helpline and ask for a recalculation of their award using the new information.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department paid through the tax credit system to clients as compensation in lieu of any bank charges incurred on their personal accounts while involved with the tax credit system in the last 12 month period for which figures are available. [156294]

Jane Kennedy: The circumstances in which HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) will make compensation payments to its customers are explained in the Department's fact sheet, "Complaints and Putting Things Right", which is available at www.hmrc.gov.uk

HMRC does not separately record the value of payments made to reimburse customers' bank charges.

Welfare Tax Credits: Appeals

Mike Wood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what process is followed by HM Revenue and Customs when dealing with appeals against the decisions they make in calculating child and working tax credit entitlement. [155973]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs' guidance for dealing with appeals in relation to tax credits decisions can be found in the Tax Credits Manual which is available on their website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/manuals/ntcmanual/appeals/ntc0040000.htm

Welfare Tax Credits: Bournemouth

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was (a) overpaid and (b) underpaid to recipients of tax credits in Bournemouth in (i) 2005-06 and (ii) 2006-07. [155775]

Jane Kennedy: Estimates of the numbers of families with tax credits awards, including information on overpayments and underpayments by constituency and county, based on final family circumstances and incomes, for 2005-06, is available in the HMRC publication "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Finalised Annual Awards 2005-06. Supplements on Payments in 2005-06. Geographical Analysis", which is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personaltax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm

Estimates for 2006-07 tax credit awards are due to be published in May 2008 when family circumstances and incomes have been finalised.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Burma: United Nations

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what information his Department has on reports that six UN Development Programme staff in Burma have been involved in corruption. [155590]

Mr. Malik: UN Development Programme (UNDP) has recently taken disciplinary action against four UNDP staff in Burma for unsatisfactory performance or for inappropriate use of project resources, totalling about £125.

Departments: Accountancy

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what accounts directions were issued by his Department in financial years (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [156649]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: HM Treasury issue accounts directions to Departments, pension schemes and agencies (under the Government Resource and Accounts Act 2000) and to trading funds (under the Government Trading Fund Act 1973).

For the years 2005-06 and 2006-07 the Department for International Development did not issue any accounts directions for the form and content of resource and other accounts to any of the Department's sponsored bodies.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which private consultancy firms (a) his Department and (b) agencies which report to his Department engaged in each of the last three years; which programmes or projects each firm worked on; and what the approximate cost to the Department or agency concerned was of each engagement. [155873]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The information requested is available on the DFID website http://www.dfid.gov.uk/procurement/contractslet.asp for the calendar years 2005, 2006 and up to and including September 2007. Providing the same level of information for 2004 would incur disproportionate cost. The information on our website does not include low value contracts issued by DFID's overseas offices and would also incur disproportionate cost to compile.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will break down in (a) near cash and (b) non-cash terms columns 1 to 8 of the subhead detail tables for his Department contained in the (i) main estimate, (ii) winter supplementary estimate and (iii) spring supplementary estimate for financial years 2001-02 to 2007-08. [155998]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The information in the Part II: Subhead detail table of our Supply Estimates is not broken down by near-cash/non-cash. There are no other published documents that provide a near-cash/non-cash breakdown of this data, though the Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses (PESA) publication (copies of which are in the House Library) provides a useful near-cash/non-cash DEL split (see Tables 1.6, 1.7 and 2.1 of PESA 2007 for data for years 2001-02 to 2007-08).

Data taken from Supply Estimates is not necessarily readily compatible with a near-cash/non-cash split, which is used only within the Departmental Expenditure Limit budgetary controls applied by HM Treasury. Providing a near-cash/non-cash split against the columns in the Part II: Subhead detail table in our Estimate would only be possible at disproportionate cost. The ability of Departments to provide such a split will depend partly on the extent of reconciliations between voted provision and budgetary limits.

Developing Countries: Politics and Government

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many applications he received for the Governance and Transparency Fund; and whether he plans to publish a list of (a) successful and (b) unsuccessful applications. [156068]

Mr. Malik: The deadline for proposals to the Governance and Transparency Fund (GTF) was midnight on 28 September 2007. We received 265 proposals by this deadline.

We aim to make final funding decisions in December 2007. In accordance with normal practice for our central funding schemes, we will post a full list of successful proposals on the DFID website once all applicants have been informed of the decisions. The question of whether or not to publish the names of unsuccessful applicants, bearing in mind the need to balance respect for confidentiality with a desire to be as open as possible, raises a number of issues; we are currently considering these.

Overseas Aid

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's (a) administrative expenditure, (b) other current expenditure, (c) grant expenditure, (d) operating appropriations in aid (A in A), (e) capital and (f) non-operating A in A outturn, broken down in (i) near cash and (ii) non-cash terms, was for financial years 2001-02 to 2006-07. [155997]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Part II: Subhead detail table in Main Estimates for each year provide outturn data for one prior year, but these are only broken down to net total resources for each section in the table.

There are no other published documents that provide a near-cash/non-cash breakdown of these data, though the Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses (PESA) publication (copies of which are in the House Library) provides a useful near-cash/non-cash DEL split (see Tables 1.6, 1.7 and 2.1 of PESA 2007 for data for years 2001-02 to 2007-08). However, we have been able to provide a near-cash/non-cash split against the columns in the Part II: Subhead detail table in our Estimate by identifying non-cash items (cost of capital charges, depreciation, new/adjusted provisions, notional audit fees and other notional charges, losses on disposal of fixed assets) shown in the notes to our Resource Accounts. All other items are near cash. The Resource Accounts do not split non-cash items between 'Other current expenditure' and 'Grants', therefore all non-cash programme items have been allocated to 'Other Current Expenditure' in the following table.

Data taken from Supply Estimates or resource accounts are not necessarily readily compatible with a near-cash/non-cash split, which is used only within the Departmental Expenditure Limit budgetary controls applied by HM Treasury.

£000

		Administrative expenditure	Other current expenditure	Grant expenditure	Operating A in A	Capital	Non-operating A in A

Overseas Aid: Water

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what assistance his Department is providing to aid the development of water operator partnerships; [156342]

(2) what assessment he has made of the potential value of water operator partnerships. [156343]

Mr. Thomas: DFID officials have been in discussion with NGOs such as Oxfam, WDM, WaterAid and others for over a year about more effective ways to support public utilities. We recognise that promoting partnerships is an opportunity to help water utilities identify what works, build their capacity and support them to deliver better services to poor people.

In April of this year, DFID funded regional workshops in Asia and Africa. Working with utility managers, these explored the possibilities of establishing regional partnerships—and examined the support they might need. We have also agreed to fund work to share the lessons from public water utilities about what has worked best in individual countries and we will look to see what can be learnt from partnerships between utilities.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Broadband

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the effect of retail price competition through the application of regulation in broadband on the range and price of services available to consumers; and what assessment he has made of the merits of applying similar openness of access to the market for premium content and pay TV. [155936]

Mr. Timms: The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Minister. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Companies: Takeovers

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will review the takeover code in the light of the instability at Northern Rock. [156044]

Mr. Timms: The takeover code is issued and administered by the takeover panel, which operates independently from Government. Changes to the code, if considered necessary, would be made by the panel. The code ensures that shareholders' interests are protected during the course of a takeover bid.

Departments: Early Retirement

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many and what proportion of staff in his Department and its predecessor took early retirement in the last five years, broken down by grade; and at what cost. [148742]

Mr. Thomas: A total of 473 staff in the former Department of Trade and Industry took early retirement at age over 50 from April 2002 to March 2007 at a total cost of £15.34 million, broken down as follows:

	Number of early retirements	Cost of lump sums (£)	Proportion of depart staff including UKTI (percentage)
2002-03	19	704,188.73	0.4
2003-04	12	566,127.20	0.3
2004-05	271	6,962,183.32	6
2005-06	113	4,934,923.32	3
2006-07	58	2,172,697.92	2
Total	473	15,340,120.49

A breakdown of the grade for this number of staff could only be established at a disproportionate cost.

Public Holidays

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what measures have been taken to ensure that (a) employers and (b) employees are aware of the changes in statutory holiday entitlements and what the statutory holiday entitlements are, and during what dates, during the transitional period of their introduction. [155806]

Mr. McFadden: The Government undertook two full consultations on the proposals to increase the holiday entitlement, holding a number of regional meetings and working closely with unions and employer organisations. Specific efforts were made to engage small businesses and employers in key sectors likely to be particularly affected. The ability to receive email updates on the proposals was offered and over eight thousand people requested updates on progress. The proposals also attracted considerable media coverage on a number of occasions.

Detailed guidance for employers and workers, including an interactive calculator for holiday entitlements, has been placed on the Business Link and Direct.gov websites respectively, with supporting material on BERR's own website.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departments: Flowers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much was spent by his Department on flowers in the last 12 months. [153065]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office, excluding its agencies and Executive NDPBs, spent £21,102 on flowers in 2006-07 (this is the last 12 months for which audited expenditure figures are available).

WALES

Lone Parents

8. Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what estimate he has made of the number of lone parents with children aged between five and 16 years in Wales he expects to move into work as a result of the Government's proposed changes to the benefit regime. [156173]

Mr. Hain: The UK Government's goal is to increase the number of working lone parents in the UK by 300,000.

Rail Services

9. Mrs. Betty Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the First Minister and the Secretary of State for Transport on railway services in Wales. [156174]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My right hon. Friend and I regularly meet with ministerial colleagues both in Whitehall and the Assembly Government to discuss issues affecting Wales, including rail services.

Clean Coal

10. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what assessment he has made of the future for clean coal in Wales; and if he will make a statement. [156175]

Mr. Hain: Clean coal is central to our goal of developing a diverse energy supply in Wales, which dramatically reduces our carbon emissions.

Animal Health Measures

11. Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on the cross-border variations in emergency animal health measures. [156176]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Secretary of State and I have regular discussions with the Secretary of State for DEFRA on a range of issues, including animal health measures.

The recent crises in animal health and our Government's reaction prove the seriousness with which we take these issues, and that the procedures in place to deal with such sudden events are working well.

Heroin

12. Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he last discussed the average street price of heroin in Wales with the Home Secretary. [156177]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Both my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and I have regular discussions with ministerial colleagues on matters affecting Wales including such matters as drug-related crime.

RAF St. Athan

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what progress has been made on infrastructure projects in support of the Defence Training Review project at RAF St. Athan; and if he will make a statement. [156148]

Mr. Hain: Negotiations between the Ministry of Defence, the Welsh Assembly Government and Metrix are continuing on delivering Package 1 quickly, and in addressing the remaining affordability issues to deliver Package 2.

On 3 October the Welsh Assembly Government announced that public exhibitions are under way on obtaining the public's views on improving access to Cardiff airport, demonstrating their commitment to improving the road infrastructure to the airport and which will no doubt also benefit the DTR at St. Athan.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Schools: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many assaults there were on school teachers in 2005-06 which led to exclusions, broken down by (a) by category of assault and (b) local education authority; and if he will make a statement. [154523]

Kevin Brennan: Information on the number of assaults on school teachers is not collected centrally.

The Department does collect information on the number of permanent and fixed period exclusions from schools due to physical assault against an adult. The latest information is shown in the following tables.

However, due to underlying changes in the data collection, information on the reasons for exclusion is only available for maintained secondary schools for 2005-06.

Employment

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many (a) women, (b) single parents and (c) people were in work in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) south Tyneside, (iii) the north-east and (iv) the UK in each year since 1997; [156033]

(2) what the level of (a) adult and (b) youth unemployment was in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) south Tyneside, (iii) the north-east and (iv) the UK in each year since 1997; [156035]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply. The relevant tables have been placed in the Library.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Questions about employment and unemployment. (156032, 156033, 156034, 156035)

These questions ask for the same information as questions received in July this year, and I refer you to the answer given in Official Report volume 463 of 26 July, column 1460.

However, since the previous questions were answered, we now have new employment and unemployment data from the Annual Population Survey (APS) for April 2006 to March 2007, and the April to June 2007 Labour Force Survey (LFS) household dataset.

As in the previous answer, Table 1, attached, shows the number of males, females and people, who were (i) aged 16 and over, (ii) young persons aged 16 to 24 and (iii) persons aged 25 and over, resident in the Jarrow constituency, who were in employment, for the 12 months ending in March 2007 from the APS. The table also shows employment rates which allow changes to be seen in the context of changing population numbers. Tables 2 to 4 show data for South Tyneside metropolitan borough, the North East and Great Britain respectively.

For unitary and local authorities, the ONS produces estimates of total unemployment, following ILO definitions, from a statistical model. Annual estimates for other areas and breakdowns are compiled from the annual local area LFS and the APS following ILO definitions.

Table 5, attached, shows the number of males, females and people, who were (i) aged 16 and over, (ii) young persons aged 16 to 24 and (iii) persons aged 25 and over, resident in the Jarrow constituency, who were unemployed, for the 12 months ending March 2007, from the APS. The table also shows unemployment rates which allow changes to be seen in the context of changing population numbers. Tables 6 to 8 show data for South Tyneside metropolitan borough, the North East and Great Britain respectively.

Table 9, attached shows employment levels, unemployment levels and rates for lone parents aged 16 and over and employment rates for lone parents of working age, resident in the South Tyneside metropolitan borough, the North East and Great Britain, for the three months ending in June, for 2007 from the LFS household datasets. Data for the Jarrow constituency are unavailable as Parliamentary Constituency markers are not held in this dataset.

The estimates in Tables 1-9 are for a subset of the population in small geographical areas, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty. In this case, the sample sizes for the Jarrow constituency and South Tyneside metropolitan borough are not sufficient to give an accurate estimate of even the direction of the change over time.

Smuggling: Birds

David Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many incidents of wild bird smuggling have been recorded by HM Revenue and Customs since 1 July 2007. [156833]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) enforcement powers in relation to wild birds apply to those species listed as endangered under Council Regulation (EC) No. 338/97 on the protection species of wild fauna and flora.

HMRC records show no detentions or seizures of wild birds since 1 July 2007.

TRANSPORT

Buoyancy Aids: Fishing Vessels

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research the Maritime and Coastguard Agency has undertaken on the potential to save lives of the introduction of compulsory personal flotation devices to the UK fishing fleet; and if she will make a statement. [156816]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) commissioned research entitled "Practical Application of Regulatory Impact Diagrams to Buoyancy Equipment at Work for Fishermen" which was completed in February 2001. This addressed all factors which may affect the wearing of buoyancy devices at sea.

All fishing vessels are required to carry lifejackets but the report argued that prior to taking a regulatory approach to wearing lifejackets, we needed to identify the needs and experiences of lifejacket users, in order to gauge the requirements for regulations. This finding was supported by research which demonstrated that safety precautions show little correlation with the likelihood of accidents.

Following publication of this report the MCA has participated in research by the Seafish Industry Authority (Seafish) and the Royal National Lifeboat Institute on Lifejacket and Buoyancy Aid Acceptability Trials. The trials of 24 products were in two stages, a test tank assessment to ensure that products are effective when worn with 'sea gear' and long term assessments by fishermen in the course of fishing.

The results of the research have been made available to the industry to inform the purchase and wearing of such equipment and manufacturers of buoyancy aids and lifejackets to inform development.

The MCA has also recently undertaken research on the approach taken to the wearing of lifejackets adopted by other countries, and the effect on casualty statistics, and is currently assessing the findings of this research.

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her Department's projected spending is on advertising and promotional campaigns for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, broken down by cost relating to (i) television, (ii) radio and (iii) print media. [155887]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department's projected spending for advertising campaigns for the 2007-08 fiscal year is set out in the following table. Please note, these are anticipated spend and could be subject to change. Additional advertising costs, such as cinema, ambient and online, have been incorporated into 'other' advertising costs.

The main expenditure by the Central Department is in support of the THINK! Road Safety, Act On CO2 and Aviation campaigns. DVLA investment is in support of their vehicle excise duty enforcement, electronic vehicle licensing and sales of marks campaigns.

	Television	Radio	Print	Other
Central DfT	6,099	2,350	1,800	3,711
DSA	40	0	50	0
DVLA	3,617	1,567	457	0
HA	0	60	120	20

The Department's projected spending for advertising campaigns for the 2008-09 fiscal year is more difficult to project because some budgets have yet to be allocated. We anticipate that circa £11 million will be spent by Department for Transport and £4.6 million by Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA). Investment in each specific media channel has yet to be finalised.

Breaking down the costs of promotional campaigns for the Department by television, radio and print media for 2007-08 and 2008-09 fiscal years could be done at only disproportionate cost.

Lorries: Licensing

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the most recent estimate is of the number of (a) heavy goods vehicles and (b) public service vehicles which should be covered by an operators licence but are not. [156055]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department is responsible for the enforcement of road traffic legislation. Records are kept of the number of operator licences issued. An operator licence may list a number of vehicles. The Department's records do not detail the number of vehicles as a percentage of the total heavy goods vehicles and public service vehicles fleets in use.

Although DVLA may have records of HGVs and PSVs registered, some will not require an operator licence. One operator licence holder can have multiple vehicles listed. In addition, it is not mandatory for PSV operators to list all the vehicles that they may use on their operator licence. So the DVLA and VOSA records cannot be directly compared.

Lorries: Safety

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the most recent estimate is of (a) heavy goods vehicles and (b) public service vehicles which should have an annual safety check conducted by the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency but do not. [156056]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) is responsible for the enforcement of road safety legislation. Its records reflect the number of heavy goods vehicles (HGV) and public service vehicles (PSV) which have presented for annual test. Its records do not record this as a percentage of the total HGV and PSV fleets in use.

Although the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) may have records of HGVs and PSV's registered, some may be exempt from annual tests or have been declared as off the road (and therefore not require a certificate.) Also VOSA may have tested some vehicles more than once in a year so the DVLA and VOSA records cannot be directly compared.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Carers' Allowances

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will extend eligibility to carer's allowance to allow a carer to receive carer's allowance in respect of more than one individual in the same household. [153756]

Mrs. McGuire: Carer's allowance is intended principally to provide a measure of financial support for carers who cannot work full-time because they provide at least 35 hours of care a week for a severely disabled person. It is not payable in respect of each disabled person a carer may look after and we have no plans to change these arrangements.

Children: Maintenance

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Child Support Agency cases have been outstanding for more than (a) one year and (b) five years. [154671]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Duncan Gilchrist, dated 10 October 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As the Chief Executive is currently on annual leave, I am responding, with his authority, on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many Child Support Agency cases have been outstanding for more than (a) one year and (b) five years.

The Agency begins to process new applications as soon as they are received and continues until they have been cleared. Any applications that have not yet been cleared have been regarded as outstanding in the answer to this question. The amount of work required to achieve clearance and the elapsed time it involves varies considerably depending on, amongst other things, the circumstances of the parents and how readily they cooperate with the Agency. As such, the Agency holds only a negligible number of completely unprocessed applications.

At June 2007 the Agency had 39,600 old scheme and 74,400 new scheme uncleared cases over one year old, this represents 8% of total caseload. Of those 33,300 old scheme and 1,500 new scheme uncleared cases were over five years old, this represents 3% of total caseload.

A potential new application is defined as cleared when it:

has had a calculation and a payment arrangement set up (new scheme only) or has had an assessment (old scheme only);

has been closed;

has been identified as having had a good cause decision accepted;

has been identified as being subject to a reduced benefit decision; has been identified as a change of circumstances to an existing case, as opposed to a new application (new scheme only).

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Departments: IT

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many IT contracts were put out to competitive tender by his Department in each year since 1997; how many bidders there were for each tender; and which company won the tender in each case. [155377]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) was created in June 2001, prior to that, contractual arrangements were the responsibility of different departments and agencies. Information is provided for contracts awarded since the formation of the Department in 2001.

Wherever possible, the Department makes use of existing framework agreements to procure the full range of IS/IT services. This enables more efficient and faster procurement of services against agreed terms. When this is not possible an advertisement is placed in the Official Journal of the European Union.

Two contracts have been awarded as a result of competitive tender through the Official Journal of the European Union. These are the:

Contract to operate the Resource Management system. Three bids were received and the contract was awarded to Fujitsu in 2004.

Framework to enable the Department to procure the full range of IS/IT services via competitions or single tender. This is referred to as the Unity (UNderpinning IT DeliverY) framework and was awarded in 2005. Thirty four bids were received and thirty two suppliers were included onto the Framework Agreement.

Other contracts awarded since 2001 using either the Unity framework, or the Office of Government Commerce's S-Cat agreement, are:

Work Train Project	9.5	9.5	November 2008

Departments: Telephone Services

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of telephone calls to his Department from members of the public are recorded for training purposes. [154643]

Mrs. McGuire: All calls to the Department's contact centres are recorded and may be used for training purposes except:

when technical issues arise;

textphone calls;

eight Jobcentre Plus sites do not have the technical ability to record calls; and National Benefit Fraud Hotline calls due to their sensitive nature.

Calls made directly to the operational teams and local services are not recorded.

Disability Living Allowance

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 17 September 2007, Official Report, columns 2281-2W, on disability living allowance, whether a decision by a customer to begin work amounts to change in circumstances; and to what extent such a decision affects eligibility for disability living allowance or the amount awarded. [155653]

Mrs. McGuire: Customers in receipt of Disability Living Allowance who begin work do not have to report that event as a change of circumstances unless their care and/or mobility needs have changed in the period leading up to them beginning work or as a result of beginning work.

Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what mechanisms are in place to assess the likely effect of proposed legislation on people with disabilities; and if he will make a statement. [153751]

Mrs. McGuire: To meet the requirements of the Disability Equality Duty, Government Departments must assess the likely impact of proposed legislation on disability equality. The disability equality duty, which was introduced by the Disability Discrimination Act 2005, came into force on 4 December 2006. It requires public authorities to have due regard to the need to eliminate disability discrimination and promote disability equality when carrying out their functions.

The general duty applies across the full range of public sector activity, including service delivery, policy making, procurement and performance management. Additional duties are imposed by regulations on certain public authorities, including all Government Departments, to produce and implement a disability equality scheme in which the authority must set out its methods for assessing the impact on equality for disabled people of its proposed policies and practices.

While the Disability Equality Duty provides the framework for assessing the impact of policies on disabled people the precise mechanism for carrying out the assessments is up to each Government Department to determine and set out in their scheme.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many disabled people are resident in the UK; what mechanisms are used to estimate that figure; and if he will make a statement. [153752]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions estimates that there are over 10 million disabled people in Britain.

This estimate covers the number of people with a longstanding illness, disability or infirmity, and who have a significant difficulty with day-to-day activities. It is based on data taken from the Family Resources Survey (FRS).

Everyone in this group would meet the definition of disability in the Disability Discrimination Act (DDA); however, these estimates do not reflect the total number of people covered by the DDA as the FRS does not collect this information.

The estimates are based on sample counts that have been adjusted for non-response using multi-purpose grossing factors which align the FRS to Government Office Region populations by age and sex. Estimates are subject to sampling error and remaining response bias.

The Government's vision is that by 2025 all disabled people should have the same opportunities and choices as everyone else, be respected as equal members of society and be able to participate as equals in every aspect of family and community life.

National Insurance: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many National Insurance numbers were issued to non-UK citizens living in (a) Peterborough constituency and (b) the Peterborough city council area in each year since 1997, broken down by nationality. [154072]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information is not available prior to 2002-03. The available information has been placed in the Library.

UK Commission for Employment and Skills: Public Appointments

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how appointments will be made to the UK Commission for Employment and Skills; and what matters in respect of environmental sustainability will be taken into account in the work of the Commission. [152218]

Caroline Flint: Appointments will be made to the UK Commission for Employment and Skills through fair and open competition and under the guidelines issued by the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments.

Skills development is a fundamental part of the drive for environmental sustainability and the UK Commission will be aiming to increase skill levels in all sectors and in all disciplines as it moves to meet the aspirations set out in the Leitch report.

Employment

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many (a) women and (b) single parents were unemployed in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) south Tyneside, (iii) the north-east and (iv) the UK in each year since 1997. [156032]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply. The relevant tables have been placed in the Library.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Questions about employment and unemployment. (156032, 156033, 156034, 156035)

These questions ask for the same information as questions received in July this year, and I refer you to the answer given in Official Report volume 463 of 26 July, column 1460.

However, since the previous questions were answered, we now have new employment and unemployment data from the Annual Population Survey (APS) for April 2006 to March 2007, and the April to June 2007 Labour Force Survey (LFS) household dataset.

As in the previous answer, Table 1, attached, shows the number of males, females and people, who were (i) aged 16 and over, (ii) young persons aged 16 to 24 and (iii) persons aged 25 and over, resident in the Jarrow constituency, who were in employment, for the 12 months ending in March 2007 from the APS. The table also shows employment rates which allow changes to be seen in the context of changing population numbers. Tables 2 to 4 show data for South Tyneside metropolitan borough, the North East and Great Britain respectively.

For unitary and local authorities, the ONS produces estimates of total unemployment, following ILO definitions, from a statistical model. Annual estimates for other areas and breakdowns are compiled from the annual local area LFS and the APS following ILO definitions.

Table 5, attached, shows the number of males, females and people, who were (i) aged 16 and over, (ii) young persons aged 16 to 24 and (iii) persons aged 25 and over, resident in the Jarrow constituency, who were unemployed, for the 12 months ending March 2007, from the APS. The table also shows unemployment rates which allow changes to be seen in the context of changing population numbers. Tables 6 to 8 show data for South Tyneside metropolitan borough, the North East and Great Britain respectively.

Table 9, attached shows employment levels, unemployment levels and rates for lone parents aged 16 and over and employment rates for lone parents of working age, resident in the South Tyneside metropolitan borough, the North East and Great Britain, for the three months ending in June, for 2007 from the LFS household datasets. Data for the Jarrow constituency are unavailable as Parliamentary Constituency markers are not held in this dataset.

The estimates in Tables 1-9 are for a subset of the population in small geographical areas, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty. In this case, the sample sizes for the Jarrow constituency and South Tyneside metropolitan borough are not sufficient to give an accurate estimate of even the direction of the change over time.

JUSTICE

Arrests: Foreigners

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many individuals arrested in the Northern Basic Command Unit of Cambridgeshire Constabulary area were non-UK citizens of the European Union in each quarter since May 2004. [156825]

Maria Eagle: The arrests collection undertaken by my Department only provides data on persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences) by age group, gender, ethnicity and main offence group. Aggregated data, collected centrally from the 43 police force areas in England and Wales, are available at police force area level only and do not record the nationality of arrestees.

Driving Offences: Insurance

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) prosecutions and (b) convictions there were of uninsured drivers in the Cambridgeshire Constabulary area in each recording period since May 2004; and if he will make a statement. [156826]

Maria Eagle: Available information for the Cambridgeshire police force area are taken from the Court Proceedings database held by my Department, from May to December 2004 (latest available) shows there were 1,840 proceedings and 1,560 findings of guilt for the offence of 'using motor vehicle uninsured against third party risks'.

2005 data will be available later this year.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much fuel was consumed by UK armed forces in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq in each month since the beginning of operations. [154225]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I am withholding the monthly consumption rates of fuel as their release would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness and security of our armed forces.

I am able to provide the total amount of fuel consumed by UK forces in Afghanistan and Iraq for those dates highlighted and this is shown in the following tables. Data are not held centrally on the dates prior to those stated and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Afghanistan—total fuels consumed since October 2006-June 2007

	Litres
Aviation fuel	71.7 million
Diesel	2.75 million
Petrol	85 thousand

This includes a small portion consumed by multinational elements of Task Force Helmand/ Regional Command (South).

Iraq—total fuels consumed since January 2005-August 2007

	Litres
Aviation Fuel	132.3 million
Diesel	66.7 million
Petrol	12.8 million

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much depleted uranium ammunition has been used by British forces in Operation Herrick since 2002. [156824]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: No depleted uranium ammunition has been used by UK forces in Operation Herrick since 2002.

Aircraft Carriers

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what percentage of time (a) HMS Illustrious and (b) HMS Ark Royal were (i) on operations and (ii) undergoing maintenance in each year since 1997. [154256]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Animal Experiments

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 129W, on animal experiments, what his timetable is for making the appointments. [156249]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I can confirm that a team has been appointed to examine the future of animal testing in support of a possible future submarine escape and rescue research programme. The team comprises a core group of six specialists supported by a number of independent external advisers. It is led by an ex-military scientist, qualified to postdoctorate level, supported by subject matter experts in defence related human physiology research, submarine design and operation, and law pertaining to the use of animals in scientific research. The group of external advisers includes leading academics in the field of human physiology.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many hyperbaric experiments have been carried out on live goats since March 2007; what plans he has to commission future experiments; and if he will make a statement. [156604]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I can confirm that no hyperbaric experiments using goats have been conducted since March 2007.

A number of studies reviewing the need for further use of goats in this research programme are currently being undertaken. These studies take into account MOD's duty of care to sustain the health and welfare of submarine crews and to provide them with the ability to operate safely and effectively. The teams are investigating a range of options for submarine escape and rescue, and life support, including and excluding animal experimentation.

Any plans to conduct further experiments using goats are subject to the findings of this review.

Armed Forces: Gliding

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the unit costs of (a) tug and (b) winch launches when used for glider flights as part of armed forces training courses. [156200]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The estimated unit cost of a tug launch and a winch launch for glider flights as part of training courses is shown as follows:

Type of launch	Estimated unit cost (£)
Tug	12.06
Winch	2.60

Armed Forces: Languages

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) Farsi/Dari, (b) Arabic, (c) Urdu, (d) Pashto, (e) Swahili, (f) Uyghur, (g) Uzbek (h) Tajik and (i) Kurdish speaking military personnel are serving in the British armed forces. [154261]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The numbers of presently serving military personnel known to have skills of at least standardized language profile (SLP) Level 1 in the specified languages are listed in the following table. The numbers are listed in two categories "tested" and "untested". Those included in the "tested" column have confirmed their skill in a military language examination within the last three years and their qualification is current. Those included in the "untested" column were either examined more than three years ago and their qualification has expired, or are known to have some level of skill which has not been confirmed by military language examination.

Language	Tested	Untested
Farsi	72	79
Dari	12	1
Arabic	304	1,393
Urdu	14	41
Pashto	90	5
Swahili	0	13

There are no records of any personnel having skills in Uyghur, Uzbek, Tajik or Kurdish.

The table does not include records for special forces personnel.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British military personnel have received training in (a) Farsi/Dari, (b) Arabic, (c) Urdu, (d) Pashto, (e) Swahili, (f) Uyghur, (g) Uzbek (h) Tajik and (i) Kurdish in each year since 1997. [154262]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The following tables show the number of persons receiving training to at least standardized language profile (SLP) Level 1 in the languages for which information is requested. Despite extensive trawls, it is only possible to provide annual figures for Arabic. For the other languages, an aggregate figure for the entire period since 1997 has been collated.

	Arabic
1997	85
1998	99
1999	50
2000	37
2001	116
2002	73
2003	116
2004	127
2005	101
2006	122
2007	[1]233

[1] To date

	Other languages: 1997-2007[1]
Farsi	163
Dari	56
Urdu	41
Pashto	169
Swahili	5
Kurdish	2

[1] To date

No personnel have received any training in Uyghur, Uzbek or Tajik since 1997.

Over the 10 year period, training organisations and military language examination systems have evolved considerably. This may have led to loss of data for the earlier part of the period, with the result that totals for each language are potentially understated. The figures quoted include special forces personnel.

Army: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average tour intervals are of the (a) infantry, (b) Royal Regiment of Artillery, (c) the Corps of the Royal Engineers, (d) the Royal Logistic Corps and (e) the Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers. [154251]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The average unit tour interval for the infantry and the Royal Regiment of Artillery is 23.5 and 20.8 months, respectively. This is calculated on the basis of the mean time between the start of the most recent deployment and the end of the previous deployment for all formed units within each arm.

The unit tour interval is a less relevant measure when applied to the Corps of Royal Engineers, the Royal Logistic Corps and the Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers. This is due to the frequency with which personnel move between formed units within these corps (which means that the personnel deployed with a unit will be substantially different from the personnel who deployed with the same unit on a previous occasion). Unit tour interval data for these corps is not therefore routinely collated.

Defence: Expenditure

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion UK defence spending was of UK GDP in each financial year since 1997. [156187]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is published in HM Treasury's Public Expenditure Statistical Analysis. The most recent version, CM7019 from April 2007 is available in the Library of the House and at:

www.hm-treasury.gov.uk.

Defence: Inflation

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the defence inflation planning assumptions are for financial years 2007-08 to 2010-11. [156236]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: In line with all Government Departments, the GDP deflator is used to estimate inflation. It is available on HM Treasury website:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk

As the GDP deflator is frequently updated, to simplify our internal planning process, inflation is currently rounded to 2.5 per cent.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will break down in (a) near cash and (b) non-cash terms columns 1-8 of the subhead detail tables for his Department contained in the (i) main estimate, (ii) winter supplementary estimate and (iii) spring supplementary estimate for financial years 2001-02 to 2007-08. [156002]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I will write to the right hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the (a) planned (i) non-cash limit and (ii) near-cash resource Departmental Expenditure Limit (DEL), (b) anticipated operating appropriations in aid, (c) planned capital DEL and (d) anticipated non-operating appropriations in aid are for each of his Department's top-level budget holders in each year of the comprehensive spending review; [156326]

(2) what the planned (a) non-cash and (b) near cash administration costs limit is for each of his Department's top-level budget holders in each year of the comprehensive spending review. [156329]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Department is currently conducting a planning round to disaggregate the comprehensive spending review settlement; therefore this information is not currently available.

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the near cash resource and capital departmental expenditure limits are for his Department in each year of the 2007 comprehensive spending review period. [156327]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The following table shows the Ministry of Defence's near-cash RDEL and CDEL over the CSR07 years.

£ million

	Near-cash resource DEL	Capital DEL
2008-09	22,869	7,871
2009-10	23,711	8,187
2010-11	24,434	8,871

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the financial year 2006-07 outturn for resources one, two and three provision for each subhead was broken down by (a) near cash departmental expenditure limit (DEL), (b) non-cash DEL, (c) capital DEL, (d) near cash annual managed expenditure, (e) non-cash annual managed expenditure, (f) capital annual managed expenditure, (g) near cash non-budget and (h) non-cash non-budget. [156328]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 10 September 2007, Official Report, columns 1888-93W.

EU Defence Policy

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he next plans to meet his counterparts in (a) France and (b) other European states regarding the establishment of an autonomous European military capability. [155834]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Secretary of State meets with the French Defence Minister as well as his other European Defence ministerial colleagues on a regular basis to discuss the European Security and Defence Policy (ESDP). This includes at meetings of EU Defence Ministers such as that held by the EU presidency last week in Portugal where, collectively, Ministers met to take forward work on ESDP.

European Defence Agency: Finance

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much the UK has contributed to the European Defence Agency in each year since 2004. [154240]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Since the establishment of the European Defence Agency in July 2004, the UK has contributed:

2004	1,056,536.14
2005	2,362,015.50
2006	2,093,545.88
2007	1,954,567.49

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects UK forces to leave Iraq completely. [156084]

Des Browne: As the Prime Minister announced on 8 October, the number of British forces based in southern Iraq will reduce to around 4,500 by the end of the year. Our forces continue to have important work to do helping the Iraqi security forces further develop the capacity and capability to take over responsibility for the security of their own people. We keep force levels under constant review and will continue to make reductions as and when conditions on the ground allow. It is therefore wrong to set an arbitrary date for British forces to leave Iraq.

Military Exercises

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many urban warfare exercises have been conducted in each year since 2001. [154232]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information is not held in the format requested as all three services conduct urban warfare exercises at varying scales.

Land units are mandated to conduct urban training throughout the training cycle. However, urban training does not take place in isolation but is integrated into wider exercises. Training may involve low level activity focusing solely upon the urban environment or as part of wider collective training. The intensity of this urban training differs according to time and exercise area. By way of example, for the period September 2006 to September 2007[1], the Copehill Down Urban Training Village on Salisbury Plain was used for 296 days of urban training.

Both the RN and RAF also conduct urban warfare exercises but at a much smaller scale. Since 2001 the annual programme for Commando Training Centre Royal Marines has routinely included urban warfare exercises, specifically 22 for Recruit Training, five for the All Arms Commando Course and two for Young Officer Courses, making a total of 29 annually. For the RAF, 14 urban warfare exercises were conducted in each year in the period 2001-03, rising to 18 annually thereafter.

The individual training programme also includes urban training, though to varying degrees dependent upon the assessed need. By way of example, training at both the Infantry Battle School and the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst routinely incorporates urban exercises as part of their courses.

Urban training is extensively practised within Pre Deployment Training for current operations, and incorporated into all unit training packages for operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. The exact emphasis upon urban operations is driven by the role of the unit concerned.

[1] Records for the amount of urban training across the entire Defence Estate are not held.

Navy: Bermuda

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Royal Navy craft of what classes have been deployed in Bermuda's territorial waters to promote law enforcement and national security in the last two years; what the estimated number is of Royal Navy personnel deployed; and if he will make a statement. [155825]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: In the past two years four naval units have visited Bermuda: two ships were on Atlantic Patrol Task (North) and two were on routine transit visits. Although none of the ships went there with the specific purpose of promoting law enforcement, they bolstered national security by virtue of their presence.

The Royal Navy does not track vessels in and out of territorial waters. Details of actual port visits to Bermuda are as follows:

Ship	Company	Visited
HMS Cumberland	250	29 November to 2 December 2005
HMS Torbay	130	25 March to 30 March 2006
HMS Iron Duke	181	29 June to 3 July 2006
HMS Scott	62	21 May to 26 May 2007

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what financial contribution has been made by the Government of Bermuda towards the cost of the Royal Navy's deployment in Bermuda's territorial waters on the task of promoting law enforcement and national security in the last two years; and if he will make a statement. [156335]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: None. The Government of Bermuda does not pay for Royal Navy deployments in Bermuda's territorial waters. The security of UK Overseas Territories is the responsibility of the UK Government.

Nimrod Aircraft

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to provide the (a) Nimrod and (b) Nimrod MRA4 with (i) armour and (ii) fuel tank protection before deployment in theatre; and if he will make a statement. [156605]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Our aircraft are fitted with defensive systems and survivability aids to reflect the operational environment in which they are deployed. We keep the requirement for such systems under review for all our aircraft deployed on operations including the Nimrod MR2. This will continue to be the case for future aircraft, such as Nimrod MRA4. I am withholding further information as its release would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of our armed forces.

RAF Halton

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many powered take-offs took place at RAF Halton in each calendar year since 2003; how many were carried out by each unit in each year; and if he will make a statement. [155902]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The annual number of powered take-offs from RAF Halton is capped at 16,300 per year as a result of a decision made by the then Under-Secretary of State for Defence in 2004. This figure has never been exceeded.

The total number of powered take-offs from RAF Halton in 2003 was 14,143 and in 2004 was 13,293. A full breakdown by unit is not available for those years. The powered take-offs from RAF Halton for 2005 and 2006 broken down by unit are shown as follows:

Units	2005	2006
613 Volunteer Gliding Squadron (613 VGS)	5,378	4,291
Joint Services Gliding Centre (JSGC)	3,094	2,377
RAF Gliding and Soaring Association (RAF GSA)	430	575
Halton Aeroplane Club (HAC)	4,287	4,159
Halton Microlight Club (HMC)	2,408	2,180
Other	312	118
Annual total	15,909	13,700

St. Malo Agreement

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on progress with achieving the objectives of the St. Malo Agreement. [155831]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The 1998 St. Malo text from the summit between the UK and French Governments declares the intentions of the two countries to enable the European Union to play a full role on the international stage. It concentrates particularly on what is now known as European Security and Defence Policy, while recognising the need for ESDP to develop in a way which is both supportive of and supported by NATO's crisis management activities.

Since 1998 ESDP has developed considerably. It has enabled the EU to launch four peacekeeping operations: in the Democratic Republic of Congo (2003 and 2006); Macedonia (2003); and Bosnia (launched in December 2004), as well as numerous smaller civil-military operations. The current Bosnia operation took over from NATO's SFOR and has proven the efficacy of the Berlin Plus arrangements agreed in 2003 for EU access to NATO assets.

Other successes include the establishment of the European Defence Agency in 2004 to drive forward capability development and improve defence/industrial co-operation; the continuing development of a capacity for military and joint civil/military planning, based on agreed consultation arrangements with NATO; and the establishment of full operating capability for the rapid-response Battle Groups initiative, achieved in January 2007.

The Government are therefore fully satisfied with progress to date, and we will continue to play a leading role in further progress.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments: Violence

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of legislation to deter violent action against research facilities that use animals in their testing; [154373]

(2) if she will review the effectiveness of the law on the use of blackmail in the context of the activities of protesters against research facilities that use animals in their testing; [154378]

(3) how many convictions there have been for criminal acts for which responsibility was claimed by the Animal Liberation Front; [154381]

(4) what discussions she has had with zoos and aquariums on security protection from animal rights extremists. [154380]

Mr. Coaker: The Government are committed to eradicating the threat of animal rights extremism and has in place a robust interdepartmental strategy to achieve this. The strategy is centred on an improved law enforcement approach, with additional resources provided to the police to tackle animal rights extremism, a central police team set-up to drive forward police action nationally, and legislation enacted to protect animal research organisations. The strategy has been overseen by a Cabinet Committee which has been encouraged by the significant fall in illegal extremist activity, and the many significant convictions of animal rights extremists in the past 18 months, some for blackmail. A number of other animal rights extremists are awaiting trial and other major investigations remain ongoing.

While the Government respect, support and will protect the right to peaceful protest, we are equally clear that it is wholly unacceptable that a very small number of animal extremists should mount campaigns of fear and intimidation in an attempt to stop individuals and companies going about their lawful and legitimate business whether it is connected with animal research, farming or zoos and aquariums. The Government will continue to drive and review the strategy to eradicate the extremist threat.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will take steps to shut down the websites of the (a) Animal Liberation Front and (b) Animal Liberation Front Suppliers Group under the Terrorism Act 2006. [154374]

Mr. Coaker: The investigation and prosecution of offences under the Terrorism Act 2006 (including offences involving websites) are matters for the police and the Crown Prosecution Service respectively.

Antisocial Behaviour

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents of anti-social behaviour were (a) recorded and (b) detected in each London borough in 2006-07. [153899]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The Home Office does not collect this information centrally.

Border Police

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the estimated cost of providing a unified border force is in (a) 2007 and (b) each of the next five years. [156509]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 8 October 2007]: In his announcement of 25 July, the Prime Minister commissioned the Cabinet Secretary to report to him on the stages ahead in implementation of a unified border force and whether there is a case for going further while ensuring value for money. The Cabinet Secretary is due to report in October.

Breathalysers

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what rules apply to mobile police units on (a) carrying breathalyser kits and (b) the procedure to be followed in deciding to take citizens to the police station for breathalysing when kits are not carried; and if she will make a statement. [156639]

Mr. Coaker: Breath test devices currently available for use outside police stations are screening devices, used for a preliminary test to obtain an indication whether a person's alcohol level is likely to be above the prescribed limit. If a person tests positive, he can be arrested, taken to a police station and required to take an evidential test.

There is no statutory requirement on mobile police units to carry breath screening devices. Vehicles engaged in traffic law enforcement or responding to traffic incidents are however very likely to, and other vehicles may do. This is an operational equipment matter for the chief officer. If the vehicle does not have a screening device, one will normally be readily available and the person to be tested can be required to remain a reasonable length of time for it to arrive. Failure to co-operate with a preliminary test when the officer reasonably suspects there is alcohol in the person's body is an offence for which the person can be arrested.

In addition to the offence of driving while over the prescribed limit, there is a separate offence of driving whilst under the influence of drink. An officer can arrest for this offence and subsequently require an evidential test provided he has reasonable grounds for suspecting the offence and an arrest is necessary for its prompt and effective investigation.

Decisions as to arrest, etc are operational matters for the police on each occasion.

CCTV: Costs

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost to the public purse was of (a) installing and (b) maintaining CCTV surveillance in London in each of the last five years, broken down by borough. [154815]

Mr. Coaker: No data on the costs of publicly-funded CCTV cameras operating on a local or on a national level are centrally held by the Home Office.

Previously, closed circuit television (CCTV) has been provided using a range of national and local funding streams. The principal fund has been the crime reduction programme from 1999 to 2003 which invested £170 million in CCTV schemes.

Currently, crime reduction funding is allocated directly to local authorities through the Safer Stronger Communities Fund. These funds finance a variety of interventions, including CCTV, to tackle local crime priorities.

Funding allocations are local decisions and are the responsibility of individual partnerships.

CCTV: London Boroughs

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many publicly-funded CCTV cameras were installed in each London borough in each of the last five years. [154805]

Mr. Coaker: No data on the number of publicly-funded CCTV cameras operating on a local or on a national level are centrally held by the Home Office.

Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will list the (a) internet service providers, (b) social networking sites and (c) other IT companies which have adopted the Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre's report abuse mechanism. [155952]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not held centrally.

However, the Home Secretary's Task Force for Child Protection on the internet has set up a working group which includes representatives from social network providers, law enforcement and children's charities. This group is looking at the safety issues for children caused by the development and growth of social networking sites and is developing good practice guidelines.

Deportation: Enforcement

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how long she expects to take to consider the case of Mr. S.O. (Ref: O142114) who has applied for leave to remain under the 14-year concession but has been referred for enforcement action. [155778]

Mr. Byrne: Gill Mortlock, north west regional director for Border and Immigration Agency wrote to my hon. Friend on 21 September 2007.

Drugs

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans the Government have to commission research into the effect of changing the classification of illegal drugs on (a) levels of drugs misuse and (b) levels of drug-related harm. [154339]

Mr. Coaker: The Government have no plans at this time to commission any research into the effect of changing the classification of illegal drugs on levels of drug misuse and/or levels of drug-related harm. The Government undertake several surveys to monitor levels of drug misuse and drug-related harm but these are predicated on the ABC classification system.

Drugs: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much of the Young People's Substance Misuse Partnership funding was allocated to Peterborough constituency in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [154763]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The Department of Health, Home Office, Department for Children, Schools and Families (formerly the Department for Education and Skills), and the Youth Justice Board brought together substance misuse budgets for young people into one grant, the Young People Substance Misuse Partnership Grant (YPSMPG) at a national level in 2004-05. This funding is made available in addition to mainstream funding streams.

The allocations made to Peterborough since 2004-05 are shown in the following table.

The change in levels of funding in 2007-08 against 2006-07 need to be placed in the context of record levels of investment over the last eight years. This year's allocation to Peterborough is over 30 per cent. greater than when YPSMPG allocations were introduced. Where there is a local need, the pooled treatment budget for drug treatment services can be used to provide additional funding for young people's treatment.

	Allocation (£)
2004-05	216,408
2005-06	303,323
2006-07	308,951
2007-08	284,440

Genetics: Databases

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether DNA and fingerprints may be taken from individuals who are being asked to take a breathalyser test; [156525]

(2) whether individuals not subject to charges but who were subject to a breathalyser test are entitled to (a) decline when asked to submit to fingerprinting and the taking of DNA and (b) request that the DNA and fingerprints should be destroyed; [156641]

(3) what rules apply to the taking of fingerprints and DNA samples when individuals are asked to take a breathalyser test (a) at a police station and (b) in their vehicle; what differences there are between the rules in both cases; and if she will make a statement. [156653]

Mr. Coaker: The Road Traffic Act 1988 gives a constable power to require a driver to provide a breath specimen for a preliminary breath test. This is generally taken at the roadside. Under section 6D of the 1988 Act, the driver may be arrested if as a result of the test, the constable suspects that that his/her breath or blood alcohol level exceeds the prescribed limit or if for any reason the driver does not cooperate with the test and the constable suspects alcohol (or drugs) to be in the driver's body.

The purpose of this arrest is to enable a constable to require the driver to provide an evidential sample which, depending on the circumstances, may be breath, blood or urine, to be analysed to determine whether the driver may have committed a specific drink/driving offence under the Road Traffic Act.

The taking and retention of fingerprints and DNA for the purposes of investigating other offences and for identifying suspects are governed by the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 (PACE). Under PACE, fingerprints and DNA cannot be taken without consent unless the driver has been arrested for, or charged with, a specific recordable offence, for example, driving with excess alcohol or when unfit to drive through drink or drugs, failing without reasonable excuse to take a preliminary breath test or failing without reasonable excuse to provide an evidential specimen for analysis. Biometric data under PACE is taken at a police station.

Police may retain fingerprints and samples lawfully taken under PACE. It is a matter for the chief officer for each force area to determine whether or not samples or fingerprints should be retained.

Police Stations

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police stations were operational in each police force area in 2006. [156310]

Jacqui Smith: The management of the police estate and allocation of resources are matters for each police authority and the chief officer, who are responsible for assessing local needs.

Police: Firearms

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) accidental and (b) negligent discharges of firearms by police officers were reported to police forces in England and Wales in 2007. [155978]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not collected centrally by the Home Office. However, police forces in England and Wales are encouraged to report any instances of accidental or negligent discharges of firearms by police officers to the Association of Chief Police Officers. The Association of Chief Police Officers aims to share lessons learned from these incidents with all forces to prevent them occurring again, and will consider changes to policy where appropriate at a national level.

Police: Fraud

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what mechanisms are in place to ensure the accountability of the City of London police force for its handling of business fraud cases; how many cases it successfully brought to prosecution in each of the last five years; and how many current cases it is dealing with. [154347]

Mr. Coaker: The Police Authority for the City of London Police is the Corporation of London's Court of Common Council. However, decisions on individual cases are operational matters and solely the responsibility of the Commissioner of Police for the City of London.

Data showing the number of defendants proceeded against and found guilty for Fraud and Forgery offences in the City of London police force area from 2001 to 2005 is shown in the table. The Court Proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform is unable to separate business fraud cases from other types of fraud and forgery.

I understand from the City of London Police that their Economic Crime Department, which has lead force status for the south east and which investigates all types of economic crime, has an average active caseload of around 300 investigations.

Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for Fraud and Forgery offences, in the City of London police force area, 2001 to 2005[1,2]

	Proceeded against	Found guilty
2001	184	90
2002	210	89
2003	324	104
2004	244	131
2005	198	107

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

RDS-OCJR, Ministry of Justice

Police: Scotland

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions are being conducted with the Scottish Executive on the impact on, and changes necessary to, its police forces and law enforcement arrangements consequent on the Government's proposal to create a new police or border force working in the United Kingdom's ports of entry; and if she will make a statement. [155807]

Mr. Byrne: The Scottish Executive has discussed with the Cabinet Secretary's border review team potential implications for Scotland of the introduction of a unified border force, including potential implications for police and law enforcement arrangements.

Prisoners: Drugs

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research the Government have (a) undertaken, (b) commissioned and (c) reviewed into the cost-effectiveness of imprisoning dependent drug users for non-violent offences. [154332]

Mr. Coaker: There has been no Home Office or Ministry of Justice research commissioned specifically to look directly at the cost-effectiveness of imprisoning dependent drug users for non-violent offences. However, there is currently an extensive programme of research planned for the forthcoming year that will evaluate the impact of specific CJS/NOMS interventions on re-offending and what value for money they offer. The output from this research will help shape priorities across the CJS in terms of where resources are likely to be most effectively targeted for protecting the public and reducing re-offending.

In addition, findings from a new study of drug treatment in the community (DTORS) will be published later in 2007. This study includes dependent users in treatment who have been referred via both CJS and non-CJS routes. Information on drug treatment in the community can provide valuable lessons to be learnt for treating dependent drug users in prison and the cost effectiveness of such treatment.

Finally, I refer the hon. Member to 9 March 2007, Official Report, column 2315W, in which the former Home Office Minister—my hon. Friend the Member for Bradford, South (Mr. Sutcliffe)—outlined the programme of research in place to evaluate CJS/NOMS interventions on re-offending; and 9 July 2007, Official Report, column 1319W, in which the Home Secretary outlined some of the many measures in place to address drug-related crime.

Robbery: Greater London

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) robberies and (b) burglaries were reported in each London constituency in each of the last five years; and how many of these resulted in convictions. [154817]

Mr. Coaker: Data at specific constituency level are not available. The numbers of robbery and burglary offences recorded by the police, from 2002-03 to 2006-07, for each Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) in London are given in the following tables.

The following tables show the number of defendants found guilty at all courts for burglary and robbery in Greater London for the years 2001 to 2005, and is taken from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. Data for 2006 will be available in November this year.

Caution must be taken in comparing recorded crime statistics with convictions statistics as these are from two different databases and recorded in quite different ways. Recorded crime data is provided on a financial year basis and counts offences whereas court proceedings data are on a calendar year basis and count offenders. Therefore, these two separate data-sets are not directly comparable.

Security Industry Authority: Wales

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many enforcement offices of the Security Industry Authority are operational in the force area of North Wales Police. [155962]

Mr. Coaker: The Security Industry Authority (SIA) does not have regional offices. The SIA has an intelligence team and a network of 41 investigators across England, Wales and Scotland. SIA investigation teams cover specific areas throughout England, Wales and Scotland and the structure of the SIA investigation teams allows resources to be directed to that area as required.

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many convictions under the Private Security Industry Act 2001 for working in a licensable role without a Security Industry Agency licence were obtained against individuals resident in the force area of North Wales police in each of the last three years; [155963]

(2) how many convictions under the Private Security Industry Act 2001 for supplying unlicensed security staff were obtained against individuals resident in the force area of North Wales police in each of the last three years. [155964]

Mr. Coaker: In 2004 and 2005, there were no convictions under sections 3 and 5 of the Private Security Industry Act 2001 at any courts in the North Wales police force area either for working in a licensable role without a Security Industry Agency licence or for supplying unlicensed security staff.

The data for 2006 will be available in November 2007. (The statistics collected are broken down into locations where convictions were secured and not the addresses of individuals resident in the force area.)

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) front line and (b) non-front line licences granted under the Private Security Industry Act 2001 are held by individuals resident in the force area of North Wales Police. [155965]

Mr. Coaker: As of 1 October 2007, 236,129 front line licences and 5,677 non-front line licences have been granted in total across England, Wales and Scotland.

The statistics collected by the SIA are broken down into licensable sectors, not geographical areas.

Tesco: Extortion

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations she has received from Tesco supermarket on threatening letters received from animal rights activists; and if she will make a statement. [154379]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office has received no representations from Tesco supermarket on threatening letters received from animal rights activists. However, the Government are committed to working in close co-operation with law enforcement agencies and any targets of animal rights extremism to eradicate the threat of extremists, building on the significant fall in illegal extremist activity, and the many significant convictions of animal rights extremists in the past 18 months.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Centre of Excellence for Charitable Giving

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether the winners of the contract to host the Centre of Excellence for Charitable Giving will also be able to bid for research work commissioned by the Centre. [155631]

Phil Hope: The Centre for Charitable Giving and Philanthropy is being commissioned on the basis of a published specification that identified key research areas.

A small proportion of the overall budget is currently uncommitted and has been set aside by the funders to support the commissioning of further research over the course of the centre.

It will be open to centre staff and others to bid for currently uncommitted funds, and to any additional funds secured to support appropriate further research projects.

Appropriate governance arrangements will be made to ensure that decisions on any further research supported by existing uncommitted funds, and by any additional funds secured, will be based on proposals' scientific excellence, in line with ESRC practice.

Charitable Donations

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what target the Government has set to increase charitable donations in real terms over the 10 year period to 2014; and what steps the Government is taking to monitor and report on progress towards meeting this target. [155630]

Phil Hope: A Generous Society, the Government's charitable giving strategy, was published in November 2005, and sets out our plans for working in partnership with the third sector to foster a deeper culture of planned, regular and tax-efficient giving. The Citizenship Survey will be used to determine the impact of the measures adopted.

Departments: ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many new (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistant devices his Department bought for the use of new departmental Ministers in the Cabinet Office following each Cabinet reshuffle since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [156742]

Gillian Merron: The information is not held centrally and therefore is available only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Public Bodies

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will list his Department's (a) executive agencies, (b) executive Non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations for each financial year since 2005-06. [156614]

Edward Miliband: A list of the non-departmental public bodies and agencies sponsored by the Cabinet Office can be found in the Cabinet Office departmental reports which are available in the Libraries of the House for the reference of Members. They are also available from the Cabinet Office website at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/about_the_cabinet_office/reports.asp

Gift Aid

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps were taken by the Office of the Third Sector to inform the voluntary sector and the general public about the reduction in the rate of gift aid that resulted from the change in income tax rates in the last Budget; and when those steps were taken. [155629]

Phil Hope: The then Chancellor and the Minister for the third sector discussed the need to further build on the increase in the amount of money directly benefiting third sector organisations, which has increased from £135 million in 1996-97 to £750 million for 2005-06. Measures to increase take-up of Gift Aid and ensure greater awareness of how to give in a tax-efficient way have been widely consulted on this year, ahead of any changes coming into effect on income tax levels. Findings from the consultation will be made available in due course.

Information Officers: Charity Commission

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many press officers are employed by the Charity Commission. [154419]

Phil Hope: The Charity Commission employs six staff with press office responsibilities.

Information Officers: Independent Complaints Reviewer to the Charity Commission

Mr. Mackay: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many press officers are employed by the Independent Complaints Reviewer to the Charity Commission. [154461]

Phil Hope: The Independent Complaints Reviewer to the Charity Commission does not employ any press officers.

Non-Departmental Public Bodies: Political Powers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how many people are members of quangos in England and Wales; and what the total cost of quangos in England and Wales was in each of the last 10 years; [152930]

(2) what assessments are made of the political party memberships of individuals appointed to quangos and commissions in England and Wales; what reforms are planned; and if he will make a statement; [152931]

(3) which public bodies are required to report to Parliament; [152932]

(4) how many and what percentage of the (a) paid and (b) unpaid appointments made to non-departmental public bodies since 1 May 1997 were (i) members and (ii) declared supporters of the Labour Party. [152933]

Edward Miliband: Information on membership and expenditure of public bodies is published annually by the Cabinet Office. Figures covering the period 1997 to 2006 are available on the civil service website (www.civilservice.gov.uk). Departments are in the process of publishing information for 2006-07 and a summary will be published by the Cabinet Office when publication by Departments is completed.

Information on the political activity of those appointed to the boards of public bodies is collected by the independent Commissioner for Public Appointments and published in her annual report. The Commissioner's annual report for 2006-07 was published on 8 October 2007. Copies have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister for the Olympics pursuant to the answer of 18 July 2007, Official Report, column 363W, on the Olympic Games: Greater London, whether the role of KPMG changed once they stopped providing advice to her Department and started advising the Olympic Delivery Authority in July 2006. [154086]

Tessa Jowell: Yes. KPMG were contracted to provide advice to the Department on the development of the Olympic budget until July 2006. Following this, KPMG were contracted by the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) to provide the ODA with ongoing advice on their cost estimates. KPMG have continued in this role.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister for the Olympics pursuant to the answer of 18 July 2007, Official Report, column 363W, on the Olympic Games: Greater London, what documents KPMG provided to her Department when they stopped providing it with advice on the cost of the Olympics in July 2006. [154089]

Tessa Jowell: Other than an invoice for their work up until July 2006, our records show that KPMG did not provide the Department with any further documents.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister for the Olympics (1) pursuant to the answer of 9 July 2007, Official Report, column 1292W, on the Olympic Games: Greater London, how the cost review continued its work after 25 April; [154100]

(2) on what areas of the Olympics budget the cost review continued to work after 25 April. [154101]

Tessa Jowell: After 25 April 2006, the cost review continued its work by analysing and validating the cost estimates and risks underpinning all aspects of the cost package that was subsequently announced to the House on 15 March 2007. This included: Olympic Park and venues; Olympic infrastructure and regeneration; and security.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister for the Olympics pursuant to the answer of 9 July 2007, Official Report, column 1292W, on the Olympic Games: Greater London, which (a) ministerial and (b) official groups have taken forward the work of the Cost Review Group since 25 April. [154102]

Tessa Jowell: I, and departmental officials, held a number of bilateral meetings with key stakeholders to take forward the cost review work from 25 April 2006 until my statement of 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 450. No specific ministerial group or official groups were required.

Following my announcement of 15 March 2007, Ministers have established a Funders Group, supported by officials, to continually assess the Olympic budget and agree any further calls on the contingency provision.

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Minister for the Olympics (1) what her policy is on the use of the Red Arrows RAF flying team during the 2012 Olympics; and if she will make a statement; [155620]

(2) if she will make a statement on the involvement of the Red Arrows in the Olympic ceremonies in 2012. [156006]

Tessa Jowell: Newspaper claims that the Government have banned or advised against the Red Arrows' involvement in the opening ceremony or any other celebrations associated with the 2012 Games are completely untrue and unfounded.

The London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) is responsible for deciding what to include in the opening ceremony and other celebrations, and no decisions have yet been taken about the content. The Red Arrows have already played a memorable role in the celebrations, when they flew over Trafalgar Square to mark London winning the Games.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will estimate (a) the number and (b) average value of payments made by the Rural Payments Agency in respect of the Common Agricultural Policy in excess of (i) £150,000, (ii) £200,000, (iii) £250,000 and (iv) 300,000; and if he will make a statement. [154770]

Jonathan Shaw: A breakdown of individual CAP payments exceeding £150,000 made to customers over the 2006-07 exchequer year is reflected in the table.

The table includes payments made for expenditure both fully and partly funded by the EC.

This table is based on analysis of all individual payments to customers exceeding £150,000 over the period 1 April 2006 through to 31 March 2007.

Value of payment	Number of payments	Average value of payments (£)
Over £150,000	1,647	252,826.81
Over £200,000	801	338,504.48
Over £250,000	457	425,872.31
Over £300,000	295	508,639.72

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how much has been paid in agricultural subsidies in Bassetlaw constituency in each year since 2005; [155600]

(2) how many farmers have been paid agricultural subsidies in Bassetlaw constituency in each of the last 10 years. [155601]

Jonathan Shaw: The information requested is not currently available, but I have asked officials to collate the data. I will write to the hon. Member with the information in due course and copies will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Animals: Disease Control

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will assess whether there is any continuing risk to the farming industry from a failure of bio-security at the (a) Compton and (b) Pirbright sites of the Institute for Animal Health. [155777]

Jonathan Shaw: All the recommendations in the reports by the Health and Safety Executive and Professor Spratt applying to the Government, the Institute of Animal Health and Merial have been accepted, and already have been, or are being, implemented. In addition, as set out in the Government Statement of 7 September 2007 in response to these investigations, we have taken action that goes beyond these recommendations. These measures ensure the highest level of bio-security at Pirbright and at other laboratories working with specified animal pathogens.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which viruses dangerous to animal or human health have been subject to experimentation at the (a) Pirbright and (b) Compton sites of the Institute for Animal Health. [155786]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA, as licensor and regulator under the Specified Animal Pathogens Order (SAPO) 1998 have issued the Institute for Animal Health with licences for both the Pirbright and Compton sites to hold category 3 and 4 viruses under that Order. Among the viruses covered by the Order are: bluetongue, African horse sickness, foot and mouth disease, African swine fever, avian influenza, avian oncogenic viruses, coronaviruses and morbiliviruses. It is not possible, for reasons of commercial confidentiality, to give details of specific viruses that have been subject to experimentation.

Birds: Malta

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with his Maltese counterpart on reducing the shooting of turtle doves and quails during spring 2008 in that country. [156490]

Joan Ruddock: No such discussions have taken place.

Council Directive 79/409/EEC on the Conservation of Wild Birds (the "Birds Directive") lays down rules for the protection, management and control of all wild birds. Member states are required to introduce legislation in line with the birds directive's requirements and ensure it is applied effectively.

The hunting of turtle dove and quail in Malta is permitted under the birds directive. However, during periods of reproduction or during their return to rearing grounds, hunting may only be permitted under derogation and if the strict conditions under Article 9 of the birds directive are met. This is a matter for the Maltese authorities to determine.

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his Department's projected spending is on advertising and promotional campaigns for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, broken down by cost relating to (i) television, (ii) radio and (iii) print media. [155891]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department's central spend on campaigns and marketing through the Communications Directorate and the Citizen and Public Engagement Programme is £7,160,000. Within this, the projected spend on advertising and promotional activity is as follows:

	2007-08	2008-09
Television	1,670,300	—
Radio	45,000	—
Print media	760,500	—

The projected spend for 2008-09 has not yet been created.

The Department does not maintain central records of other communications expenditure outside of the Communications Directorate.

Environment Agency: Manpower

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff were working for the Environment Agency in Peterborough in each year since 1997. [154073]

Mr. Woolas: A breakdown of Environment Agency staff based in Peterborough from 2000 to the present day is provided in the following table.

Details of staff numbers in earlier years is not available due to limited reporting functions prior to 2000.

	Staff
2000	272
2001	268
2002	354
2003	368
2004	453
2005	478
2006	504
2007	498

Staff are based at Kingfisher house and Aqua house, Peterborough.

Farms: Mushrooms

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many visits Ministers have made to mushroom farms since 1991. [156536]

Jonathan Shaw: This information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many prosecutions there have been of mushroom farms under the Environment Protection Act 1990. [156537]

Jonathan Shaw: I am not aware of any such prosecutions having been undertaken since DEFRA began collecting data on prosecutions in 2001-02.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many mushroom farms there are in England. [156538]

Jonathan Shaw: According to the June Survey of Agriculture, the number of registered holdings in England specialising in mushroom production at June 2006 was 43. These are holdings where mushroom growing is the predominant activity. Estimates are based on a sample survey and are, therefore, subject to a degree of sampling error.

Flood Control

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to review the cost benefit analysis system for allocating funds to flood risk areas. [156540]

Mr. Woolas: Economic analysis is undertaken as part of project appraisal. It provides an aid to determining the most appropriate solution to a problem, to ensure that the funds secured from general taxation are invested for the benefit of the nation as a whole. It is an effective tool for comparing the impacts of flooding with the costs of reducing risk. Social, health and environmental impacts can often be valued and included in the analysis where they are significant.

Following public consultation, a set of outcome measures has been developed to provide greater clarity on what policies and funding for flood and coastal erosion risk management are intended to achieve. One of the agreed measures will show the overall benefits of flood and coastal erosion risk management activities in monetary terms. The measures will be used to set targets progressively during the period covered by the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review, starting with the capital programme in 2008-09.

Flood Control: Agriculture

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with farmers regarding managing land use for flood prevention in flood risk areas. [156542]

Mr. Woolas: As part of DEFRA's 'Making Space for Water' strategy, there are two projects investigating the role that rural land use and land management can play in managing flood risk at the farm and catchment scale. These projects are Catchment Scale Land—Use Management (HA6) and Land Management Practices (HA7). In the development of these projects, the Environment Agency has been working with the National Farmers Union and the Country Land and Business Association.

At a local level, the Environment Agency is developing Catchment Flood Management Plans, which consider the role of land use, in consultation with all interested parties.

Floods

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what total funds were available for flood recovery across all Government Departments for (a) the county of Gloucestershire, (b) the borough of Tewkesbury, (c) the city of Gloucester and (d) the Cotswolds district. [155859]

Mr. Woolas: To date, the Government have made available a significant package of £57 million to support areas affected by the flooding of June and July 2007. The county of Gloucestershire was allocated £2,623,000 of flood recovery grant, which includes £623,500 for the borough of Tewkesbury, £646,500 for the city of Gloucester and £623,500 for the Cotswold district council. Gloucestershire county council was allocated £1,007,900 from the Department for Children, Schools and Families. None of the other local authorities within Gloucestershire provide education or children's services and thus were not eligible for this funding.

The Department for Transport has written to Gloucestershire saying that they will be allocated at least £10 million for highways works and there are ongoing discussions about further funding.

The Regional Development Agency with responsibility for Gloucestershire announced a £2 million flood recovery package for the region. Eligible businesses are able to claim up to a maximum of £2,500. As at 4 October 2007, 455 grant offers had been made, totalling £1,030,000 and 239 of these offers have been claimed, totalling £526,000 paid out by the Regional Development Agency.

This is additional money to that available under the Bellwin scheme. The scheme provides emergency financial assistance from the Government to local authorities, to help meet the uninsurable costs of immediate action to safeguard life or property or prevent severe inconvenience to inhabitants in the case of an emergency or disaster. In recognition of the exceptional nature of the recent flooding, special arrangements apply for these schemes. We have significantly extended the period for which the affected authorities can claim for eligible costs and increased the proportion of costs they can receive to 100 per cent. above the threshold.

Floods: Landfill Tax

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment has been made of the increase in landfill tax in Hull, following recent flooding in the area and the need to dispose of damaged items; and if he will make a statement. [156543]

Joan Ruddock: Landfill tax provides an important incentive for local authorities to achieve more sustainable waste management.

Hull has estimated that a relatively small increase in municipal waste arisings will occur, because of the flooding. This is within the normal range of variations in annual waste arisings. It should not have a long-term or significant impact on waste management costs.

DEFRA has not assessed specifically the increase in landfill tax in Hull following the flooding in the area.

Foot and Mouth Disease: New Forest

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what contingency plans exist to deal with an outbreak of foot and mouth disease amongst commoners' stock in the New Forest; and if he will make a statement. [156384]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA's contingency plan for exotic animal diseases is in three parts:

i. Information on specific animal diseases. This is available on the DEFRA website and ensures that those interested always have access to up to date information.

ii. Emergency preparedness. This provides details of how DEFRA has prepared for an outbreak, including some information on the diseases and what action the Department has taken to be ready.

iii. Framework Response plan. This is an operational manual for those involved in managing handling an outbreak and, whilst it is in the public domain, it is primarily for officials who have responsibility in an outbreak.

The plan is reviewed annually in accordance with the requirements of the Animal Health Act 2002. The current version of the plan was laid before Parliament on 13 December 2006. The plan (together with the additional bluetongue contingency plan) is being used in the current outbreaks of foot and mouth disease and bluetongue.

DEFRA encourages owners or keepers of stock kept on common land, such as the New Forest, to undertake enhanced surveillance for signs of disease amongst their animals. If they have any concerns they should be reported to their local animal health office.

Landfill

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make it his policy to allocate increased landfill allowance trading scheme targets to local authorities which are in sustainable communities growth plan areas. [153966]

Joan Ruddock: Under the landfill allowances trading scheme (LATS), allowances have been determined for waste disposal authorities (WDAs) each year from 2004-05 to 2019-20 to provide local authorities with greater certainty for long-term planning. The total number of allowances is limited to ensure that England can meet its share of the European Landfill Directive targets for biodegradable municipal waste. It is not possible to increase the allowances available to individual WDAs without breaching the national targets or reducing the allowances available to other local authorities.

LATS provides flexibility to help local authorities cope with increasing populations through trading, banking and borrowing of allowances. This is intended to give all WDAs every opportunity to avoid becoming liable to a financial penalty for failure to comply with LATS obligations.

Landfill: Recycling

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he has taken to investigate the capture and use of gas produced from landfill for (a) use as a fuel and (b) electricity generation. [156039]

Joan Ruddock: There are currently 324 landfill sites in the UK that utilise methane to generate electricity. The technology for this is well established, with the first site in the UK to generate electricity from landfill gas starting to operate in the 1980s.

The production of electricity from landfill gas is incentivised through the Renewables Obligation (RO), which places an obligation on licensed electricity suppliers to source a proportion of electricity from renewable sources.

Packaging: Recycling

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what financial incentives there are for small to medium sized firms to recycle (a) materials and (b) packaging. [156552]

Joan Ruddock: The Landfill Tax acts as a financial incentive for all businesses, not just small to medium sized firms, to encourage recycling of materials. The Business Resource Efficiency and Waste (BREW) Programme (funded from Landfill Tax) allows businesses to receive free and independent support and advice to help them increase their profitability by sending less waste to landfill and recycling more.

There are no specific financial incentives for small to medium sized companies to recycle packaging. However, the Packaging Regulations do provide an incentive for businesses to reduce and minimise the amount of packaging used. This is because they are obliged to recover and recycle a specified amount of packaging waste; determined, in part, by the amount of packaging they handle. A producer using less packaging, can reduce the costs incurred under these regulations.

Pirbright Laboratory: Standards

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether (a) Mr. John Manser and (b) any other officials responsible for inspecting, regulating and licensing the Institute for Animal Health site and the Merial site at Pirbright were made aware of the issues raised in the letter from the Merial site director of 20 July 2004; [155667]

(2) whether any Minister in his Department was made aware following the letter to the Department from the Merial site director of 20 July 2004 of the need to renew the old effluent drain between the restricted area of Merial and the Institute of Animal Health effluent treatment plant. [155668]

Jonathan Shaw: Officials, but not Ministers, were made aware of the issues raised in the letter from the Merial site director of 20 July 2004. The letter sought DEFRA's views, as licensor and regulator under the Specified Animal Pathogens Order 1998, on the proposed specification of the replacement pipe. No questions over the integrity of the pipe in relation to requirements under that Order were raised in the letter, previously or subsequently, until the DEFRA-commissioned Health and Safety Executive inspection in August this year.

Plastics: Recycling

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment the Government has made of the volume of plastic recycled in the United Kingdom compared to the volume shipped abroad. [156550]

Joan Ruddock: Most material collected in the UK for recycling is processed in this country.

The total amount of plastic waste arising in the UK is estimated at 5.9 million tonnes a year. The Environment Agency estimates that the level of plastic exports by 2006 would have reached 440,000 tonnes a year. Figures on the amount of plastic recycled in the UK are not held centrally.

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions have been held with the plastics industry to ensure that the range of polymers and products does not create obstacles to recycling. [156551]

Joan Ruddock: No formal discussions have been held.

Government cannot oblige producers to use specific materials in their packaging or products. In reality all polymers are recyclable, although in some instances it is not currently economic to do so. The Government are making it easier for local authorities to plan for, and put in place, the waste infrastructure that is needed on the ground in order to re-process more recyclable materials.

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment the Government have made of incentives which could be adopted to encourage local authorities to promote kerbside and other methods of plastic recycling. [156553]

Joan Ruddock: Additional funding for local authorities, including through the private finance initiative, has led to a major increase in kerbside recycling facilities. The Government's Waste Strategy for England 2007 set a new national target for reducing the amount of household wastes not reused, recycled or composted, and increased national targets for the percentage of household waste recycled and composted. It also set a target for the amount of municipal waste recovered.

Technical advice on the collection of plastics for recycling is available for local authorities from the Waste Resources Action programme (WRAP).

Radioactive Wastes

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to meet with representatives of English, Scottish or Welsh local authorities to discuss the disposal of radioactive waste; and if he will make a statement. [156450]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 8 October 2007]: I spoke at the Local Government Association conference 'The long-term management of radioactive wastes—the role of Local Government' on 6 September 2007. There are also regular meetings between DEFRA and the Nuclear Legacy Advisory Forum (NuLeAF), the special interest group of the Local Government Association, to discuss radioactive waste issues.

The Government are consulting publicly on a framework for implementing the geological disposal of higher activity radioactive waste. In launching the consultation document on 25 June 2007, DEFRA Ministers wrote to all local authorities in England and Wales to inform those who may have an interest in responding.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Councillors: Planning

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans her Department has to implement the proposals set out in its recent report on Councillor Involvement in Planning Decisions in respect of biological treatment infrastructure. [154152]

Yvette Cooper: Since the report did not recommend changes to the procedure for considering planning applications, but rather pointed to existing good practice, we do not propose to take any further implementation action.

Departments: Official Hospitality

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department has spent on hospitality in each of the last five years. [156423]

Mr. Iain Wright: For 2006-07 spending on hospitality by Communities and Local Government, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Upper Bann (David Simpson) on 8 May 2007, Official Report, columns 120-21W. In our predecessor department, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, spending on hospitality was £38,803 in 2003-04, £42,126 in 2004-05 and £54,932 in 2005-06. Recorded hospitality expenditure is higher in 2006-07 than in previous years, due to coding parameter changes on the Department's financial system, which means that some catering expenditure is also included.

Departments: Training

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Deprtment's expenditure was on away days located outside her Department's buildings in the last year for which figures are available. [155698]

Mr. Iain Wright: Expenditure related to staff away days is not identified as a separate item on the Department's accounting system, and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However, any such expenditure could reasonably be expected within the expenditure total for conferences. The total expenditure on conferences for Ministers and civil servants incurred by Communities and Local Government in the period 1 October 2006 to 30 September 2007 was £498,273.

All expenditure on conferences is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety.

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 164W, on Home Information Packs, if she will place in the Library a copy of written representations made by (a) Rightmove and (b) Countrywide in relation to home information packs. [152536]

Yvette Cooper: Responses to public consultations from the Countrywide Assured Group plc. on the content of the home information pack and the home information pack in low demand low value areas have been placed in the Library.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the oral answer to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 160W, on home information packs, how many voluntary home condition reports have been purchased. [152671]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 160W.

Full results of the trials that include completed transactions will be published when available.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many (a) subsidised and (b) non-subsidised energy performance certificates have been purchased; [152846]

(2) how many (a) subsidised and (b) non-subsidised voluntary home condition reports have been purchased. [152847]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 160W.

The register of home condition reports and energy performance certificates does not include details on the price paid for a report.

Full results of the trials that include completed transactions will be published when completed.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the sale of a freehold interest of a leasehold residential property requires (a) an energy performance certificate and (b) a home information pack. [153696]

Yvette Cooper: A home information pack, including an energy performance certificate, may be required where a residential property consisting of a single dwelling is marketed for sale with vacant possession, either freehold or under a long lease.

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether buyers selling their homes through a property location agent are required to commission a home information pack; and if she will make a statement. [155414]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 17 September 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Beverley and Holderness (Mr. Stuart) on 9 July 2007, Official Report, column 1273W.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the legal definition is of a bedroom for the purposes of the Home Information Pack provisions. [155715]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Aylesbury (Mr. Lidington) on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 161W.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if a room described as a (a) study, (b) spare room and (c) HIP replacement room would be classed as a bedroom for the purposes of the requirements for three or four bedroom homes to have a home information pack. [156602]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Aylesbury (Mr. Lidington) on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 161W.

Home Information Packs: Appeals

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what procedures are in place for a home owner to appeal against the information and grading provided in an energy performance certificate; what the estimated average cost of such a procedure is; and whether the register of energy performance certificates may be amended. [156601]

Yvette Cooper: All accreditation schemes are required to have redress procedures which are free to the consumer. Schemes have a duty to ensure assessment standards are high and that any appeals are dealt with in a fair, swift and effective manner. If an EPC was found to be inaccurate a new one would be reissued and lodged in the register.

Home Information Packs: Enforcement

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent representations she has received from the Royal Institute for Chartered Surveyors on the enforceability of home information pack regulations; what response she has made; and how she plans to enforce the regulations. [154076]

Yvette Cooper: We have had a number of discussions with the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors in the last 12 months on all aspects of home information packs. Section 166 of the Housing Act 2004 places a duty on local trading standards authorities to enforce the home information pack duties in their areas.

Home Information Packs: Fines

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's estimate is of the number of fines to be issued each year against (a) home owners and (b) estate agents for breaches of the home information pack provisions. [154077]

Yvette Cooper: No such estimate has been made. Local trading standards authorities are responsible for the enforcement of the home information pack duties in their areas.

Home Information Packs: Flint Bishop Solicitors

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what meetings representatives of her Department have had with (a) Flint Bishop solicitors and (b) Labour Legal Services in the last 12 months; and what representations her Department has received from each organisation in relation to home information packs in that period. [155935]

Yvette Cooper: Our records show that the Department for Communities and Local Government has had no meetings with or representations from Flint

Bishop solicitors or Labour Legal Services in the last 12 months on home information packs.

Home Information Packs: Liability

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has produced on the (a) minimum and (b) maximum liability to be paid out on an insurance policy underwriting the accuracy and completeness of a personal search, in a Home Information Pack, not provided by a solicitor. [155856]

Yvette Cooper: The HIPs (No. 2) Regulations 2007 introduce, for the first time, stringent requirements for all those compiling property searches, including requirements on insurance cover for third parties and liability in the event of financial loss.

The Procedural Guidance which supports the HIPs (No. 2) Regulations 2007 sets out that all those compiling property searches must have suitable insurance arrangements in place with an insurer authorised under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000.

Housing: Energy

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the XML Schema for the proposed register of energy performance certificates. [155709]

Yvette Cooper: The XML Schema for the Register of Energy Performance Certificates forms part of the Certification Scheme and Accreditation Scheme Technical Standards and is publicly available on the Department's website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/pdf/151075

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with other ministerial colleagues on the provision of policy guidance for the needs of existing homes for energy improvement in any forthcoming policy papers; and if she will make a statement. [155744]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government have a wide ranging programme to encourage energy efficiency in existing homes, through policies and programmes run by this Department, the Department for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform. In line with appropriate practice, any policy guidance issued on energy efficiency matters will be considered collectively. Most recently, for example, Ministers from CLG, DEFRA and BERR jointly issued the Energy Measures report, guidance to local authorities which, amongst other matters, covered how local authorities can promote energy efficiency in their areas.

Housing: Floods

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what steps her Department is taking to encourage developers to use water resilient flooring and fittings in houses built in areas with a high risk of flooding; [156835]

(2) what steps her Department is taking to support the development of raised level flooring to counter the effects of flooding. [156836]

Mr. Iain Wright: On 15 May Communities and Local Government published a technical guide, "Improving the Flood Resilient Performance of New Buildings—Flood resilient construction." This guide provides information on how homes can be constructed so that, if they are flooded, it should be easier to clean and repair them and enable early reoccupation. This guide includes information on flood resilient flooring, threshold and floor levels. The Department will consider the options for further action in relation to the flood performance of buildings in the light of Sir Michael Pitts' inquiry into the effects of the summer floods.

Meanwhile all development is subject to Planning Policy Statement 25, "Development and Flood Risk (PPS25)" which aims to locate development away from flood risk whenever possible. In those areas where virtually all land is within high flood risk areas and there are few, if any, low risk sites for development, PPS25 imposes new requirements for resilience that ensure that buildings in higher risk areas are safe and less susceptible to flood damage.

The mitigation process described in PPS25 includes the use of resilient or resistant construction. With regard to raising floor levels, while this can assist, it is not without adverse consequences: raised floors can make access and egress more difficult, especially for older people or the infirm; placing buildings on mounds can displace flood water, causing problems elsewhere; raising buildings can create a void under the building where flood water accumulates, bringing problems of removing flood water and contaminants after the flood subsides.

Housing: Inspections

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many representations her Department has received on compensation payments for home inspectors and energy inspectors. [152421]

Yvette Cooper: As part of the regular correspondence from stakeholders, the Department has received some representations on the issue of compensation.

Local Authorities: Equal Pay

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what financial provision has been made for local authorities which are conducting pay and grading reviews in order to comply with the Equal Pay Act 1974. [156020]

John Healey: Under the Equal Pay Act 1970, an employer must provide equal pay for the same work or work which is considered objectively to be of equal value. The Local Government Association has sought additional borrowing flexibility for local government through capitalisation. In response, on 28 September 2007 the Government issued £500 million of capitalisation directions to 46 authorities for the purpose of spending on equal pay back-pay.

A list of these 46 authorities is available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/news/corporate/490459.

Religion

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations the Government has received on the activities of (a) The Friends of the Western Buddhist Order, (b) The New Kadampa Tradition and (c) Soka Gakkai International; and when such representations were received. [156701]

Mr. Dhanda: Communities and Local Government has received correspondence from a member of the public regarding the alleged cultish behaviour of the Friends of the Western Buddhist Order, New Kadampa Tradition and Soka Gakkai International, and the recommendation of funding to these organisations under Round 2 of the Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund. This representation was received on 1 May 2007. As far as we are aware, no other representation has been received.

Stakeholder Advisory Panel on Home Buying and Selling: Public Appointments

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government who the members are of the Stakeholder Advisory Panel on home buying and selling; and what criteria were used to appoint its members. [153818]

Yvette Cooper: The Stakeholder Advisory Panel on home buying and selling consists of:

Yvette Cooper (chair CLG)
Mike Ockenden (AHIPP)
Peter Bollon-King (NAEA)
Nick Stace (Which?)
Fiona Hoyle (CoPSO)
Michael Coogan (CML)
Simon McWhirter (WWF)
Jeremy Leaf (RICS)
Ted Beardsall (Land Registry)
Paul Marsh (Law Society)
Heather Clayton (OFT)
David Saunders (BERR)
Matthew Symes (Non-executive director)
Jeremy Stanyard (Non-executive director)

Unitary Councils

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many councils she expects to be permitted to move ahead with a unitary bid in the initial stage following the prioritisation process outlined in the latest consultation paper on unitary bids. [155695]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to my statement on 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 68WS.

HEALTH

Breast Cancer: Screening

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the breast cancer re-screening rate, within 36 months is in (a) England, (b) West Yorkshire and (c) Wakefield; [156379]

(2) what proportion of eligible women in the Leeds/Wakefield breast screening area are receiving scans within the 36 month national standard. [156380]

Ann Keen: 36-month breast cancer screening interval rates for England and Leeds Wakefield and Bradford Pennine, the two screening centres which cover West Yorkshire, are shown in the following table. 38-month interval rates are also given as an indicator of how close intervals are to the national standard of 36 months. Figures are not available for Wakefield alone.

	36 month breast cancer screening interval rate—April to June 2007	Percentage 38 month breast cancer screening interval rate—April to June 2007
England	67	90
Bradford Pennine screening centre	69	93
Leeds Wakefield screening centre	10	46

Source:
NHS Cancer Screening Programme

The Government take the issue of the 36-month standard between screens very seriously and that is why Professor Mike Richards, the National Cancer Director, wrote to the chief executives of all 10 strategic health authorities in England on 9 February 2007 highlighting the importance of maintaining the 36-month interval.

Broomfield Hospital: PFI

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many representations the Department received (a) supporting and (b) against the Broomfield private finance initiative scheme; what meetings were organised on this scheme and with whom; and what other consultation was conducted and what the balance of opinion was arising therefrom. [156526]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The former Minister of State (Andy Burnham), met with the hon. Members for West Chelmsford (Mr. Burns), Maldon and East Chelmsford (Mr. Whittingdale), the right hon. Member for Saffron Walden (Sir Alan Haselhurst), the hon. Member for Braintree (Mr. Newmark), Chair of the Trust David Bullock, Chief Executive of the Trust Andrew Pike, Helen Davis (from the strategic health authority (SHA)) and Peter Coates, Deputy Director of Finance-Investment, from the Department on Monday 20 November 2006 to discuss progress of the Broomfield private finance initiative scheme.

The full business case, which is supported by local commissioners, the trust and the SHA has been submitted to the Department for approval.

Chronically Sick

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the implementation of the National Service Framework for Long-term Conditions; and when the framework will be reviewed. [155949]

Ann Keen: The National Service Framework (NSF) for long-term conditions has a 10-year implementation programme from its publication in March 2005, with flexibility for organisations to set the pace of change locally to take account of local priorities and needs. The "NSF Good Practice Guide" demonstrates that that a number of organisations have successfully addressed aspects of service delivery outlined in the NSF.

The Department has no plans to review the NSF.

Contaminated Blood and Blood Products Inquiry

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of the documents rediscovered by his Department in 2007 relating to the safety of blood products have (a) been and (b) not been (i) publicly released and (ii) released to the Archer inquiry to date; and if he will make a statement. [156290]

Dawn Primarolo: Two sets of documents related to blood safety, previously believed to be missing, were recovered in 2006:

some 4,500 documents located in storage in unregistered files. These are now held in 101 registered files.

some 600 documents returned by a firm of private solicitors who acted for claimants in HIV litigation in 1989. These are now held in 20 registered files.

These documents in 121 files are being reviewed and issued in line with the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act.

Documents from 100 files, comprising 80 of the 101 files in category 1 and the 20 files in category 2, have been supplied to the Archer inquiry. Documents from the remaining 21 files will be issued this month, within the timetable agreed with the inquiry team.

The documents are being scanned and placed on the Department's website for public access. So far the documents in 60 of the 101 previously unregistered files have been placed on the Department's website. It is anticipated that documents from all 121 files will be on the Department's website by the end of November.

Dental Services

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on progress towards full provision of dentistry on the NHS. [155427]

Ann Keen: The fundamental reforms introduced last year have provided for the first time a stable foundation for the national health service to develop dental services that meet local needs.

The recent Departmental report "NHS Dental Reforms: One year on" sets out the progress already made in developing new services and the further action being taken to support the NHS in improving access. This report has been placed in the Library.

Departments: Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent by his Department on (a) staff training and (b) communication training in the last 12 months. [153077]

Dawn Primarolo: This information is not held centrally and to collect it would be at disproportionate cost.

General Medical Services Contract

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to provide NHS employers with a mandate to negotiate the arrangements for the new General Medical Services contract in 2008-08. [156412]

Mr. Bradshaw: NHS employers have already begun negotiations with the British Medical Association's General Practitioners' Committee on possible changes to the General Medical Services contract for 2008-09, based on a mandate provided to them by the Department.

General Practitioners: Foreigners

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department collects information on the number of foreign nationals in England registered with general practitioners. [156397]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The Department does not hold this information centrally.

The Department is currently undertaking a review of access to the national health service by foreign nationals, the review is being conducted jointly with the Home Office Border and Immigration Agency and will cover access to both primary and secondary care.

Health Hazards: Electric Cables

Michael Connarty: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice he has received from the Health Protection Agency to the Stakeholder Advisory Group on ELF EMF's report; if he will place a copy of the advice in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [156852]

Dawn Primarolo: Following the publication of the Stakeholder Advisory Group on extremely low frequency and electromagnetic fields (SAGE) report, the former Minister of State (Caroline Flint) at the time, wrote to the Health Protection Agency to ask for its considered view and advice to Government. We are currently awaiting a reply.

Health Hazards: Mercury

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the potential effect on public health of mercury in (a) vaccinations, (b) dental amalgams and (c) low energy light bulbs. [156823]

Dawn Primarolo: As with all medicinal products, vaccine safety is continually monitored by the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) with advice from the Commission on Human Medicines (CHM). The CHM has thoroughly reviewed the safety of vaccines containing mercury (thiomersal).

Several large studies have found no evidence of a link between thiomersal-containing vaccines and neurodevelopmental disorders. MHRA and CHM advice, available on the MHRA website, is that there is no evidence of harm from the very small quantities of thiomersal contained in some vaccines, with the exception of possible allergic reactions such as skin rashes or local swelling at the site of injection. This view concurs with that of the World Health Organisation, the United States Institute of Medicine and the European Medicines Agency.

The use of dental amalgam is declining in the United Kingdom as a result of increased application of alternatives, changes in the commissioning of primary dental care and a general improvement in dental health. We expect this decline to continue. However it remains an effective direct restorative option and there is no evidence to suggest that its use poses any significant health risk.

No formal assessment has been made in respect of the potential effect on public health of mercury in low energy light bulbs.

Health Services: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent per head of population on health services in 2006-07 in each (a) primary care trust and (b) local authority area ranked in order. [155904]

Mr. Bradshaw: Tables showing the spend by head of population in primary care trusts for 2006-07 and social services spending in 2005-06 for each council in ranked order have been placed in the Library. These are for the latest years for which data are available.

Injuries: Offensive Weapons

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) gun shot and (b) knife wounds the NHS has treated in the last 12 months. [156834]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information is not collected on the number of gun shot and knife wounds the national health service has treated.

Information is available however on those patients who were actually admitted to hospital for gun shot and knife injuries (these figures do not include patients who were treated in accident and emergency departments for gun shot/knife injuries and not admitted). Those cause codes that appear relevant are presented in the following table.

Count of finished admission episodes for gun shot and knife wound injuries 2005-06: NHS hospitals, England

		Count
W32	Handgun discharge	44
W33	Rifle shotgun and larger firearm discharge	73
X72	Intentional self-harm by handgun discharge	10
X73	Intent self-harm by rifle shotgun and larger firearm discharge	17
X93	Assault by handgun discharge	44
X94	Assault by rifle shotgun and larger firearm discharge	51
Y22	Handgun discharge undetermined intent	9
Y23	Rifle shotgun and larger firearm discharge undetermined intent	11
	Total	259
W26	Contact with knife sword or dagger	5,321

Notes:
1. Finished admission episodes:
A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Please note that admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
2. Cause code:
The cause code is a supplementary code that indicates the nature of any external cause of injury, poisoning or other adverse effects.
3. Ungrossed data:
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will address each of the seven questions asked by the hon. Member for Billericay in the letter to his Department on the subject of testosterone deficiency dated 31 May. [155967]

Ann Keen: A response to this letter was sent to the hon. Member on 19 July 2007. This reply answers all the hon. Member's questions and there is nothing further we can add to this response.

NHS Next Stage Review

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what his most recent estimate is of the (a) cost to date (i) in total and (ii) broken down by major cost area and (b) expected overall cost to the public purse of Lord Darzi's NHS Next Stage Review; [156415]

(2) what progress Lord Darzi is making in his NHS Next Stage Review; how many (a) clinicians, (b) managers and (c) other staff he has received representations from; how many NHS organisations the review team has formally met with since the announcement of the review; whether he still intends to publish an interim report of the work of the review in October; and if he will make a statement; — [156416]

(3) how many clinical pathway groups to inform the work of the NHS Next Stage Review have been established in each strategic health authority; and who the members are of each group which has been established. [156417]

Ann Keen: The interim report, published on 4 October, explains that the review is primarily a local process involving thousands of frontline staff, patients and public in the design of care pathways based on best practice evidence. This is core business for the national health service and as such involves no additional cost to the taxpayer.

Supermarkets: Ethics

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will ask the Competition Commission to inquire into whether practices of UK supermarkets involve significant exploitation of workers in developing countries; and if he will make a statement. [152605]

Mr. Thomas: The Government do not request the Competition Commission to undertake inquiries except in certain, limited circumstances. Ensuring that markets operate freely and fairly is not a matter for the Government, but is for the independent competition authorities.

The Office of Fair Trading (OFT) has asked the CC to investigate if any features of this market prevent, restrict or distort competition and if so, what action might be taken to remedy these. The CC has a statutory requirement to report within two years of a reference to them by the OFT. It is required to publish its final report by 8 May 2008, but is aiming to do so by October 2007. The CC expects to publish its emerging thinking for consultation on 23 January. The current timetable for the inquiry can be found at:

www.competition-commission.org.uk/inquiries/ref2006/grocery/core_timetable.htm

The CC investigation is not limited to considering only the issues that the OFT has identified, and any issues should be raised direct with them.

Wind Power: Greenbelt

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many domestic wind turbines were granted planning permission on land designated as green belt for each of the previous three years for which figures are available. [156572]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have been asked to reply.

This information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts: North East Region

Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many arts organisations in (a) Stockton on Tees and (b) the North East received Arts Council England North East funding in each of the last 10 years. [149968]

Margaret Hodge: The table shows the amount of arts organisations in Stockton on Tees and the North East in receipt of Arts Council funding for each of the last 10 years.

Figures for the North East prior to 1999-2000 relate to arts organisations receiving lottery funding distributed by the Arts Council. From 1999-2000 the figures for the North East include regularly funded organisations. This is because prior to the merger of the Regional Arts Boards in 2003-04 to create Arts Council England, each region managed its funding records independently.

	Stockton on Tees	North East
1997-98	7	215
1998-99	1	48
1999-2000	3	129
2000-01	5	180
2001-02	6	195
2002-03	3	143
2003-04	11	270
2004-05	9	229
2005-06	11	231
2006-07	9	218

BBC Trust: Public Appointments

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will consider introducing (a) pre-appointment parliamentary scrutiny and (b) confirmation hearings for future appointments to the BBC Trust. [156454]

James Purnell [holding answer 8 October 2007]: BBC Trust appointments are among those regulated by the Commissioner for Public Appointments. We believe the scrutiny afforded by existing arrangements, which include the involvement of an OCPA trained independent assessor throughout, is sufficient. We do not therefore plan to consider introducing pre-appointment parliamentary scrutiny or confirmation hearings for future appointments to the BBC Trust.

This is consistent with proposals set out in the Government Green Paper "The Governance of Britain" (July 2007), which accepts there are a number of positions in which Parliament has a particularly strong interest because the office holder exercises statutory or other powers in relation to protecting the public's rights and interests. The Government believe that Parliament, through its Select Committees, may play a valuable role where such appointments are not subject to oversight by the Commissioner for Public Appointments or other form of independent scrutiny.

Big Lottery Fund: Voluntary Organisations

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many voluntary organisations which were formerly funded from single regeneration budgets have bid for Big Lottery funding in each year for which figures are available; and how many have been successful in each year. [155793]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Culture: Expenditure

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the Government spent on (a) the arts, (b) sport and (c) heritage in each year since 1997. [155768]

James Purnell: The following table shows how much the Department for Culture, Media and Sport spent on the arts, sport and heritage from 1997 to 2007-08.

	Sector
	Arts	Sport	Heritage
1997-98	196.4	50.1	155.8
1998-99	199.7	49.4	149.1
1999-2000	229.8	51.6	145.6
2000-01	238.8	52.6	149.7
2001-02	252.9	64.5	142.0
2002-03	291.2	109.8	156.7
2003-04	326.6	78.9	156.3
2004-05	370.5	111.5	169.0
2005-06	410.4	117.5	165.1
2006-07	430.2	168.7	188.4
2007-08	420.3	186.4	190.7

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which private consultancy firms (a) his Department and (b) agencies which report to his Department engaged in each of the last three years; which programmes or projects each firm worked on; and what the approximate cost to the Department or agency concerned was of each engagement. [155879]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many civil servants are employed by his Department, broken down by policy area. [148539]

Margaret Hodge: The requested information is in the following table:

Policy area	Number of staff	Number of staff (FTE)
Architecture, Historic Environment	31	30.4
Sports	35	34.6
Arts	21	20.8
Creative Industries Division	19	18.8
Active Generation Team	5	4.5
Tourism	30	29.9
Lottery, Communities and International	27	25.6
Museums, Libraries and Cultural Property Unit	31	31
Gambling and National Lottery Licensing	18	18
Broadcasting Policy	32	32
Humanitarian Assistance Unit	7	7
Government Art Collection	14	13.5
Government Olympic Executive	46	44.8
Olympic Games Board Secretariat	6	6
Total	322	316.9

Notes:
1. The remaining 205 staff work in Human Resources, Finance and Planning, Strategy, Private Office, Communications and Directorate support.
2. The department is planning to reduce its headcount by around 70 FTE by 2011.
3. The Culture, Creativity and Economy Group deals with a range of subjects; Arts, Architecture, Heritage, Creative Industries, Sports, Museums, Libraries, Broadcasting Policy, Tourism, National Lottery and Gambling Licensing and Tourism.
4. Corporate Services covers Human Resources, Finance and Planning, Strategy and Private Office.

Digital Broadcasting: Broadcasting Reception

Mr. Alan Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the number of households which are capable of receiving a high quality and reliable analogue television signal but will not be capable of receiving a fully reliable digital television signal after digital switchover in (a) Argyll and Bute, (b) the STV region and (c) the UK. [152466]

James Purnell [holding answer 24 July 2007]: At the time of switchover (which will be in 2010 for the STV region) digital terrestrial coverage across the whole of the UK should substantially match that which the present analogue service achieves—that is, 98.5 per cent. of households. Although we do not have information on coverage for individual constituencies, Ofcom estimates that around 97 per cent. of households in the STV North region and around 99.4 per cent. in STV Central region will be capable of receiving a high quality and robust signal after digital switchover. Unfortunately, estimates of analogue coverage are not available.

Digital Broadcasting: Sight Impaired

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether his Department will be making any funds available to blind and partially-sighted persons to purchase new equipment to enable them to use teletext once the analogue signal has been switched off. [156192]

James Purnell: The Digital Switchover Help Scheme will ensure that households where at least one person is registered blind or registered partially-sighted will be provided with the appropriate equipment to convert one TV set and, where necessary, the relevant help to install and use such equipment and an aerial installation. Help will be free to eligible households in receipt of income support, jobseeker's allowance or pension credit. Other households will be asked to contribute £40 towards the cost of support.

Where the eligible household opts for the digital terrestrial platform, the scheme will provide a set top converter box which meets the scheme's core receiver requirement. This incorporates a number of features, such as audio description, which will be of benefit to blind and partially sighted people. There is no requirement for the scheme to enable audio access to digital text services. The Consumer Expert Group, which includes the RNIB and SENSE were consulted on the scheme requirements. The core receiver requirements, which take costs into account, will be kept under regular review.

Digital Switchover Help Scheme

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the requirements for set-top boxes provided by the Digital Switchover Help Scheme include an on/off button; and if he will make a statement. [151255]

James Purnell [holding answer 24 July 2007]: The Core Receiver Requirements for digital switchover Help Scheme equipment state that any digital receiver provided as part of the scheme shall have a power switch in an easily accessible position with which the receiver can be placed into its lowest possible consumption mode (e.g. standby). The requirements also require that a corresponding function should be included in the design of the remote control for such receivers.

Set-top boxes remain on low power standby rather than being switched off completely when not in use, in order to allow them to receive important over-the-air downloads (for example, to rescan for frequency changes), in a way which causes minimum disruption for the viewer, at very low levels of energy consumption.

Gambling: Advertising

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether advertising of gambling-related activities at televised sports events during children's television viewing hours will be permitted under the proposed Committee of Advertising Practice and Broadcast Committee of Advertising Practice gambling advertising rules. [148535]

James Purnell: Under the Committee of Advertising Practice (CAP) and Broadcast Committee of Advertising Practice (BCAP) new codes of practice, which came into effect on 1 September, there are strict controls in place about the content and scheduling of gambling advertisements and restrictions on advertising during and around children's programmes or programmes commissioned for, principally directed at or likely to appeal particularly to children.

In addition to the CAP and BCAP codes, the gambling industry has introduced a voluntary 9 pm watershed on all broadcast gambling advertising, with an exception for bingo and lottery advertisements which are already permitted and sports betting advertising around sports events, as part of their social responsibility code on gambling advertising.

National Lottery: Manpower

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people are employed by each of the National Lottery distributors. [155766]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This information is not held centrally and it has not been possible to collate the data requested in the time available. Some of the information requested is already in the public domain, in distributor's annual reports.

National Lottery: Public Relations

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much each National Lottery distributor spent on public affairs and public relations activities in the last period for which figures are available. [155765]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This information is not held centrally and it has not been possible to collate the data requested in the time available. Some of the information requested is already in the public domain, in national lottery distributor's annual reports.

Sports: Manpower

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the 10,000 voluntary community sports coaches announced on 24 September are (a) additional to and (b) distinct from the young volunteers trained to work in schools and community clubs and trained adult mentors announced as part of the Game Plan strategy in 2003; and if he will make a statement. [156279]

James Purnell: The 10,000 voluntary Community Sports Coaches announced on the 24 September will be additional to and distinct from the young volunteers and leaders supported by the Step into Sport scheme which is part of the National School Sport Strategy.

Game Plan was published as a strategy document in December 2002. The Government have used it to inform their policy on sport where appropriate.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) from which areas the 10,000 voluntary community sports coaches, announced on 24 September, will be recruited; [156280]

(2) when he expects the 10,000 voluntary community sports coaches, announced on 24 September, to (a) be recruited and (b) begin their coaching activities; and what steps his Department plans to take to (i) encourage, (ii) monitor and (iii) audit and account for progress with this initiative; [156281]

(3) which national governing bodies will be responsible for recruiting the 10,000 voluntary community sports coaches announced on 24 September; how much each such body will receive; how much of the £5 million announced for the initiative will be allocated to (a) Sports Coach UK and (b) Sport England; and when the funding will be made available to each responsible body. [156282]

James Purnell: We are working on detailed plans with Sport England, Youth Sport Trust and sports coach UK to start the recruitment of 10,000 volunteer sports coaches from April 2008, in the most deprived areas.

Written Questions

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects to answer question (a) 148539 on civil servants and (b) 148535 on advertising: gambling, tabled by the hon. Member for Bath on 4 July 2007. [156248]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Both questions were answered on 3 October.

TRANSPORT

A1: Nottinghamshire

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made on the removal of six roundabouts on the A1 in Nottinghamshire and Lincolnshire. [156690]

Mr. Tom Harris: Construction work has commenced at all six roundabout junctions, with the most significant progress being made at Blyth, Apleyhead and Gonerby Moor.

Overall project completion is expected in early 2009. This is slightly later than originally programmed due to the effects of the wet weather during the summer and refocusing traffic management to minimise the impact of the works on the travelling public.

Biofuels

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) volume and (b) proportion of biofuels used in England was (i) imported and (ii) produced domestically in each of the last five years; what the equivalent estimated figures are for each year up to 2010; and what impact this had upon reducing carbon emissions from vehicles. [154745]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The total quantities of biofuels released for consumption in the UK are available via the HM Revenue and Customs website at http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=bulloil. Annual figures are summarised in the following table. Information on the carbon savings associated with these biofuels is not available.

Annual quantities of biofuels released for consumption in the UK and estimated carbon savings

	Millions of litres
	Biodiesel	Bioethanol
2003	19	0
2005	33	85

Provisional figures suggest that the total quantity of biofuel released for consumption over the first eight months of 2007 amounted to some 318 million litres, or around 1 per cent. of total road transport fuel sales. The Government do not hold precise data on the origin of these fuels, and information on the carbon savings associated with them is not available. All of the bioethanol over the period in question was imported, whereas a significant amount of the biodiesel was produced in the UK. During 2006 and 2007, however, imports of biodiesel rose sharply.

The Government are due to introduce a Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation (RTFO) in April 2008. This should create a demand for around 1 billion litres of biofuel in 2008, rising to around 1.75 billion litres in 2009 and 2.5 billion litres in 2010. We anticipate that this demand will be met by both imported and domestically produced biofuels. The carbon savings will depend on a number of factors, including the carbon intensity of the biofuels transport fuel suppliers choose to source. The RTFO's reporting requirements are designed to provide a strong incentive for transport fuel suppliers to source sustainable, low-carbon biofuels.

The Government have also announced that from 2010-11 they aim to reward biofuels under the RTFO according to the amount of carbon they save. This should provide greater certainty over the level of carbon savings that the biofuels should deliver. Further details are set out in an informal policy paper which is available via this Department's website at http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/roads/environment/rtfo/.

British Transport Police: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many press officers are employed by the British Transport Police. [154134]

Mr. Tom Harris: This information is not held by the Department for Transport but by the British Transport Police who can be contacted at:

British Transport Police, 25 Camden Road, London NW1 9LN

Departments: Accountancy

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what accounts directions were issued by her Department in financial years (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [156645]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Under the Government Resource and Accounts Act 2000, HM Treasury issue accounts directions to Departments, pension schemes and agencies and under the Government Trading Fund Act 1973 to trading funds.

For the years 2005-06 and 2006-07 Department for Transport has issued accounts directions for the form and content of resource and other accounts to the following sponsored bodies:

2005-06

Civil Aviation Authority
British Transport Police
Trinity House
Northern Lighthouse Board
Commissioners of Irish Lights
Passenger Focus

2006-07

East Coast Railway Line: Franchises

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she has taken to ensure that the successful bidder for the Inter City East Coast franchise includes in their operations a major commitment to environmental sustainability; and what measures have been taken to ensure that such a commitment is an objective when awarding other new rail franchise contracts. [155729]

Mr. Tom Harris: Bidders for the Inter City East Coast franchise were required to set out plans for measuring and reducing the environmental impact of their rail activities. They also had to address the main environmental impacts of rail operation, (carbon emissions, air quality and noise); to take account of the need to conserve resources; and to reduce waste and the contamination of water and land. The winning bidder committed, among other initiatives, to reduce fuel consumption per passenger kilometre by 28 per cent. over the franchise term and to invest £400,000 to reduce energy use at stations and depots.

Great Western Trains

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many extra carriages First Great Western will receive out of the recently announced national total of 1,300; and what change there has been in the number of carriages on the First Great Western franchise since 1997. [155787]

Mr. Tom Harris: It is too early to provide details on the nature and deployment on the balance of the new rolling stock. The bulk of this will be agreed with the rail industry following publication in November of the industry proposals to deliver the high level output specification. The Department for Transport will publish a rolling stock plan in January 2008.

Details on the number of carriages operated by individual franchises in the past are not held by the Department.

Lorries: Safety

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many heavy goods vehicle annual safety tests were conducted by VOSA in each financial year since 2000-01; and what percentage of heavy goods vehicles failed (a) initial and (b) final safety test in each financial year. [155985]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) publishes figures of how many heavy goods vehicle annual safety tests were conducted by VOSA in each financial year since 2000-01; and what percentage of heavy goods vehicles failed (a) initial and (b) final safety test in each financial year in its Effectiveness Report. This is available on-line at www.vosa.gov.uk or in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport Section.

Motor Vehicles: Safety

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) private cars and light vehicles, (b) motorcycles, (c) public service vehicles, (d) trailers for heavy goods vehicles and (e) heavy goods vehicles were recalled on safety grounds in each financial year since 2000-01. [156052]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) was formed in April 2003. VOSA is responsible for the publication of vehicle safety recalls. Its records indicate:

	Private cars and light vehicles	Heavy goods vehicles	Commercial, trailers	Motorcycles	Public service vehicles
2003	134,407	62,513	726	13,775	2,800
2004	764,336	80,030	4,134	36,708	2,384
2005	1,007,345	71,681	4,311	45,650	12,843
2006	923,867	53,692	195	45,108	4,026

Please note, although the above number of vehicles have been recalled, they may not have proved to be defective. VOSA's figures are recorded by calendar year not financial year. To break these figures down into financial year would result in disproportionate costs.

Motor Vehicles: Testing

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) class 3 and 4 vehicles and (b) goods vehicles between 3 tonne and 3.5 tonne gross weight took an MOT test in each financial year since 2001; and how many and what percentage failed in each year. [156051]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) publishes figures of how many (a) class 3 and 4 vehicles and (b) goods vehicles between 3 tonne and 3.5 tonne gross weight took an MOT test in each financial year since 2001; and how many and what percentage failed in each year in its effectiveness report. This is available on-line at www.vosa.gov.uk or in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport Section.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) grade 7 equivalent and above managers, (b) testers, (c) vehicle inspectors and (d) vehicle examiners were employed in (i) the Vehicle

Inspectorate and (ii) the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency in each financial year since 2000-01. [156053]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) was formed in April 2003. The following table indicates the number of posts it had for the roles requested, as at 1 April of each year.

	Grade7+	Tester	Vehicle inspector	Vehicle examiner
2003	40	121	401	494
2004	43	110	427	542
2005	46	94	424	556
2006	53	80	417	524
2007	55	66	397	502

Figures prior to 2003 for the Vehicle Inspectorate could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Similar information on staff numbers was published in the Vehicle Inspectorates Annual Reports, a copy of which was placed in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport section.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many MOT vehicle testing stations are in operation. [156057]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of approved MOT garages at 1 October 2007 was 18,950.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many MOT vehicle testing stations were routinely inspected (as opposed to having a targeted inspection) to ensure that they complied with safety and other requirements in each financial year since 2000-01. [156058]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) publishes figures of how many MOT vehicle testing stations were routinely inspected (as opposed to having a targeted inspection) to ensure that they complied with safety and other requirements in each financial year since 2003 in its Effectiveness Report. This is available on-line at www.vosa.gov.uk or in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport Section. Any figures prior to 2003 can be found in The Vehicles Inspectorate report in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport Section.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the MOT Enforcement Transformation programme is; how MOT vehicle testing stations will be classified in the future; what safety checking regimes are for each class of MOT vehicle testing station; and how it was determined that the new checking regimes will work effectively. [156059]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) MOT Enforcement Transformation programme supports the delivery of a number of its strategic objectives to improve the quality and consistency of the private vehicle testing service to the public. Focussing on non-compliant MOT garages, the risk based programme aims to improve MOT testing standards and operational efficiency.

Similarly to the existing Operator Compliance Risk Score (OCRS) system, MOT garages will be classified as Red, Amber or Green.

VOSA monitor MOT garage safety through:

analysis of the MOT database,

intelligence received,

MOT Appeals,

random and targeted re-inspection of vehicles, and mystery shopper exercises.

VOSA trialled the risk based approach for 100 MOT garages in the Midlands area from June—October 2006. Analysis of the trial results demonstrated that the risk scoring mechanism is an effective method of predicting actual non-compliance by an MOT garage.

Office of Rail Regulation: Information Officers

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many press officers are employed by the Office of Rail Regulation. [154430]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Office of Rail Regulation has 1.5 full-time equivalent press officers.

Public Service Vehicles: Safety

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many public service vehicle (PSV) annual safety tests were conducted by VOSA in each financial year since 2000-01; and how many PSVs failed their (a) initial and (b) final safety test in each financial year. [155986]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) publishes figures of how many public service vehicle (PSV) annual safety tests were conducted by VOSA in each financial year since 2000-01; and how many PSVs failed their (a) initial and (b) final safety test in each financial year in its Effectiveness Report. This is available on-line at www.vosa.gov.uk or in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport Section.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many public service vehicles (PSVs) failed their final safety test for a reason relating to their (a) steering mechanisms and (b) braking systems; and what percentage of the number of tests conducted by VOSA on PSVs in each financial year each figure represents. [155987]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) publishes figures of how many public service vehicles (PSVs) failed their final safety test for a reason relating to their (a) steering mechanisms and (b) braking systems; and what percentage of the number of tests conducted by VOSA on PSVs its effectiveness report. This is available on-line at www.vosa.gov.uk or in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport Section.

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many heavy goods vehicles failed their final safety test for a reason connected to their (a) steering mechanisms and (b) braking systems; and what percentage each figure represents of the number of tests conducted by the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency on heavy goods vehicles in each year. [155988]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) publishes figures of how many heavy goods vehicles failed their final safety test for a reason connected to their (a) steering mechanisms and (b) braking systems; and what percentage each figure represents of the number of tests conducted by the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency on heavy goods vehicles in each financial year in its effectiveness report. This is available on-line at www.vosa.gov.uk or in the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport Section.

Railway Stations: Catering

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions she has had with Network Rail on the provision of Fairtrade coffee at rail stations following the discontinuance of AMT's contract with Network Rail; and if she will make a statement. [156407]

Mr. Tom Harris: None. This is a commercial matter for Network Rail, as the owner and operator of the national rail network.

The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's chief executive at the following address for further information relating to his question.

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive
Network Rail
40 Melton Street
London NW1 2EE

Railways: Safety

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what recent assessment she has made of safety at (a) manned and (b) unmanned mainline rail stations; [154743]

(2) what recent assessment she has made of the merits of manned mainline rail stations during operating hours. [154744]

Mr. Tom Harris: Staffing levels at stations are a matter for the station operator to determine.

The Department has not made any recent assessments of safety and/or personal security at manned and unmanned mainline rail stations or on the merits of manned stations during operating hours. However, a national passenger survey is undertaken twice a year by Passenger Focus to assess how safe passengers feel at stations and on trains. In the most recent survey of over 21,000 passengers most people were satisfied with the level of safety and security provided at stations. Also, as part of the Secure Stations scheme accreditation process, a passenger survey is required to be undertaken to assess how safe passengers feel at the station.

Railways: Security

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on how many occasions UK railway lines have been closed because of security alerts in each of the last 10 years. [156478]

Mr. Tom Harris: This information is not held by the Department for Transport but by the British transport police who can be contacted at: British Transport Police, 25 Camden Road, London NW1 9LN, E-mail: general.enquiries@btp.pnn.police.uk.

Road Traffic Control: A249

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what the average waiting times are during rush hour of vehicles on the A249 going to Maidstone from the Sittingbourne or Sheppey direction at the Junction 5 roundabout; [155917]

(2) how much the re-design and signalling of the Stockbury roundabout at Exit 5 of the M2 cost; [155918]

(3) what assessment the Highways Agency has made of the safety of Exit 5 of the M2. [155919]

Mr. Tom Harris: Through its watchman role, the Highways Agency continues to monitor the observed queues at junction 5 of the M2 during peak times but does not currently have a record of the average waiting times. Queuing is generally restricted to the A249 rather than the M2.

As a consequence of earlier monitoring, the Agency invested £252,626 between 2000-01 and 2003-04 in the re-design and signalling of the Stockbury roundabout.

Following this investment and further improvements in 2005, safety improved and the junction is now a relatively low priority in safety terms. The Agency continues to monitor the situation.

Roads: Repairs and Maintenance

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the current backlog of road maintenance is for strategic roads; what the estimated costs of removing the backlog are; and what the estimated time for removing the backlog is, broken down by region. [156520]

Mr. Tom Harris: There is no backlog of road maintenance for the strategic road network i.e. the English trunk roads. The network is maintained by applying whole life cost principles, and takes account of the fact that it is not practical or sustainable to maintain the whole network in an as new condition.

Roads: Safety

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what STATS19 returns are; and how they are used to generate road accident casualty figures. [155924]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The national collision statistical reporting form (commonly known as STATS19) is used to collect standard information, when a personal injury road accident is reported to the police. The information is collected by the police at the scene of the accident or in a minority of cases it is reported on by a member of the public at a police station. Some 50 data items are collected for each accident, including the time, location and circumstances of the accident, the vehicles involved and some information on each casualty. After processing this information is then forwarded by each police force (via local processing authorities in the case of some forces) to the Department electronically and entered into a database. The data are checked, analysed and detailed results published annually in "Road Casualties Great Britain". In addition quarterly estimates of casualties are published, based on provisional data returns.

The current data collection system was set up in 1979 following a wide ranging review. The statistics are used to inform public debate on matters of road safety and to provide the basis for determining and monitoring road safety policy at the local and national level. National and local government and local police forces work closely to achieve an agreed national reporting standard. The form is subject to quinquennial reviews which consider any amendments that may be required. Changes are agreed by the Steering Committee on Road Accidents Statistics (SCRAS) which was set up in 1977 to oversee the process for road accident data collection. The membership of the committee is drawn from a wide range of bodies and includes representatives of central government, local government and the police.

A copy of the current form used by the police (introduced January 2005) can be found on page 173 in "Road Casualties Great Britain: 2006 annual report", published on 27 September 2007. Copies of this report have been deposited in the Libraries of the House.

Shipping: Oil

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will take steps to ban ship-to-ship oil transfer in the Firth of Forth; what recent assessment the Government has made of the risks to the environment of spillage from such transfers; what contingency plans are in place for such circumstances in the area; and if she will make a statement. [156265]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department has no plans to introduce legislation banning ship-to-ship oil transfer in the Firth of Forth.

The Department has not made any recent assessment of the risks to the environment of spillage from ship-to-ship transfers. However, when a ship-to-ship transfer is being considered, we expect the responsible authority to carry out an assessment which takes account of the risks involved.

The following relevant contingency plans are in place for the Firth of Forth:

Oil Spill Preparedness, Response and Co-operation Convention Oil Spill Contingency Plan for Ship-to-Ship Transfer (approved August 2006)

Clearwater Forth Plan (approved August 2006).

Stretch Limousines

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her timetable is for the introduction of policy guidelines for stretch limousines; and if she will make a statement. [155747]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department intends to publish guidance on stretch limousines by January.

Taxis

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what projections have been made of the number of taxi drivers that will be operating in London for each of the next five years. [153877]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There are currently 24,500 licensed taxi drivers in London. Transport for London indicates that, assuming the upward trend in the number of taxi drivers continues, this is likely to rise to 25,500 by 2012.

Transport Direct

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the (a) original estimated and (b) outturn cost was of Transport Direct. [154749]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The original budget for the Transport Direct Programme, which included the development and operation of the Transport Direct Portal among other things, was for the period of spending review 2002 (April 2003 to March 2006). Subsequent budgets for Transport Direct were allocated on an annual basis in spending review 2004 (April 2005 to March 2008) and will be allocated in comprehensive spending review 2007 (April 2008 to March 2011). The estimated and outturn cost of Transport Direct to March 2007 was:

Period	Estimate	£ million Outturn
2003-04 to 2005-06	57	45
2006-07	11	10

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the (a) estimated and (b) outturn cost of the (i) development and (ii) running of the Transport Direct portal was in the last year. [154750]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In April 2006, Transport Direct became an operational business unit of the Department for Transport, with the budgets revised to reflect the maturity of the Transport Direct Portal and the reduced need for capital investment. The Transport Direct Portal Service encompasses the Transport Direct Portal Design, Build and Operate (DBO) contract, which covers both development and operation, and the data and services provided by other third parties that underpin the Transport Direct Portal. The estimated and outturn costs for the Transport Direct Portal Service for FY 2006-07 were:

Period FY 2006-07	£ million
Estimate	6.1
Outturn	5.9

These figures represent the total sums paid to the Atos Origin Consortium (the DBO contractor) for all aspects of the DBO contract and to other third-party providers of data and services to the Transport Direct Portal.

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the value for money of the Transport Direct portal over the last 12 months. [154751]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The original business case for Transport Direct recorded three key value for money measures:

Achieve 1 million user sessions in the first year of service.

Achieve 10 million user sessions by the end of 2006.

10 per cent. of users reassess their travel habits as a result of the information provided by TD.

Of these measures:

The 1 millionth user session was achieved 10 months after soft-launch of the service (soft-launched in July 2004, achieved in May 2005)

The 10 millionth user session was recorded on 1 December 2006

On changing habitual behaviour the portal service includes a self-completion feedback questionnaire. The responses to the questionnaire suggested that for individuals who had made the journey before (about a third of the 2,034 respondents):

17 per cent. claimed they would change their route.

24 per cent. would change when they intended to travel.

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many user sessions Transport Direct recorded in each month since June 2006; and what the weekly rate of user sessions was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [154753]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Since June 2006 the following user sessions have been recorded on the Transport Direct portal. This includes user sessions generated by end-users accessing the portal using PC, DigiTV and mobile phones, and those generated by other systems accessing Transport Direct via a web service call. The use of web services to access Transport Direct was introduced in August 2006:

Month	Total
July 2006	697,000
August 2006	778,000
September 2006	746,000
October 2006	802,000
November 2006	951,000
December 2006	893,000
January 2007	983,000
February 2007	855,000
March 2007	954,000
April 2007	829,000
May 2007	940,000
June 2007	985,000
July 2007	1,082,000
August 2007	1,126,000
Total	12,621,000

The average weekly number of user sessions recorded during the six weeks ending 16 September is 254,000.

Vehicle Number Plates: Fraud

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate the Government have made of the numbers of cloned or false number plates being used on British roads. [156560]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of vehicles that are, or may have been, subject to vehicle cloning or fitting of false plates is not known. There is no estimate available.

Vehicle Number Plates: Theft

Mr. Binley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the potential contribution of mandatory use of tamper-proof number plates to the reduction of vehicle registration plate theft; and if she will make a statement. [156231]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In February 2006 the DVLA adopted a voluntary standard for theft resistant number plates to provide consumers with an assurance that products meeting the standard had been subject to rigorous testing. The standard is supported by the Home Office and the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO).

Officials from the Department have been in discussion with representatives of ACPO and the leading number plate manufacturers about the possibility of making theft resistant plates mandatory. It is recognised that the higher cost of theft resistant plates would impose a financial burden on industry and the general public and it will be necessary to draw up and evaluate an impact assessment before making a decision on whether to proceed further. There would also be a public consultation before any decision was made.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what measures have been implemented to improve casualty reporting in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq; and if he will make a statement. [154257]

Derek Twigg: The casualty reporting and notification process has been co-ordinated by the Joint Casualty and Compassionate Centre (JCCC) at RAF Innsworth since 2005 and all information is routed through it. Casualty reporting from Afghanistan and Iraq has been further streamlined by the introduction of the Joint Personnel Administration system into these theatres in March 2007.

Casualty figures for Afghanistan and Iraq are now published twice-monthly a fortnight in arrears (previously monthly a month in arrears) and, in conjunction with JCCC, the Defence Analytical Services Agency (DASA) has conducted an exercise to validate historical operational casualty data from January 2001 onwards. The results of their analysis, together with current Aeromedical Evacuation and hospital patient data, have been published on the internet at:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/FactSheets/OperationsFactsheets/OperationsInAfghanistanBritishCasualties.htm

and

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/FactSheets/OperationsFactsheets/OperationsInIraqBritishCasualties.htm

Furthermore, as I announced to the House on 25 July 2007, MOD has moved from a system of recording and reporting mental health statistics relating solely to Operation TELIC (Iraq) to a new system covering all in-service personnel assessed with a mental health disorder at our out-patient Departments of Community Mental Health (DCMH). The report also includes a return for new in-patient admissions under the MOD's contract with the Priory Group. These are published quarterly by the Defence Analytical Services Agency (DASA), and the first report, for the period January—March 2007, is available on their website at:

http://www.dasa.mod.uk/publications/pdfs/mentalHealth/report_JanMar07.pdf

Aircraft Carriers

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when (a) HMS Illustrious and (b) HMS Ark Royal are planned to be withdrawn from service with the fleet. [154397]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 8 October 2007]: Our present planning assumption is that HMS Illustrious and HMS Ark Royal will be withdrawn from service in 2015 and 2012 respectively.

Aircraft Carriers: Procurement

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the intended in-service dates are of the new aircraft carriers. [154022]

Des Browne: As I announced to the House on 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 865, the future aircraft carriers are expected to enter service in 2014 and 2016.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many and what type of helicopters will be made available for use on the UK's new aircraft carriers; and if he will make a statement; [154023]

(2) how many and what type of aircraft will be made available for use on the UK's new aircraft carriers; and if he will make a statement. [154049]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The new aircraft carrier has been designed to support, operate and sustain a Joint Force Air Group of up to 40 aircraft, including up to 36 Joint Combat Aircraft (JCA) supported by four Maritime Airborne Surveillance and Control (MASC) aircraft, with the option of other helicopters (for example Merlin Mkl) embarked.

We are currently planning to acquire the Joint Strike Fighter (JSF) to meet the JCA requirement. We are assessing the options to fulfil the MASC requirement and will make the decision when the programme achieves sufficient maturity; we currently expect the main investment decision to be around the end of the decade. We will continue to ensure our plans for JCA and MASC remain coherent with the CVE programme.

al-Yamamah Project

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 362W, on the al-Yamamah project, what the costs were for which his Department received a management fee from the Saudi Arabian government in respect of the al-Yamamah programme; in which years since 1985 a management fee was paid; whether the fees were retained by the Government; and if he will make a statement. [154618]

Des Browne: The Department has been paid a management fee in every year since 1986 to cover the cost of its participation in the al-Yamamah Project. The fee is held by the Department to cover in full expenditure as it arises on such items as the salaries and salary-related costs of the staff of the Saudi Armed Forces Project, office and domestic accommodation charges, travel and subsistence, IT and telecommunications, training and professional fees, and utilities.

Armed Forces: Coroners

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his oral answer of 16 July 2007, Official Report, column 16, on military inquests, how many military coroners inquests are outstanding; on what dates he held meetings with ministerial colleagues to discuss outstanding coroners' inquests since he came into office; what discussions he has had with the (a) Leader of the House and (b) the Secretary of State for Justice on military inquests since 12 July 2007; and what his definition is of backlog. [151600]

Des Browne [holding answer 23 July 2007]: The scheduling of inquests touching on the deaths of Service personnel is a matter for the relevant coroner across England and Wales. As at 28 September 2007, 120 inquests had been completed on Service personnel killed on operations since 2001, 80 of which have been held since the Government took steps to speed up the process on 5 June 2006. 131 inquests remain open: 45 within the jurisdiction of the Oxfordshire Coroner; 44 for the Swindon and Wiltshire Coroner; and 42 for other coroners.

Of the original backlog of 59 inquests identified in the joint Written Ministerial Statement on 5 June 2006, Official Report, column 4WS, two remain open within the Oxfordshire Coroner's jurisdiction, one of which has been scheduled. There is one inquest into the deaths of the 10 service personnel killed in the Hercules crash in January 2005 open within the Swindon and Wiltshire Coroner's jurisdiction.

I regard a backlog as having arisen when the volume of inquests makes it difficult for a coroner to conduct the necessary investigations and inquests in a timely manner. Additional resources have been made available by the MOD and the Ministry of Justice to meet the needs of the Oxfordshire and Wiltshire Coroners. We will keep the need for any further resources under close review.

Defence Ministers have engaged closely and regularly with colleagues in the Department for Constitutional Affairs/Ministry of Justice and there have been five joint Written Ministerial Statements to update Parliament on this issue and the additional resources made available. The most recent joint Written Ministerial Statement was made by myself and the Minister for Justice on 20 June 2007, Official Report, column 97WS).

Armed Forces: Housing

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to respond to the Defence Select Committee report on the state of military housing in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [155743]

Derek Twigg: We are looking in detail at the points raised in the report and will respond fully in due course.

Armed Forces: Pensions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will estimate the cost of extending pro rata services pensions to all those who served in the armed forces, including those who served before 1975. [155780]

Derek Twigg: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the then Minister for the Armed Forces during an adjournment debate on 31 January 2007, Official Report, columns 337-40, which clearly set out the legislation and policy background to the issue. The situation has not changed and there is no real prospect that this or any Government could afford the billions of pounds that would be needed to address public sector pensions legacy issues.

Chad: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what role UK armed forces will play in the EU military mission to Chad. [154222]

Des Browne: Following the agreement of United Nations Security Council Resolution 1778, the EU are discussing a military mission to Chad/Central African Republic. The UK supports the mission as a key means of contributing to regional stability and helping to resolve the Darfur crisis, but we have made it clear that the role of the UK Armed Forces in any mission will be very limited given the extent of our commitments elsewhere.

Defence Export Services Organisation: Manpower

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Defence Export Services Organisation staff were employed in project offices dealing with exports of government to government contracts in April 2007; and how many had duties covering commercial and financial matters. [156338]

Des Browne: In April 2007, almost 200 Defence Export Services Organisation staff were employed in project offices dealing with government-to-government export contracts. Of these, 30 were mainly concerned with commercial and financial aspects of the projects.

Defence Export Services Organisation: Saudi Arabia

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many people were employed in project offices by the Defence Export Services Organisation in (a) Saudi Arabia and (b) Kuwait in (i) April 2006 and (ii) April 2007; [156336]

(2) how many staff there were in Defence Supply Secretary Offices overseas employed by the Defence Export Services Organisation in (a) April 2006 and (b) April 2007. [156337]

Des Browne: The numbers of Defence Export Services Organisation (DESO) staff employed in project offices and in other offices overseas in April 2006 and April 2007 are shown in the table as follows.

	Staff
Office [1]	April 2006	April 2007
Kuwait Project Office	3	2
Saudi Arabia Project Office	62	73
Other overseas offices	40	39

[1] Figures include locally employed staff. Part-time staff are counted as whole.

Defence Procurement Agency: Information Officers

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many press officers are employed by the Defence Procurement Agency. [154593]

Derek Twigg: In April 2007 the Defence Procurement Agency was merged with that of the Defence Logistics Organisation to become Defence Equipment and Support (DE and S). DE and S employs six press officers.

Defence: Procurement

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his estimate is of the costs incurred as a result of (a) the procurement of the new carriers, (b) the procurement of the Joint Strike Fighter, (c) the Trident replacement programme, (d) procurement of the type 45 destroyers, (e) the Future Rapid Effect System, (f) upgrading naval bases for the new carriers and (g) replacing assets lost, damaged or prematurely worn out by the conflicts in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan in each of the next five years. [154019]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Current estimates of the costs incurred over the next five years for the programmes are as follows.

Carriers

The overall estimated costs to be incurred as a result of the procurement of the new carriers in the next five years will total £2,415 million.

Disclosure of the detailed estimated annual costings over the five-year period for the procurement of the new carrier would likely prejudice the commercial interest of the project and cannot be provided.

Joint Strike Fighter

Current estimates of the costs incurred for Joint Strike Fighter are shown in Table A.

UK Nuclear Deterrent Programme

The costs provided in Table B are the estimated costs that the MOD expects to incur over the next three years to implement the decisions to maintain the UK's nuclear deterrent capability beyond the life of the current Vanguard class submarines as set out in the December 2006 White Paper, 'The Future of the United Kingdom's Nuclear Deterrent' (Cm6994) and endorsed by Parliament on 14 March 2007.

The main part of the programme has not passed business case initial gate approval. Detailed spending plans for future years are therefore not set at this stage.

Future Rapid Effect System

The estimated costs for the assessment phase of the Future Rapid Effect System project as set out in the National Audit Office Ministry of Defence Major Projects Report 2006 is £649 million.

Disclosure of detailed estimated annual costings over the five year period for the procurement of FRES would likely prejudice the commercial interest of the project and cannot be provided.

Upgrading Naval Bases

The estimated costs to be incurred as a result of upgrading the naval bases for the new carriers in the next five years will total £67 million.

Disclosure of the detailed estimated annual costings over the five year period for the upgrading of the naval bases would likely prejudice the commercial interest of the project and cannot be provided.

Replacement of Assets

Due to the unpredictable nature of operations in Iraq and Afghanistan it is not possible to predict an estimate of the costs of replacing assets lost, damaged or prematurely worn out by the conflicts.

Departments: ICT

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department received from the disposal of information technology equipment in the last year for which figures are available; and what avenues were used for such disposal. [154031]

Derek Twigg: In the last financial year, the net sales revenue generated by the sale of information technology equipment was £120,000. The MOD disposes of this equipment through its Disposal Services Authority (DSA), using incentivised contracts of sale where returns are divided between MOD and the contractor, to encourage maximum revenue generation. Additionally, DSA runs a contract for the disposal of IT equipment classified as hazardous, for which a fee is paid.

Departments: Pay

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff in his Department received bonus payments in each of the last five years for which information is available; what proportion of the total work force they represented; what the total amount of bonuses paid has been; what the largest single payment was in each year; and if he will make a statement. [152714]

Derek Twigg: The MOD civilian staff numbers, taken from the departmental end of year accounts, is 90,650 (excluding trading funds). Figures for the 2006-07 financial year are not yet available, we are only able to supply four years of data. The number and value of annual appraisal related bonuses paid to members of the senior civil service (SCS), to fixed term appointees and to civil servants below the level of the SCS covered by the MOD main pay deal (excluding trading funds and agencies), over the past four years are listed in the following tables one to three. The Ministry of Defence also awards special bonuses to individuals and teams for exceptional performance in a specific task or for the achievement of professional qualifications which benefit MOD and the individual; these are shown in table four. The final table (five) shows the total value of all bonuses paid: in cash terms and as a percentage of the civilian work force.

Ex-Servicemen: Military Decorations

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many veteran badges have been distributed in each East Midlands constituency. [156535]

Derek Twigg: The information is not held in a format that identifies how many Veterans Badges have been issued in each parliamentary constituency and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However Service Personnel and Veterans Agency records have identified that a total of 20,967 badges have been issued in the East Midlands area during the period since 18 April 2005 to date 30 September 2007. The numbers have been identified by the applicants' East Midlands post codes and are broken down as follows:

	Number
Derbyshire	3,689
Leicestershire and Rutland	5,250
Warwickshire	3,770
Nottinghamshire	8,258

Veterans Badges were issued by the Veterans Policy Unit between May 2004 and 17 April 2005. During this period 82,000 badges were issued, however, detailed records in the format required are not held for this period.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence why Multi-National Division-South East personnel have reassumed air traffic control responsibility for commercial flight services at Basra International Airport. [153653]

Des Browne [holding answer 8 October 2007]: UK personnel reassumed Air Traffic Control (ATC) responsibility for commercial flight services at Basra International Airport pending the award of a new US-funded ATC training contract. Training to allow Iraqi personnel to take on this task across the country is expected to re-commence later this year, and Multi National Division (South-East)'s ATC responsibilities will be reviewed accordingly.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many attacks there have been on British forces stationed at Basra airport in Iraq in each of the last 12 months; how many British personnel were injured or killed as a result of these attacks; and if he will make a statement. [155317]

Des Browne [holding answer 12 September 2007]: The number of indirect fire attacks on UK forces stationed at Basra air station in Iraq in each of the last 12 months is broken down in the following table:

Month	Number of indirect fire attacks
2006
October	6
November	8
December	16
2007
January	18
February	12
March	10
April	64
May	77
June	76
July	74
August	32
September	5

There have been three UK service personnel killed as a result of indirect fire attacks on Basra air station over this period. They were killed in a single incident on 19 July 2007. It is not possible to break down the number of persons injured as a result of each of these attacks, as this would contravene operational security and be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Further information on the number of UK military and civilian personnel killed and injured between March 2003 and August 2007 is provided on the MOD website at:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/FactSheets/OperationsFactsheets/OperationsInIraqBritishCasualties.htm

The information on the website does not include UK civilians employed or contracted by other Government Departments or by civilian contractors. This information is not held by the MOD.

Military Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many aircraft there are in the RAF, broken down by aircraft type. [154234]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The numbers of aircraft planned to be in service with the RAF on 31 March 2008 are contained in the following table:

Aircraft type	Fleet number
Typhoon	49
Tornado GR	137
Tornado F3	68
Harrier	78
Nimrod[1]	18
Tristar	9

BAe 146	2
BAe 125	6
Sea King	25
Dominie	9
Hawk	112
Tucano	95
Vigilant	64

[1] Includes Nimrod MR2 and R1.
[2] Does not reflect the loss of one C130K in Iraq on 23 August 2007.
[3] Figure does not include the sixth C17 announced by Secretary of State on 26 July 2007. This will be delivered later in 2008.

These figures include Sentinel, Typhoon and C17 aircraft that are continuing to be delivered during the current financial year. Three Typhoon aircraft remain to be delivered in this financial year. The last of these aircraft is expected to be delivered in the first quarter of 2008. Two Sentinel aircraft are to be delivered, one in the last quarter of 2007 and one in the first quarter of 2008. One C17 is due to be delivered from the Lockheed production line in the first quarter of 2008.

Ministry of Defence Police: Arrests

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many arrests were made by the Ministry of Defence police in each of the last five years; and how many of these resulted in successful prosecutions. [156348]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence police do not routinely record the total number of arrests that they make. Not all arrests result in prosecution. Some arrests are made on suspicions that later prove to be unfounded. Other arrests are made to prevent a potential offence being committed which result in subsequent de-arrest when the threat posed is removed.

Ministry of Defence Police: Finance

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what funding was allocated to the Ministry of Defence police in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [156346]

Derek Twigg: The budgetary allocation for the Ministry of Defence Police and Guarding Agency is shown in the following table:

Financial year	£ million
2006-07	291.020
2005-06	283.116
2004-05	255.480
2003-04	250.826
2002-03	142.268

The figures in the table are included in the chief constable's annual report and accounts. The figures quoted from financial year 2003-04 also include the budgetary provision for the Ministry of Defence Guard Service.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which Government Departments contribute to the funding of the Ministry of Defence police force. [156347]

Derek Twigg: The funding for the Ministry of Defence police is included in the overall Defence budget. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the Treasury and the Home Office reimburse the Department for Ministry of Defence policing commitments overseas, at the Royal Mint (an Executive Agency) and at gas installations in the United Kingdom, respectively.

RAF Cosford

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to make a statement on future military uses for RAF Cosford in Shropshire. [155976]

Derek Twigg: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 18 June 2007, Official Report, column 1442W, and the statement made by the Minister for the Armed Forces on 12 September 2007, Official Report, column 122WS. The Department is exploring a number of proposals for the future defence use of DCAE Cosford and no decision has yet been made. These proposals include the possibility of basing troops returning to the UK from Germany at Cosford, and further announcements will be made once this work has been completed.

Warships

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) destroyers and (b) frigates are scheduled to (i) leave and (ii) enter service with the Royal Navy in each of the next 10 years. [154393]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 8 October 2007]: On present planning assumptions, which are routinely reviewed and updated, we expect to withdraw destroyers and frigates from service as follows:

2008	0	0
2010	1	0
2011	2	0
2012	2	0
2013	1	0

It is departmental policy to release in-service dates only for those warships for which the main investment decision has been taken. Over the period in question, in-service dates for new destroyers and frigates have been established as follows:

	Destroyers	Frigates
2008	0	0
2010	1	0
2011	2	0
2012	1	0
2013	1	0
2014	0	0

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the scheduled out-of-service dates are of each (a) destroyer, (b) frigate and (c) submarine in service with the Royal Navy. [154394]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 8 October 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply that I gave on 3 September 2007, Official Report, column 1632W, to the hon. Member for Woodspring (Dr. Fox).

Warships: Shipbuilding

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent on shipbuilding for (a) the Royal Navy and (b) the Royal Fleet Auxiliary in each year since 1992. [154250]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not held centrally, on a year by year basis, nor is it held to the level of detail requested. Estimates detailing how much has been spent on total shipbuilding and repairs in UK industry and commerce can be found in the latest edition of the UK Defence Statistics. The information is in the table.

The figures for 2006-07 are still being finalised and will be released in the future. Programmes such as the new Future Carriers, the Type 45 and the Astute will lead to further investment in this area.

HEALTH

Care Homes: Dementia

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the decent homes standards are for late stage dementia sufferers in residential accommodation. [156584]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have been asked to reply.

In June 2006 the Department for Communities and Local Government published 'A Decent Home: Definition and Guidance for implementation'. This publication makes it clear that:

"The decent homes standard does not apply to Care Homes providing nursing care and regulated by the Commission for Social Care" (paragraph 4.8).

However, the Department of Health has published national minimum standards under section 23 (1) of the Care Standards Act 2000 which form the basis on which the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) registers, inspects and reports on adult social care services, and councils who arrange these services, in England. These standards set out, among other things, the minimum level for residential accommodation for care homes regulated by the CSCI.

Care Homes: Fees and Charges

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many older people he expects to have to sell their homes to cover the cost of residential care in (a) 2010, (b) 2020, (c) 2030 and (d) 2040. [155732]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information about the sale of property to pay for residential care is not collected centrally. Nor is this information automatically collected locally where a person arranges their care privately. It is not, therefore, possible to estimate the number of homes that are, or may be, sold for this purpose.

It is the Government's policy to support people in their own homes for as long as possible, where it is safe to do so and when it accords with their wishes and assessed needs, which is where most people want to be.

For those people entering residential care, the Government have taken steps to help people avoid selling their homes to pay for residential care. Since October 2001, councils have been able to enter into deferred payments agreements with residents. Under this, the council place a legal charge on the resident's former home which is not collected until the end of the contract. This gives people more options for meeting care home fees.

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome

Ms Barlow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to provide Government support specialist NHS centres for those affected by chronic fatigue syndrome in England. [156702]

Ann Keen: We have no current Government plans to provide support for further specialist national health service centres for those living with chronic fatigue syndrome.

Chronically Sick: Health Services

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department has issued on the implementation of the National Framework for Long-term Conditions. [155638]

Ann Keen: The Department has published a number of documents to support implementation of the national service framework (NSF) for long-term conditions. These include an audit tool, evaluated examples of good practice, an information strategy, a summary of the evidence on savings and performance indicators within the better metrics project.

Primary care trusts are expected to work towards implementing the NSF over a 10-year period.

Community Hospitals

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost has been to recipient community hospitals of each scheme approved to date under the expenditure programme of up to £750 million in community hospitals and services announced in July 2006, broken down by constituency; and what the total cost of approved schemes under the programme is. [155737]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 8 October 2007]: Capital allocations from the community hospitals and services programme are made to primary care trusts. £94.5 million has been allocated for 14 schemes. The total estimated cost of these schemes is £140 million. No scheme has been allocated less than the amount requested. We do not hold figures broken down into parliamentary constituencies.

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many schemes and at what total cost had been approved by the end of financial year 2006-07 from the five-year expenditure programme of up to £750 million in community hospitals and services announced in July 2006. [155738]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 8 October 2007]: We announced four schemes in December 2006. A new primary care centre in Washington; the redevelopment of the Gosport War Memorial Hospital; the development of a new community health centre in Yate, Bristol; and the establishment of a Healthy Living Park in Minehead, West Somerset. The total amount allocated to these schemes is £44.6 million. All schemes are subject to the business case approval process.

Contraceptives

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will take steps to increase access to advanced training in contraceptive services. [155925]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department is working with the Faculty of Family Planning and Reproductive Health Care, the Royal College of Nurses and others to look at improving access to training in contraception at all levels.

In particular the FPA, at the request of the Department, will hold a specialist working group on nurse training in contraception in November 2007.

Departments: Public Bodies

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2007, Official Report, columns 1630-4W, on Departments: public bodies, what changes were made to the NHS Information Centre's responsibilities in each year since 2004-05; to which bodies any such responsibilities were transferred; and what the budget of the Centre was in each year. [154014]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Health and Social Care Information Centre, now known as The Information Centre for health and social care (IC), was created by statutory instrument as a special health authority on 1 April 2005.

The Information Centre's revenue resource limit from the Department is set out in the following table.

Revenue resource limit for The Information Centre 2004-05 to 2007-08

	Revenue Resource Limit (£ million)
2004-05	[1]0
2005-06	53.1
2006-07	41.5
2007-08	[2]37.2

[1] No funding allocated in 2004-05 because the IC was only established on 1 April 2005.

[2] The 2007-08 figure is subject to change because the revenue resource limit for 2007-08 will only be finalised in January.

The IC took over some of the functions of the earlier NHS Information Authority, which it replaced, together with most of the activities of the former Department of Health Statistics Division and the Prescribing Support Unit of West Yorkshire Health Authority, from which staff were transferred into the IC. These areas of work have been reviewed, integrated and further developed within the remit of the IC.

There have been no changes to the responsibilities of the IC since its establishment in April 2005. As part of the process of integration and consolidation since this date, every opportunity has been taken to ensure that the work undertaken by the IC has been delivered in the most effective and efficient manner. Changes in processes and ways of working have ensured that the IC has delivered efficiencies since it was established, while ensuring that priorities are still delivered.

Doctors: Career Structure

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 18 July 2007, Official Report, column 452W, on doctors' training, how many junior doctors in the first round of applications were told in error that they had received a training place; and what actions were taken by deaneries to ensure that this did not occur. [154214]

Ann Keen: The number of applicants told in error is not held centrally. The Department understands that it was a small number and that deaneries contacted the doctors to notify them of the situation. It is a matter for deaneries to manage the appointment process.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many doctors did not receive job offers in the first round of medical training applications; and what percentage of applicants this represented. [154275]

Ann Keen: In England, there were 27,800 eligible applicants for 15,554 training posts. At the end of Round 1, 85 per cent. of posts were filled. 13,168 applicants had accepted posts, leaving 14,632 who had either not received an offer or had not accepted an offer. The information held centrally does not distinguish between those who received an offer but did not accept it and those who did not receive any offer.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what support will be offered to doctors who do not receive a training place in either the first or second round of recruitment in order to safeguard their future careers. [154276]

Ann Keen: We have prepared a package of support for those doctors who are appointable to a training post, but who are not successful in finding one by the end of round 2. This package of support includes additional training and educational opportunities. This comprises:

Access to career information about future training options via local deaneries. Applicants who are already in national health service employment will also be able to access career support from their employer.

About 1,000 extra one-year and general practitioner training posts which will become available for unsuccessful applicants at the end of round 2.

Educational bursaries, so that appointable but unsuccessful applicants who are in NHS service posts can pursue their clinical education and improve their chances of successfully applying for specialty training next year.

In addition, we have agreed that all foundation programme graduates (F2) who are unsuccessful at the end of round 2 will receive a formal career interview which will determine their eligibility for the extra one-year posts and educational grants offered in 'clearing'.

Also, we have opened up discussions with the British Medical Association, the Academy of Royal Colleges and other representatives of the medical profession to discuss whether there is any risk that high academic achievers may be missed by the end of the recruitment process, and if so, how we can avoid that happening.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of junior doctor training posts, unfilled after the first round of job offers, have been temporarily filled by doctors on short-term contracts. [154318]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not held centrally. It is for the local national health service to fill any vacant posts appropriately.

Dr. Bhattacharyya

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the redundancy of Dr. Bhattacharyya. [156704]

Ann Keen: Staff redundancies in the local national health service is a local matter.

Fibromyalgia

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent steps his Department has taken to raise awareness of fibromyalgia among (a) the general public and (b) health professionals; [156505]

(2) what progress is being made in improving NHS (a) diagnosis and (b) treatment of fibromyalgia; [156506]

(3) what recent representations he has had and received on fibromyalgia. [156544]

Ann Keen: We have made no assessment of the progress being made by the national health service into improving the diagnosis and treatment of fibromyalgia.

We have taken no recent steps to raise awareness of fibromyalgia among the general public and health professionals.

We have received three recent Downing Street e-petitions on fibromyalgia, as well as correspondence from individuals and their Members of Parliament.

Health Professions: Employment

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he plans to take to assist newly qualified nurses to find employment; and what recent discussions there have been between his Department and the Health Ministers in (a) Wales and (b) Scotland on placing newly qualified (i) nurses, (ii) physiotherapists and (iii) consultant doctors in employment. [155613]

Ann Keen: In April 2007 the Social Partnership Forum, a partnership between the Department, unions and NHS employers, launched an action plan for maximising the opportunities for newly qualified health care professionals in England. This sets out actions to deliver a demonstrable improvement in graduate employment. NHS employers are undertaking a review of progress against the action plan.

Officials in the Department, the Scottish Executive and the Welsh Assembly will continue to discuss issues affecting the national health service workforce.

Health Services: Bedfordshire

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations his Department has received on the funding of NHS primary care trusts in Bedfordshire and Luton; and if he will make a statement. [155633]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Ministers have answered letters from both the hon. Member for Luton, South (Margaret Moran) and the hon. Member for Luton, North (Kelvin Hopkins) about the allocations made to both Bedfordshire and Luton primary care trusts. There have also been a number of letters from the local patient and public involvement forums as well as members of the public on the same issue.

Horton Hospital: John Radcliffe Hospital

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health at what times patients were admitted to the Horton general hospital from the John Radcliffe hospital on (a) 2 May, (b) 3 May, (c) 24 May, (d) 18 June, (e) 2 July, (f) 5 July, (g) 7 July, (h) 13 July, (i) 18 July, (j) 19 July, (k) 20 July and (l) 21 July. [156171]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not held centrally.

Hospitals: Admissions

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many acute hospitals in England rapid screen elective admissions. [156455]

Ann Keen [holding answer 8 October 2007]: Information on rapid methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) screening is not available centrally but we believe that it is used in a small number of hospitals.

However, on 4 October, in his interim report 'Our NHS, Our Future', Lord Darzi announced the introduction of MRSA screening for all elective admissions from next year, and for all emergency admissions as soon as practicable within the next three years.

Incontinence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to publish guidance on continence services as part of the planned high-level report on developing services for older people with complex needs. [156217]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The key messages for developing services for older people with complex needs were outlined in the National Clinical Director for Older People's reconfiguration report "A Recipe for Care" published in January of this year. There are no plans to issue further guidance on continence services but the National Clinical Director continues to advise Ministers on developing services for older people with complex needs and will continue to publish evidence-based information to support service development.

The management of continence is a key issue for the care of older people, as highlighted in Standard 2 of the National Service Framework for Older People and is one of the conditions for which early intervention is recommended, as outlined in "A Recipe for Care".

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the results of the second survey of continence care for older people undertaken by the Royal College of Physicians. [156219]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We have made no assessment of the results of the second survey of continence care undertaken by the Royal College of Physicians.

Incontinence: Children

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what specific measures are in place to deliver an incontinence service for younger people and disabled children. [156215]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The assessment of paediatric continence services is for local primary care trusts (PCTs), with a view to compliance with standard six of the national service framework for children. This standard includes a specific section on paediatric incontinence. The provision of continence services for younger people and disabled children is the responsibility of local PCTs, with a view to compliance with standard six of the national service framework for children. This standard includes a specific section on paediatric incontinence.

Incontinence: Home Care Services

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans he has to carry out a review of the impact on elderly people of changes to the home delivery service of incontinence products; [156216]

(2) how many health authorities provide an integrated incontinence service; [156218]

(3) what powers are available to the Government to oblige health bodies to comply with the guidelines contained in Good Practice in Continence Services; and whether sanctions are available for non-compliance; [156220]

(4) whether the Government plans to carry out research to ascertain how many people suffer from incontinence, broken down by (a) the age and sex of those affected and (b) the form of incontinence. [156222]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We have no plans to carry out research into the number of people living with incontinence.

Information on the number of strategic health authorities (SHAs) proving an integrated continence service is not collected centrally.

We currently have no plans to review the impact on older people of the changes to the home delivery service of continence products.

Health bodies are expected to have regard for the guidance contained in the document "Good Practice in Continence Services". SHAs have a duty to ensure that primary care trusts provide acceptable continence services. The Healthcare Commission may intervene where health bodies fail to provide an adequate level of service.

Maternity Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2007, Official Report, column 176W, on maternity services, on what evidential basis the figure for live births in England in 2006 was estimated; and what percentage change this figure represented from live births in England in 2005. [154274]

Ann Keen: In 2005 there were 613,028 live births in England. In 2006 there were 635,748 live births. This was a 3.7 per cent. increase on live births in England in 2005. The figure for live births in the original reply was for England and Wales whereas these figures are England only. This information is given in the table. Table 6 of the "Office for National Statistics Births (Provisional), Selected Background Data, England and Wales" and is published on the ONS website at:

www.statistics.gov.uk/downloads/theme_population/Table_6_Area_Health.xls

The figure for the number of live births in England 2006 comes from the details collected when births are registered. Registering a birth is a legal requirement and must be done within 42 days of the birth. Births to residents of England which are registered elsewhere are excluded, while births registered in England whose usual residence is elsewhere, are included.

Midwives: Pay

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on progress on implementing the pay rise for midwives payable in financial year 2007-08. [154476]

Ann Keen: Discussions continue between the Department, the NHS Employers organisation and the national health service unions about this year's pay award. We are hopeful the outcome from these talks will enable the award to be implemented shortly.

Musculoskeletal Disorders

Patrick Hall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions his Department has had with the Department for Work and Pensions on the implementation of the Musculoskeletal Services Framework as a method of reducing (a) long-term sickness and (b) the number of people claiming incapacity benefit. [154697]

Ann Keen: We are not aware of any discussions between departmental officials and the Department for Work and Pensions on the implementation of the musculoskeletal services framework as a method of reducing long-term sickness and the number of people claiming incapacity benefit.

The framework was published as good practice guidance and it is for local organisations to decide how best to implement it.

Patrick Hall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information the National Clinical and Health Outcomes Database captures on musculoskeletal system problems; and how much expenditure this covers within that category of expenditure within the National Programme Budgeting Database. [154698]

Ann Keen: The clinical and health outcomes knowledge base contains comparative data from over 700 health and local government organisations. Databases capturing information on musculoskeletal problems include:

The United Kingdom pain database;
The national spinal injuries centre medical research database,
The national joint registry;
Norfolk arthritis register;
National total hip replacement outcomes study; and Trent and North West arthroplasty registers.

Information on the expenditure covered by these databases is not available.

Patrick Hall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans there are to extend the clinical and health outcomes data collected in relation to musculoskeletal system problems (excluding trauma). [154783]

Ann Keen: We are not aware of any specific plans to extend the clinical and health outcomes data collected in relation to musculoskeletal problems.

NHS: Alcoholic Drinks

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS staff were given time off for treatment for either alcohol or drug abuse in each of the last five years. [156672]

Ann Keen: Data are not collected centrally on how many national health service staff are given time off for treatment for either alcohol or drug abuse. It is the responsibility of NHS employers to support their staff with any health related problems, ensuring that patient safety is also taken into consideration.

NHS: ICT

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the annual survey of NHS information management and technology expenditure is expected to be published. [155864]

Mr. Bradshaw: Full results and analysis from the 2006 survey were published in January 2007. A copy of the survey results has been placed in the House Library and can also be found online at:

www.connectingforhealth.nhs.uk/resources/funding.

Information from the 2007 survey is expected to be published in January 2008.

NHS: Internet

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total set-up costs were for the Our NHS, Our Future consultation website; what was the total cost to his Department of the COI Communications video presented via the website; and what ongoing costs will be incurred by his Department for the upkeep of the website. [156389]

Ann Keen: The success of the review depends on good communication and the involvement of patients, public and staff. The set-up costs of the communications website are expected to total around £6,000, and the film about £20,000. The ongoing costs of the upkeep of the website will relate to the content as it develops over the course of the review.

Organs: Donors

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps the Government are taking to increase the number of people on the organ donor register; [154268]

(2) how many people were on the organ donor register in each of the last 10 years; [154269]

(3) what proportion of families refused consent to donate relatives' organs in the case of (a) all deaths, (b) deaths where the individual was on the organ donor register and (c) deaths where the individual was not on the organ donor register in the latest period for which figures are available. [154270]

Ann Keen: The number on the organ donor register in each of the last 10 years is shown in the following table.

	Added in year	Million Total at end
1994	0.14	0.14
1995	2.21	2.35
1996	1.39	3.74
1997	0.92	4.66
1998	0.87	5.53
1999	1.51	7.04
2000	1.23	8.27
2001	0.74	9.01
2002	1.08	10.09
2003	0.87	10.96
2004	0.96	11.92
2005	1.01	12.93
2006	1.04	13.97

Information on family refusal is only collected in the case of deceased potential heartbeating donors for whom solid organ donation was considered and whose family were approached for consent to donation.

In these cases, the overall refusal rate was 39.9 per cent. In cases whereby the potential donor was known to be on the organ donor register, the family refusal rate was 6.5 per cent. In cases where it was known that the potential donor was not on the organ donor register, the family refusal rate was 36.6 per cent.

The Department launched "Saving Lives, Valuing Donors: A Transplant Framework for England" in 2003 and the National Service Framework for Renal Services in 2004. These set out the Department's key aims for organ and tissue transplantation over the following 10 years. Government investment in hospital-based funding has helped increase donor rates and an organ donor taskforce will report to Ministers in autumn 2007 on how organ donor rates can be further improved. Following the publication of the chief medical officer's annual report in July, the taskforce will also examine the potential impact on organ donation of introducing an 'opt out' or presumed consent scheme.

Paediatrics: Foreign Workers

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many international medical graduates were excluded from applying for paediatrics because they did not have highly skilled migrant programme status on 5 February 2007. [154796]

Ann Keen: No candidates have been excluded from applying for programmes in the specialty training recruitment process because they were not on the highly skilled migrant programme on February 2007.

However the applications of applicants who do not meet the right to work criteria should only be considered if there are no suitable United Kingdom or European economic area applicants.

Paediatrics: Training

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what proportion of total training posts in paediatrics in England have been filled with junior doctors in training programmes for (a) paediatricians and (b) general practice; [154794]

(2) what proportion of paediatric training posts were unfilled on (a) 26 July and (b) 8 October 2007. [154795]

Ann Keen: The answer is as follows:

89 per cent. of posts in paediatrics have been filled as at 26 July 2007.

91 per cent. of posts in paediatrics have been filled as at 2 September 2007.

100 per cent. of posts in general practice have been filled.

Round two is still ongoing.

The proportion of paediatric training posts that will be unfilled at 8 October 2007 is not available yet.

Peterborough and Stamford Hospital NHS Foundation Trust: Agency Nurses

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on agency nurses providing temporary cover in the Peterborough and Stamford Hospital NHS Foundation Trust area in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [154762]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 8 October 2007]: Information on how much was spent on agency nurses at Peterborough hospital prior to the trust attaining foundation trust status are shown in the following table.

Non-NHS staff (agency, etc.) (by national health service classification) salaries and wages—nursing, midwifery and health visiting

Secure Psychiatric Units

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of whether there is sufficient capacity in existing regional medium secure units to meet the need for such places in each region; in which regions there is an assessed shortfall; what the extent is of the shortfall in each case; and what plans are in place to address the shortfall. [156082]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Data on capacity for medium secure services are not routinely collected by the Department. The Department works to support local commissioners, as it is the responsibility of local commissioners to assess service needs in their area and plan accordingly. A capacity review of high and medium secure services was completed in January 2006 in order to inform policy on this issue and to help support commissioners. This capacity review took into consideration historical utilisation, changing legislation (e.g. draft Mental Health Bill and public protection orders), court sentencing trends, prison transfers and the needs of different patient groups (e.g. women, learning disabled men, patients with dangerous and severe personality disorder and deaf patients).

The review concluded that the need for medium secure capacity was gradually rising and robust local commissioning plans were necessary to ensure that there was strategic planning on a regional basis to deliver additional medium secure capacity in a co-ordinated way and to ensure that commissioning delivered good value for money. As at January 2006 when the review took place, there were 29 national health service medium secure units providing around 1,972 beds, with a further 1,500 beds provided by the independent sector. This has now increased and there are 32 NHS medium secure units.

The capacity review set out three projections for increases in medium secure capacity, based on variations in trends. The low projections were the lowest capacity increase likely and the high projections were the highest capacity increase likely. The medium projections were the most likely and, in subsequent discussions with stakeholders, the medium projections were thought to be reasonable. An extract from the review with a breakdown of capacity and projections by catchment areas is shown in the following tables. In total, the medium projections in the capacity review predicted an increase in capacity of 614 beds for men and 85 beds for women between 2005-06 and 2010-11, so a total of 699 beds. The NHS is on course to exceed this projected increase in capacity in medium secure services, as long as outlined local plans are followed.

The NHS have been working on local commissioning plans to ensure strategic planning on a regional basis. These local commissioning plans are under constant review by local commissioners and are updated to take account of changing local circumstances.

Extract from the capacity review showing estimated projected capacity requirements for medium secure services:

Smoking: Public Houses

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the change in revenues of public houses in England since the introduction of the ban on smoking in public places; and if he will make a statement. [156172]

Dawn Primarolo: While it is still too early to make any definitive statement about the economic impact of the law which came into operation on 1 July 2007 in England, based on our regulatory impact assessment (RIA) we are not expecting a significant positive or negative impact on the industry.

The RIA is available in the Library and at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Policyandguidance/Healthandsocialcaretopics/Tobacco/DH_076227

Social Services: Per Capita Costs

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the spending per head was on social services in (a) Cornwall, (b) the South West and (c) England in each year since 1979. [156315]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: There would be disproportionate costs incurred to produce this information across the whole time period requested. The following table shows the average per capita social services spending from 2000-01 to 2005-06 for England, the South West and Cornwall.

	England total	South West	Cornwall
2000-01	222	182	167

Notes:
1. The table shows total net cost of social services per head of population, this is the total spend excluding capital charges minus income received from client contributions and other income which includes income from the national health service.
2. In 2003-04 the Supported People Grant was introduced which should be taken into consideration when making comparisons over time. The expenditure information is actual spend and has not been adjusted for inflation.

Teenage Pregnancy

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department is on course to meet the 2010 target for halving the conception rate of under 18s. [152182]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

2005 under-18 conception rate data—published by the Office for National Statistics in February 2007—showed that since the 1998 baseline year, the under-18 conception rate in England fell by 11.8 per cent., to its lowest level for over 20 years. The under-16 rate fell by 12.1 per cent. over the same period.

Notwithstanding these achievements, we need to see faster progress in order to achieve the challenging target of halving the under-18 conception rate by 2010. Consequently, we have issued guidance to local authorities and primary care trusts, setting out the key features of local strategies in areas where teenage conception rates have fallen fastest. All areas have been asked to review their strategies against this guidance, with a view to raising all areas' performance to the levels of the best. If all areas had performed as well as the top quartile, the national reduction would be 26 per cent.—more than twice the 11.8 per cent. reduction that has actually been achieved.

Transplant Surgery

Mr. Laxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps are being taken to improve the rate at which human organs become available for transplant. [154358]

Ann Keen: The Department launched 'Saving Lives, Valuing Donors: A Transplant Framework for England' in 2003 and the National Service Framework for Renal Services in 2004. These set out the Department's key aims for organ and tissue transplantation over the following 10 years. Government investment in hospital based funding has helped increase donor rates and an organ donor taskforce will report to Ministers in autumn 2007 on how organ donor rates can be further improved. Following the publication of the Chief Medical Officer's annual report in July, the taskforce will also examine the potential impact on organ donation of introducing an opt out or presumed consent scheme.

Warrington Hospital

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) outpatient appointments and (b) operations there were at Warrington hospital in each of the last five years. [147388]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information is not available in the format requested. The tables show the number of out-patient appointments and the number of finished consultant episodes with an operation at North Cheshire Hospitals NHS Trust.

Count of finished consultant episodes (FCEs) with an Operation (OPCS-4 codes between A01-X59 or and (operation code not known)) as reported by the North Cheshire Hospitals NHS Trust (RWW). Note that this excludes procedures performed as outpatients.

NHS Hospitals England

Data year	Count of FCEs with an operation
2001-02	40,895
2002-03	39,433
2003-04	38,578
2004-05	31,312
2005-06	30,684

Notes:
1. The NHS Information Centre has investigated with North West Strategic Health Authority and North Cheshire Hospitals NHS Trust the reason for the reported decrease in the number of FCEs with an operation. The main cause of this decrease is that between 2002-03 and 2004-05 the trust stopped recoding certain procedures as being performed in a day case setting and started recording them as being performed in outpatients. Information is not available centrally on total procedures performed in outpatients. Data reclassification issues are being picked up by the Information Centre and the Audit Commission. From April 2007 onwards the trust will revert to counting this activity as a day case.
2. Finished Consultant Episode (FCE)
An FCE is defined as a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Please note that the figures do not represent the number of patients, as a person may have more than one episode of care within the year.
3. Finished Consultant Episode (FCE) with an Operation
A count of FCEs with an operation is the number of episodes with at least one coded procedure field. Please note that more procedures are carried out than finished consultant episodes with an operation. For example, patients undergoing a cataract operation would tend to have at least two procedures—removal of the faulty lens and the fitting of a new one—counted in a single finished consultant episode.
4. Data Quality
Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS Trusts and Primary Care Trusts (PCTs) in England. The Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.
5. Ungrossed data
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).

Wheelchairs

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what representations he has received from wheelchair users groups in relation to proposed changes to wheelchair provision and other community equipment services; [155953]

(2) what steps the Government are taking to prepare for future demand for wheelchair provision; [155954]

(3) if he will make a statement on proposed changes to the provision of wheelchairs and other such equipment for the disabled, currently being considered. [155955]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Prime Minister launched the Transforming Community Equipment and Wheelchair Services Programme in June 2006 to work collaboratively with stakeholders to develop a radical new model for delivery of community equipment and wheelchair services in England, which has users and carers at its heart. The intention was to look at the two services in parallel, but this has not been feasible.

Two potential models were developed for wheelchair services. However, without robust data it was not possible to make recommendations for the way forward. This is of particular concern in view of the successive reports over the last 20 years which have consistently argued for modernisation and investment in the wheelchair services. A further data gathering exercise was agreed, this will report back to the Ministers in December 2007.

The programme has engaged with users, carers and organisations that represent them since the beginning. This continues through the user representative group and a user and carer questionnaire.

We have been working with individual wheelchair users and carers of people who use wheelchairs as well as representatives of:

Action for Kids;

Muscular Dystrophy Campaign;

Multiple Sclerosis Society;

Spinal Injuries Association;

Em Power;

Whiz-Kidz;

Limbless Association;

National Forum Wheelchair User Groups; and

Motor Neurone Disease Association.

The questionnaire offers users and carers an opportunity to comment on the chairs they currently have and make suggestions for change. It is available on the CSED website at:

www.csed.csip.org.uk/workstreams/transforming-community-equipment-wheelchair-services/wheelchair-services/wheelchair-services-user-questionnaire.html

and through the third sector organisations both through their publications and websites. Wheelchair services are also helping reach those users and carers who are unable to access the web.

The analysis of the questionnaires will continue until the end of November and the results will feed into the development of the business case.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departments: Aviation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent by his Department on (a) business and (b) first class flights in the last 12 months. [153286]

Edward Miliband: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my predecessor my right hon. Friend the Member for North-West Durham (Hilary Armstrong) to the hon. Member for Hertford and Stortford (Mr. Prisk) on 21 June 2007, Official Report, columns 2048-49W. Information relating to Ministers overseas travel for 2006-07 was published on 25 July 2007 and is available in the Libraries of the Houses for the reference of Members.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what the (a) purpose and (b) cost was of each payment by the Cabinet Office to Opinion Leader Research in 2005-06; [146862]

(2) what the (a) amount and (b) purpose was of each payment made by his Department to Opinion Leader Research in the last 12 months; [147031]

(3) pursuant to the answer of 13 June 2007, Official Report, column 1038W, how much his Department has paid to Opinion Leader Research since 1997. [147040]

Edward Miliband: The Cabinet Office made three payments to Opinion Leader Research in 2005-06; for £14,100, £15,098.02 and £32,900.

These payments were made by the Office of Public Sector Reform for the "Provision of services to deliver two Policy Collaborative events to collate views of victims of volume crime and gain an understanding of what victims of volume crime want from the criminal justice system and compare their perceptions of a 'quality service' with existing plans to reform the criminal justice system".

Since 1997, the Cabinet Office has made 17 payments to Opinion Leader Research at a total value of £194,000. All contracts were awarded following a competitively tendered process. None of these payments were made in the past 12 months.

Departments: Press

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) to which periodicals his Department subscribes; [153289]

(2) how much was spent by his Department on newspapers and magazines in the last 12 months; [153290]

(3) what magazines, newspapers and periodicals his Department subscribed to before 27 June; and which one his Department has subscribed to since that date. [153530]

Gillian Merron: The information requested is not held centrally and therefore is available only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Redundancy Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent by his Department on redundancy payments in the last 12 months. [153283]

Gillian Merron: The Cabinet Office has not had any redundancies in the last 12 months.

Departments: Taxis

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent by his Department on taxis in the last 12 months. [153294]

Gillian Merron: This information is only available at disproportionate cost.

All travel is undertaken in accordance with the Civil Service Management Code and the Ministerial Code.

Departments: Tribunals

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent by his Department on industrial tribunals in the last 12 months. [153288]

Gillian Merron: The Cabinet Office has not incurred any Industrial (Employment) Tribunal costs in the last 12 months.

Departments: Vacancies

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) of 2 July 2007, Official Report, columns 901-02W, on departments' vacancies, whether the Government Communication Network website previously listed on its public website jobs for Government communicators and other civil servants that were not open to the public. [153638]

Edward Miliband: The Government Communication Network website only ever listed jobs which were open to the public on the public part of the website. Vacancies which were only open to Government communicators and other civil servants were listed on the password protected part of the site—which was only open to civil servants. Therefore there has been no change to what job vacancies members of the public can see.

Emergencies: Facilities

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) bowsers and (b) portaloos the public sector has access to for utilising in a national emergency situation; whether there are plans to increase those numbers; and if he will make a statement. [154345]

Edward Miliband: The Public sector does not have access to a specific number of bowsers and portaloos but each water company holds a stock of emergency equipment. Mutual aid arrangements exist between water companies to provide bowsers and other equipment to a water company that is dealing with an emergency. These arrangements can be further augmented, if necessary, with equipment from the public and private sectors. Portaloos and other sanitary equipment can be sourced by a variety of means including local authorities and private contractors when necessary.

Capability in these areas can be further increased by requesting assistance through established mutual aid arrangements with EU partners.

The review announced by Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on 12 July will consider whether or not the existing arrangements for the provision of such items are adequate and make recommendations for improvement where necessary.

FutureBuilders England

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the cost was of redesigning the FutureBuilders logo. [154604]

Phil Hope: The redesign of the Futurebuilders logo cost £6,500. The redesign was part of a wider strategy by Futurebuilders England to improve brand awareness and understanding of the fund to its key audiences. It was launched by Futurebuilders England on 1 January 2007.

NHS: ICT

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will place in the Library all papers concerning the seminar at Downing Street in February 2002 to discuss the future of IT in the NHS. [155034]

Edward Miliband: It is not normal practice to place copies of the Prime Minister's internal working papers in the Library of the House.

Smith Institute

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what meetings Cabinet Office ministers have held with representatives of the Smith Institute since May 2005. [155628]

Edward Miliband: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 22 March 2007, Official Report, column 1100W.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Constitutional Treaty

12. Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the changes between the EU constitutional treaty and the proposed EU reform treaty are. [156135]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The constitutional treaty is now defunct. The Inter-Governmental Conference Mandate agreed by the June European Council states that

"The constitutional concept has been abandoned."

While all member states have moved away from the constitution, the UK has a specific treaty deal which means we have moved further than anyone else from the constitution.

15. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in negotiations in the intergovernmental conference on the proposed EU reform treaty. [156139]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The legal group producing the draft treaty finished their work on 3 October.

We believe that the UK red lines will be achieved and we are confident that we can persuade our European partners that this is the right deal for the UK and EU.

19. Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what Government policy is on the conduct of a national referendum on the proposed treaty changing the constitutional arrangements of the European Union; and if he will make a statement. [156144]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The UK has only ever held one national referendum, which was in 1975. We will seek parliamentary ratification of this Reform Treaty. In doing so we shall adopt a similar approach to that adopted by the Governments of Tony Blair, Sir John Major and Baroness Thatcher.

Portugal: British Citizens

13. Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he last met his Portuguese counterpart to discuss issues relating to British holiday-makers in that country. [156136]

Mr. Jim Murphy: UK Ministers have regular contacts with Portuguese counterparts to discuss a range of issues.

Foreign and Commonwealth Office Ministers also discuss consular specific cases with Portuguese Ministers when necessary.

Iran

14. Sir Malcolm Rifkind: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the Iranian nuclear programme. [156137]

David Miliband: I refer the right hon. and learned Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for North Essex (Mr. Jenkin) today (UIN 156131).

Iraq

16. Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in Iraq. [156140]

Dr. Howells: Political progress, particularly on national reconciliation, is critical to improving the situation in Iraq. I welcome the agreements reached at the leaders' conference in Baghdad in August and the emphasis Prime Minister Maliki gave to reconciliation in his recent speech at the UN General Assembly. We are urging the Iraqis to maintain positive momentum and ensure practical follow-up.

Tibet

17. Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he is taking to ensure journalists have free access to Tibet. [156141]

Meg Munn: We welcome the regulations implemented by the Chinese Government on 1 January to relax restrictions on foreign journalists in China. At the last round of the UK-China Human Rights Dialogue, the Chinese Government confirmed the regulations applied in Tibet. We are concerned, however, that like all visitors to Tibet, journalists must still seek permission to enter the region from the local authorities and will continue to raise this with China.

Zimbabwe

18. Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the political situation in Zimbabwe. [156142]

Meg Munn: The situation in Zimbabwe is appalling. That is why my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister is clear he will not attend an EU-Africa summit in Europe with President Mugabe. That is also why we are working for change by giving up to £40 million in humanitarian aid a year; maintaining international pressure on the regime; and supporting those working in Zimbabwe for democratic change.

Middle East Peace Process

20. Dr. Palmer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the Middle East peace process. [156145]

Dr. Howells: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for South Staffordshire (Sir Patrick Cormack) today (UIN156128).

21. Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the progress made in the Middle East peace process. [156146]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for South Staffordshire (Sir Patrick Cormack) today (UIN156128).

UK and US Relations

22. Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the US Administration on the UK's special relationship with the US. [156147]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has a regular dialogue with his American counterpart. As both my right hon. Friends the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary have said repeatedly, our relationship with the United States will continue to be the single most important bilateral relationship for the United Kingdom. Our discussions with the US Administration take place within this very clear context.

Afghanistan: Drugs

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what assessment the Government have made of heroin and poppy production in areas of Afghanistan (a) not controlled by the Taliban and (b) under the control of the Allies; [156014]

(2) what recent assessment the Government have made of poppy and heroin production from the areas of Afghanistan under the control of the Taliban. [156015]

Dr. Howells: The Government do not carry out independent assessments of the heroin and poppy production in Afghanistan. Poppy cultivation figures are measured by the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime. The figures do not take into account the control of land on which poppy is cultivated. Nor has there been a study defining locations of heroin laboratories on land inside or outside of government control. But there is a clear link between poppy cultivation and insecurity, shown by the fact that over 75 per cent. cultivation takes place in the least secure southern provinces. In the more secure central and northern regions, cultivation generally appears to be decreasing or stabilising. The number of "poppy free provinces" has increased from six in 2006 to 13 in 2007, demonstrating that where the integrated approach set out in the government of Afghanistan's national drug control strategy can be brought to bear, it is delivering results.

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs who represented the UK at the conference held in Afghanistan on 29 August 2007 on counternarcotics; whether there will be any change in the ISAF counternarcotic strategy as a result of the conference; and if he will make a statement. [156431]

Dr. Howells: The UK was represented at the 3rd National Counter Narcotics Conference in Kabul by our ambassador in Afghanistan, Sir Sherard Cowper-Coles.

The International Security Assistance Force is providing increasing support to the Afghan Counter Narcotics effort. Recently this has included help with this year's pre-planting campaign and support to Afghan law enforcement and interdiction operations.

Afghanistan: Politics and Government

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on associations between members of the Afghanistan parliament and al-Qaeda. [156013]

Dr. Howells: We have not received any reports and are not aware of any associations between members of the Afghan parliament and al-Qaeda.

Bermuda Housing Corporation

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the outcome of the Metropolitan Police inquiry initiated by John Verveker, Governor of Bermuda, into the leak of Bermuda police documents relating to the Bermuda Housing Corporation. [155816]

Meg Munn: Two senior officers (one recently retired) from Kent Constabulary visited Bermuda in June 2007, at the request of the Commissioner of Police, to review the conduct of the Bermuda Police Service investigation into the leak of confidential police files. They concluded that the investigation was being managed in a competent and professional manner.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will appoint a senior United Kingdom police officer to conduct an inquiry into allegations of impropriety in the conduct of the Bermuda Housing Corporation's affairs. [155817]

Meg Munn: These allegations were fully investigated at the time by the appropriate authorities in Bermuda with support from New Scotland Yard.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the findings of the fraud squad investigation concluded in August 2004 into the Bermuda Housing Corporation. [155822]

Meg Munn: A thorough investigation, assisted by officers from New Scotland Yard, resulted in criminal proceedings leading to a custodial sentence.

Bermuda: Armed Forces

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent inspection of the Royal Bermuda Regiment has been conducted to ensure that deficiencies identified in the report submitted in November 2005 following the inspection conducted by Colonel Baxter have been remedied and his recommendations implemented; and if he will make a statement. [155804]

Meg Munn: Colonel Fairclough, Assistant Military Attache at our embassy in Washington, assessed the Bermuda Regiment's capability in November 2006. Good progress has been made on implementing recommendations from Colonel Baxter with regard to training and in particular on improved training for junior commanders. In terms of equipment replacement—namely vehicles, communications, weapons and boats—bids for funding have been submitted to the Bermuda government and are to be addressed over a five-year period.

Bermuda: Police

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what response the Governor of Bermuda has made to the request of Senator Burch, Minister of Public Safety, on 14 August 2007 that he help address Bermuda's policing difficulties; and if he will make a statement. [156332]

Meg Munn: Under the Bermuda Constitution, the Governor has overall responsibility for the police. He has made it clear on several occasions that there will be no change in this. The Governor discusses policing issues on a regular basis with both the Premier and the Minister of Public Safety.

Bermuda: Territorial Waters

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what financial contribution has been made by the Government towards the cost of law enforcement and national security in and around the territorial waters of Bermuda; and if he will make a statement. [156334]

Meg Munn: The security of the UK Overseas Territories is the responsibility of the Government. Consequently, Bermuda benefits from assistance provided by Regional Law Enforcement and Maritime Training Advisers funded by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. Bermuda is also visited on a regular basis by Royal Navy ships. The Government of Bermuda, however, meets the cost of its own law enforcement, including within its territorial waters.

British Council: Information Officers

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many press officers are employed by the British Council. [154634]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The British Council has two press officers working in London. In addition there are two members of staff who spend half their time on press office work.

In most of the 110 countries where the British Council operates, there is a member of staff who has responsibility for press office work although, particularly in smaller operations, this only forms part of their duties.

British Overseas Territories

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on which dates over the past three years governors of overseas territories who were retiring from the Diplomatic Service have despatched valedictory e-grams or telegrams; and if he will make a statement. [155809]

Meg Munn: The Governors of the British Virgin Islands, the Cayman Islands and the Falkland Islands have retired from the Diplomatic Service in the past three years. Their valedictory e-grams were despatched on 26 October 2005, 7 April 2006 and 15 August 2006.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the GDP per head of population is in (a) pounds sterling and (b) US dollars of each of the UK overseas territories, listed in descending order of population size. [155812]

Meg Munn: Gross domestic product (GDP) per head calculations rely on information about economic activity (GDP) and population. All GDP calculations are made by the overseas territories (OTs), who employ either specialised statisticians or analysts. The accuracy of GDP depends on the analytical input that such small offices are able to devote to calculating it. Population data are based on a census, which is usually carried out every few years, as in the United Kingdom. Population estimates have to be made for intermediate years.

Therefore GDP per capita figures will vary in accuracy, and it is not unusual for estimates to be revised after they have been published. The varying populations of the OTs compound this—a small change in population can have a bigger effect on GDP per capita.

The following table lists the OTs best estimates of GDP per capita for 2005 (or 2004 in the case of the Falkland Islands).

	Population	GDP per head (sterling)	GDP per head ($US)
Bermuda	63,571	42,636	76,403
Cayman Islands	48,353	27,179	48,704
Turks and Caicos Islands	30,602	8,752	15,683
Gibraltar	28,779	20,511	36,756
British Virgin Islands	27,000	21,205	38,000
Anguilla	13,638	5,419	9,711
Montserrat	4,785	4,295	7,696
St. Helena	4,100	3,137	5,622
Falkland Islands	2,955	25,350	46,124
Pitcairn Islands	45	1,889	3,385

These figures are based on £/$US exchange rate at 1 July in the relevant year. The St. Helena figure does not include the dependencies of Ascension Island and Tristan da Cunha, for which data are not available.

The other OTs—British Indian Ocean Territory, South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands, Sovereign Base areas on Cyprus, and the British Antarctic Territory—have no settled populations.

Burma

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the UN Secretary-General regarding Burma. [155719]

Meg Munn: We have kept in regular contact with the UN Secretary-General and his staff during the recent events in Burma. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister wrote to the UN Secretary-General on 25 September and spoke to him on 26 September. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed Burma with the UN Secretary-General on 28 September.

Burma: Armed Forces

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what estimate the UK Government have made of the number of forcibly conscripted child soldiers in the Burma Army; and what reports he has received on the conditions in which they are held; [155672]

(2) what steps he has taken to raise the issue of the forced conscription of child soldiers with the Burmese regime. [155673]

Meg Munn: We receive regular reports about forced recruitment and the use and ill treatment of child soldiers in Burma. We are unable to estimate the number of forcibly recruited soldiers.

On 2 October, the Human Rights Council (HRC) passed a resolution sponsored by the EU, with the strong support of the UK, which expressed deep concern about the situation in Burma. In our statement to the HRC, we drew attention to the regime's persistent violations of human rights, including the use of child soldiers.

We have repeatedly raised the issue with the Burmese regime. My right hon. Friend the Member for Makerfield (Mr. McCartney), the then Minister for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs, raised our concerns with the Burmese Foreign Minister in Hamburg on 28 May.

Our ambassador in Rangoon takes every opportunity to raise human rights with the regime, most recently when he met the Burmese Deputy Foreign Minister and the Burmese Minister for Labour on 25 September.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the UN Special Representative for Children and Armed Conflict following his visit to Burma. [155674]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no discussions with the UN Special Representative for Children and Armed Conflict, Ms Coomaraswamy, following her visit to Burma. However, Ms Coomaraswamy did meet our ambassador in Rangoon during her visit.

Burma: Defence Equipment

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the sale of military helicopters to Burma by India containing parts manufactured or designed by (a) EU and (b) UK companies. [154330]

Meg Munn: We are aware of the report published by non-governmental organisations saying that the Indian Government is planning to transfer advanced light helicopters to Burma.

On 27 July, the EU Troika in New Delhi delivered a demarche on the Indian Government about the reported transfer of the helicopters to Burma. They reminded the Indian Government of the long-standing common position on Burma, which includes an arms embargo, and the EU's deep concern about the situation there. The Indian Government reiterated that no such deal was under consideration.

Burma: Politics and Government

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the National Convention and constitution drafting process in Burma. [155717]

Meg Munn: We have repeatedly called on the regime to make progress towards genuine national reconciliation by involving all political and ethnic groups in the National Convention process. Many of these groups did not participate in the National Convention and have not been consulted on the constitutional drafting process. We therefore believe the process lacks all credibility.

Burma: Religious Freedom

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the UN Special Rapporteur for Freedom of Religion and Belief on violations of religious freedom against Christians, Muslims and Buddhists in Burma. [155718]

Meg Munn: There are severe restrictions on the freedom of all religions in Burma, including towards members of the majority Buddhist faith, particularly if they are perceived as anti-government. We condemn all instances where individuals face persecution or discrimination because of their faith or belief, wherever they happen and whatever the religion of the individual or group concerned.

We have had no discussions with the UN Special Rapporteur for Freedom of Religion and Belief about Burma.

We regularly raise our concerns about human rights in Burma with the regime and in international forums. The UN Secretary-General discussed Burma with my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 26 September and my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary on 28 September.

On 2 October, the Human Rights Council (HRC) passed a strongly worded resolution sponsored by the EU, with the full support of the UK, which expressed deep concern about the situation in Burma. In our statement to the HRC, we drew attention to the regime's violations, including restrictions on the freedom of religion.

Chad

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he had with his European counterparts on a European Union military mission to Chad during the meeting of Foreign Ministers in Viana do Castelo, Portugal, 7 to 8 September 2007; and if he will make a statement. [156603]

Meg Munn: The EU General Affairs and External Relations Council on 23 July approved a European Security and Defence Policy mission to Chad as a bridging force until the UN itself is able to deploy a peacekeeping mission there. The UK strongly endorsed this proposed deployment. The meeting of Foreign Ministers in Viana do Castelo, Portugal, on 7 to 8 September, discussed the implementation of this decision.

On 25 September the UK co-sponsored UN Security Council Resolution 1778, which authorised the deployment of an EU military mission to Chad and the Central African Republic and approved a UN multi-dimensional mission to operate in co-operation with the EU force. The UK hopes that both the EU mission and the UN multi-dimensional mission will be able to deploy before the end of the year.

Chad: Internally Displaced Persons

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he has taken to ensure that the EU peacekeeping force in Chad will have a mandate to protect internally displaced people within Chad as well as refugees from Darfur; and if he will make a statement. [153880]

Meg Munn: On 25 September the UK co-sponsored UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1778, which authorises the deployment of a European Security and Defence Policy (ESDP) force to Chad and the Central African Republic and approves a UN multi-dimensional mission to operate in co-operation with the ESDP force.

As stated in UNSCR 1778, the ESDP force's 12 month mandate is to contribute to protecting refugees and displaced persons in eastern Chad, facilitate the delivery of humanitarian aid and contribute to protecting the UN operation. The UN operation is intended to build the capacity of the Chadian police to protect refugees from Darfur and the Central African Republic and internally displaced persons and help create a more secure environment in eastern Chad. The overall aim of the joint operation is to create the conditions necessary for voluntary, secure and sustainable return of refugees and internally displaced persons.

China: Human Rights

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the Government will urge the Chinese Government to release unconditionally Pastor Hua Huiqi and his mother Ms Shuang Shuying from detention. [154406]

Meg Munn: Pastor Hua Huiqi was released in July this year after serving his six-month sentence. We raised the case of Shuang Shuying, through the EU, at the most recent round of the EU-China Human Rights Dialogue, which was held in Berlin in May. We continue to monitor her case.

China: Sudan

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what work is being undertaken with the People's Republic of China to combat the conflict in Darfur. [155941]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friends the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary have asked their Chinese counterparts to use their influence in Sudan in support of the UN and AfricanUnion efforts to resolve the Darfur conflict, and to support implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement between north and south Sudan. My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, reinforced this message during his visit to China on 28-29 August when he said that

"we want China to be a major international player in the world; there is no alternative for the world but to have a responsible China sitting at the global table, helping to solve global issues".

We are working with Chinese officials on preparations for the peace talks for Darfur planned to start on 27 October and on early recovery efforts in Darfur.

Defence Attache Network

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect on the UK's relationship with those countries affected by the review of the Defence Attache Network; and what responses he has received from such countries on the review. [155742]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Government continue to place a high value on their international defence relations. In announcing the results of the Defence Attaché review, my right hon. Friend the Defence Secretary made clear in his written ministerial statement on 17 September 2007, Official Report, column 125WS our belief that this rebalancing of resources, which involves strengthening our representation in some countries and reducing it in others, including through non-resident accreditation, will ensure a network which is effective and relevant to our international interests. We have not received any formal responses from countries affected by this review.

Departments: Accountancy

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what accounts directions were issued by his Department in financial year (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [156679]

Mr. Jim Murphy: No accounts directions were issued by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in these financial years.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which private consultancy firms (a) his Department and (b) agencies which report to his Department engaged in each of the last three years; which programmes or projects each firm worked on; and what the approximate cost to the Department or agency concerned was of each engagement. [155869]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Annual expenditure on external consultants is published in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Department's annual reports, copies of which have been placed in the Library of the House. The two most recent annual reports also contain details of expenditure on the top five consultancy suppliers. The vast majority of work undertaken for the FCO by consultants is associated with its major Information Communication Technology and Estate construction programmes.

I also refer the hon. Member to the reply my right hon. Friend the Member for Ashfield (Mr. Hoon), the then Minister for Europe gave to the right hon. Member for Maidenhead (Mrs. May) on 24 May 2007, Official Report, column 1474W and the reply my right hon. Friend the Member for Derby, South (Margaret Beckett), the then Foreign Secretary gave to my right hon. Friend the Member for Leicester, East (Keith Vaz) on 16 May 2006, Official Report, columns 893-94W.

Diplomatic Relations: Members

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) hon. Members and (b) peers have been appointed special envoys to other nations since 1997. [156125]

Dr. Howells: Special representatives are appointed to show commitment and to drive progress on particular issues, or to gain access which would not otherwise be forthcoming. No central record of such appointments since 1997 is held. However, I understand that five right hon. and hon. Members and four Peers have been appointed as either special representatives or special envoys to other nations since 1997.

Entry Clearances

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many visa application processing centres have been outsourced; and what proportion of such applications are dealt with by such centres. [156486]

Dr. Howells: As at the end of September 2007, there were 85 outsourced Visa Application Centres. In September 2007, 57 per cent. of global UK visa applications were received and processed in Visa Application Centres.

EU Reform: Armed Forces

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment has been made of the likely impact of the EU Reform Treaty on UK military operations. [154255]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The current arrangements for UK military operations will not be affected by the EU Reform Treaty. The Treaty maintains the inter-governmental nature of the European Security and Defence Policy. It will not affect the UK's ability to undertake military operations, whether national or in a multilateral framework. The UK will continue to make forces available for EU-led operations on a voluntary and case-by-case basis. The launch of any EU operation requires unanimity among member states, therefore UK consent and any decision to deploy UK troops for an EU-led operation rests with the Government.

EU Reform: Climate Change

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of how changes to qualified majority voting in the European reform treaty would affect the ability of the UK and the EU to promote the environment and fight climate change. [156138]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Energy policy will move to qualified majority voting (QMV) in the reform treaty, making it easier to liberalise energy markets, and improve energy security. More open markets will promote energy efficiency and allow consumers greater choice—which should reward green technologies.

This will make it easier to achieve targets agreed at the spring European Council.

Energy is an example of where the reform treaty moves to QMV can unlock decision-making in Britain's interests.

EU Reform: Treaties

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the UK Government will seek any modifications to the revised European Constitution. [154586]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to him on 10 September 2007, Official Report, column 2006W.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs in how many policy areas vetoes will be given up by the UK if the constitutional treaty comes into force; and what those areas are. [156473]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Shipley (Philip Davies) on 26 July 2007, Official Report, columns 1468-69W.

European Union: UK Delegation

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs for what reasons the office of the UK Permanent Representative to the EU, Strasbourg and UK Delegation to the Council of Europe Strasbourg do not share offices; and what the (a) cost of each office, (b) numbers of staff in each office and (c) floor space of each office was in the latest period for which figures are available. [156009]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The UK Permanent Representation to the EU does not have an office in Strasbourg. The office space used by UK officials is owned by the European Parliament and this is made available to the UK at no cost.

The UK Delegation to the Council of Europe occupies a building of 327 square metres in a residential area of Strasbourg. The office staff consists of five UK based staff and three locally recruited full-time staff plus one part time. The rental of the office in financial year (FY) 2006-07 was £31,181. The office running costs (utilities, rates, repairs and refurbishments) were £33,199 in FY 2006-07.

Iraq: Casualties

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many Iraqi (a) child and (b) adult civilian casualties there have been since March 2003. [156671]

Dr. Howells: The Government do not collate figures for civilian casualties in Iraq. The Government of Iraq is best placed to monitor the numbers of Iraqi civilian casualties, but we continue to believe that there are no comprehensive or reliable figures for deaths since March 2003 as estimates vary according to the method of collection.

Iraq: Oil

Michael Jabez Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the UK Government have made to the Iraqi government on the proposed Iraqi oil law; what advice has been given in relation to the partners with whom the Iraqi government should deal and the terms on which it should do so; and if he will make a statement. [156703]

Dr. Howells: We have encouraged the Iraqi government to consider a full range of options in formulating the hydrocarbons law and to consult widely. We have made no representations on specific structures or production contracts nor have we provided advice on whom the Iraqi government should deal with.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether (a) coalition forces and (b) the international community are to be involved in the investigation by the Iraqi authorities into neglect and abuse of children in Iraqi orphanages and other institutions; and if he will make a statement. [156086]

Dr. Howells: The Government are aware of US military reports in June that they discovered a number of abused and neglected children at an Iraqi orphanage in Baghdad. In response to these reports, the Iraqi Prime Minister announced an Iraqi Government investigation into the conditions at the orphanage. The UK has had no direct involvement in this investigation, nor are we aware of direct coalition or wider international involvement.

The UK is committed to supporting the Government of Iraq in its efforts to strengthen respect for human rights, with a particular focus on protecting the rights of the most vulnerable groups in society. In a country emerging from over three decades of dictatorship and which currently faces continued violence, this process will take time. We are working with the Government of Iraq and international partners to develop the infrastructure essential for promoting and protecting human rights, including a legislative framework and oversight bodies as well as the judiciary, courts, and independent civil society organisations. This will help ensure that the human rights of all Iraqis, including vulnerable groups such as women, children and minorities, are protected in the future.

Irian Jaya

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what steps he is taking to facilitate dialogue between the Indonesian government and representatives of the West Papuan Freedom Movement; [156434]

(2) what assessment he has made of the prison conditions of West Papua independence campaigners, with particular reference to (a) Filep Karma and (b) Yusak Pakage; [156459]

(3) what recent assessment he has made of the situation in West Papua; [156466]

(4) what representations he has made to the Government of Indonesia on the humanitarian situation in West Papua; [156467]

(5) what recent discussions he has had with the British Embassy in Jakarta on the situation in West Papua; [156468]

(6) what discussions he has had with the UN Special Representative, Hina Jilani, following her recent visit to West Papua; and what recent reports he has received from the UK Mission to the UN following the visit; [156469]

(7) what assessment he has made of the situation for environmental activists in West Papua. [156471]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not made representations about Papua to the Government of Indonesia.

Our embassy in Jakarta regularly discusses Papua with the Indonesian authorities and pushes for greater EU engagement on human rights issues including those related to Papua. The human rights situation in Indonesia has improved considerably in recent years and we assess that President Yudhoyono is sincere in his attempts to push through reforms, including in the security sector. The current peace process in Aceh is an indication of his willingness to be flexible in trying to address some of the long-running conflicts in Indonesia, and success here will make it easier for him to address the Papuan question effectively.

We believe that the best way to resolve the complex issues in Papua is through promoting peaceful dialogue between Papuan groups and the Indonesian government. We are in contact with Papuan activist groups in the UK and encourage dialogue between them and the Government of Indonesia.

We are not aware of any specific issues concerning environmental activists in Papua.

Officials from our embassy in Jakarta have raised the cases of Filip Karma and Yusak Pakage with the Indonesian Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Their defence lawyer told embassy officials that prison conditions were adequate and the two men were treated reasonably.

We have urged the Government of Indonesia to uphold the rights guaranteed through the International Conventions on Civil and Political Rights and Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, ratified by Indonesia in September 2005.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary is aware of the visit to Indonesia by UN Special Representative, Hina Jilani, but has had no direct discussion with her on the issue of Papua. Ms Jilani has received no reports from the UK Mission to the UN following her visit.

The UK, with our EU partners, is working towards greater engagement with the Indonesian government in support of human rights defenders. The EU presidency is in the process of discussing the EU Guidelines on Human Rights Defenders with the Indonesian Ministry of Foreign Affairs and hopes to work with them on this important issue in the near future.

North Korea: Political Prisoners

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will hold discussions with his North Korean counterpart on prisoners being held in prison camps for their (a) political and (b) religious beliefs. [155975]

Meg Munn: Foreign and Commonwealth Office Ministers and officials raise human rights issues—including arbitrary detention of prisoners for political and/or religious reasons—with members of the North Korean government at every reasonable opportunity. We do so through our embassy in Pyongyang and through contact with the North Korean embassy in London, as well as through the EU and UN.

We and EU partners have also been instrumental in creating—and retaining—the position of UN Special Rapporteur on Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK) human rights, and have sponsored a number of UN resolutions calling on the North Korean government to honour its UN commitments on human rights. The UN has also lobbied the government on specific individuals' cases.

The Government will continue to press the North Korean authorities on human rights abuses at every opportunity, urging them in particular to cooperate with UN mechanisms and to allow international monitors access to the country to verify or disprove reports of human rights abuses. It is deeply frustrating that the DPRK government has not responded to these requests.

Northern Cyprus

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many official visits by members of the British High Commission in Cyprus to northern Cyprus were made in each of the last three years; and what reports were received by the Department in London following each such visit. [156207]

Mr. Jim Murphy: It would incur disproportionate cost to collate the information requested by my hon. Friend on the number of official visits from staff at our High Commission in Nicosia to northern Cyprus. However, the High Commission's operation in Cyprus covers the whole territory of the Republic of Cyprus, providing services and engaging with Cypriots on both sides of the Green Line on a daily basis. Reports of their discussions are reported to the Department as necessary.

Northern Cyprus: Churches

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when a senior official from the British high commission in Cyprus last visited the Greek Cypriot churches and cemeteries in the villages of Patriki and Ayios Theodoros in the Karpas Peninsula; what reports were made and to whom after the last such visit; if he will make it his policy for such a visit to be conducted on a regular basis and reports published; and if he will make a statement. [156209]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Our high commissioner in Nicosia last visited the Greek Cypriot community in the Karpas region on 22 June and reported to the Department. This included visiting the church in Ayios Theodoros and was part of a regular pattern of visits which supplement the UN's humanitarian and monitoring activity. Since the opening of the Green Line in April 2003, Greek Cypriots resident in the south have also been able to travel to the area.

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what responsibilities the British Government have as one of the guarantor powers for Cyprus to seek to ensure the preservation of churches and cemeteries that belong to the Greek Cypriot community in northern Cyprus; and if he will make a statement. [156210]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Treaty of Guarantee only relates to the independence, territorial integrity and security of the Republic of Cyprus. However, we do call on the Turkish Cypriots to show sensitivity to Greek Cypriot churches and cemeteries in the north of Cyprus. Our high commissioner in Nicosia visited the Karpas region on 22 June and raised such issues with his Turkish Cypriot interlocutors.

Northern Cyprus: Property

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on the advice given to British citizens seeking to purchase a property in northern Cyprus; what steps the Government have taken to promulgate that advice; and if he will make a statement. [156202]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Through Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Travel Advice, the Government offers comprehensive guidance on the risks involved in purchasing property in northern Cyprus. This advice is regularly updated to reflect developments. We also provide advice over the phone to members of the public calling both the FCO and our High Commission in Nicosia.

We believe that the difficult and complex issue of property is only likely to be fully resolved in the context of a comprehensive settlement and we urge both sides to engage constructively with the United Nations to enable settlement negotiations to start as soon as possible. In our contacts with the Turkish Cypriot leadership, we recognise the Turkish Cypriots' need for economic development in support of reunification. But we urge them to ensure that any property development which does take place does so in a manner that is both environmentally sustainable and does not complicate an eventual solution.

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of properties (a) built and (b) under construction by property developers in northern Cyprus in each of the last five years which are available for purchase. [156204]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Government have not estimated the number of properties which have been built or which are under construction in northern Cyprus. However, significant property development in northern Cyprus has taken place over the last five years resulting in large numbers of new properties being built. We believe that the difficult and complex issue of property is only likely to be fully resolved in the context of a comprehensive settlement and we urge both sides to engage constructively with the United Nations to enable settlement negotiations to start as soon as possible. In our contacts with the Turkish Cypriot leadership, we recognise the Turkish Cypriots' need for economic development in support of reunification. But we urge them to ensure that any property development which does take place does so in a manner that is both environmentally sustainable and does not complicate an eventual solution.

Occupied Territories: Peace Negotiations

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the likely effectiveness of the Mecca agreement as a basis for peace between Israel and the Palestinians following the break down of the Palestinian Unity Government. [156344]

Dr. Howells: The Mecca agreement of 9 February 2007, was drawn up by Palestinian parties to end their political deadlock. The outcomes of the agreement were:

cessation of intra-Palestinian violence;

formation of a National Unity government;

reformation of the Palestine Liberation Organisation; and the need for political co-operation within the laws of the Palestinian National Authority.

The agreement was focused on intra-Palestinian relations and as such has no direct impact on Israeli-Palestinians relations. However, we welcome any progress towards a negotiated, lasting solution.

Pakistan: Taliban

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he is holding with the Pakistan Government to co-ordinate border control between Pakistan and Afghanistan to stop Taliban activists entering Afghanistan. [156297]

Dr. Howells: Afghanistan-Pakistan border security issues feature prominently in our dialogue with the Government of Pakistan at both ministerial and official levels. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary last raised the subject with Pakistan Foreign Minister Kasuri in Islamabad on 26 July.

Russia: CFE Treaty

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the reasons for Russia's suspension of its obligations under the Conventional Forces in Europe Treaty; and if he will make a statement. [153754]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 8 October 2007]: With North Atlantic Treaty Organisation Allies, we have noted Russia's statement of its intention to suspend its obligations under the Treaty on Conventional Armed Forces in Europe (CFE treaty) from 12 December. We would regret any threat to the CFE regime from such unilateral action. We believe the concerns expressed by Russia would be addressed by entry into force of the adapted CFE treaty. We are pursuing constructive proposals for parallel action by Allies and Russia to overcome the outstanding issues related to ratification of that adapted treaty.

Sri Lanka

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he next plans to meet (a) the President and (b) the Prime Minister of Sri Lanka. [155836]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has no current plans to meet the President or Prime Minster of Sri Lanka. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister may have an opportunity to meet President Rajapakse or Prime Minister Wickramanayake at the Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting in Kampala, Uganda in November.

Sri Lanka: Human Rights

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Sri Lankan Government regarding human rights abuses in Sri Lanka. [155837]

Dr. Howells: We raise human rights issues regularly in our contact with the Government of Sri Lanka. Most recently, my noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, expressed our concern on 27 September during a bilateral meeting with the Sri Lankan Minister for Foreign Affairs, Rohitha Bogollagama, in the margins of the UN General Assembly.

The situation in Sri Lanka was also highlighted by the UK and the EU at the 6th Human Rights Council in September. We look forward to the report of the visit to Sri Lanka by Louise Arbour, UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, which is due to take place later this month.

Sudan: Asylum

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of Ethiopian and Eritrean asylum seekers and refugees at risk of being forcibly returned to their country of origin from Sudan following their detention in Khartoum in July. [153879]

Meg Munn: Amnesty International (AI) reported on 20 July the arrest and risk of forcible return of Ethiopian and Eritrean asylum seekers in Sudan. According to AI, many of those detained could be asylum seekers or recognised refugees.

The UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) has been seeking access to, and intervene on the behalf of, refugees who have been detained by the Sudanese authorities. Some of these refugees were handed over to the Commissioner for Refugees in August, but 25 Ethiopians and Eritreans were reportedly sentenced to deportation and removed before UNHCR had a chance to appeal.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the treatment of refugees in Sudan, in particular those from Eritrea. [154565]

Meg Munn: According to reports from the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), refugees arriving in Sudan undergo a refugee status determination process at one of the recognised refugee camps near Kassala in the border area with Eritrea. Refugees should remain in the camps and are not normally granted the right to travel from a designated area.

Sudanese law enforcement bodies carry out periodic round-ups of migrant workers whom they deport, although some of them have recognised refugee status. UNHCR has a legal team to attend cases where recognised refugees have been arrested.

Some of these refugees were handed over to the Commissioner for Refugees in August, but 25 Ethiopians and Eritreans were reportedly sentenced to deportation and removed before UNHCR had a chance to appeal.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the government of Sudan about (a) the treatment of refugees and (b) abiding by UNHCR protocols and commitments. [154566]

Meg Munn: Ministers have not discussed the treatment of refugees with the government of Sudan.

However, officials from our embassy in Khartoum have raised the status of refugees in Sudan with the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) to whom we give strong support. As a result of UNHCR's lobbying, the government of Sudan has set up a committee to revise domestic legislation on asylum. We continue to monitor the progress of asylum law reform through UNHCR.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received that the government of Sudan has in the past month begun to move to return Eritrean refugees. [154568]

Meg Munn: The UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) in Sudan reported in August that Ethiopians and Eritreans were arrested and detained in Khartoum and various towns in eastern Sudan and threatened with expulsion.

As a result of legal assistance from UNHCR, several individuals were handed over to UNHCR to determine their refugee status. But 25 Eritreans and Ethiopians were sentenced to deportation, which was carried out before UNHCR could intervene.

The UK supports UNHCR to ensure refugees are afforded protection and treated equitably in their countries of refuge according to international human rights law.

Sudan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what financial and other support he is making available to resolve the problems in Darfur. [155863]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has made resolution of the Darfur conflict a priority for the Government. In his joint initiative with French President Sarkozy, he offered further development assistance dependent on progress on security, cessation of hostilities, political process and humanitarian access.

Meanwhile, the UK is helping diplomatically, politically and financially.

The UK co-sponsored UN Security Council Resolution 1769, which mandates the African Union (AU)/UN peacekeeping mission (UNAMID) for Darfur. UNAMID costs will be met through UN assessed contributions. The UK has committed £73 million to support the AU Mission (AMIS) in Darfur since it deployed in July 2004.

To support the political process, the UK has committed £2 million of funding since July 2006 to the AMIS Information Advisory Team which will support communication activities for the peace talks. We will also provide financial and technical support to the AU-UN Joint Mediation Support Team who are leading the peace process.

The UK, through the Department for International Development (DFID), is working with UN, non-governmental organisations (NGOs) and other partners to resource community-level peace and confidence-building activities to complement the political process. The UK has committed £2.18 million to a UN programme to address livelihoods and environmental challenges—key drivers of the conflict.

Finally, DFID's programme makes the UK the second largest bilateral donor to Sudan, spending some £145 million in humanitarian funding in Darfur since the start of the crisis in 2003. We also have a bilateral programme with NGOs (£12 million per annum) to provide water, sanitation and health care to some of the four million people in need.

Sudan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the African Union and UN have taken to ensure that rebel groups in Darfur receive training to develop the skills required to take part in peace process negotiations. [153881]

Meg Munn: The African Union-UN Joint Mediation Support Team (JMST) has developed a mediation plan and is appointing mediators who will support rebel groups in negotiations.

The UK and international partners are supporting the JMST's preparations for negotiations. The UK has given the JMST papers on lessons learned from previous peace talks, including the Comprehensive Peace Agreement security negotiations, and has recommended mediation experts.

Sudan: Politics and Government

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government have taken to ensure participation of the people of eastern Sudan in the national executive, legislature, judiciary organs, civil service and other institutions and commissions at both national and state levels in accordance with Chapter 1 of the Eastern Sudan Peace Agreement; and what progress has been made in this regard. [153882]

Meg Munn: The government of Sudan has appointed Eastern Front (EF) representatives to posts including an assistant to the President, a presidential adviser and a Minister of State. The EF's candidates took up their positions in August. In June 2006, eight government members of the National Parliament resigned to make way for the EF Members of Parliament. EF representatives have also been appointed to state level governments both in the east and in Khartoum state.

The Civil Service Commission called for by the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA) was only formed in August this year. The EF have not yet provided nominations to this and other CPA Commissions.

Our embassy in Khartoum discussed implementation of the Eastern Sudan Peace Agreement (ESPA) with assistant to the President ,Musa Muhammad Ahmad of the EF, on 1 October. They made clear our support for the ESPA and the need to see both sides fully to implement its provisions, including those on power-sharing.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of whether the implementation of the Eastern Sudan Peace Agreement has ensured transparency in appropriate sharing of financial resources across all states through the fiscal and financial allocation and monitoring commission. [153883]

Meg Munn: The Eastern Sudan Peace Agreement does not include any provisions on wealth sharing between Khartoum and the eastern states, although it has established a Reconstruction and Development Fund for Eastern Sudan.

Fiscal relations between the federal and state governments in Sudan are covered in the Wealth Sharing Protocol of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA). The UK monitors the implementation of the Protocol, and the activities of the Fiscal and Financial Allocation and Monitoring Commission (FFAMC) set up to carry this out, through its participation in the Wealth Sharing Group of the CPA Assessment and Evaluation Commission.

The FFAMC proposed a revised formula for the allocation of revenue which was adopted for the 2007 federal budget. This new formula should result in the more equitable allocation of resources, although evidence to date shows that there are still some discrepancies between budgeted and actual transfers.

The UK continues to monitor the new arrangements for wealth sharing and to work with others, including the World Bank, to bring about fiscal reform across Sudan.

Ukraine: Entry Clearances

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what rationale supported the decision to require applications from Ukraine for settlement in the UK to be submitted by appointment only. [154508]

Dr. Howells: The visa section in Kiev took the decision to introduce an appointment system for settlement visa applications in order to manage more effectively the number of applications received per day.

The number of settlement visa appointments has been set at seven per day from 1 October. This will improve customer service by providing pre-arranged appointment times for applicants who will no longer be subject to unpredictable waiting times at the visa section.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what minimum notice period may be given of appointments to submit applications for settlement in the UK from Ukraine. [154509]

Dr. Howells: There is currently a minimum six-day notice period for appointments to submit an application for settlement in the UK from Ukraine.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what consideration is given to the distances that have to be travelled to attend appointments, when giving notice of appointments to submit applications for settlement in the UK from Ukraine. [154510]

Dr. Howells: If an applicant for a settlement visa to the UK from the Ukraine is unable to attend their appointment due to the distance they need to travel they are able to book a new appointment. This will not affect the outcome of their visa application.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund: Grants

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what investigations took place into the activities of the (a) Friends of the Western Buddhist Order, (b) the New Kadempa Tradition and (c) Soka Gakkai International before the Department took the final decision to grant funds to each organisation from the Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund. [156700]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department considered information received from the Information Network Focus on religious movements who provide objective information to Government relating to minority religious groups before agreeing that the funding could be released.

Audit Commission: Teammate International Forum

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) cost and (b) purpose was of the Audit Commission attending the Teammate International Forum in Tampa, Florida in November 2006. [155716]

Mr. Iain Wright: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission and I will ask the Chief Executive of the Audit Commission to write to the hon. Member directly.

Letter from Steve Bundred, dated 4 October 2007:

I am writing in response to your parliamentary question asking what the (a) cost and (b) purpose was of the Audit Commission attending the Teammate International Forum in Tampa, Florida.

The Audit Commission sent two delegates to the TeamMate International Forum at a total cost of £1,912.

TeamMate is the Commission's electronic working paper software and is fundamental to our core business. It is a proprietary product marketed around the globe by PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC). The Commission is the single largest user of this application worldwide. Every two years PwC organises an international users' conference.

The principal purpose of our attendance at the conference was to maintain up-to-date knowledge of how the product is being used elsewhere and planned future developments of the software. The secondary purpose was to network with other users to learn from them and ensure we keep our audit tools as efficient as possible. Attendance at the event also gives us an opportunity to influence the future development of the product to meet our developing business needs.

A copy of this letter will be placed in the House of Commons Library.

Buildings: Energy

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued on whether the forthcoming requirement for buildings over 1,000 square metres to display an energy certificate and advisory report applies to (a) churches and places of worship, (b) train stations, (c) venues licensed under the Licensing Act 2003 for the sale of alcohol and (d) care homes; and if she will make a statement. [153817]

Yvette Cooper: The Display Energy Certificate requirement will apply to buildings over 1,000 sq m that are occupied by a public authority or an institution providing a public service to a large number of persons. We are continuing to work with key stakeholders and will publish further guidance in due course.

Buildings: Standards

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what assessment she has made of the merits of changing the building regulations to require all new build homes to be built to lifetime home standards; [155968]

(2) what assessment she has made of the merits of requiring 10 per cent. of all new build housing to be wheelchair accessible throughout. [155969]

Mr. Iain Wright: The costs and benefits of lifetime homes, which include wheelchair accessibility, are set out in the Department's consultation document "The future of the Code for Sustainable Homes—making a rating mandatory" published on 23 July 2007 with a closing date for comment of 23 October 2007. The document proposes making lifetime homes standards mandatory within the code at progressively lower levels of the code over time.

There is currently no proposal to change the building regulations to require all new build homes to be built to lifetime home standards. However, the Government have stated, in its response to Kate Barker's report on Housing Supply, that "It is very important that there is progress on increasing take up of the lifetime homes standard. The Government will monitor take up and review the future need for regulation if appropriate."

Casinos: Planning Permission

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many planning appeals relating to casinos or with a casino element have been considered by (a) the Planning Inspectorate and (b) the First Secretary of State since November 2005. [155686]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Secretary of State has not decided any planning applications that have included a casino element since November 2005. In the same period, the Planning Inspectorate have decided eight appeals for developments with a casino element, of which five have been allowed and three dismissed. Details of these can be found in the following tables.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether concerns over problem gambling may be considered as a material factor when assessing a planning application for a casino. [155697]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend, the Minister for Housing and Planning (Yvette Cooper) on 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 268W.

Community Development

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what individuals and organisations have been invited to discussions and meetings with her Department on community integration and cohesion issues in the last 12 months. [156425]

Mr. Dhanda: Communities and Local Government (CLG) is responsible for coordinating and delivering work to build community integration and cohesion in local areas. We do this by meeting with and consulting a wide range of stakeholders both within Whitehall, and the regions.

We also meet routinely with local authorities, LGA and the IDEA, to discuss the important work of building community cohesion and promoting integration.

In order to ensure we deliver real life policy, CLG also meets and consults with a wide range of grass roots individuals and organisation involved in delivering cohesion at the sharp end.

The Commission on Integration and Cohesion, which ran from August 2006 to June 2007, was supported by a small CLG secretariat, which undertook research on their behalf, and co-ordinated an outreach programme that meant they engaged with over 2000 people through round tables, regional visits, and user forums.

A comprehensive list of all individuals and organisations met could only be produced at disproportionate cost, but to inform its approach to developing and promoting integration and community cohesion, CLG has met:

Groundwork UK
HACT
CLG's Neighbourhood Renewal Advisors
National Community Forum (NCF)
Race Equality Action Group (REAG)
Community Security Trust
Board of Deputies of British Jews
Chief Rabbi's Office
Jewish Leadership Council
Skillsforce
Institute of Community Cohesion (ICOCO)
Muslim.Safety Forum
MCHC Muslim Cultural Heritage Centre
The Participation Works
Representatives of the South Asian Development Partnership.
ACPO National Community Tensions Team
Citizenship Foundation
Serious Organised Crime Agency
LB Barking and Dagenham

Mosques and Imams National Advisory Board

Officials in CLG have on occasion also met with representatives from overseas seeking to exchange good practice on integration and cohesion.

Departments: Berkeley Group

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 23 July 2007, Official Report, column 735W, on Departments: Berkeley Group, whether the right hon. Member for Kingston upon Hull, East (Mr. Prescott) met with (a) directors, representatives or lawyers acting for and (b) employees of (i) Berkeley Group Holdings plc, (ii) St George plc, (iii) Berkeley Homes plc, (iv) St James Group Ltd, (v) Berkeley First Ltd, (vi) Berkeley Commercial Development Ltd and (vii) Berkeley Strategic Land Ltd in a Ministerial capacity in the last three years; and whether any officials in her Department attended such meetings. [156240]

Mr. Iain Wright: Ministers and civil servants meet many people as part of the process of policy development and advice. As a general point of principle, information relating to such meetings is not normally disclosed.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which private consultancy firms (a) her Department and (b) agencies which report to her Department engaged in each of the last three years; which programmes or projects each firm worked on; and what the approximate cost to the Department or agency concerned was of each engagement. [155898]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the right hon. Member for Maidenhead (Mrs. May) on 14 June 2007, Official Report, column 1170W, which lists those 10 Communities Programmes which accounted for the most consultancy spend.

Departments: Private Finance Initiatives

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list the signed local authority private finance initiative projects for which her Department is responsible. [154457]

Mr. Iain Wright: Details of all signed PFI projects are recorded on HM Treasury's website which is maintained through returns provided by each Government Department on a twice yearly basis during budget reporting periods.

A list of signed local authority private finance initiative projects which are sponsored by Communities and Local Government is available from HM Treasury's website on the following link:

Fire Services: Perfluoro Octane Sulphanate

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on how many occasions in each of the last 10 years fire-fighting operations involved the use of materials containing perfluoro octane sulphanate. [155722]

Mr. Dhanda: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Fire Services: Working Time Directive

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether there is a derogation from the Working Time Directive for retained firefighters who have other employment. [155699]

Mr. Dhanda: Retained duty system firefighters are able to work beyond the 48 hours a week set by the working time regulations provided they have signed a waiver for their primary and secondary employment.

Flood Control

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's definition is of the probability of (a) low, (b) medium and (c) high flood risk in terms of the frequency in years at which an area is likely to flood. [156578]

Mr. Iain Wright: The definitions of (a) low, (b) medium and (c) high risk probability are defined in Table D.I. of Planning Policy Statement 25 (PPS25) 'Development and Flood Risk', which Communities and Local Government published in December 2006.

The definitions are as follows:

(a) Low Probability (Flood Zone 1)

This zone comprises land assessed as having a less than one in 1,000 annual probability of river or sea flooding in any year (<0.1%)

(b) Medium probability (Flood Zone 2)

This zone comprises land assessed as having between a one in 100 and one in 1,000 annual probability of river flooding (1 per cent. to 0.1 per cent. or between a one in 200 and one in 1,000 annual probability of sea flooding (0.5 per cent. to 1 per cent.) in any year.

(c) High probability (Flood Zone 3a)

This zone comprises land assessed as having a one in 100 or greater annual probability of river flooding (>1%) or a one in 200 or greater annual probability of flooding from the sea (>0.5%) in any year.

These flood zones refer to the probability of river and sea flooding, ignoring the presence of defences as these can be breached, overtopped and may not be in existence for the lifetime of the development.

Green Belt

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many hectares of designated Green Belt land lost their Green Belt designation in each Government Office Region in England in each year since 1997. [155705]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table shows the net amount of designated green belt land lost by Government office region in hectares for the years for which data is available.

Net area loss of designated green belt by Government office region

	Net losses in hectares between:
Government office region	1997 and 2003	2003 and 2004	2004 and 2006

[1] The 2004 to 2006 figure includes 47,300 hectares of designated green belt land in New Forest DC and Test Valley DC which was designated as New Forest National Park in 2005.

Excluding the 47,300 hectares of green belt land which was designated as National Park in 2005, the total amount of green belt increased across England by 27,850 hectares over the nine-year period 1997 to 2006.

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance has been produced for local authorities on the enforcement of the home information pack regulations. [152384]

Yvette Cooper: The Department has produced procedural guidance for the home information pack regulations, including guidance on the enforcement provisions within the regulations. The Department has also produced guidance for enforcement authorities, following consultations with Local Authorities Coordinators of Regulatory Services (LACORS) and the Trading Standards Institute (TSI).

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the maximum time is that a local authority and water search in a home information pack can remain in place before it must be renewed. [156562]

Yvette Cooper: The HIPs (No. 2) Regulations 2007 do not specify how long a search report should remain in place before it must be renewed but require that a search must not be older than three months at the first point of marketing.

Home Information Packs: Finance

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 26 June 2007, Official Report, column 633W, on home information packs: finance, by what mechanism funding is being provided to trading standards officers in Wales. [152684]

Yvette Cooper: Funding for trading standards officers in Wales is provided through the annual revenue settlement. Responsibility for the revenue settlement in Wales rests with the Welsh Assembly Government. In 2007-08 the settlement amounted to £3.7 billion.

Home Information Packs: Trading Standards Institute

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to trading standards officers on the enforcement of home information pack regulations. [152517]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given today (UIN 152384).

Home Information Packs: Valuation

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government under what circumstances mortgage lenders and automated valuation suppliers may use information from the Energy Performance Certificate register for automated valuations. [153816]

Yvette Cooper: The disclosure of Energy Performance Certificates and information obtained from them, whether obtained directly from the register or otherwise, is limited to the purposes set down in the Energy Performance of Buildings Regulations 2007.

Homelessness: Expenditure

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent in London on rough sleepers by (a) central Government and (b) local authorities in each of the last five years. [156718]

Mr. Iain Wright: Homelessness grant is paid to local authorities to tackle homelessness, which includes rough sleeping. It is also paid direct to several voluntary sector agencies in London to help them tackle rough sleeping. Supporting People, introduced in 2003, also funds rough sleeper services. The following table indicates the amount of funding.

In addition to the moneys outlined in the table, an extra £63 million has been made available under the Hotels Capital Improvement Programme in the last three years to improve hostels and day centres used by rough sleepers in London.

Housing

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of the housing stock in England is made up of three bedroom homes. [155696]

Yvette Cooper: The Survey of English Housing reported that 45 per cent. of households in England lived in three-bedroom dwellings in the financial year 2005-06.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what proportion of her Department's target of building 240,000 new dwellings a year in England she expects to be built by (a) local authorities as council housing stock, (b) housing associations for social tenure and (c) the private sector for private sale. [155858]

Yvette Cooper: The Government are committed to tackling the problems of housing affordability and have announced plans to raise the annual housing supply target for 2016 from 200,000 to 240,000 additional homes a year.

The recent Housing Green Paper "Homes for the future: more affordable, more sustainable" sets out further details of our proposals, including Government's plans for the level of affordable housing to be delivered in the years covered by the Comprehensive Spending Review, supported by investment of at least £8 billion. We are increasing outputs of new affordable housing to at least 70,000 by 2010-11 of which 45,000 will be for new social rented homes—50 per cent. more than this year, 2007-08.

The detail of where additional housing of various types will be located is a matter for regional and local planning processes and functions.

Housing: Disabled

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many local authorities with housing responsibilities in England have an adapted homes register; [155970]

(2) what assessment she has made of the merits of requiring all local authorities with housing responsibilities to maintain an adapted homes register; [155971]

(3) what assessment she has made of the merits of the creation of a nationwide adapted homes register. [155972]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department does not collect information about social landlords who hold adapted homes registers (otherwise known as accessible housing registers).

The Government want to see social landlords make the best use of housing stock, including accommodation which is accessible or has been adapted. We recognise that accessible housing registers can be useful and the current statutory guidance to local authorities on the allocation of accommodation encourages their use.

The Department's Disability Equality Scheme published in December 2006 includes a commitment to establish whether and what the role is for accessible housing registers (AHRs) within the context of our choice-based lettings policy[1] and the development of the National Register of Social Housing (NROSH).

NROSH will be a central record of each individual unit of social housing (local authority and housing association stock). This includes property referencing, size type and age of dwelling, category of provision, decent homes standard, accessibility, tenure, rent, service charges and vacancy status. The Data Standards document describing these fields is on the Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/housingresearch/housingstatistics/housingdataprojects/nationalregister

Data collection is not yet complete.

In addition, the Department is providing support (£760,000 over two years 2006--08) to develop a pan-London choice-based lettings scheme ('Capital Moves') including the development of a London-wide accessible housing register.

[1] CBL schemes are about advertising available social housing for which applicants can bid. We have set a target for all local authorities to have implemented CBL by 2010.

Housing: Energy

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether an energy performance certificate will need to be commissioned for a new build domestic dwelling for sale. [152411]

Yvette Cooper: Energy Performance Certificates (EPC) will be required on the sale of all new dwellings. Where an EPC has been obtained on construction, it can be reused if the property is resold within the certificate's validity period.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what definition she uses of overcrowding in relation to social housing. [153695]

Mr. Iain Wright: Under the standards set out in Section 324 of Part 10 of the Housing Act 1985 a dwelling is overcrowded when the number of people sleeping in the dwelling is such as to contravene either the 'room standard' or the 'space standard'.

The room standard is breached if the number of people sleeping in a dwelling, and the number of rooms available as sleeping accommodation, are such that two people of opposite sexes who are not living together as husband and wife must sleep in the same room. Children under 10 do not count.

The space standard specifies the maximum number of people who may sleep in a dwelling, and in the available rooms within it, having regard to (i) the number of available rooms of 50 square feet or more and (ii) the floor area of each room. Two calculations are required and the lower number applies. Babies under one year old do not count, and children between one and 10 count as half.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether National Register of Social Housing is maintained in-house or by an external company. [153910]

Yvette Cooper: The National Register of Social Housing is a database containing information on the individual dwellings which make up the stock of social housing in England. It is under development and currently contains records of 30 per cent. of the stock. The database is maintained in house by the Department for Communities and Local Government.

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many council-owned houses have been built for rent in each West Midlands metropolitan district since 1997. [156717]

Mr. Iain Wright: The number of council-owned houses built for rent for the period 1996-97 to 2006-07 as reported by the seven West Midlands metropolitan districts is shown as follows:

	Permanent dwellings completed by local authorities
Birmingham	0
Coventry	0
Dudley	0
Sandwell	66
Solihull	0
Wolverhampton	0

Local Government

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what adopted local plans and unitary development plans are in force for each local planning authority, broken down by (a) region and (b) county; and what the month of adoption was in each case. [152746]

Yvette Cooper: Adopted local plans and UDPs are in force for all local planning authorities. Those plans which were adopted before September 2004 are "saved" until September 2007. Those adopted after September 2004 are "saved" for three years after adoption. Where local authorities have adopted development plan documents these will replace the local plans/UDPs in whole or in part. A table has been placed in the Library of the House showing the adoption dates of local plans and UDPs.

Mayor of London

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) of 11 December 2006, Official Report, column 898W, on the Mayor of London, what recent estimate she has made of the cost to the public purse, including the costs incurred by the Mayor, which will be met by the Standards Board. [156376]

John Healey: The Standards Board's own costs in respect of the case against the London Mayor amount to £64,000. The costs payable by the board to the Mayor in connection with the case are estimated to be £120,000. The cost to the Adjudication Panel in respect of the case is £14,000.

Ordnance Survey: Government Departments

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which Government departments, agencies and non-departmental public bodies have purchased licences to use the Ordnance Survey Pictometry product. [156580]

Mr. Iain Wright: Pictometry® is not an Ordnance Survey product.

BLOM Aerofilms Ltd., a private sector company, has the rights to market a Pictometry product in the United Kingdom. The product combines BLOM Aerofilms's oblique aerial imagery with viewing software patented by an American company, Pictometry International Corp.

Ordnance Survey has a non-exclusive commercial agreement with BLOM Aerofilms to act as an authorised reseller of Pictometry of Great Britain. Information on sales of licences to use Pictometry within the United Kingdom is commercially sensitive to BLOM Aerofilms Ltd., given that there are other commercial providers of potentially competing products.

Ordnance Survey: Map Watch Initiative

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the purpose is of the Ordnance Survey's Map Watch initiative. [155679]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Ordnance Survey 'Map Watch' initiative is an internal departmental initiative, started in 2000, to encourage Ordnance Survey staff to identify potentially unlicensed extracts of Ordnance Survey mapping contained within third party publications, so that infringements of Crown copyright may be investigated and resolved.

Planning Permission: Purfleet

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what period and with whom she will consult consequent on the decision of the High Court in respect of her decision to reject the planning application submitted by George Wimpey for 571 residential units on former industrial land at Cory's Wharf, Purfleet; and if she will make a statement. [156391]

Mr. Dhanda: The Secretary of State will shortly write to George Wimpey, Thurrock borough council, Thurrock Thames Gateway Development Corporation, and other interested persons who appeared at the public inquiry, to invite them to submit written representations in respect of any material changes in planning circumstances that may have occurred since the close of the inquiry. Parties will be asked to submit any representations no later than three weeks from the date of the Secretary of State's letter. Alternatively, parties may ask for the inquiry to be re-opened. In deciding whether the inquiry should be re-opened, the Secretary of State will consider all views that may be expressed to her on this matter.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what factors and whose advice she took into account in deciding to call in the planning application made by George Wimpey for 571 residential units at the former industrial land at Cory's Wharf, Purfleet; and if she will make a statement. [156392]

Mr. Dhanda: In line with the then current policy on recovering planning appeals, set out in the statement to the House of Commons on 25 July 2000 by my right hon. Friend the Member for Greenwich and Woolwich (Mr. Raynsford), the appeal was automatically recovered by the Secretary of State for her own determination in December 2004, rather than being decided by one of her Planning Inspectors, because it raised issues relating to residential development of more than 5 hectares or 150 or more houses.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons she rejected the inspector's findings made in respect of the planning application by George Wimpey for 571 residential units at the former industrial land at Cory's Wharf, Purfleet and issued an alternative determination; and if she will make a statement. [156393]

Mr. Dhanda: The reasons for the Secretary of State's decision are set out in the decision letter of 2 October 2006, which is available on the Department's website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/planning-callins/pdf/195158

Copies of the decision letter have been placed in the Library of both houses. Since this decision has now been quashed and falls to be redetermined by the Secretary of State, it would not be appropriate to comment further on the reasons for the decision.

Planning Permission: Vauxhall Tower

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the ruling of the Information Tribunal regarding the consideration of the planning application by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister for Vauxhall Tower in South London. [155683]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department for Communities and Local Government accepted the Information Tribunal Judgment in the particular case of the Vauxhall Tower planning application. Copies of the submissions by officials are available on the DCLG website. However, we consider each request for information on the particular facts of each case, in accordance with the provisions in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 and the Environmental Information Regulations 2004.

Urban Areas: Trees

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) if she will place in the Library a copy of the Trees in Towns II report commissioned by her Department; [156513]

(2) what research her Department and its predecessor commissioned into trees in urban areas over the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [156581]

Mr. Iain Wright: We have commissioned one research project on trees in urban areas over the last five years, namely Trees in Towns II.

Copies of the Trees in Towns II final report will be placed in the Library when it is published towards the end of November 2007.

TREASURY

Average Earnings

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the increase in average earnings in (a) the whole labour market, (b) the private sector and (c) the public sector has been since 1997. [155940]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 9 October 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what increase in average earnings in (a) the whole labour market, (b) the private sector and (c) the public sector has been since 1997. I am replying in her absence. (155940)

Growth in earnings is estimated from the Average Earnings Index (AEI). The AEI figures for Great Britain are collected and published monthly. The AEI does not cover the self employed and people who do unpaid work.

The monthly changes to the index and growth are published on the National Statistics website at: http://www.statistics.gov.uk/statbase/tsdtables1.asp?vlnk=emp. Calendar year comparisons are available on request.

Each month 8900 companies are surveyed for the AEI, covering 12.8 million employees, which is just under half of all GB employees.

I attach a table showing the average earnings index seasonally adjusted from 1997 until 2006 for the whole economy, public and private sectors.

Child Tax Credit

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many recipients of child tax credits receive child support agency payments or child maintenance payments which are not taken into account in assessing the recipient's income. [155725]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is not available.

Customs Officers: Manpower

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many customs officers were employed

by HM Revenue and Customs in each English region in each of the last five years. [155847]

Angela Eagle: In April 2005, HM Customs and Excise was merged with the Inland Revenue to form HM Revenue and Customs. Numbers of staff in HM Customs and Excise are not available from that date. Previous numbers of HM Customs and Excise staff within the Government office regions, as well as those of the combined Department, are published annually in 'Civil Service Statistics' and at http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/management/statistics/reports/index.asp.

The following table shows the number of staff in the Detection directorate, which is mainly engaged in anti-smuggling work, in each of the Government office regions. The substantial numbers of staff in other directorates engaged partly or wholly on work in the customs area are not identifiable from HMRC records.

Customs Officers: South West Region

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many Customs officers were permanently attached to (a) seaports, (b) airfields in (i) Cornwall, (ii) Devon, (iii) Dorset, (iv) Isle of Wight and (v) Hampshire in (A) 2001 and (B) 2007; and if he will make a statement; [156682]

(2) what plans he has to increase the permanent presence of customs officers at (a) seaports and (b) airfields in (i) Cornwall, (ii) Devon, (iii) Dorset, (iv) Isle of Wight and (v) Hampshire, with particular reference to land-based officers doing uncanalised work; and if he will make a statement. [156694]

Angela Eagle: HMRC do not release the numbers of front line Customs staff that they deploy at a local level as this would provide information of value to those seeking to circumvent HM Revenue and Customs' controls, thereby prejudicing the prevention and detection of crime.

Debts

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what proportion of personal debt is (a) secured and (b) unsecured; and if he will make a statement; [156261]

(2) what the level of (a) total, (b) secured and (c) unsecured personal debt in the UK is as a percentage of gross disposable income; and if he will make a statement; [156262]

(3) what the level of (a) total, (b) secured, (c) average secured, (d) unsecured and (e) average unsecured personal debt is in (i) the UK and (ii) each region; and if he will make a statement. [156263]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 October 2007:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent questions on what proportion of personal debt is secured and unsecured, what these are as percentages of gross disposable income and what the average levels of these are in the UK and in each region of the UK. Debts: Cornwall

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the level of personal debt incurred by people living in Cornwall was in each year since 1979. [156666]

Angela Eagle: HM Treasury does not hold data concerning the information requested.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which private consultancy firms (a) his Department and (b) agencies which report to his Department engaged in each of the last three years; which programmes or projects each firm worked on; and what the approximate cost to the Department or agency concerned was of each engagement. [155880]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury group's spending on consultancy since 2001-02 is set out in table 7.4 on page 91 of the 2006-07 annual report and accounts, available from http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/about/departmental_reports/annual_report07.cfm. The further details requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Official Cars

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what visits he has made involving a mix of political and official engagements where Government Car Service vehicles were used in 2007; and whether the Government was reimbursed a proportion of the cost in each case. [142600]

Angela Eagle: All travel is undertaken in accordance with Travel by Ministers and the Ministerial Code, copies of which are available in the House Library.

Departments: Public Bodies

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list his Department's (a) executive agencies, (b) executive non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations for each financial year since 2005-06. [156678]

Angela Eagle: In the financial year 2006-07, the Treasury had one Executive agency, the Debt Management Office and two NDPBs, the Public Services Productivity Panel, and the Statistics Commission. The abolition of the PSPP was announced in the 2006 pre-Budget report. The Statistics Commission will be replaced by a new Statistics Board, independent of the Treasury, under the Statistics Bill.

The Office of Government Commerce, part of the HM Treasury Group, has one trading fund, OGCbuying.solutions.

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his Department's projected spending is on advertising and promotional campaigns for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, broken down by cost relating to (i) television, (ii) radio and (iii) print media. [155897]

Angela Eagle: The only form of advertising spending planned by the Treasury for 2007-08 is recruitment advertising, in print and electronic media. The Treasury's budget for recruitment costs (including other costs besides recruitment advertising) for 2007-08 is £116,000. Line by line budgets for 2008-09 have not yet been set.

Disabled

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people were registered as disabled in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since 1997; and how many of those registered were in employment in each case. [156714]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about how many people were registered as disabled and how many of those registered were in employment in each year since 1997. (156714)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles employment statistics for local areas from the annual local area Labour Force Survey (LFS) and the Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation (1LO) definitions. ONS does not have data on registered disabled people but the above surveys do collect information on the disability status of respondents, based on the respondents' self-assessment.

The table attached, shows the number of disabled people and of those the number who were in employment in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK, for the 12 month period ending in February for 1999 to 2004 from the local area LFS and for the 12 month period ending in March for 2003 to 2006, from the APS. The table also shows employment rates which allow changes to be seen in the context of changing population numbers. Annual estimates are not available prior to 1999.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the annual Labour Force Survey and the Annual Population Survey are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Domicile: Taxation

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many investigations his Department instigated into claimants of non-domicile tax status in the last 12 months for which information is available; and if he will make statement; [153860]

(2) how many investigations instigated by his Department into claimants of non-domicile tax status resulted in claimants being (a) fined and (b) imprisoned for wrongfully claiming non-domicile status in the last year for which information is available; and if he will make a statement; [153861]

(3) how many people (a) successfully and (b) unsuccessfully applied for non-domicile tax status in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [153864]

(4) how many investigations were undertaken into the income and assets held overseas by non-domiciled UK taxpayers in the last year for which information is available; and if he will make a statement; [153936]

(5) what estimate his Department has made of the number of people claiming non-domicile tax status in each of the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [153937]

Jane Kennedy: Information on investigations relating to and applications for non-domicile status are not held centrally and could be collated only at disproportionate cost.

Claims for non-domicile status are not all processed separately from the overall tax assessment and are, therefore, not recorded separately. However, HMRC does know the number of taxpayers who have indicated non-domicile status through self-assessment. The following table shows the number of taxpayers who have done so through the SA return over the past 10 years. These figures cannot be broken down by month.

Tax year	Number of non-domicile claims

Drug Seizures

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what account is taken of past quantities of heroin and cocaine seized by HM Revenue and Customs in setting targets for future seizures; for what reason equivalent seizure targets are not set for (a) ecstasy and (b) cannabis; and if he will make a statement [156607]

John McDonnell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what quantities of (a) heroin, (b) cocaine, (c) ecstasy and (d) cannabis were seized as a result of HM Revenue and Customs operations in each of the last four years; [156024]

(2) what the seizure quantity targets were for (a) heroin, (b) cocaine, (c) ecstasy and (d) cannabis in each of the last four years. [156025]

Angela Eagle: Seizure quantity targets for 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 for the Concerted Inter Agency Drugs Action group (CIDA) are as follows:

Financial year	Heroin	Kilograms Cocaine
2005-06[1]	5,300	13,200
2004-05	4,600	12,600

[1] The targets set for each of the years 2005-06, 2004-05, 2003 -04 were joint targets for the agencies that formed the Concerted Inter-agency Drugs Action group (CIDA). The individual agencies that formed CIDA, including HMRC did not have their own specific targets.

No seizure targets were set for ecstasy or cannabis.

HM Revenue & Customs was one of the contributing agencies to CIDA's overall seizure target quantities. HMRC seized the following quantities of drugs in each of the last four years.

[1] When the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) became operational on 1 April 2006, primacy for, and the resources associated with the investigation of Class A drugs cases transferred to SOCA.

[2] The large quantity of cocaine seized in this year is due to the culmination of several long running operations.

HMRC's seizure target for 2006-07 was 700kgs for heroin and 2,600kgs for cocaine. In setting the targets for 2007-08 for heroin and cocaine, HM Revenue & Customs used their 2005-06 results and stripped out those seizures that were generated by the area of the Department that transferred to the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA).

Drug Seizures: South West Region

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what quantity of (a) heroin, (b) cocaine, (c) ecstasy, (d) cannabis and (e) firearms has been seized by Customs officers in (i) seaports and (ii) airfields in (A) Cornwall, (B) Devon, (C) Dorset, (D) Isle of Wight and (E) Hampshire in (1) 2001, (2) 2002 and (3) in the last year for which records are available; and if he will make a statement. [156693]

Angela Eagle: National information on seizures made by HM Revenue and Customs since 2003 is contained in their annual reports.

Information of seizures by location cannot be disclosed as this would provide information of value to those seeking to circumvent HM Revenue and Customs' controls, thereby prejudicing the prevention and detection of crime.

Financial Services: Bermuda

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of whether the banking and financial sector of Bermuda is (a) sufficiently transparent and (b) regulated and subject to oversight that meets European and other international norms designed to combat financial and white collar crime; and if he will make a statement. [155823]

Kitty Ussher: In 1999 the United Kingdom and the Caribbean Overseas Territories and Bermuda jointly commissioned an in-depth independent review of financial regulation in those territories. This review, carried out by KPMG and published on 27 October 2000, assessed the extent to which these Overseas Territories comply with international standards and good practice in the way they regulate their financial services sectors.

Bermuda is a member of the Caribbean Financial Action Taskforce and of the Offshore Group of Banking Supervisors, which are both observers bodies to the Financial Action Taskforce. Bermuda is also a member of the Egmont Group, the organisation for sharing information between Financial Intelligence Units. The Bermuda Monetary Authority is a member of the International Organisation of Securities Commissions, which requires members to enter into a memorandum of understanding to mutually share information.

The International Monetary Fund conducted a review of Bermuda's financial sector regulation and supervision in early 2003 which is publicly available at www.imf.org/external/pubs/ft/scr/2005/cr0598.pdf and www.imf.org/external/pubs/ft/scr/2005/cr0599.pdf. This describes the financial, regulatory, and supervisory framework as well developed in banking, the key areas of securities regulation, and Anti-Money Laundering/ Counter Financing of Terrorism. The Caribbean Financial Action Task Force and the International Monetary Fund are currently undertaking a further assessment of regulation and supervision in Bermuda.

Financial Services: Pay

Ben Chapman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact of City bonuses on (a) London's housing market and (b) increases in housing prices in London in the last five years. [155607]

Jane Kennedy: HM Treasury has made no explicit assessment of the impact of City bonuses on London's housing market. Prospects for the housing market are examined as part of the usual Budget and pre-Budget report forecasting process.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will undertake an evaluation of the adequacy of the tax rate on City bonuses. [155608]

Jane Kennedy: The Government keep all aspects of the tax system under review as part of the Budget cycle

HM Revenue and Customs: Correspondence

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Chairman of HM Customs and Revenue expects to reply to the letter of 19 July from the hon. Member for Aylesbury on the tax credit case of Mr. and Mrs. D. of Aylesbury (ref. JE875300A); and if he will make a statement. [156223]

Jane Kennedy: The Chairman of HM Revenue and Customs recently replied and apologises to the hon. Member for the delay in doing so.

HM Revenue and Customs: Travel

John McDonnell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the travelling and subsistence costs for mobile detection teams within the detection directorate of HM Revenue and Customs were in each of the last four years. [156026]

Angela Eagle: All frontline detection staff are deployed on flexible, mobile basis. Total travel and subsistence expenditure for the detection directorate is shown in the following table.

2006-07	6,537,486
2005-06	6,378,546
2004-05	5,713,698
2003-04	5,931,342

Inheritance Tax

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many estates in 2006-07 were not liable to inheritance tax as a consequence of the exemption available for (a) spouses and (b) civil partners. [155724]

Jane Kennedy: No such estimates are available for 2006-07, because the supporting information is not complete.

Insolvency: Football

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which professional football clubs have gone into administration leaving an unpaid debt to HM Revenue and Customs since 2000. [155598]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs are not in a position to provide such information about individual businesses, to do so would breach taxpayer confidentiality.

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) tax and (b) national insurance revenue has been (i) lost and (ii) written off in relation to each professional football club which has entered into administration since 2000. [155599]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs are not in a position to provide information about individual businesses, as to do so would breach taxpayer confidentiality.

International Monetary Fund: Public Appointments

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment his Department has made of the suitability of (a) European and (b) non-European candidates for the post of Managing Director of the International Monetary Fund; and if he will make a statement; [155773]

(2) what discussions his Department has held on nominating a non-European candidate for the post of Managing Director of the International Monetary Fund; and if he will make a statement; [155774]

(3) what criteria his Department uses to assess candidates for nomination for the post of Managing Director of the International Monetary Fund; and if he will make a statement. [156317]

Kitty Ussher: The UK supports an open, transparent and meritocratic process for the selection of the Managing Director of the IMF, with the best candidate for the job selected regardless of nationality. The Chancellor has made this clear to other Finance Ministers both publicly and privately, including at the 9 July meeting of ECOFIN.

In selecting the successor to Rodrigo de Rato, the IMF's Executive Board put in place for the first time a selection process designed to deliver the UK's preferred objectives. This included a clear job description, a public timetable, a month-long nominations period, an interview stage—and an invitation for applications from all member countries. All of these steps were followed and by the close of nominations on 31 August two highly credible candidates had been put forward: Dominique Strauss-Kahn of France and Josef Tosovsky of the Czech Republic.

Before determining which of the two candidates to support, the UK compared their qualifications and experience to the job description set out by the Executive Board, available on the IMF website at www.imf.org/external/np/sec/pr/2007/pr07159.htm and concluded that Dominique Strauss-Kahn would be best able to succeed in pushing forward significant reform at the Fund. For this reason, the UK Executive Director supported his candidacy and the UK welcomed Mr. Strauss-Kahn's appointment on 28 September.

The UK will in future continue to support a similarly open and transparent process for all senior appointments at both the IMF and the World Bank.

Landfill Tax

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much landfill tax was paid by (a) waste disposal authorities and (b) other local authorities in each of the last 10 years. [156502]

Angela Eagle: It is not possible using landfill tax receipts data to determine how much revenue is received from local authorities. This is because registered landfill site operators pay the tax to HM Revenue and Customs and pass on the cost to their customers through the disposal charges they set. The origin of the landfilled waste is not recorded on the tax return.

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much landfill tax was hypothecated to local authorities via the Revenue Support Grant Settlements in each of the last four financial years. [156503]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 2 July 2007, Official Report, column 936W.

National Income: Cornwall

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the gross value added was for Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly in each year since 2004. [156667]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 9 October 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning Gross Value Added (GVA) for Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly in each year since 2004. I am replying in her absence. (156667)

Regional Gross Value Added (GVA) data are produced using the official statistical geographies known as NUTS (Nomenclature of Units for Territorial Statistics). GVA data exist for the NUTS2 region of Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly for the time period 1995-2004. These data were provided in the PQ response Official Report of 16 July 2007, Volume 463, Col 62, which requested Gross Value Added in Cornwall in each year since 1979.

ONS plan to publish regional GVA data up to and including 2006 for NUTS1 regions and 2005 for NUTS2 and NUTS3 regions in December 2007.

National Insurance Contributions

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what percentage of people in (a) Cambridgeshire and (b) the United Kingdom who have been informed that their National Insurance contributions do not meet the required level to qualify for the basic state pension in each of the last 10 tax years have made voluntary Class 3 National Insurance contributions up to the level required to qualify for the basic state pension; [156499]

(2) what percentage of people in (a) Cambridgeshire and (b) the United Kingdom who hold National Insurance numbers have made National Insurance contributions during each of the last 10 tax years. [156501]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 8 October 2007]: HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) maintains National Insurance records but does not hold the precise data requested by the hon. Member. In particular data are not held by county of residence.

Each year HMRC tells certain customers where their annual National Insurance contributions do not meet the qualifying level for basic state pension purposes for a tax year and how to pay the amount of voluntary contributions needed to make good the shortfall.

The following table gives detail for each year on a national basis.

	1996-97 to 2001-02 year breakdown not available	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05
Number of deficiency notices issued[1]	10,021,682	3,785,747	3,664,485	4,719,208
Number of receipts by end of March 2007 i.e. voluntary contributions made	329,046	129,411	105,774	60,031

[1] The tax years shown are the years in which the shortfall occurred as opposed to the year in which the notice was issued.

The percentage of people with National Insurance numbers who make a contribution in any year is not available.

Northern Rock

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the guarantee announced for deposits in Northern Rock covers unlimited new deposits into existing accounts; and for how long it is expected to continue. [155740]

Mr. Darling: On 17 September I announced that, should it be necessary, the Government, with the Bank of England, would put in place arrangements that would guarantee all the existing deposits in Northern Rock Plc. These arrangements would continue during the current instability in the financial markets.

The Government have today announced that these arrangements will be extended to cover all new retail deposits in Northern Rock Plc. The arrangements will cover all retail deposits taken since 19 September. Northern Rock Plc will pay an appropriate fee for the extension of the arrangements, which is designed to ensure that the company does not receive a commercial advantage.

Office for National Statistics: Directories

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the latest version of the National Statistics Postcode Directory. [156003]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question requesting that a copy of the latest version of the National Statistics Postcode Directory be placed in the House of Commons Library (156003).

The quarterly Directory is a database file, available in a number of formats, which is used primarily for data processing. The Directory has not been developed for searches of individual postcodes and so does not have a user interface.

A free postcode searching facility is available through the GIGateway website: http://www.gigateway.org.uk/areasearch/default.html which contains all of the data available on the latest August '07 version of the Directory. This will provide you with direct access to the information held on the Directory.

The Parliamentary Constituencies held on the Directory are the current constituencies.

If you require any further information please contact Alistair Calder (alistair.calder@ons.gsi.gov.uk or 01329 813562).

Personal Income

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average (a) annual incomes and (b) annual gross disposable household incomes were in (i) each parliamentary constituency in Cornwall, (ii) the South West, (iii) England and (iv) the UK in 2006. [156664]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning annual incomes and gross disposable household income (GDHI) in Cornwall, the South West, England and the United Kingdom in 2006. (156664)

Estimates of income are available back to 1995 and the latest year available is 2005. These data were provided in the PQ response Official Report of 5 June 2007, Volume 461, Col 474. ONS plan to publish regional GDHI for 2006 in April 2008.

Smuggling: Boats

John McDonnell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many uncanalised yacht and pleasure craft are estimated to have entered the UK in each year since 2003; and how many interventions or challenges have been made on yacht and pleasure craft by HM Revenue and Customs or other UK authorities since 2003. [156028]

Angela Eagle: HM Revenue and Customs have not made any estimate of the number of yacht and pleasure craft arrivals to the UK.

We do not record centrally the number of challenges made on such craft.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what border controls HM Revenue and Customs exercise on (a) uncanalised yachts and (b) pleasure craft traffic, (i) entering and (ii) leaving the UK; and how many seizures of articles subject to an import prohibition have been made by HM Revenue and Customs in each year since 2003, broken down by category of item; and if he will make a statement. [156377]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs challenge, board and search yachts and pleasure craft on an intelligence-led basis. We do not centrally record seizures from such craft separately from other modes of transport.

National seizure figures are available in the HM Revenue and Customs Annual Report.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) records and (b) estimates have been made of the number of uncanalised yacht and pleasure craft entering the UK each year since 2003; and how many challenges have been made in respect of such craft by HM Revenue and Customs or other UK authority since 2003. [156608]

Angela Eagle: HM Revenue and Customs have not made any estimate of the number of yacht and pleasure craft arrivals to the UK. No record is kept of the number of such vessels entering the UK.

We do not record centrally the number of challenges made on such craft.

Tax Yields: Cornwall

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much money was received into the public purse from people in Cornwall by (a) Pay As You Earn, (b) national insurance, (c) VAT, (d) corporation tax and (e) road tax in each year since 1979. [156665]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 October 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning the amount of tax revenue raised in Cornwall per annum. (156665)

The Office for National Statistics publishes regional estimates of Gross Disposable Household Income (GDHI) which include data for taxes on incomes and wealth paid by households. Data are available from 1995-2005. Regional estimates for expenditure based taxes and duties, for example VAT, are not available. Taxes paid by corporations are also unavailable on a regional basis.

Table A contains estimates of household taxes paid by residents of Cornwall and the Isles of Stilly from 1995 to 2005.

Table A: Taxes generated per annum millions[1,2]

	Cornwall and Isles of Scilly[3]
1995	549
1996	518
1997	523
1998	608
1999	627
2000	673
2001	717
2002	729
2003	764
2004	841
2005	909

[1] These data are at current prices. They are not deflated to account for increases in prices over time. Regional data are not available on a constant price (deflated) basis.
[2] These estimates are taken from the most recent release of regional GDHI data, published in March 2007.
[3] Data are presented for Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly combined. These data cannot be disaggregated into the two constituent areas.

Taxation: Gambling

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assumptions his Department has made regarding the behavioural changes necessary in order for receipts from remote gaming duty to equal those anticipated in the 2007 Financial Statement and Budget Report; [156521]

(2) how much revenue he expects to receive from remote gaming duty in each of the next five years. [156522]

Angela Eagle: Receipts from Remote Gaming Duty were forecast on the basis that existing Remote Gaming providers are located in tax havens and would not choose to relocate in Great Britain under any rate of taxation. Even at 0 per cent. Remote Gaming Duty, we expected the presence of irrecoverable VAT alone to prevent these companies choosing to relocate in Great Britain.

Revenue estimates of the Budget changes to gambling taxation were published in the 2007 Financial Statement and Budget Report.

Taxation: National Lottery

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Treasury has raised in duty from the sale of National Lottery tickets in each year since the Lottery was established; and if he will make a statement. [156264]

Angela Eagle: Revenues from gambling taxes are published in the HM Revenue and Customs Betting, Gaming and Lottery Duties Statistical Factsheet, available at http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=facbetting

Taxation: Pensioners

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the tax changes announced in the 2007 budget due to be implemented in 2008 on a woman pensioner aged between 60 and 65; and if he will make a statement. [156453]

Kitty Ussher: Tax changes announced in Budget 2007 were part of a package of reforms to support work, families and pensioners. The exact impact of the reforms on individuals including women pensioners aged between 60 and 64 will depend both on their own incomes, and also the circumstances of the household in which they live, for example the income and age of any partner, and family eligibility for tax credits and benefits.

Unemployment: Young People

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many 18 to 24-year-olds were not in full-time education, employment or training in each (a) local authority area and (b) parliamentary constituency in the latest period for which figures are available; and what proportion of the population of 18 to 24-year-olds this represented in each case. [155992]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 9 October 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about young people not in employment, full-time education or training. I am replying in her absence. (155992)

Tables 1 and 2 attached, show the numbers of 18 to 24 year olds not in full-time education, employment or training, resident in Great Britain, parliamentary constituencies and local authorities, for the 12 months ending in March 2007 from the Annual Population Survey. The tables also show these numbers as percentages of the 18 to 24 year old populations in the areas.

Estimates for a subset of the population in a small geographical area, are based on very small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty.

As the information is extensive, copies of these tables have been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Valuation Office Agency: ICT

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what purpose the Valuation Office Agency joined PISCES; on what date; and at what cost. [156598]

Jane Kennedy: In January 2006 the VGA joined PISCES (Property Information System Common Exchange Standards) to enable it to contribute to the development of common standards for the holding—and where authorised—transfer of information relating to commercial properties. Executive membership costs £10,000 plus VAT per year.

VAT: Helmets

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reasons VAT is charged on child cycling helmets. [155636]

Jane Kennedy: VAT is not chargeable on any pedal cycle helmet which satisfies the requirements of the Personal Protective Equipment Directive (Directive 89/686/EEC).

Welfare Tax Credits

Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what advice is given to claimants when there is a significant delay in amending a claimant's award notice following a change in their circumstances to enable them to calculate their tax credit entitlement when payments continue. [155749]

Jane Kennedy: Tax credits award notices and accompanying guidance notes, together with the guidance notes that accompany claim forms, all explain that changes in income can affect entitlement and encourage claimants to tell HM Revenue and Customs as soon as their income changes. Where a customer has not received a new award notice following a change in their circumstances, they can ring the Tax Credits Helpline and ask for a recalculation of their award using the new information.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department paid through the tax credit system to clients as compensation in lieu of any bank charges incurred on their personal accounts while involved with the tax credit system in the last 12 month period for which figures are available. [156294]

Jane Kennedy: The circumstances in which HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) will make compensation payments to its customers are explained in the Department's fact sheet, "Complaints and Putting Things Right", which is available at www.hmrc.gov.uk

HMRC does not separately record the value of payments made to reimburse customers' bank charges.

Welfare Tax Credits: Appeals

Mike Wood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what process is followed by HM Revenue and Customs when dealing with appeals against the decisions they make in calculating child and working tax credit entitlement. [155973]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs' guidance for dealing with appeals in relation to tax credits decisions can be found in the Tax Credits Manual which is available on their website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/manuals/ntcmanual/appeals/ntc0040000.htm

Welfare Tax Credits: Bournemouth

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was (a) overpaid and (b) underpaid to recipients of tax credits in Bournemouth in (i) 2005-06 and (ii) 2006-07. [155775]

Jane Kennedy: Estimates of the numbers of families with tax credits awards, including information on overpayments and underpayments by constituency and county, based on final family circumstances and incomes, for 2005-06, is available in the HMRC publication "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Finalised Annual Awards 2005-06. Supplements on Payments in 2005-06. Geographical Analysis", which is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personaltax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm

Estimates for 2006-07 tax credit awards are due to be published in May 2008 when family circumstances and incomes have been finalised.

Written Answers to Questions

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Burma: United Nations

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what information his Department has on reports that six UN Development Programme staff in Burma have been involved in corruption. [155590]

Mr. Malik: UN Development Programme (UNDP) has recently taken disciplinary action against four UNDP staff in Burma for unsatisfactory performance or for inappropriate use of project resources, totalling about £125.

Departments: Accountancy

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what accounts directions were issued by his Department in financial years (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [156649]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: HM Treasury issue accounts directions to Departments, pension schemes and agencies (under the Government Resource and Accounts Act 2000) and to trading funds (under the Government Trading Fund Act 1973).

For the years 2005-06 and 2006-07 the Department for International Development did not issue any accounts directions for the form and content of resource and other accounts to any of the Department's sponsored bodies.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which private consultancy firms (a) his Department and (b) agencies which report to his Department engaged in each of the last three years; which programmes or projects each firm worked on; and what the approximate cost to the Department or agency concerned was of each engagement. [155873]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The information requested is available on the DFID website http://www.dfid.gov.uk/procurement/contractslet.asp for the calendar years 2005, 2006 and up to and including September 2007. Providing the same level of information for 2004 would incur disproportionate cost. The information on our website does not include low value contracts issued by DFID's overseas offices and would also incur disproportionate cost to compile.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will break down in (a) near cash and (b) non-cash terms columns 1 to 8 of the subhead detail tables for his Department contained in the (i) main estimate, (ii) winter supplementary estimate and (iii) spring supplementary estimate for financial years 2001-02 to 2007-08. [155998]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The information in the Part II: Subhead detail table of our Supply Estimates is not broken down by near-cash/non-cash. There are no other published documents that provide a near-cash/non-cash breakdown of this data, though the Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses (PESA) publication (copies of which are in the House Library) provides a useful near-cash/non-cash DEL split (see Tables 1.6, 1.7 and 2.1 of PESA 2007 for data for years 2001-02 to 2007-08).

Data taken from Supply Estimates is not necessarily readily compatible with a near-cash/non-cash split, which is used only within the Departmental Expenditure Limit budgetary controls applied by HM Treasury. Providing a near-cash/non-cash split against the columns in the Part II: Subhead detail table in our Estimate would only be possible at disproportionate cost. The ability of Departments to provide such a split will depend partly on the extent of reconciliations between voted provision and budgetary limits.

Developing Countries: Politics and Government

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many applications he received for the Governance and Transparency Fund; and whether he plans to publish a list of (a) successful and (b) unsuccessful applications. [156068]

Mr. Malik: The deadline for proposals to the Governance and Transparency Fund (GTF) was midnight on 28 September 2007. We received 265 proposals by this deadline.

We aim to make final funding decisions in December 2007. In accordance with normal practice for our central funding schemes, we will post a full list of successful proposals on the DFID website once all applicants have been informed of the decisions. The question of whether or not to publish the names of unsuccessful applicants, bearing in mind the need to balance respect for confidentiality with a desire to be as open as possible, raises a number of issues; we are currently considering these.

Overseas Aid

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's (a) administrative expenditure, (b) other current expenditure, (c) grant expenditure, (d) operating appropriations in aid (A in A), (e) capital and (f) non-operating A in A outturn, broken down in (i) near cash and (ii) non-cash terms, was for financial years 2001-02 to 2006-07. [155997]
